Whenever Peterborough and Belleville collegiates are drawn in Interscholastic sports competition look for continued and heated controversies, and 1939 seems to be no exception to the rule. On Tuesday it was learned that the Trent Valley football winners of the C. O. S. S. A. would not compete in the senior Interscholastic playdowns, elevating the group champion Belleville Collegiate squad directly into the C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals and the right to meet Peterborough C. I., winners of the Lake Shore district in the eastern section finals. When the local mentors approached the Peterborough C. I. management regarding the series, both clubs seemed agreed that a home and home series would be the ideal set-up, but as a winner had to be declared in order to play in the C.O.S.S.A. finals at Toronto on Nov. 25th on the Varsity campus naturally a midweek game would be necessary between Belleville and the Liftlock City students. The B.C.I. agreed to play in Peterborough this Saturday but the Petes would not condescend to play the second game in Belleville next Wednesday.

It is a well known fact that the Peterborough kids would be assured of at least 1,000 on a Saturday date at home and the locals were willing to give the Liftlock City kids the first game at home realizing they would attain the large gate. But, however, a Saturday playing date is useless in Belleville and therefore the locals held out for the Wednesday return game. The Petes balked, so the locals in turn refused to play in Peterboro. The outcome now finds the two squads playing at Trinity College campus on Saturday afternoon, where both teams will lose the advantage of a home gate. The Peterboro senior Interscholastic squad are highly rated by the Peterborough scribe, who recently deserted his senior O. R. F. U. team to line-up with the Peterborough "collegians" and beat the drums of victory. McPherson, the Petes' quarterback, is heralded as a steady and consistent punter, who boots long, as well as high kicks. Harle, their husky halfback, starred with his plunging when the Petes eliminated Oshawa C. I. last Saturday.

Although Coach Eddie Schreider's B.C.I. charges have not been afforded the varied opposition enjoyed by the Peterborough squad, the local "collegians" are confident they are equal to the task of taking the Petes out in a sudden death game Saturday. Gord Farquharson, the Collegians' plunging half who has been on the sidelines nursing an injured ankle ever since Oct. 11th, will be back at his old position alongside the McBride brothers and Ross Clare. Coach Schrieder has ordered stiff practices for every afternoon this week in preparation for Saturday's sudden death game, which means curtains for the loser. According to the Liftlock City scribe the Peterborough squad is a sturdy one and carries plenty of power along the line, which means the Belleville line will be called upon to do yeoman service in both blocking and tackling and upon their shoulders rests the final decision between victory and defeat—so it's "hold that line, B.C.I." for Saturday's slogan.

Do you remember when world light-heavyweight boxing champion in New York, but not in the rest of the United States, Maxie Rosenbloom lost his gossamer title to Bob Olin five years ago today. Olin and Rosenbloom provided a 15-round spectacle before the fight was decided. Olin lost the crown to John Henry Lewis in 1935.

A goal umpire's decision, that carried much of the aroma of a "hometown verdict" was directly and wholely responsible for the defeat of the Belleville Redmen at the hands of the Royal Canadian Artillery in the opening Van Horne Memorial cup series when the "Gunners" were literally handed a 4-3 victory, thanks to a Kingston goal umpire's help. Unbiased Kingston fans were the first to assure Skipper Eddie Thomas of the poor decision. Trailing 3-2 the Redmen knotted the count with a nice combination play early in the third stanza and seemed to be headed for no worse than a tie when, with one minute left to play, Younger-Lewis fired from a distance, the puck rolled past Goalie Ken Watt, struck the goal post and rebounded out in front of the Belleville net, where Watt smothered the rubber in that true "Watt style" but strangely the goal umpire flashed his red signal indicating a goal, and that was that for the opening of the hockey season for the Belleville Redmen.

Taking into consideration the fact the Redmen had but one short practice, while the "gunners" have had the advantage of the Kingston ice for nearly two weeks, the courageous local pucksters made a splendid stand. Again the Jackson brothers and Robinson combination carried the punch, as the substitutes lacked condition. St. Louis and McCreary welcomed George Filion, former Trenton defenceman, into their bossom and with Filion in the fold the Redmen are well fortified with defencemen, while the perennial Ken Watt seems to improve with age. Although it would have been advantageous to have obtained one point last night, the Redmen will be hard to beat in the Van Horne series, providing they can get in a practice or two before their next game. Incidentally Tom Westwick, son of the old Ottawa Silver Seven star who played with Chicago and the Saskatoon Shieks, has been appointed coach of the Kingston Signals.

Sport Spice—The Kingston sport scribe, Bill Walshe, says the E.O.S.S.A. has introduced a new wrinkle in football, interference up to FIVE yards in advance to the line of scrimmage and stamps his approval thereof....The Kingston C.I. qualified for the E.O.S.S.A. finals by eliminating Smith's Falls 28-0 yesterday....It has been suggested that London be included in the "Pony" League professional baseball loop next year in an effort to expand the loop....The R.C.A.F. "Flyers" left late this afternoon for Oshawa, where they do battle with the Oshawa Generals. Dominion junior champions, tonight.....Referee-umpire Bill Stewart says "hockey fans are more rabid than baseball fans," and why not—isn't hockey a faster and more thrilling game, Willie?

4th Sidney

Fourth Sidney, Nov. 16.—On Tuesday evening, Nov. 7, between forty and fifty friends of the Stone Church Appointment gathered at the dining hall to bid Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris adieu before leaving for their new home at Wallbridge.

Rev. Mr. Scott called the people to order and asked Mr. and Mrs. Harris to come forward while Mrs. H. Jeffery read the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. Harris:

"On the eve of your departure from our midst we your friends and neighbors have congregated to spend with you again a pleasant evening as we have done on many previous occasions, accepting a hospitality that was always freely given without restraint or reserve, making every one feel at home and at ease while being entertained in your home.

"We also at this opportune time wish to say that you will be sadly missed in the work that both of you have done in connection with the Stone Church.

"In the work of the Stone Church a great deal could be said as to your faithfulness in Frank a steward and Mabel as choir leader, and a leader in singing as well as social events, dinners or suppers, was always one of the foremost insuring that everyone was being looked after to the very best advantage.

"In conclusion we wish to say that we cannot emphasize too strongly our expression of your personalities as good friends, good neighbors and good citizens.

"And now just to preserve our memories of your sojourn here, we wish to accept these tokens of remembrance to help to preserve and unite a long and lasting memory of the years that you have spent here among us.

"Signed on behalf of the community—Mr. and Mrs. W. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. A. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. C. Vermilyea, Mr. and Mrs. J. Detlor, Mr. and Mrs. H. Jeffery, Rev. L. W. and Mrs. Scott."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, taken by surprise, both thanked their many friends for their kindness and invited all to come and see them in their new home. They were presented with a beautiful electric table lamp, electric iron and a pyrex dish. "For they are jolly good fellows" was sung after which old and young joined in many games until about 10.30 p.m. after which a most delightful lunch was served and singing "Should old acquaintance be forgot" the party broke up.

Report Goering Reaches Rome

Rome, Nov. 15—(CP-Havas) — It was reported here tonight, without official confirmation or denial, that Field Marshal Hermann Goering had arrived in the Italian capital from Berlin.

(Reports that Goering would soon go to Rome circulated with persistence in London about 10 days ago. The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Herald said Nov. 4 that the purpose of the trip would be "to try to disturb good relations between Britain and Italy and the improving relations between France and Italy.")

Somebody's Boy
FIGHTING FOR YOU..

Will you contribute towards his health and comfort?

"Canadians reach France" . . . "Canadians in front line" . . . "Canadians attack" . . . sooner than you realize, these headlines may appear in our newspapers.

Somebody's boy will be fighting for you. Will you help to send Red Cross ambulances to rush the wounded to hospitals? Will you help to build and equip the necessary Red Cross hospitals in France, the convalescent hospitals in England? Will you help to purchase the surgical and medical supplies so urgently needed? Will you assist in the great work of locating the missing, of keeping Canadian mothers advised about the progress of those in hospital?

This great work must be organized now. Funds for the Red Cross war effort and to carry on the great peacetime work of the Red Cross in Canada, are required immediately. Every dollar you give will help to care for someone who is far from home. Your contribution may save a life—a hundred lives. Was there ever such an opportunity to contribute to such a noble cause? Give with a willing heart. Give to the utmost—now.

The need is urgent— dig in and Give

Col. George Vanier, Canadian minister in Paris, is shown, LEFT, greeting Sir Ronald Campbell, new British ambassador to France, upon his arrival in Paris.

NEXT STOP

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, IN CAB, of the Armour Institute of Technology, designer of the "snow cruiser" for Arctic exploration, is greeted at the Boston army base pier on completion of hectic cross country trip in the cruiser from the Armour Institute in Chicago. Captain Isaac Lystaud, of the S.S. North Star, does the greeting. From the army base pier the cruiser will be shipped on the S.S. North Star to Antarctica, where she will play stellar role in Admiral Byrd's exploration campaign.

Gaylord Hauser, Hollywood diet expert, is reported engaged to Movie Actress Greta Garbo. Last year the Swedish star was reported engaged to Leopold Stokowski, symphony conductor. The engagement to Hauser has neither been confirmed nor denied by either party. This picture was transmitted from New York by Phonephotos.

As the War Came on Board The Steamship Queen Mary

They had blacked out the deck windows of the Queen Mary before we came on board. At boat drill we were told: no smoking on deck after dark. Open decks not to be used at night. At Cherbourg they muffled the lounge doors with heavy brown blankets. In the shadowy corridors was a single light of now-familiar blue.

Through the library door one could see rows of white cots each with a single suitcase. Rows of cots were in every large space save the main lounge and smoke room. The ship was crowded, but there were no crowds. When the loudspeaker began there was a sudden, swift convergence but nobody pushed or pressed. Each one of us was alone with one other, here or elsewhere.

Midway of the first "movie", the ship made a plunge—though the sea was calm—and set off at full speed on an unknown course under Admiralty orders. No cables had been accepted for transmission from Cherbourg, no wireless messages went from the ship.

But wireless came in. We listened to the last arrangements for evacuation of children early next morning. Well, most of us had watched rehearsals for that, and knew how London children took it. Part fire drill, part summer holiday In "The Ocean Times" next morning, negotiations were breaking down. At midday, all at once the wireless broke in without warning. The German offensive had begun. Poland was invaded. The war had come on board.

There were 2,600 passengers on board as well, a thousand more in the ship's company. I shall never cease to marvel at the serenity, efficiency and kindness of officers, stewards, stewardesses. Nothing went wrong. Their families were in Southampton, their future on the knees of the gods of war, and you'd think they were shepherding us through a Mediterranean pleasure cruise.

Early Sunday morning, just before the closing prayers of Holy Communion, the celebrant turned to the people. "War has been declared by Great Britain and France", he said. —By May Lamberton Becker in New York Herald Tribune.

A Rural Art

HUSKING CORN

In the Georgics of Virgil it is said that the Great Father himself willed that the path of the farmer should not be smooth. He first made art awake the fields, "sharpening men's wits by care nor letting his realm slumber in heavy lethargy," but so promoting practice that man might by taking thought "little by little hammer out divers arts," trying to make a perfect thing for its purpose. One of the arts most highly developed and in demand at this season of the year is that of husking corn, which had its origin in the Middle West, where husking contests or "bees" are as popular as the Olympian Games.

The primitive implement used in tearing the husk from the ear was called a "husking peg". It was originally made of wood. Every prairie farmer or farm boy had a peg, usually fashioned by himself—a rural art. But later it was stamped in metal. Search was made recently in New York City for one of these pegs and it was finally discovered in a downtown shop. But when it was shown to the Secretary of Agriculture, he said that it was not of the type almost universally used by the fastest huskers in the broad open spaces. They use a "husking hook", and thus save one stroke in the process, "the motion being totally different from the motion of peg husking". It is said that the hook was invented by a farmer who had lost his thumb and devised this as a substitute for the peg.

So, says Mr. Secretary Wallace, the implements of farming, as well as the implements of social and political life, change—and sometimes they improve. Virgil is confirmed: "By taking thought, little by little man hammers out divers arts." —Nek York Times.

Figure Flatterer

By Alice Alden

Have you heard about the wonderful dye-magic which is going on in American dressmaking circles? At one time, when a great dressmaker across the ocean introduced a new color, we were left holding the bag to match it over here. Nowadays our American dyers can match the color perfectly, and we can all be a la mode in the latest color from abroad without having to pay duty on imported fabrics to get it.

The lovely basic frock shown today is a copy of a foreign design, both in its tucked detail and its blue-gray shade, but it is an all-American outfit. The moulded waistline will flatter the average figure roundly, and make a great show of a waistline being disciplined by the new hour-glass corset. Brown is a pet accessory color for this new dress tint, and, of course, any or all jewellery colors will become it.

For dinner dates a pretty dress combines a small-waisted black satin bodice with a skirt of black surah plaided in red and gold. Pleated top gives a rounded hipline. Long satin streamers fall from the bodice belt in back.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)— Stocks worked higher in the early part of the session, on Toronto Exchange today, especially the golds. The group showed an index gain of a point at noon and trading was heavy in a group of the secondary issues, including Preston, East Malartic, Hard Rock, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Aunor, Kirkland Lake and others.

Base metals were slow and practically unchanged in price and the industrials, with former prices ruling in the steels, foods and oils, had an index gain of .55 at mid-day.

Bids were firm to strong in the western oils and gains of a few cents were posted by Home Oil, Okalta and Dalhousie.

The shares of Ottawa Car and Aircraft Limited are being listed and will be posted for trading tomorrow, November 17.

WALL STREET CLOSE

The pace quickened somewhat in the forenoon, but died down later. Transfers for the full proceedings were at the rate of approximately 700,000 shares.

Steels led the advance and gains, at the best, ran to a point or so. Near the final hour extreme advances were reduced.

Quiet buying in Steels and a number of other recent laggards today put a little more heart into the stock market. Gains ran to a point or so for favorites near the fourth hour.

Bonds showed selective popularity. Foreign securities markets were irregular and commodities followed varying directions. Among better stock performers were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Safeway Stores, N.Y. Central, Southern Railway, Great Northern, U.S. Rubber, Goodrich, American Telephone and Johns-Manville.

Nicked for fractional losses in the Canadian group were Lake Shore, Dome and C.P.R. Distillers and International Nickel managed small gains. Dominion 4s moved evenly in the bond market.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)— Cattle sales were too few to establish a [illegible] afternoon dealings on the Toronto Livestock market today. Cattle holdover from Wednesday was 500 head.

Top-Grade Eggs Slightly Easier

Toronto, Nov. 16—Dealers shaded down prices to top-grade eggs on the Toronto open produce market Wednesday. No change was evident in butter.

Prevailing limited arrivals of fresh supplies helped to keep the butter market steady when trading tapered down to a quiet pace. The first-grade Ontario product moved through wholesale channels at 28 1-2c per pound, unchanged from the previous day.

S. G. ROBERTSON NAMED PRESIDENT COUNTRY CLUB

Directors Elected Earlier in Year Meet to Choose Officers for Next Season

PRO REENGAGED

S. Gordon Robertson, Belleville barrister, will direct the destinies of the Bay of Quinte Country Club during the coming year, directors decided at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce last night. Mr. Robertson succeeds John McIntosh in the presidential chair.

Other officers elected last night include: Vice-President, John McIntosh; Secretary-Treasurer, R. H. Martin; Directors, C. L. Jewel, Fred Deacon Jr.; Ed. Bernstein; Harry Ackerman; Gus Freeman; Robert J. Graham, and O. W. Duff.

Hubert Jones, who has filled the secretarial chair for the past seven years was honored with a life honorary membership in appreciation of efficient service rendered in his official capacity. William Little, golf-professional of the club was re-engaged for the ensuing year.

Steward is Praised

The board of directors was loud in its praise of the highly efficient and satisfying services rendered by Mr. Dennis, steward of the club, and the meeting was unanimous in endorsing the club's decision to open negotiations with Mr. Dennis for his services for the coming year.

The club enjoyed a highly successful year during 1939, it was pointed out. Many improvements and equipment have been installed for the greens and fairways. Additional improvements will be made during the coming year. Especial mention was made of the new putting green, installed this year for the convenience of members.

Committee Chairmen appointed last night include: Membership—Fred Deacon, Jr.: Greens—O. W. Duff: House Committee—C. L. Jewel: Publicity—Ed. Bernstein; Captain—David Payne; Games—Robert J. Graham.

During the meeting, a one-minute silence was observed in respect to the memory of the late Colonel R. J. E. Graham.

HOUSE WELCOMES

Talks Cover All Phases

"Our talks have covered questions of defence, foreign policy, problems of supply, matters relating to economic warfare and shipping," he continued. "A number of meetings have also been held with the representatives of individual Dominions on various special problems.

"Our discussions are still proceeding but I am glad to say the progress already made has been most encouraging and has shown the great value of direct and personal contact.

"In addition to their discussions with the ministers here, the overseas representatives have been able to see for themselves the various aspects of the defence preparations in this country.

Visit Front

"They have also recently returned from a visit to France where they had the opportunity not only of conversations with Premier Daladier and General Gamelin, and of meeting the British and French general staffs, but also of seeing the B. E. F. and French troops at their war stations.

"Representatives from the Dominions and India have thus had an opportunity of judging for themselves the magnitude of our war effort. It also has been possible to gain fuller knowledge of how the assistance of the empire overseas, offered in such generous measure, may best be utilized for the furtherance of the common cause."

Colonel Harry Nathan, Labor member of parliament and Chairman of the newly-formed "National Defence Public Interest Committee," announced the committee shortly would start a series of luncheons designed to "stimulate and maintain public interest and understanding of what Prime Minister Chamberlain called 'this strangest of wars'."

Sir John Simon will speak at the first luncheon Nov. 29.

Meanwhile the toll of shipping mounted with the loss of one British and three neutral vessels. Probable sinking of another Nazi U-boat also was reported.

The 790-ton British coastwide tanker Woodtown went down in undisclosed waters after an explosion in her oil tanks. Nine of her 12 crewmen were reported lost.

2 Neutral Vessels Sunk in Baltic

First casualties suffered at sea by the Baltic state of Lithuania were reported with the sinking of the 1,807-ton Panevezys and the 945-ton Nida off the Estonian coast.

The Nida carried a cargo of British coal and some observers linked the sinking with a semi-official statement in Berlin that Germany would attempt to disrupt Britain's coal exports in retaliation for the Allied blockade of the Reich.

Cause of the two sinkings was not announced in brief dispatches from Kaunas, Lithuania.

Believe U-Boat Sunk off Portugal

Meanwhile reports from Oporto, Portugal, quoted Captain Peter Sorrensen of the Norwegian steamship Jenny as saying two British warships bombed and apparently sank a German submarine shortly after the U-boat stopped the Jenny and demanded provisions.

The captain said oil patches appeared on the water after the raider was attacked by the British vessels.

Swedish reports said the 600-ton Netherlands steamship Safe, missing since ealy October, probably had sunk in a German mine field south of Falsterbo, Swedish port on the Baltic. No trace has been found of the vessel or its crew of 10.

"SCARFACE AL" CAPONE RELEASED

Announcement Made by Director of Federal Prisons

Washington, Nov. 16 — (AP) — "Scarface Al" Capone, notorious gangster of prohibition days, was released to relatives at Lewisburg, Pa., today by Federal prison officials.

James Bennett, director of Federal prisons, made the announcement. He said:

"This morning the sentence of Alphonse Capone having expired today, he was discharged from the United States Penitentiary at Lewisburg to his relatives.

"Capone was transferred today from the Federal Correctional Institution near Los Angeles to Lewisburg.

"Capone began service of a ten-year penitentiary sentence for evasion of income taxes May 4, 1932 and completed this portion of his sentence on Jan. 19, 1939 upon which date he began service of the sentence of one year for failure to fil his income tax return.

"With allowances for good behavior and credit for three days spent in jail in October, 1931, Capone's sentence expired November 16, 1939."

Bennett's announcement did not say what relatives were on hand to welcome the one-time racketeer as he left the penitentiary, a free man.

Even as Capone was released, Captain Daniel Gilbert of the State Police in Chicago said of the recent assassination of Turfman Edward J. O'Hare: "There's no longer any doubt about it being a Capone job."

By "a Capone job" Gilbert said he meant to lay the killing at the door of what is left of the gangster organization Al Capne once ruled.

Britain Criticized Over India

At the same time Great Britain was the object of criticism in Pravda, Communist party newspaper, which commented on "deplorable conditions" in India. Pravda said that India had the "largest army of unemployed in the world" and that 92 per cent of the population was illiterate.

(The 1931 Indian census showed that only 156 males and 29 females per 1,000 are literate, in the sense of being able to read and write any language, of which there are 225, exclusive of dialects. Statistics on unemployment are not available, but more than 66 per cent of the population is dependent on agricultural and pastoral pursuits. About 10 percent of India's workers are engaged in industry.)

In the Helsingfors dispatch, Tass declared that Finnish "reactionary elements" were fostering an anti-Soviet policy" and preaching a doctrine of "hate" in the army and in the schools.

"The leaders of the anti-Soviet campaign of lies are the most reactionary elements, who are dreaming of spreading the boundaries of Finland all the way to the Urals "in Russia," the dispatch declared, adding that "the English Bourgoisie has supported this anti-Soviet attitude."

Tass denied that Russia had made any "impossible demands" during recent negotiations with Finland, which were suspended last Monday by recall of a Finnish mission from Moscow.

In Helsingfors, it was indicated that the talks would not be resumed unless the Russians provided a new basis for negotiations—presumably modification of their demands for readjustment of frontiers near Leningrad and naval bases in northern Finland and at the mouth of the Gulf of Inland.

Tass said that the Finnish government had tried to mislead world opinion by falsely declaring it wanted an agreement with Moscow. The dispatch said, however, that "wide masses of the population are striving to establish friendly relations with the Soviet Union."

The immediate cause of the attack apparently was the Finnish government's action in confiscating an issue of the magazine Souchtu, which has printed articles friendly to Russia.

The Soviet press campaign also scored the United States for her "anxiety concerning Finland."

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN McKENZIE (Madoc Village)

Madoc, Nov. 16 — (Special) — Mrs. John McKenzie passed away at the family residence in this village late on Wednesday evening. She was advanced in years and was in failing health for the past six years.

The late Mrs. McKenzie, prior to her marriage fifty-two years ago next month, was Miss Hannah Spurr. She was born in Limerick Township, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Spurr. For some years she lived in Ormsby and Coe Hill and twenty-one years ago she came to make her home in Madoc Village. She was a woman of most estimable character, and was held in high esteem in the community. In religion she was a faithful member of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church and when age and health permitted she took an active part in the work of the organizations in connection with the church.

The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon, and interment will be made in the Scotch Cemetery, west of Madoc.

GEORGE FROST (Trenton)

Trenton, Nov 16 (Special) — A highly respected resident of Trenton passed away on Monday in the person of George Frost in his 76th. year. Funeral service was held at his late residence Marmora Street, yesterday with the Rev. J. U. Robbins officiating assisted by the Rev. G. D. Campbell. Interment was made in Mount Evergreen cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. W. H. Ireland, Harry Griswould, E. L. Fraser, A. E. Blakely, G. Fitzgibbon and H. S. Langdon.

The late Mr. Frost who was born in Murray Township had been in failing health for a year. A resident of the town for the past twenty-five years, he was a member of King Street United Church in the affairs of which he took an active interest serving on the board of Stewards for years. He is survived by his widow the former Miss Ella Hayes.

MANLEY L. SINE (Formerly of Bancroft).

Manley Lewis Sine, a former resident of Bancroft passed away at the family residence in Davenport, Florida, Wednesday morning, Nov. 15th. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Sine was born 65 years ago in Sidney Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Sine. For some years he resided in this district and at Bancroft. Twenty-two years ago he left the latter place to reside in Florida and since that time he was engaged in the provision business in Davenport. In religion he was a member of the Methodist Church in the United States and was highly esteemed. Old friends in this city and district will regret to learn of his death.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss May Earles of Frankford; one son, Mr. Carl Sine of Davenport; two daughters, Violet of Tampa, Florida and Ruby of Toronto; one sister, Mrs. Harry R. Moorman, Belleville; three brothers, Mr. Murney Sine, Oshawa; Mr. Frank Sine, Brockville and Mr. Blake Sine, Scotia Junction.

The funeral will take place on Friday in Davenport.

Plunkett to Handle Frolics for War Services

Ottawa, Nov. 16—(CP)— There's going to be fun in this army that Canada is readying and Captain M. R. Plunkett who amused the boys of 1914-18 with his "Dumbells" is going to take care of the frolicsome end of things for the Canadian Legion War Services.

Lieut.-Col. Ralph Webb, General Manager of the Legion's wartime undertaking, announced Wednesday that Captain Plunkett would be in charge of developing new soldier talent for concert work in the Canadian active service force.

JUSTICE BUTLER, U. S. COURT, DIES

Termed One of the Two "Conservative" Members of Supreme Court

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court died today. He was 73. He entered a hospital for treatment of bladder trouble last summer.

His death meant that President Roosevelt's appointees would be in the majority on the court. Mr. Roosevelt has named four of those on the nine-man tribunal.

Butler was a Democrat, but officials of the Roosevelt administration termed him one of the two "Conservative" members of the court, the other being Justice James C. McReynolds.

Although Butler was the third oldest of the Justices—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Like McReynolds, is 77—he had been reported in robust health during the term of court which ended last June.

Since the court's swing to a "Liberal" outlook two years ago, Butler ranked next to McReynolds as the leading dissenter on the bench.

Major decisions to which Butler dissented last term included rulings holding constitutional the 1938 Agricultural Adjustment Act, holding that a group of private power companies could not attack the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority power program, and that a state may impose an income tax on salary received by Federal employees.

WORKMEN INSTAL IMPROVED TYPE TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Lights at Main Front St. Intersection Will be on Each Corner

EASIER TO SEE

The central traffic light system at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets, which for years has given motorists of the city and district the "start" and "go" signals, has its days numbered.

Today workmen of the P.U.C. installed the new corner traffic standards which will be put in operation as soon as cable work is completed.

The lights, placed at all four corners will flash the familiar red and green signals with an intermittent orange light dividing the regular flashes.

The lights are placed on sturdy steel poles, and are situated approximately twelve feet above pavement level. This will facilitate drivers' vision, and also eliminate the "neck-craning" that was necessary for drivers to see the change of light.

The new system is a decided improvement over the old central one insofar as pedestrians are concerned. It will eliminate the difficulty usually experienced by strangers in the city when attempting to cross the intersections, for the new lights will glow directly in front of them.

Officials are of the opinion that when the public has become educated and accustomed to the use of the new system, it will be found to serve its purpose to a greater degree of satisfaction than did the former central system.

Additional lights which will be in the form of flashing beacons instead of the regular "stop" and "go" style will be installed at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue and Bridge Street East and Pinnacle Street, in the immediate future, O. H. Scott, manager of the Public Utilities Commission stated today.

South-going traffic on Pinnacle Street will be regulated by the beacon at Pinnacle and Victoria Avenue while north-bound traffic will be governed by the light at Pinnacle and Bridge Street, he added.

London, Nov. 16 (CP Cable) — Cargoes consigned to Great Britain valued between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 pounds ($13,350,000 and $22,250,000) are held up in the holds of 140 German ships which have taken refuge in neutral ports.

The London Chamber of Commerce is negotiating for release of the cargoes but so far without success. The Germans are demanding anywhere from 10 to 35 per cent of the value of the cargoes in addition to full freight charges to British ports before they will surrender the goods.

Most of the cargoes are already paid for. The German demand is said to cover the costs involved in the refuge port. The Chamber is advising owners to pay freights and up to two per cent of the value of the cargoes to meet these charges.

"We have not taken action in neutral ports," the Chamber said. "That will depend on the reply we get from the Germans."

GERMAN STEAMER TAKEN BY BRITISH

Ship is Caught in Attempted Dash from Vigo Spain to Germany

London, Nov. 16—(CP) — The Press Association reported today that the German steamship Leander, 989 tons, had been captured by a British cruiser and her crew of about 30 interned.

The freighter is about 14 years old and was operated by a Bremen firm. Havas News Agency said it understood the cruiser took the Leander to port in western England after picking her up when she tried to dash from Vigo, Spain, to Germany

FRITZ THYSSEN, STEEL MAGNATE, IN SWITZERLAND

Was Early Supporter of Hitler — He is Said to Have Fled Germany in September

THYSSEN IS SILENT

Lucerne, Switzerland, Nov. 16 — (AP)—Fritz Thyssen, German steel magnate and an early supporter of Adolf Hitler, was in Switzerland today for an "indefinite stay" with his wife and one child.

Thyssen, barred from talking politics by the laws of neutral Switzerland controlling foreign residents, replied by telegram to a request for information concerning why he left Germany:

"I infinitely regret I am unable to give the information you request."

A confirmed German Nationalist, Thyssen was one of the stiffening influences in post-war Germany. In 1923 when the French marched into the Ruhr under the terms of the Versailles treaty, he closed down his mines and left the French holding an empty industrial shell. Arrested and jailed, he defied the French, refused to reopen the mines and was released after four days. He was hailed as a hero throughout the Reich.

After Hitler came to power in 1933, Thyssen, who was reported a supporter of the Nazi since 1928, was appointed State Counselor and given a seat on the State's Economic Board. He was considered supreme economic authority in western Germany on all matters except those relating to agriculture.

In 1936 Thyssen announced a 25 per cent increase in the Reich's steel production, with rearmament the goal, and shortly after he was elected to the Reichstag.

Rumors that Thyssen had fallen out with Hitler, current for some time, came to a head in September when he was reported to have fled Germany.

Philadelphia Lawyers Try Out Bargain Fees

Philadelphia, Nov. 16—(AP)—A fair-sized business was reported today by twenty-four young lawyers conducting neighborhood offices where legal advice can be bought at bargain prices.

The "$1 and up" service, first of its kind in the United States, was tossed on the counter two weeks ago for a year-long experiment by the local chapter of the National Lawyers' Guild.

"We haven't been swamped with clients," said Robert D. Abrahamas, chairman of a supervising committee, "but the initial response has been good. The plan is neither charity nor philanthropy. It is an attempt to reach new clients, with low bracket incomes, who never before have used lawyers' services."

The proximity of the neighborhood office to the client, Abrahams added, is dsigned to dispel a feeling by some that legal service is beyond their reach and to create something akin to the neighborliness enoyed by the country practitioner.

BAIL IS RAISED $2,000 TO $5,000

Douglas Stewart, Printer and Business Manager of Clarion Faces Charge

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)—Charged under the defence of Canada regulations, Douglas Stewart, 36, printer and business manager of The Clarion, Communist weekly, was arraigned before Magistrate R. S. Browne today and remanded a week with bail raised from $2,000 to $5,000.

Stewart, arrested yesterday, was charged under section 39A, which prohibits the printing or circulating of any documents containing statements "intended or likely" to cause disaffection to the King or interfere with the success of His Majesty's forces or Allies, or which might be prejudicial to the safety of the state or successful prosecution of the war.

Conant Unsatisfied with Bail

Stewart's bail was raised after it was announced that Hon. Gordon Conant, Ontario Attorney General, had written a letter to Crown Attorney W. F. McFadden saying he was not satisfied with the $2,000 bail set following the arrest.

Mr. Conant said also that he is asking permission of the Attorney General of Canada to proceed against Stewart under indictment rather than under summary trial.

Such action is permissible under the War Measures Act. Under summary conviction by a magistrate the penalty is a fine of not less than $500 or 12 months, or both. Under an indictment, the penalty is a fine of not less than $5,000 or five years in prison, or both.

"I take a very serious view of this," said Mr. Conant. "We can't fool with stuff like this."

CARL W. CASKEY CALLED TO BAR

Born at Madoc and Attended McMaster University

Toronto, Nov. 16—(CP)— Carl W. Caskey, former reporter with the Daily Star, and recently member of the Ontario Fire Marshal's staff, today was called to the bar. Born at Madoc, near Belleville, he came to Toronto and attended McMaster University before that institution's removal to Hamilton.

He obtained his B. A. and joined the staff of an insurance company. Later he worked for the Star and then returned to the insurance business. Four years ago he entered the Fire Marshal's Department, and while inspector there, studied law in his spare time.

POLICE RECOVER CACHE OF GOODS

Find Typewritten Records of Stores Entered, Goods Stolen and Stores to be Entered

Calgary, Nov. 15—(CP)— Police investigating activities of a youthful gang last night uncovered their alleged headquarters and recovered a complete load for the police wagon, valued at approximately $500.

The cache of goods was located in east Calgary in several old shacks.

Police said they found complete type ritten records of the gang an its activities in the "office"—equipped with stolen typewriters. There were lists of stores broken into and the items stolen, lists of persons to whom stolen goods had been sold, and lists of places yet to be broken into.

No arrests were made but police said they expected to take a number of youths into custody today.

Break-ins in Belleville Area Aired in Court

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP)—Clearing up a score of break ins which occurred in the St. Catharines area in mid-October four men were sentenced to terms in Kingston Penitentiary today by Magistrate J. H. Campbell.

James Bryant, 30, colored, was sentenced to three years, the term to run concurrent with a similar penalty imposed in Hamilton last week when he was convicted of six charges of theft. Alvin Curley, 19, an India, who pleaded guilty to four house-breaking charges in this area, and three in the Brockville-Belleville district was also given a three-year sentence.

Two teen-aged youths, Arnold Drummond and Fred Greene, 17, an Indian, will serve two years in the penitentiary on house-breaking charges. Greene is under sentence of one-year and a month for the theft of an auto at Oshawa, and Drummond a total of nine months for two shop-breaking charges at Belleville. These penalties will run concurrent with the terms imposed today by Magistrate Campbell. All four men have no fixed addresses.

TRIPLE MURDER, SUICIDE VERDICT

Official Verdict Says Man Murdered Family and Killed Himself

Scarboro, Me., Nov. 16—(AP)—Triple murder and suicide today wiped out the family of Mr. and Mrs. William Rowe whose bodies, with those of their two children, Arthur, 14, and Claire, 13, were found in their burning restaurant home.

Official verdict that Rowe murdered his family and then killed himself was returned by medical examiner William Needelman who undertook an immediate autopsy after firemen found a pistol with four exploded cartridges in the ruins of the dwelling.

The pistol was found under the body of Rowe, which had fallen upon those of his family. No motive for the shootings could be learned immediately.

12 British Seamen Seen Clinging to Sides on U-Boat

Baltimore, Nov. 16 (AP)—A story of 12 British seamen clinging to the side of a German submarine in hope it would not be forced to submerge was recounted today by Paul Gilbert, crewman of the American oil tanker R. G. Stewart.

Gilbert said the Stewart was enroute to the United States from Le Havre when on Sept. 11, about 200 miles off the French coast, it was stopped by the U-boat and the Steward's Captain was ordered to come aboard with his ship's papers.

Before he complied, a fog lifted and a British ship, the 9,456-ton Inverliffey was sighted about 1 1-2 miles away. The sub started in pursuit, and returned shortly with the British seamen clinging to the sides, and the Inverliffey ablaze.

"Somehow, their lifeboat was swamped while they were being towed toward us by the sub," said Gilbert. "The men thrashed about in the water until the submarine officer told them to cling to the side of the sub. Then the submarine cruised over to us."

"After the rescue, they told us the Germans said that if a British destroyer or a plane was sighted the submarine would have to submerge immediately and the men would have to swim for it."

The 12 and 23 others who escaped in two more lifeboats were placed aboard the American ship, City of Joliet, bound for Europe.

Elderly Physician Convicted of Murder

Benton, Ill., Nov. 16 (AP)—Dr. George W. Gore, Sr., 65-year-old physician, was convicted of the murder of Carl Choisser, Benton Attorney-Publisher, today by a jury which fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair. Two women and 10 men were on the jury.

Counsel for the physician did not deny that he shot and killed Choisser last Sept. 25 on the public square but had attempted to show that he was "emotionally insane" at the time.

Dr. Gore's son, George W. Gore, Jr., was acquitted in the same courtroom Oct. 19 of a charge of murder in the slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Nancy Gore.

Choisser was to have been Attorney for the son in that trial.

TWO HUNTERS KILLED

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 16—(AP)—Michigan's deer hunting season was but a few hours old today before two hunters were killed.

The victims, shot accidentally by fellow hunters, were Augustus Altvatter, 67, Fowler, Mich., and Ray Morris, 42, Detroit.

Judge Aids Suitor to Visit Fiancee When Papa Objects

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—George Lowther, Third, who went to court to establish his right to court Eileen Herrick, won his point today in a compromise that was at least amicable for the record.

After a brief private hearing in the chambers of State Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel, the young broker's habeas corpus suit against Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick, Eileen's socially eminent parents, was dismissed with this understanding.

1. That 20-year-old Eileen, who was declared by the experts to have been one of the most "glamorous" of all the debutantes two years ago, should remain for ten more days in the hospital where she has been resting.

2. That after that time George should be allowed to see her as often as he wishes—and marry her, too, if it's all right with her.

This solution of a singular court action — which Lowther had brought in an effort to show that Miss Herrick was being detained against her will in her parents' fashionable East Side home to prevent his seeing her—was anticlimactic against the events that had preceded it.

Chief among these was a half-shove, half-blow directed at the big, broad-shouldered young broker by Eileen's slight-grey-haired father.

This exchange occurred just as Miss Herrick and her nurse appeared in the corridor of the Supreme Court Building some 2 1-2 hours after the scheduled start of the hearing. Lowther rushed to her with arms outstretched.

Her pale face, her eyes coldly looking straight ahead, she took no apparent notice of his advance. At that point Herrick, his pince-nez bobbing upon his thin nose, rushed up, crying out shrilly.

"Get away from her!"

Takes Poke at Lover.

As he shouted, his arm moved in an arc that ended on Lowther's shoulder. A detective moved in quickly, pulling Lowther away. Then Lowther, Herrick, Mrs. Herrick, Eileen and the lawyers marched into the judge's suite.

Miss Herrick's apparent unawareness of Lowther's presence was perhaps attributable to the extraordinary position of affairs for in the later conference before the justice it was she who protested successfully when he suggested a six-month waiting period before she decided on marriage.

"I'll be a nervous wreck," she explained.

While the whole thing was regarded by the lawyers as a friendly settlement of a little family difficulty, both Herrick and Lowther made it clear that nothing much in the way of warmth could be expected between what may turn to be a father-in-law and son-in-law.

For another incident similar to the corridor episode occurred in the judge's chambers when the broker handed Eileen a ring. She took it, but her father doubled his fists and objected, and so she returned it.

Justice Wasservogel opened the hearing by telling Miss Herrick that Lowther had charged she was being deprived of her liberty by her parents.

Peace in Hospital.

She nodded, either in agreement or understanding, and remarked that she'd gone to the hospital on her own volition because there was "more peace there."

Then she said that previously, when she'd tried to leave her home, "detectives stopped me."

"Were you and Mr. Lowther about to be married?" asked the broker's counsel.

"Yes sir."

"If you had your liberty, would you marry Mr. Lowther?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your father doesn't approve of Mr. Lowther, does he?"

"Yes, sir," she said, adding that as for her she loved Mr. Lowther.

"If she wants to marry this man," the judge commented, "she has a right to do so. She ought to listen to her parents' advice; but she has civil rights, too, and if she makes a mistake it's her mistake and her life."

Herrick explained that his reasons for objecting were "many"—including a belief that Eileen merely was infatuated.

Mrs. Herrick announced that she felt "cordial" toward Lowther's father and aunt, and that she wanted to apologize for the "unpleasantness."

"When the ten days are up and if I get a job," Eileen asked at the end of the interview, "may I see Mr. Lowther any time I wish?"

"Yes," said the Judge.

"Thank you," she sighed.

Smoked Mutton Known as Braxy May be Substitute

(By Fred Backhouse, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 16—(CP-Cable)—We may soon be eating bacon and eggs, yes, Macon, for breakfast here. And in Scotland they'll be frying a couple of rashers of braxy.

No, Dr. Goebbels, it's not ersatz food, but mutton bacon, the coming wartime dish if the present shortage of bacon continues.

Alan Lennox-Boyd, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, told Parliament last night that the Ministry was making experiments with it as a substitute.

Food experts told puzzled reporters that smoked mutton was an article of English diet in some parts of the country half a century ago. Scottish farms sometimes cure their own supplies and even today call it braxy.

Londoners already have named it "macon" in anticipation.

OBITUARY

ROBERT K. VANNORT

After an illness of one week's duration Robert Knox Vannort, late residence, 91 South Front Street, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital this Thursday morning.

The deceased, who was in his 54th. year, was born in Toronto, his parents being Mrs. Mary L. Vannort and the late Russell Vannort. For the past thirty years he resided in this locality. In religion he was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and well respected.

He is survived by his mother who resides in Toronto.

The body is resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE JAMES GUNNING

Tweed, (Special) — The funeral of the late James Gunning was held on Tuesday afternoon, November fourteenth, from his late residence at Farnsworth Corners, two miles west of Tweed, to the United Church. A short service was conducted at the home by Rev. W. A. Hunter, minister of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Tweed, who assisted Rev. H. L. Morrison, pastor of Tweed United Church, of which the deceased was a member.

Following this service in the home, a service was held in Tweed United Church, where a very large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last tribute of respect. Rev. Mr. Morrison gave a comforting message to the sorrowing family and other relatives based on the text "Come, the Master Calleth Thee". During the service Mrs. W. E. Tummon and Mrs. S. H. Connor sang "The Old Rugged Cross".

The funeral service was under the auspices of the Orange Order of which the late James was a member. Rev. W. A. Hunter assisted at the graveside in Victoria Cemetery where interment was made.

The bearers were six nephews—William Geen, Harry Geen, Wilbur Bateman, Donald Bateman, Elvin Holland and Stanley Eaton. The flowers were carried by fellow Orangemen, Brothers Lincoln Elliott, Francis Craig, Charles Jeffrey, Harry Coulter, James Jeffrey, Wm. Booth, and Kenneth Jeffrey.

The late James Gunning is survived by his widow, formerly Sarah Bateman, three sons, Laurason, Gerald and Lorne and three daughters Mabel, Vera and Margaret, all at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Luther Dafoe, Belleville, and Mrs. Bert Davis, Griswold, Saskatchewan, to whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

Miss Mabel Gunning eldest daughter is a member of the staff of Tweed Consolidated School, which was closed during the afternoon as a mark of respect and sympathy. A wealth of flowers was mute evidence of the sympathy of a wide circle of friends and relatives.

The late James Gunning who was in his 68th year passed away in Kingston Hospital on Sunday. He was a son of the late James Gunning Sr., and Charlotte Reid, and was born in Ivanhoe where he resided until 1915. At that time he moved to Farnsworth Corners where he has since made his home. He was a most successful farmer, highly respected by a wide circle of friends.

MRS. CAROLINE WELSH

(Steenberg)

Mrs. Caroline Welsh, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson Waite, passed away on Tuesday morning last at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Lydiatt at Steenberg, Ont. The body was taken by motor conveyance from the Thompson Funeral Home Everett Street, Belleville, to St Catharines where interment was made.

THREE CHILDREN DEAD FROM FIRE IN FARM HOME

One Killed Instantly by Explosion and Other Two Die in Hospital

THREW GAS ON FIRE

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 16 — (CP)—Three children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lytle were dead today after fire had destroyed their two storey farm home in the bush country northwest of here.

William, six years old, succumbed to burns this afternoon, shortly after his four-year-old sister Hilda died in the same hospital. Hazel, 12 years old, was killed almost instantly last night when the kitchen stove exploded as she threw gasoline on it in belief it was kerosene.

Four children of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor were killed when fire levelled their home at Cataraqui, near Kingston, Tuesday, bringing to seven the number of children killed in two Ontario fires this week.

WAR BRIEFS

Madrid, Nov. 16 (AP)—General Juan Yague, Minister of Air, announced today a battalion of soldiers was being trained to drop by parachutes behind enemy lines.

"Lessons in the present war counsel us in this action, "the Air Minister said.

Paris, Nov. 16 (AP)—Nine persons including two Communist members of the Paris Municipal Council, arrested today in a series of raids made to break up clandestine activities of the outlawed Communist party. The two council members were Rene Le Gall and Eugene Prot, former Minister of Labor.

London, Nov. 16 (CP)—New rates of 10 shillings per cent were fixed by the government war risk insurance office yesterday for voyages from the United States Atlantic coast via Panama to Japan, the Philippines, China (including Hong Kong, Dairen, and Manchoukuo ports) and Haiphong in Indo-China, and from the United States Pacific coast to all far eastern ports.

The comparative market rates for these voyages are 20 shillings per cent for neutral vessels and 21 shillings per cent for British or Allied vessels.

Beirut, Syria, Nov. 16 (CP-Havas)—Gabriel Puaux, French High Commissioner for Syria, left here today for Jerusalem to pay an official call on Sir Harold MacMichael, British High Commissioner for Palestine. He is to stay a few days in Jerusalem.

Canberra, Nov. 16 (CP-Reuters)—It was announced today in the Australian House of Representatives that munitions orders totalling millions of pounds sterling have been obtained for Australia from the British government by Richard Casey, Minister of Supply who is now in London.

FOG HALTS SHIPPING

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 16—(AP)—A heavy fog that shrouded the St. Mary's river here last night brought lake shipping to a standstill until after daylight this morning.

When the fog began to rise approximately 40 freighters were lined up awaiting passage through the locks.

The steamers Huronic and Brulin, which collided Wednesday off Whitefish Point, were undergoing temporary repairs to damaged bows at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., today.

ONTARIO MENTAL HOSPITAL
ENGLAND'S RATIONS

England has followed Germany's example and adopted a rationing system, explaining that supplies from the continent have been reduced because of the war and that her food transport from overseas dominions is not yet working at maximum efficiency As this chart shows, however, Britain is not feeling the pinch of war as severely as blockaded Germany.

Europe Eventually Community of Free States, Says Sikorski

Polish Premier Says Idea Sooner or Later Will Unite Nations

FORECASTS VICTORY

London, Nov. 16—(CP)— Europe eventually will be transformed into a community of free and independent states, fully aware of their "common citizenship". General Wladislaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish government in exile, predicted today at a luncheon offered in his honor by the Foreign Press Association.

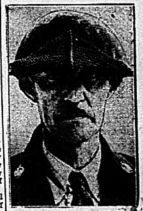
While admitting it would be premature to predict the future evolution of Europe in all its aspects, the Premier expressed the certainty that the "convulsions which are now shaking the old continent lead now to the emergence of the idea of European solidarity."

"This idea sooner or later will unite all nations in a community of free and independent states, to whom it will bring home a European conscience of common citizenship," he added.

Voicing conviction that Poland and her allies would fight successfully to a "triumph of justice and right," the Premier said the Polish "air force and her army will be ready to play their part, side by side with the allied armies."

The Premier said the conversations he has had here with British leaders "have confirmed to me the complete unity of views between the Polish government and the British government both as regards the aims to be achieved and the methods to be employed."

"The ties uniting us are strong and more alive than ever," he added. "The Polish army, which is now being reorganized in England and France, has received the greatest possible moral and material support of the allied governments, as is only to be expected among comrades in arms."



As a result of the blinding by shell fragments, of more than [illegible]0,000 British soldiers in the world war, a chain visor was designed by then-Captain R. R. Cruise. The visor, shown here in the raised, or unused position, can be pulled down when the wearer is advancing in the face of an artillery barrage. The visor pictured was used in the last months of the world war. Cut Off 'Back Door' of China is Aim Avowed by Japan

Hong Kong, Nov. 16 —(AP)—Japanese forces invading South China intend to drive inland to cut off China's "back door" line of supply from the outside world through French Indo-China and British Burma, a Japanese Army spokesman asserted today.

The spokesman said the Japanese forces which landed on the coast of Stuth Kwangtung Province yesterday, intend to drive through Kwangsi Province into Yuannan Province.

Washington, Nov. 16 —(AP)—Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said today the State Department is watching developments arising from Japan's latest invasion of China, in the region of Pakhoi, near French Indo-China.

The Department is obtaining information about the move, he said, adding he was not certain what American interests, if any, are involved.

RICH GOLD STRIKE MADE IN GEORGIA

$60,000 Ton Assay is Reported in Two-Inch Vein of Quartz

Dahlonega, Ga., Nov. 15—(AP)—A new gold strike, baring a lode of bonanza ore which a state geologist said assayed $60,000 a ton, was disclosed today by operators of the century-old Calhoun Mine three miles south of here.

State geologist Garlain Peyton described the strike as "a vein of quartz, two inches in thickness and of unknown depth, so thoroughly impregnated with gold over approximately 10 inches that it appeared as one continuous ribbon of yellow metal...."

Peyton, habitually cautious in estimating mineral wealth, said the vein was the richest he had seen in 25 years in Georgia and "is definitely to be classed as bonanza" with an apparent richness comparable to the famous comstock lode near Virginia City, Nev., which yielded $340,000,00 in gold between 1859 and 1890.

No Gold Rush Desired

The geologist hastened to warn that the strike "should not create anything which may be termed a gold rush" or be considered "an invitation to the uninitiated to stampede the district with a view to other possible discoveries." It was pointed out that all land in the Dahlonega area is under private ownership making "claim staking" impossible.

Peyton said he assisted in gouging out three miners' pans full of the ore, which he estimated as high as one-third gold.

"It was observed," he added, "that the yellow metal was still in evidence in the rock left in place, without any apparent tendency to diminish in size or richness." Rock blasted out thus far, he said, "probably constitutes the upper edge of a considerable lens of rich ore."

The new lode is in the same mine and in the same "shoot" where the first gold lode was discovered in Georgia in 1828. The mine was worked sporadically during its history, at one time yielding approximately $1,000 per day, but later was discontinued.

A United States mint, established at Dahlonega in 1838, produced gold coins valued at $6,115,569 before it was closed in 1861.

'The Desire to Live in France', Called French War Aim

Paris, Nov. 15.— (CP-Havas)—France's war aims can best be summed up as "the desire to live in France", Anatole de Monzie, French Public Works Minister, said today at the weekly luncheon of the Anglo-American Press Club.

"In 1914 we made war to assure peace and replace imperialism by democracy," he said. "As a result of this a certain conformity was established in Europe.

"But there can be no conformity in the world. One should understand liberty according to one's own temperament. We have no pretentions to be the Magistrate of a Europe finally pacified but we want there to be no barbarism".

THE PRESBYTERIAN Y.P.S.

The St. Andrew's Young People held their usual interesting meeting on Monday evening in the Sunday school room, Graham Diamond, Vice-President presiding.

In the business discussion it was decided that we should give the girls who are interested in the Red Cross Club, organized by the Presbyterian Young People, five dollars for their wool.

Mr. James Browning then took charge of the programme. He introduced our speaker for the evening, Miss Kay Crerar. She gave us a well prepared address on "The Early Life and Musical Career of Tschaikowsky."

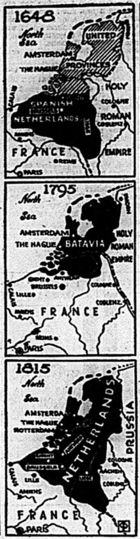
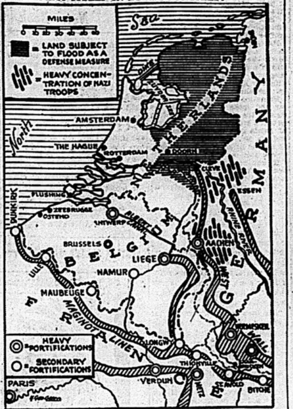
The meeting was then closed by a sing song led by Rev. Mr. Walker.

WILL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF IN LOW COUNTRIES?





The Netherlands and Belgium—long known as the cockpit of Europe, the scene of wars between greater powers than they — appear once more destined to be the site of great conflicts. The three smaller maps at the LEFT highlight the history of The Netherlands and Belgium. In 1648 Holland was known as the United Provinces and became a great maritime power. Belgium remained the Spanish Netherlands. By 1795, Holland had become the Dutch kingdom of Batavia while Belgium had completely disappeared, having been absorbed by Austria. In 1815 the congress of Vienna set up the kingdom of The Netherlands, which included Belgium. In the large map at the RIGHT we see Holland and Belgium as they are today. Note their proximity to the war front and how German forces are massed at their borders. The shaded areas of Holland show that section which may be flooded in event of invasion.

The November meeting of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada was held Tuesday, Nov. 14, 1939, in the Shannonville United Church. Both morning and afternoon sessions were ably presided over by the chairman of the Presbytery, Rev. H. B. Herrington of Thomasburg and Secretary Rev. James E. Beckel of Stirling. The one hundred ministers and laymen were unanimous in their decision that this was one of the most inspiring and uplifting Presbytery meetings held in many years.

Following the devotions the roll call, minutes of last meeting, report of executive and communications and general routine work were given.

Study of Evangelism.

A study of evangelism was conducted by the chairman of the social service and evangelism committee, Rev. D. T. McClintock. This consisted of three outstanding addresses: "Evangelism in the Sunday School and Young People's Union" by Rev. W. P. Fletcher; "Personal Evangelism" by Rev. R. E. Newman; and "Evangelism in the Pulpit" by Rev. D. T. McClintock.

In referring to the bringing of boys and girls into the kingdom, Rev. W. P. Fletcher stressed the great opportunities that were afforded ministers, Sunday school workers and parents in dealing with youth in their tender years, which, stated the speaker, were divided into three periods. First period, 10 to 12 years. When the greatest changes in life were taking place, second, the period of disillusionment, third, the intellectual period when boys and girls are beginning to think of their future. Mr. Fletcher closed this inspiring address with the challenge that if these boys and girls are not won for Christ in one of these three periods of life very few will ever come to a knowledge of Jesus Christ.

Personal Evangelism.

In speaking on personal evangelism Rev. Newman stressed the importance of the personal touch, of praying for individuals by name. "We as Christian workers must properly present the Gospel," he said.

Ministers must be true shepherds of their flock. There must be cooperation. He referred to a statement proclaimed at conference.

"A church of a thousand pastors meaning every true church member an evangelist; having the winning personality of the Master without too much outward display."

Speaking on the subject "Evangelism in the Pulpit" Rev. D. T. McClintock reviewed the story of Pilgrims' Progress urging his fellow ministers to greater consecration at the top of sermon should be written in these words, "What must I do to be saved?"

After a few minutes' discussion the meeting adjourned for lunch which was served in the assembly hall nearby by the members of the W.A. of the church.

Afternoon Session.

Under the leadership of Mr. Percy Holland, chairman of the Lay Association, a general discussion of much interest gave the delegates much food for thought.

Brief addresses on the subject, "How to create and maintain interest in the Christian Church" with special reference to the Fellowship Crusade, were given by Mrs. Douglas Bews and Messrs. E. L. Fraser, W. N. Gilroy, W. J. Morrison, A. MacGregor, H. M. Sabine and C. W. Burr. The views and opinions expressed by those outstanding laymen and the discussion that followed revealed that a return to some of the former methods was what was needed in our churches these days.

Some expressed their conviction that it was too easy to join the church nowadays. A more up-to-date method of financing the budget was also needed.

Mr. Arthur Wilson addressed the court re license for lay preachers. Some of the ministers present thought that some action should be taken to use more of the laymen for the work.

The receiving of the reports of the various committees brought this inspiring Presbyterial meeting to a close. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Holloway Street Church, Belleville, in February. A vote of appreciation was extended to officials of Shannonville Church for use of their church for the meeting. Meeting was adjourned with the benediction.

FAN MAIL

By THAYER WALDO

Sylvia had heard of it before, but this was her first indulgence. She set about the thing quite blithely and quite without misgiving. For a young actress who wished to get ahead without paying the usual fee, writing fan letters to oneself was a good old Hollywood custom.

She dashed off a couple of short ones—changing ink, paper and handwriting for each, of course—and then let herself really go on the last. Fervor she gave it and imaginative scope. Indeed, when the four pages were done and she read them aloud, Sylvia was genuinely moved. This, she admitted without false modesty, had a real thump to it.

The problem of a name though, stumped her a brief while. Obviously, just any old moniker wouldn't do here. After a few moments' fruitless cogitation she reached for the telephone directory, flipped it open at random and found herself among the Ws. Sylvia began to scan the list.

Three from the bottom on the second page she found it; Werrenrath, Franz E. The syllables intrigued her; conjured a picture of blond, broad-shouldered six feet. She gave her pen its boldest stroke and signed Franz Werrenrath to the missive which told of impassioned admiration and implored a meeting.

The maid stamped that letter and put it in the post box with others at twenty past eight next morning. Slyvia reached the studio a little after ten. At exactly one-thirty two men wearing black hats and grim faces came up to where she was waiting for camera call on the "Tantalizing Tillie" set.

"Miss Sylvia Lynne, ain't'cha?" growled the one with his hat over his left eye. She affirmed it and he said: "Were from headquarters an' we got some things to astcha. Come on in Fiberg's office."

"Hello, leetle lady," he greeted; "now dun't vory. Dese boys is jost needink you halp. Tell de boys."

"Well, you got a mash note today," said the one whose derby rode his neck, "from a guy we been wantin' to get the goods on for three years. But he's slippery, see?—slickest forger west of Chi, an' he never leaves a trail. We ain't even got his pitcher."

"What," queried Sylvia, in a smaller voice than she'd intended; "what is is name?"

"Franz Eric Werrenrath—an' he don't bother with no aliases. But listen: he says in this letter he's dyin' to meetcha. All right; so you invite him out an' talk like you knew all about his game. We'll be listenin' but outa sight, an' probably he'll spill somethin' hot. Get the idea?"

Sylvia did and it rattled her rather badly. "I won't do it!" he cried. "It's—it's unfair!"

"He's a menace t' society," said Stetson-on-the-eye. It's y' civic dooty t' help catch him."

Fiberg and the other officer seconded it. Arguments hummed about Sylvia like a swarm of hornets. Before she could collect herself, a telephone was thrust in her hand with the urge: "There's his number: go ahead."

Hesitatingly she put receiver to ear and spoke a weak hello. The man on the other end spoke with a servant's measured accents. Relieved, Sylvia gave the invitation:" ... and ask Mr. Werrenrath if he will do me the honor of calling at eight o'clock this evening."

It was acknowledged and she hung up. The policemen nodded and sauntered toward the door.

"Okay," said the derby-balancer; "we'll be at your place by na' past seven. So long." ....

They walked in at twenty-six after. With them was a dark and intense looking young man who gave the impression of never having smiled. He crossed to Sylvia where she stood by the fireplace and presented a card. She read some words and saw some seals and signatures which told that here was one Roger Dale, private detective.

"Hes been tailin' Werrenrath for a client," explained one of the headquarters men. "Had the phone wires tapped an' heard your call today. Thought he'd like to come along. Where can we all hide?"

She disposed of them in closets, then spent an hour and a half that was first expectant, next dull and finally acutely boring. At last the officers flung out into the room again disgustedly.

"Aw, he ain't gonna show up," said one. "Either he smelled a trap or else he don't care as much about comin' here as—"; he broke off glancing half-guiltily at Sylvia and added: "Anyway, we might as well scram."

The girl turned her back on them and stood gazing into the flames. Disappointment over the outcome of this was deeper than she cared to admit. There came a mumbled series of good nights; she didn't bother to respond or look around. The door clicked shut. Silence. Then a step bheind her and Slyvia, startled, spun around. The dark young man was there looking at her fixedly and tearing some papers into scraps. She glanced down, saw what they were and exclaimed:

"Your credentials! Why—why are you doing that?"

His smile was surprising and pleasantly bland.

"Because," he replied, "I probably shan't need them again, and if I do, it'll be better to make out new ones. A man has to keep in practice you know."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, saying to ma, Can you imagine a man paying 65 cents for a cigar in times like these when men and women all over the world are crying for bread and childern right here at home are screaming for cake?

No I cant imagine it, now or at any other time, ma said. I dont care how much a cigar costs, it always smells to me as if it wasn't worth it, and the idea of any cigar of any discription costing 65 cents the majority of a doller, why it's just absurd enough to be rediculous, she said, and pop said, Well, I'd hardly go that far without a return ticket. After all, a fine Havanna cigar is one of the noblest works of man, he said.

O yes indeed, I suppose you can compare it to a great symfonny for land sakes, ma said, and pop said, Well, a full box of them might well be compared to a symfonny, but a single perfect Havanna cigar is more like a haunting lullaby or a meditation.

I agree with the haunting part hee hee, ma said. Who was this that bought a 65 cent cigar, do you know the man? she said, and pop said, Intimately, my deer intimately.

Well then who was it? ma said, and pop said, Me. My old unconquerable spirit of adventure must of joined hands with my esthetic nature. I'm smoking it at this very moment, he said.

Well, Willyum Potts, how can you sit there and watch 65 cents of your own money delibritly go up in litteral? smoke? ma said, and pop said, How? Why it's the easiest thing I ever did in my life.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Nov. 16.—On Monday evening of this week Rt. Ex. Comp. N. M. Sprague of Trenton, District Superintendent of Prince Edward District No. 11 (R. A. Masonry) paid an official visit to Keystone Chapter No. 72, Stirling. A pleasant feature of the evening was the showing of several reels of moving pictures by Rt. Ex. Comp. Sprague, which were taken by himself on a recent trip to the western U.S.A. coastline and the San Francisco World's Fair. The pictures and Comp. Sprague's lecture which accompanied the showing were indeed instructive and entertaining.

At the banquet following Ex. Comp. W. I. Eggleton, First Princ. of Keystone Chapter presided and proposed the toast to "The King". The toast to Grand Chapter was proposed by Comp. Col. Vanderwater and responded to by Right Ex. Comp. N. M. Sprague, who stressed the living of Masonry both in and out of the Lodge, making lodge meetings as attractive as possible, and the Chapter engaging in community welfare work. The toast to the visitors was proposed by Rt. Ex. Comp. G. B. Bedford and replied to by the Grand Superintendent.

A vote of thanks to Keystone Chapter was tendered by the visitors present and was replied to by First Prin. W. I. Eggleton.

Comp. Harry Grey of Trenton delighted those present with a recitation entitled "The Tramp".

A feature of the afternoon was the presentation of Miss Helen Lough with a lovely purse. Miss Madeline McKitterick read the following address:

Miss Helen Lough:
Vanity Girls Club:
Dear Friend:

On this our first meeting of our new project we felt we could not let this afternoon pass without showing in some small way our gratitude to you for your leadership in the past year's work. The success we have had we owe to your untiring efforts in our club work. We are glad you are going to continue as leader and friend.

"For friendship like a garland
Twined with roses sweet
Like a row of Little lights
Twinkling down a street
Friendship makes the common things
Happy as can be
Makes "just living" more worth while
For friends like you and me."

Signed by all the girls of the club.

Helen thanked the girls for the gift. Mrs. Burkitt invited the girls to the kitchen where lunch was in the past years work. The success

Stirling

Stirling, Nov. 16.—On Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 8, Mrs. Carleton Potts was hostess to a group of young ladies at an afternoon party and kitchen shower in honor of Miss Dorothy Utman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Utman who a few days later became the bride of Mr. John Gordon Green. During the pleasant afternoon's program the guest was presented with a number of useful gifts in cream and red kitchenware and the following address read on behalf of those present. Miss Utman extended her deep appreciation of the kindly gesture in a brief and sincere address of thanks to her friends.

The Address.

"Dear Dorothy: It is with great pleasure that we, your girl friends, have gathered here this afternoon to honor this great event of your coming marriage and to extend our best wishes on this happy occasion. You, Dorothy, have been a dear friend to us for a long time and we have always found you to be a good sport and ready to assist in any way whenever the occasion demanded it. We only hope that you will find as many friends in your new community as you are leaving here. Although knowing you will not be far away we will still look forward to seeing your smiling face among us real often.

"As a token of our esteem and friendship we ask you to accept these gifts along with the good wishes that we extend with them. Each day as you use them may it remind you of the happy hours we have spent together.

Marmora

Marmora, Nov. 16.—The town hall was filled to capacity on Tuesday evening for the opening of the Sacred Heart Church bazaar. From 5.30 until 8 a sumptuous chicken dinner was served by the ladies of the parish. The remainder of the evening was spent by the large crowd patronizing the bingo, blanket wheel, the horses, and the wheel of fortune. The home cooking table, fancy work booth, the fish pond and the candy booth also did a thriving business. Among the out-of-town visitors were noticed Very Rev. D. Cullinane, V.F., Tweed, Rev. TAKE THE "LEAD" FEELING OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get More Oxygen In Your Blood and Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery—you tire quickly—feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1939, G. T. Fulford Co., Ltd.

PAYMENT OF INCOMES TO SPANISH CLERGY RESTORED BY SPAIN

Madrid, Nov. 15—(AP)—The government today restored to the Spanish clergy the payment of incomes by the state, a practice put into effect by the Vatican Concordat of 1851 and suspended by the Spanish Republic after the revolution of 1931.

In addition to the 62,000,00 pesetas (about $6,200,000 at current rate) fixed by the 1851 Concordat as the state's annual appropriation to the clergy, today's decree appropriated additional funds to repair damage done to church property during the civil war.

NU-BLUE SUNOCO

The new miracle of gasoline chemistry

Tested, not against ordinary gasolines, but against premium-priced motor fuels . . . by 1475 motorists in 14 cities.

They voted 9 to 1 that Nu-Blue Sunoco equalled or excelled premium-priced gasolines in road performance!

HERE'S HOW THEY VOTED

QUESTIONNAIRE

Comparing this new gasoline to the premium-priced gasoline you have been using:

In knockless performance As good? Better? Not as good?	91.2 % Said As Good or Better
On pick-up, acceleration As good? Better? Not as good?	93.7 % Said As Good or Better
For power, especially on hills As good? Better? Not as good?	94.9 % Said As Good or Better
For all-around performance As good? Better? Not as good?	90.3 % Said As Good or Better

During September and October, 1475 critical users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was in reality Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to premium-priced gasolines they had used previously.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.

SPECIALIST IN ROSES, DIES

Kearney, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Harold J. Mills, 51, of Richmond Hill, 1 miles north of Toronto, recognized as one of Canada's foremost "rose men," died Wednesday at his hunting lodge in this Parry Sound district.

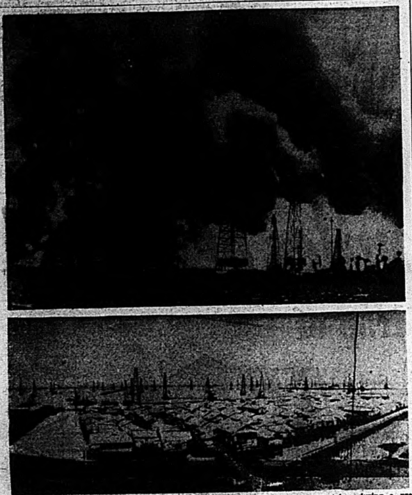
One of his outstanding contributions to the profession he served with success for 30 years was the production of a rose in 1938 which achieved immediate popularity and won a gold medal at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, as the best unnamed variety on display.

Neutral Opinion Supports Allies

Canberra, Nov. 16—(CP-Reuters) — Neutral opinion unanimously supports the Allies, Sir Henry Gullett, Minister of External Affairs, said in a foreign policy debate in Parliament today.

"Germany is fighting alone," he said. "The war position is satisfactory for us and it is improving daily, although the conflict is only just beginning."

Events have developed unfavorably for Germany, he said, and the removal of the United States arms embargo "might eventually prove a mortal blow to the Nazis."



Five hundred to eight hundred persons were feared dead as a raging oil fire destroyed the village of Lagunillas, Venezuela. The town, built on stilts on the edge of Lake Maracaibo, was one of the major oil terminals in Venezuela. The flames rapidly spread over the oil-coated surface of the lake and roared through some 2,000 wooden shacks, built out over the water as homes for the oil workers. The top picture was taken during a previous fire which swept the important oil field. Both pictures were transmitted by Phonephoto from New York.

INSTALMENT 19

It was a miracle of peace and security to awaken in the warm stillness of a winter morning and see snowflakes coming steadily, gently down outside, and to think of Rheingolder's "big, bright, busy basement" as a thing of the past. For a wonderful week Becky steeped herself deep in the thankful, all absorbing novelty of ease after strain, peace after strife.

On Saturday the whole house stirred with an expectant ripple to meet the master's arrival. Carter, his driver, brought him through the flattened snowy roads, and he came in, breathless and rosy, while Becky and his sister were at luncheon. Hungrily falling upon his own shop, his own plate of salad, he had little to say, but he smiled at them through his strong glasses. The boy was going on well? Good. Barbara getting home for Christmas? Good. And how was Mrs. Gibson? too good? Well, there was a nice thing for a doctor to hear.

After luncheon he had to go to a consultation in Oyster Bay. "I brought you home some boxes," Stephen Dinsmore said to Becky almost absent-mindedly, pulling on his gloves. "You might look 'em over; Miss Sachs, in the office, picked 'em out. She dresses well, they tell me—"

Becky was facing him with widened eyes and suddenly reddened cheeks. "Me?" she said a little thickly.

"Frocks," the doctor answered briefly. "Girls have to have 'em! You and Harriett go up and look at 'em, and if you don't like any one, put it back in the box and Carrie-Sis will wrap it up to go back."

"Ah, Doctor...." Becky's voice, the note of reproach that deepened it making it richer than ever, said protestingly.

"Well," said the doctor, "go look at 'em. You may not like any of 'em! I'm on my way."

Carrie-Sis had opened the boxes and laid out the clothes in a room upstairs; it looked like a smart frock shop. There was, to begin with, a dark brown coat of some silky warm cloth that felt like a kitten's ear, with a great soft beaver ruff of a collar. With it was a brown hat trimmed with two balls of beaver, and lying on the table two pairs of soft white gloves, two pairs of soft brown, one pair deliciously furlined.

Spread on the bed were a plain homespun suit with a sweater blouse, an evening gown of maize-gold taffeta exquisitely corded and severely plain, a house gown of delicate brown velvet and two all-service dresses of black crepe, one patterned here and there with small scarlet cherries, the other smartly tailored and trimmed only with a fall of rose point. Carrie-Sis, very much enjoying the job, was opening boxes filled with filmy peach and cream underthings when the other two women came in.

That night at seven, when Stephen Dinsmore came into the library before dinner, Becky got up from her chair and went to meet him. No one else was in the room. She was wearing the brown velvet gown; its richness set off her own golden-brown beauty; firelight behind her aureoled her head with gold.

"Doctor," she said, "you are very good to me. I never knew anyone so kind. They've been telling—Hatsy and Carrie—Sis and all of them, all this week—that I'm not the only one. But that doesn't make it any easier for me to thank you! I think it's—it's like God, to do things like this, with money. It makes—everything right."

She knew she was saying it awkwardly, clumsily. But it was all the more eloquent for that. Dr. Dinsmore smiled behind his glasses. "You look lovely," he said, clearing his throat.

It was several hours later that Stephen Dinsmore went into his sister's-bedroom. Harriet was standing staring down into the fire.

"Well?" questioned the doctor.

"Oh yes, yes, yes!" the woman said quickly. "In spite of your telephoning to warn me, the instant my eyes fell on her I thought I would faint. Her voice, her coloring—nobody else in the world ever had Madeleine's coloring!"

"Does anyone else know, Harriet?"

"No one. Better so, Steve. It would only stir up all that old agony again."

"Oh, far better not! She'll not think it strange?"

"Even if she does, you've done so many things like it nobody else will. She'll very quickly accept it. Look, Steve!"

She had a handful of old photographs. They looked at them together.

"That one," he presently said thickly.

"That one. And look at this one! How did it happen, Steve? Not the detective agency?"

"Not the agency. I suppose I never told them to look for that gold color. It didn't follow that the child would have it. No, it was in the children's ward at the hospital, one night last week. I suddenly heard her voice—Madeleine's voice. She was just going away; I followed her, but I didn't talk to her until Sunday. They sent her to the office. She looked at me with Madeleine's eyes. I suppose we talked of the child, I don't know; I told them that the little Gibson child was not to be discharged until I had seen the mother again. Or perhaps I telephoned that later from the office; I have no idea. I know I asked her to come down here, that first day."

He sat down, suddenly unable to go on, and his sister, equally silent, watched him for a few minutes.

"She was working in Rheingolder's," the doctor presently recommenced "that big department house up in the Bronx. You don't know it? Well, I went up there twice during the week and watched her; she didn't know it, of course. This was after the Sunday I talked to her. I didn't need proof, but she gave me proof. Quite innocently she said, "Doctor, it might make a difference in Gibb's constitution—inherited tendencies, you know, that sort of thing—but I don't really know anything about my own people. No one knows this, but I was adopted. 'And as if it concerned the child, I asked for dates." He put his two hands over his face, bowed his head, "My God, my God, my God, they matched!" he whispered.

The woman was in tears. She smiled shakily. "Congratulations, Steve!" she said.

On a wintry night a week, before Christmas, Becky came downstairs with Gibbs to find Barbara alone in the library. Barbara, taller than her mother, spirited, even a little rowdy, was lovely. A practically flawless head was crowned by the red-gold curls; the eyes were wide, thick-fringed and very blue; the mouth's only fault that it was a little too perfect, a little too completely the Cupid's bow.

Spoiled, selfish, a good deal of a snob, followed and admired wherever she went, rich and of America's finest lineage, Barbara had not shown Becky a very attractive side at first. She had arrived unexpectedly, having left the yacht on which she had been travelling from Hawii at San Pedro and flown home. At the first dinner table Becky had heard a good deal of Barbara's marvelous friends on the islands, her marvelous good times, the perfectly marvelous men she had met there, the simply marvelous invitations that she was now considering; to go to Europe, to London, to Palm Beach, to Nassau.

But quite suddenly, a few hours later, Barbara's attitude had changed. In their few brief encounters when she rushed home to sleep, dress, telephone, make fresh engagements, she had been pointedly friendly with Becky, and tonight, as Becky came into the library, Barbara rose with a welcoming little cry.

"Becky, thank heavens we have a minute alone! Listen, I'm in trouble and I've got to talk to you! Mother'll be along any minute and then it'll be too late. You see, twenty-four people are coming to dinner tonight. And Pedar Granger with them. And you know I am supposed to be engaged to Pedar Granger."

Mrs. Lee had mentioned this man's name in connection with Barbara from the very first. Pedar van der Venter Granger was an important figure in the older woman's scheme; Becky knew that he was rich, and prominent in Long Island's socially influential group.

"Well, this morning, shopping in town, I met Larry Moulton," Barbara went on, and stopped with an air of having launched a bombshell.

"I don't think your mother had him on tonight's list," Becky said, instantly concerned.

"No, I should think not! But he's—he's the person. I mean I'm madly, desperately in love with him and there's no use lying about it," Barbara said in a rush of frankness. "He's—I knew him in Paris a year ago, and Mother met him and disliked him. Then he was in Honolulu; he left two weeks before I did. But it's—at least with me it is—I mean, everything's over, the ship's sunk, the marines have positively landed! He's thirty and he's absolutely marvelous-looking in a completely and definitely marvelous way— I haven't time to tell you about him, but anyway, here's the thing—he's coming to dinner."

"Tonight?" Becky asked, aghast.

"Of course. I met him, d'you see," Barbara continued, glancing occasionally toward the hall door. "When I was lunching at the Park Lane today. He came over, and being perfectly terrified that he'd vanish into space, I asked him to dine with us some night and he said, 'Tonight?' That's the way he is; that gives you some idea of him. He's going to Boston tomorrow for days, so it was now or never. And here's, the extraordinary thing. He lives right down here at Glen Cove."

"You're engaged to him too?"

"I'm not engaged to any one. The Pedar affair is just family stuff, and no such luck as Larry's asking me! It's a perfect mess," Barbara said with relish.

"Isn't it just a question of asking Bonfacio to put another place at the table?" Becky said.

"No, because nobody'll know him, and mother'll make him feel like the Ness monster! She has no idea how far things have gone! You're going to be way up at the other end of the table. Won't you take him next to you, and make much of him, and tell him what a wonder I am, and then after dinner I'll manage to get next to him, and snuggle a confiding little hand in his and all that," Barbara said eagerly. Becky began to shake her head.

"You'll have to tell your mother" she began doubtfully.

400,000,000 PLEDGED TO DEFEAT HITLER

Dominions to Aid To 'Last Ounce' In War Effort

Canada Has Natural Desire to Stand by Britain And Cherishes Freedom Says Hon. T. A. Crerar

Anthony Eden Calls Air Training Plan Greatest Example of Empire Coordination Outside of Britain

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, Nov. 17—(CP-Cable)—If Adolf Hitler had sat in a large grey-walled room in London today he would have heard Government representatives of 400,000,000 people pledge their countries' wealth, resources and manpower to defeat him.

One after another the representatives of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India pledged the "last ounce" to the common war effort with Britain.

They interrupted discussions of economic, strategic and financial problems among themselves to greet a roomful of newspaper correspondents.

Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden described the informal conversations proceeding in London as "many, many times worthwhile" in solidifying and unifying the war effort of the British Empire.

Canada Acts Without Constraint

Hon. T. A. Crerar, Canadian Minister of Mines and Resources, said: "Canada has chosen to throw her full effort into the present struggle on the side of the western democracies by the practically unanimous decision of the Canadian Parliament, which met in special session almost immediately following the outbreak of war"

"I wish to make it clear beyond any question of doubt that no constraint from any source whatever was placed upon us," Mr. Crerar said. "Our action was entirely voluntary and our effort in support of the Allied cause will be exerted to the maximum of the power of the Canadian people.

Unity of Canadian People

"I may add further that among the Canadian people as a whole

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Chemical warfare and wind! For a gas attack the wind must blow toward the enemy at speeds from three to twelve miles per hour. Wind of less than three miles is apt to be variable and thereby dangerous to those using gas; while wind with speed of more than twelve miles per hour scatters and mixes the gas with the air so much as greatly to diminish its effectiveness. Afternoons, especially in summer, are generally the worst part of the day to use gas, as there are then apt to be ascending currents; the best time is from midnight to dawn, as far as wind is concerned. Weather units of the army are very useful in forecasting weather for the gas units.

Churchill Pacifies Southerners

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—Winston Churchill, to pacify indignant southerners of the United States, has denied through his secretary he ever intended to compare the Southern Confederacy during the American civil war to Nazi Germany today.

Letters of protest from Southern States followed a speech Oct. 1 in which the First Lord of the Admiralty said: "All the heroism of the south could not redeem their cause from the stain of slavery, just as all the courage and skill which the Germans always show in war will not free them from the reproach of Nazism — cunning, intolerance and brutality."

Mr. Churchill's private secretary, B. C. Sendall, has written to several American critics saying: "Mr. Churchill asked me to say that nothing was further from his mind than to suggest that there was any analogy between the cause and character of the struggle maintained by the Confederated States and that of Nazi Germany in the present war."

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 17—(AP) — Indications of Arab-British cooperation in Palestine for duration of the war were seen today in reports the Premiers of Iraq and Egypt would make a joint request to Britain for amnesty for Arab political prisoners.

Nuri said Pasha, Iraq's Premier, has been here conferring with Egyptian Premier Ali Maher Pasha on Arab-Jewish questions.

The Iraq Premier was reported to have brought word that the fugitive Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, had agreed to most of the provisions of Britain's plan for independent status for Palestine.

WRONG HOUSE AUCTIONED

Quincy, Mass., Nov. 17—(AP) — Everything went smoothly at the auction of a house here until its owners for 16 years came home. The auctioneer had knocked down the place to the highest bidder before he learned he had been assigned to sell the house next door, empty for a year.

Germans Held Finish Vessels

Helsingfors, Nov. 17—(CP-Havas) —Shipping authorities here disclosed today at least 15 Finnish vessels are being held in German ports. Most of them were seized by warships off the Swedish coast. The Finns complain the Germans are holding these ships for an unwarranted length of time.

CANADIAN COPPER, RESIN USED IN SHELL PLANTS

27 TYPES OF SHELLS

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Nov. 17 (CP)—Canadian copper and resin are playing a vital part in the mighty British effort to produce an endless flow of ammunition. The roue of both was displayed in a visit to a huge shell factory which is turning out vast quantities of all types.

Copper is essential for the bands of the shellbase. It is necessary for firing. Resin is used to solidify shrapnel in the shell tip. Round shrapnel bullets resembling bull's eyes in the candy shop are carefully weighed and dropped in the shell. Resin is poured in from a teapot.

The factory, one of Europe's largest, has been working day and night making shells for the last two years. It makes 27 types up to 250-pounders.

MEDIATION OFFER BY PRESIDENT NOT NOW WANTED

QUIET ON FRONT

No Noteworthy Fighting Activity Reported in Communique

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Nov. 17—(AP)—Authorized German sources said today any general mediation offer by President Roosevelt at this time would be "uninteresting" so far as Germany is concerned.

France's injection of Austrian restitution into the issues at stake in the war, these sources declared, shows the Allies regard all peace talks as futile.

However, should President Roosevelt ask both sides to disclose war aims to him with a view to finding some common basis for mediation, Germany would be most likely to respond, these sources intimated.

Signifies No Intention

(The President of the United States has indicated no intention of taking either step—offering "general mediation" or asking the belligerents to outline their war aims to him.

MILLION-YEAR RECORDS

Dr. De Terra Changes Picture of Man's Beginnings in Prehistoric Ages

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

(Associated Press Science Editor)

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP) — A new calendar of the great ice ages which goes back 1,000,000 years and changes the picture of man's beginnings was described to the American Philosophical Society today.

The calendar divides the past 1,000,000 years into seven great days and shows that man was already widespread on the third day, nearly 500,000 years ago—time when scientists have thought him just beginning.

The calendar is made of the gravel deposits of the four ice ages and the three warm periods between them that have marked the earth in the last 1,000,000 years. Human relics appear in the gravels on the third of these days, the time when the second great ice age covered many parts

"Peace-on-Earth" Demonstration Planned By Buffalo Mayor

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 17—(AP) — Mayor Thomas L. Holling today invited State Senator James Mead, Governor Herbert Lehman of New York and the mayors of 33 Niagara frontier communities to attend a "peace-on-earth" demonstration the night of Nov. 25.

The invitations went to mayors in Erie, Genesee, Niagara, Chautauqua and Cattaraugus Counties and the Niagara Peninsula area of the Province of Ontario. The theme of the demonstration Holling said, will be the years of peaceful relationship between the United States and Canada.

1,200 Czech Students Hauled Away in Buses, Guards Occupy Schools

Prague, Nov. 17—(AP) — Czech High Schools and the Karlovy University Technical Institute were occupied early this morning by German Schutzstaffel (SS) detachments and about 1,200 students, boys and girls, were hauled away in buses.

Reasons for this action by Adolf Hitler's blackshirt elite guard were vague. Shots were heard at Masaryk College, but apparently no one was injured.

About noon SS armored cars were seen passing through the city which then was reported quiet.

On Wednesday, about 2,000 Czech students demonstrated against the Bohemia - Moravia Protectorate Government set up by Germany in the dissolution of Czecho-Slovakia. Sixteen of the throng were reported to have been arrested that day. A large body of students attempted to escort the coffin of a fellow student who died of injuries Oct. 28. Police dispersed the demonstrators, but they tried to force their way into Wenceslas Square and Karl's Square from side streets chanting Slavic songs.

JAPAN REPORTS STEADY ADVANCE IN KWANGTUNG

China's Link With French Indo-China And British Burma May be Broken

REPORTS VARY

Hong Kong, Nov. 17—(CP)—Japan officially reported today a steady advance in Western Kwangtung Province toward China's "back door" links with French Indo-China and British Burma, but Chinese minimized both the effectiveness and extent of the campaign.

The Japanese said their forces, which landed Wednesday 45 miles west of the Treaty port of Pakhol, on the Gulf of Tonking, and 33 miles east of the Indo-Chinese border, had driven northward 30 miles to Yamhsien, about 25 miles from the border of Kwangsi province, one of their objectives.

U.S. PLANES CANNOT BE FLOWN ACROSS BORDER FOR DELIVERY

Can be Pushed or Pulled Across According to Decision of Neutrality Board

CAN'T FLY ATLANTIC

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—United States warplanes can be pushed or pulled across the border for delivery in Canada, government officials held informally today, but they can not be flown across under their own power.

This is their conclusion after days of discussion of one of the most intricate problems raised by the Neutrality Act.

The officials held that the export of airplanes to a belligerent is permitted under the Neutrality Act, but that under international law the flight of warplanes to a belligerent constitutes an "armed expedition".

It would be permissible, they say, to fly a plane to the Canadian border, bring it down on the American side, and then wheel it across. There would have to be customs officials present to receive affidavits that the title to the plane had passed to a foreign purchaser.

The shipper of the plane would have to exhibit the export licence of the National Munitions Control Board.

Once a United States plane is in Canada, there is nothing in the law to prevent its being flown across the Atlantic to Great Britain.

Shipment of planes to Canada by sea or transport by train is permitted.

By the same ruling that is being applied to Canada, American planes may not be flown across the Atlantic from the United States for delivery to Britain, rance or Germany.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Brief communiques from Paris and Berlin reporting "patrol activity" on the western front tell of quiet days and nights for the main bodies of the French and German armies but plenty of excitement for a few men.

If some of the old Indian fighters of the French regime in Canada could come to life they would be right at home in the kind of warfare going on between the Maginot and Siegfried Lines and would make fine patrol leaders.

Over the greater part of the front the main advance lines of the two armies are a considerable distance apart. In between is a wide no-man's land and it is there the patrols do their work. Their main purpose is to maintain contact with the opposing forces, keep their own commanders informed of what the enemy is doing and perhaps take a few prisoners from whom more information may be squeezed or cajoled.

Thus a patrol may set out some night to reconnoitre a hill a mile or so in advance of its own line. It is important to know whether the enemy is establishing advance posts or concentrating troops on the hill. The men move forward as inconspicuously as possible, taking advantage of trees, bushes and fences, keeping in the deepest shadows.

In all probability they will reach their objective and return without incident but they taste the thrill of danger. Perhaps they will meet an enemy patrol on the same mission. In that case it is often the man who sees the other fellow first who lives to tell the tale. Perhaps they may come within the range of an enemy advance post with a machine gun, a post established since the last patrol in that area.

MISSING MADOC YOUTH DROWNED IN BLACK CREEK

Body Recovered Three Hundred Yards From Dam by Provincial Police

MISSING TWO DAYS

Matches and belt found near the jagged edges of a hole in the ice above the big dam in Black Creek, twelve miles north of Cooper, gave mute testimony of the efforts of 16-year-old Donald Gordon, Madoc, to save himself before he succumbed to extreme cold and exposure in the icy waters of the river. His body was found shortly after nine o'clock today approximately three hundred yards from the dam by a searching party headed by Provincial Police Officer Arthur Dymond, after a search of 36 hours.

Dr. Nichol, coroner for the district left this afternoon for the scene of the tragedy. It is not known as yet whether an inquest will be held.

The body of the dead youth was brought from the scene of recovery by stretcher to the highway, and taken to Madoc.

Last seen at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon when he left on a hunting foray alone, the youth is believed to have crashed through the ice while returning home. He had accompanied his father and two companions to the district on a hunting trip and had stayed in a cabin approximately three miles from the scene of the tragedy.

Failure of the boy to return home late Wednesday night, alarmed the hunting party and a searching posse was organized. Thorough combing of the immediate district failed to reveal any sign of the missing youth, and the search was abandoned until yesterday morning.

Resumption of the search yesterday revealed a cap and rifle identified as belonging to the missing youth beside a hole in the ice. The articles were found by John Gordon, father of the youth, who was restrained with difficulty by searchers from approaching the tell-tale hole in the ice.

Berlin, Nov. 17—(AP)— Hans Frank, Governor General of German-occupied territory in Poland which has not been incorporated in the Reich, today introduced labor service for Poles.

The study of the German language was made compulsory in all high schools of the Czecho-Slovak protectorate.

CHAMBERLAIN IMPROVING

London, Nov. 17—(CP)— Prime Minister Chamberlain left his official residence today for the first time since he was stricken with an attack of gout nine days ago. With the aid of a cane he walked out to a waiting automobile and was driven away. A large crowd in Downing Street cheered the Prime Minister.

Lumber May Go on Contraband List

Berlin, Nov. 17—(AP)— Germany is seriously considering placing all shipments of lumber on the contraband list even if apparently destined for neutral ports, authorized sources said today. Reason for the lumber ban is said to be Britain's alleged attempt to prevent neutrals from shipping anything whatsoever to Germany regardless of whether it is contraband.

Germany Puzzled Over the Conduct Of Present War

Nazi Leaders Demanding Action And Army Generals Refusing to Sacrifice Their Men — General Staff Was Guaranteed Britain and France Would Not Fight Even if Poland Invaded

WANT TO HIT QUICKLY

By J. F. SANDERSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 17—(CP Cable) — There is great dissension between Adolf Hitler and the German High Command over conduct of the war, in the opinion of military circles here.

"The military inactivity is evidence of that," a high military authority declared. "The Germans simply do not know what to do, with the Nazi leaders demanding action and the army generals refusing to sacrifice their men."

From evidence gathered from all sources not only in France and neutral countries but from Germany itself, this conflict of opinion between Hitler and his generals becomes more apparent, it was stated.

Guaranteed No Invasion

Hitler and his Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, guaranteed to the German General Staff that Poland could be crushed without war in the west involving Great Britain and France. But they were wrong. Now the army is telling Hitler they cannot crack the Maginot Line without sacrificing hundreds of thousands of men.

40 CITIES, TOWNS WANT TOURISTS

Representatives Will Meet at Ottawa to Consider Co-operative Effort

Ottawa, Nov. 17—(CP)— A conference of representatives of more than 40 cities and towns in eastern and northern Ontario to consider plans for a co-operative effort to maintain the tourist industry during 1940 will be held here Nov. 23, Alderman Wilbert Hamilton, Chairman of the Ottawa Industrial and Publicity Committee, sponsors of the conference, announced last night.

The conference will seek to draw up a special program to convince United States tourists there are no special restrictions on their movements here because of the war.

Mayors, Reeves, representatives of Boards of Trade, tourists associations and transport companies will attend.

Spain and Italy Gave Warning Against Invasion

Brussels, Nov. 17—(CP-Havas) — Well-informed Belgian sources said today the Italian and Spanish governments recently advised Germany, through diplomatic channels, of their interest in maintenance of the territorial integrity of Belgium and the Netherlands.

It was presumed the representations were made because of reports of a threatened German invasion of the low countries.

PREMIER HONORS POLISH SAILORS

Twenty Officers And Men Receive "Virtuti Militari" Medal For Bravery

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—A future Polish fleet which will establish a watch over the Baltic Sea was envisaged today by the premier of the Polish government in exile, General Wladyslaw Sikorski.

Accompanied by Count Edward Raczynski, Polish Ambassador to London, and his staff, the premier went to a Scottish port to decorate Polish sailors who have distinguished themselves in the war.

Twenty officers and men received the "Virtuti Militari" medal and the cross of bravery. General Sikorski received an ovation from the Polish sailors.

The premier felicitated the sailors on their courage in bringing Polish vessels from the Baltic through enemy waters.

He told them they had found marvellous hospitality with "the greatest fleet of the world, the British fleet". He urged them to show themselves worthy of this hospitality.

Men Prepare For Lonely Stay On Main Duck Island

Picton, Nov. 17—To spend the winter alone on Main Duck Island in Lake Ontario, will be the experience of Jake Drieve and Ray Lancaster. This will mean that they will not be able to communicate with the mainland from the end of the month until the first of April next year, but they will be able to keep in touch with the news of the world by radio. The two men will fill the ice houses of the fishermen, who make their headquarters there in summer, cut wood and look after the livestock owned by Cecil Cole of Cape Vincent.

Both men spent last winter alone on the island and reported an uneventful time. They have a large quantity of supplies to last them for their stay.

Papers Declare Italy Remains Fiercely "Anti-Communist"

WARNED OF AIMS

Rome, Nov. 17 (CP-Havas)—The Italian press today resumed attacks on the Soviet Union and Bolshevism.

The Corriere Padano lashed certain Rome weeklies for presenting the Soviet Union in a relatively favorable light. The Italian public is tired, the Padua paper said, of hearing "certain agents who would always like to find historical and moral justification for Bolshevism."

"Italians are and will remain anti - Bolshevists," it proclaimed. This was echoed by the Tribuna, which insisted that "Fascist Italy remains fiercely anti-Communist."

Secular Arm of Bolshevism

The Turin Gazeta Del Popolo asserted "it is evident and indisputable that the Moscow government is the 'secular arm of Bolshevism.'"

"It is well for Italy," the Gazeta

TWEED COUNCIL DISAPPROVES ONT. GOV'T'S. PROPOSAL

By a unanimous vote the reeve and members of Tweed Village Council went on record at its regular meeting this week, of disapproving the Ontario government's proposal to suspend municipal elections for a period of two years or for the duration of the war.

A copy of the resolution will be forwarded to the Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Public Works.

GLEN ALLEN MAY CONTINUE SAILINGS

Although the regular navigation season for the steamer "Glen Allan" officially closes on November 24th, if present weather conditions prevail additional trips will be made, government wharf officials stated today.

The heavy canned goods shipments that have been moving from Bay of Quinte ports during the past month are now practically finished, it was reported. The steamer which calls here today will take a light cargo on her outward trip but is expected to unload a heavy shipment of sugar consigned to dealers here.

Future trips of the vessel will depend largely on weather and ice conditions in the canals.

WORK ON S. A. CITADEL ALMOST COMPLETED

With painting of the interior and other numerous "odds and ends" to clean up, completion of the new Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street is expected within the next three weeks, Contractor Thomas Adams said today.

Practically all interior construction is now complete with the exception of hanging of doors. Painters are now busy staining and oiling woodwork. Hardwood floors are in position and all plaster work is completed.

The official opening and dedication will in all likelihood take place early in December.

INDIANS FINED FOR BREACH OF ACT

Two Indians who were apprehended in possession of intoxicating liquors upon the Tyendinaga Reserve, were arrested by Constable Wm. Beatty of the R.C.M.P. this week and subsequently pleaded guilty to charges preferred under the Indian Act when arraigned before H. M. Jones, newly appointed Indian Agent for this district.

The men's names were given as Michael Carrick of Verona and Roy Maines, Point Anne. A fine of ten dollars and costs was imposed and paid in each incident. Maines and Carrick were arrested by Constable Beatty, while on the Tyendinaga Reserve and at the time were found in possession of a quantity of liquor, which is contrary to the Indian regulations of the Dominion of Canada.

Old Man Winter gave deer hunters in the north country a taste of old-fashioned hunting during the last two or three days when he wrapped the small lakes and creeks leading to the larger bodies of water in a cloak of thick ice.

Due to the wintry conditions and the fact that water transportation was out of the question, several parties were forced to bring their effects and deer from hunting lodges overland.

The creek leading from the landing to Weslemkoon Lake proper was frozen over, Mr. Joe Shortt, member of a party hunting from the lodge of Dr. Van Blakslee on the north shore of the lake, said today. He was forced to trek some six miles overland through the woods and along trails, in order to "get out".

Heavy frosts of Monday and Tuesday nights "when there was scarcely a breath of wind" were responsible for the ice-covered lakes, he said. Hunting had been very good with a fair plentitude of deer available in that particular district where his party which consisted of Guy Bennett, Russ White, Jack Sears of Toronto, Dr. Blakslee, and Dick Hart had followed the trails. Thus far, four deer have fallen to the guns of the hunters, Mr. Shortt said.

POLICE COURT

"This is the man who drove his automobile over the embankment an into the Moira River last week," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K. C., when Thomas Turriff, Detlor, appeared in today's city police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K. C., charged with reckless driving. Turiff pleaded guilty as charged and was assessed the minimum fine of $10.00 and costs, while his driver's licence was cancelled for a period of one month in addition.

"You will recall this man was driving his automobile, containing three other passengers, north on Pinnacle St., but he failed to make a turn either way at the blind end of the street at the Station St intersection with the result his motor car broke off an electric light standard, crashed through an iron railing and hurtled over an embankment into the river below. The occupants miraculously escaped perhaps fatal injuries," stated Mr. Donnan as he added there had been considerable damage to city property resulting.

Charles A. Payne, K.C., appearing for the accused, stated "it was raining hard and the visibility was poor on the night in question."

After His Worship had been assured by Mr. Payne that all damage to city property would be paid for by the accused, the minimum fine resulted.

Pte. Clayton Wilson, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, appeared in the same court charged with drunken driving and was convicted on his own admission. Wilson was sentenced to serve 14 days in the common jail. The charge arose out of an accident at which time the car Wilson was driving crashed into Baker's service station causing property damage to the extent of at least $100.00 stated P. C. Wright, who investigated.

"This man's Commanding Officer was notified of his predicament but did not see fit to send a soldier's friend to assist him," revealed Mr. Donnan as he asked Wilson if he owned the car he was driving at the time. "Oh, yes, he paid five dollars down on it recently," revealed Chief Kidd as the vehicle was later impounded.

TWO TRAPS CATCH MOUSE

Lumberton, N.C., Nov. 17—(AP)—J .T. McIntyre caught the dumbest mouse in history. It blundered into two traps at the same time. One clamped down near the tip and the other near the base of the rodent's tail.

Car Crashes into Boulder on Road

Losing control of the automobile he was driving Pte. Arthur Smith, of the R.C.A.M.C., escaped serious injury when the vehicle left the highway crashed into a large boulder a few hundred yards east of the C.P.R. crossing on Highway No. 2 west of Belleville at midnight last night. The motor car was badly damaged during the impact.

Smith reported to Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine there had been a large white boulder in the centre of the highway, but when the constable investigated he found that Smith's car had left the highway and struck the curbstone leading into a private driveway and later continued some 300 feet into the ditch.

Today Smith pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving when he appeared in police court on H.T.A. charges. A fine of $10.00 and costs was imposed and the accused soldier's driving licence revoked for a period of one month.

Michigan Tourist Vows He's Through With Hitch Hikers

"I'll never pick up a hitch-hiker again," vowed R. G. Denis, Dearborn, Mich., when he became involved in a series of complications, that saw another man and woman arrested and Denis' car implicated in an accident in Belleville yesterday, all because the owner of the car agreed to pick up a man and woman hitch-hiker out of Montreal earlier in the day.

Upon arriving at Belleville shortly before 6.00 p.m. last evening, Mr. Denis parked his car at the lower end of Front Street, leaving one Roy Dafoy and Cecile Lazotte, both of Montreal, while he procured a meal. During Mr. Denis' absence Dafoy took the automobile, drove it across the street into a service station lot and crashed into a parked motor car.

Dafoy and Miss Lazotte were later arrested by P.C. Ellis and today appeared in city police court before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., Dafoy pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving and also to that of taking a motor car, the property of R. G. Denis, without the owner's consent. Dafoy said he had been drinking and did not recall the incident. "You had better be careful or there may be a charge of drunken driving laid against you on your own admission. Miss Lazotte was charged with intoxication and also of being found in the illegal possession of narcotics and pleaded guilty as charged. Both were remanded in custody for one week at the suggestion of B. C. Donnan K.C., County Crown Attorney. "Those pills are only sleeping pills," contended Miss Lazotte in open court.

"You had better send them to the narcotic squad for analysis," promptly replied Mr. Donnan as he instructed Chief Kidd to continue investigations through this method of research. In the meantime Mr. Denis had been inconvenienced on his trip and remained over in Belleville as a material witness. It was after today's court that Mr. Denis assured police authorities he would never assist hitch-hikers again. "That's enough for me, I've learned my lesson," he stated to H.T.O. Sam Ervine before resuming his journey.

STILLMAN CROTHERS
(Toronto)

Thomas Stillman (Jake) Crothers, a former resident of Belleville died in the Western Hospital, Toronto, on Wednesday, Nov. 15th.

The late Mr. Crothers, who was in his 64th year, was born in Belleville, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Crothers. His father was engaged in the bakery and confectionery business here many years ago. His boyhood days and part of his young manhood days were passed in this city and he was popular with a large circle of friends. Some years ago he went to reside in Toronto and for some time he was employed at the Union Station in that city. Old friends here will regret to learn of his death.

Surviving him are two sisters, Lilly and Bella, both in Toronto. His wife, who was Mary Gay, died some years ago.

Interment will be made in the Belleville Cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE LESLIE HALLETT
(West Huntingdon)

The funeral ofWestetaoinnnnnn West Huntingdon — (Special)—The funeral of the late Leslie Hallett took place on Thursday, Nov. 16. The service at the home and at the graveside was conducted by Rev. Jas. E. Beckel minister of Rawdon United Church circuit. Mr. Backel gave a very helpful and comforting message from the text found in 64th chapter of Isaiak, verse 6: "And We All do Fade as a Leaf." There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors.

The late Mr. Hallett was a valued member of Thomasburgh Orange Lodge and the impressive burial service of that order was in charge of Brs. W. J. Webb and Clarence Jeffrey.

The pall bearers were all members of the Thomasburgh Lodge and were John Smith, Ritchie Geen, David Thompson, Jr., Harold Morton, T. Emmerson, W. Morton.

The floral tributes were many, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

CITY CAN NOW CUT DOWN TREE

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 17—(AP)—They can cut down that tree now—for death, striking unexpectedly last night, claimed Mrs. Nennie May, 63, lone defender of the old maple in front of her home in downtown Lancaster. Last February Mrs. May promised that the old tree—last one in the business district—"will stand as long as I live."

DIAMONDS STOLEN IN PARIS FOUND

$20,000 Worth Located in Safety Deposit Box in Montreal

Montreal, Nov. 17 (CP)—Isaie Savard, Inspector in charge of the Inspection Investigation Service of the Department of National Revenue, said here last night that approximately $20,000 worth of unset diamonds reportedly stolen in Paris some months ago had been recovered in Montreal.

United States Treasury Department officers had worked "in co-operation" with officers of the Canadian Department in a search which resulted in the recovery of the diamonds, Inspector Savard said.

The stones had been placed in a safety-deposit box here pending instructions from authorities of the National Revenue Department at Ottawa, he added.

Ottawa, Nov. 17—(CP)— The Canadian Legion War Services issued a call today to young soldiers in the land, air and naval forces of Canada to get into training for the entertainment circuit. Within the next few days Captain Mert Plunkett will be along to audition new talent for concert work among the troops.

Captain Plunkett, appointed Supervisor of soldier concert parties, is the man who organized and led the famous "Dumbells" of the first Great War in lightening the hearts of thousands of men of the Third Canadian Division in France.

"Who knows," said Capt. Plunkett of his forthcoming scouting trip in search of talent among the new soldiers, "but what we'll discover a virtuoso here or there." "Anyway, we'll be able to put over a real job for the Canadian troops wherever they may be."

Frau Goering in Switzerland

Berne, Nov. 17—(CP-Havas)—Frau Emmy Goering, wife of the German Air Minister, is at Lausanne, Switzerland, awaiting the birth of a second child, it was reported here today.

TWEED RESIDENT STRUCK BY AXE

Axe Hit Clothesline And Flying Back Hit T. C. Graham on Forehead

Tweed, Nov. 17 (Special)—While splitting wood at the home of Mr. T. C. Graham, on Tuesday, Mr. George Thompson, Tweed, met with an accident which might have had serious consequences. The axe caught on the clothesline and flying back struck him a terrific blow on the forehead knocking him to the ground in a semi-conscious condition. A passerby saw Mr. Thompson lying on the ground and took him to the office of Dr. George. Here it was ascertained that although there was no skull fracture, there was a slight concussion, a fractured nose, and a severe cut in the forehead which required several stitches to close.

Story How British Soldier Got Name Of Tommy Atkins

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—One explanation of how Tommy Atkins came to be used to describe the British soldier has been found in the prosaic pages of the army pay book.

When the War Office issued the first "soldier's account book" in the year of Waterloo, the specimen form sent to each serving soldier to show how the book should be filled in bore the name "Atkins, Thomas."

Another tradition says the Duke of Wellington was asked by the War Office for the name of a typical British soldier. The Duke recalled a private of his old regiment, the 33rd, who had died at his feet on a Flanders battlefields years before. He took a piece of paper and scrawled on it "Thomas Atkins".

Another account says the original Tommy Atkins was a gunner in the Royal Artillery, a born accountant, who in the 18th century gained the admiration of his comrades and the hatred of the pay sergeant by keeping a private ledger in which all his accounts were accurately balanced each month.

Collegiate News

The actors stage crew and directors of "You Can't Take It With You" heaved a sigh of relief when Mrs. Reed of Kingston arrived on Wednesday. We always enjoy her visits and welcome her as an old friend.

And here's good news—the recently disbanded Cheering Section will be reorganized owing to the many requests on the part of the student body. Now here is our big chance, students, to really get behind this thing and put it over with a bang this time. And as the senior team has a very good chance of playing in the final play-off game at Toronto, the Cheering Section will undoubtedly be invited to attend the game to cheer on our old school to a C.O.S.S.A. victory. So let's see if we can't organize a bigger and better section than ever—and let's have a big turnout at the first reorganization meeting Monday night at 4.15 in the boys' gym. If this meeting is largely attended, arrangements will be made for a big football victory dance to be held from 4 to 6 Friday, November 24, to raise funds for the possible transportation of the Cheering Section to the big final game at Toronto, November 25—so let's have some real co-operation this time gang—and have a championship Cheering Section to cheer the old team in Toronto.

By the winning of the Bay of Quinte District championship between Albert College and B.C.I.V.S., the senior rugby team now place themselves in a very enviable position in the sphere of Central Ontario football—and that is the honour of being a contestant in the final play-offs to decide the C.O.S.S.A. championship. The Central Ontario Secondary School Association championship is the highest honour offered by Central Ontario for High School championship rugby. This year the senior team have a very hopeful chance of bringing the old C.O.S.S.A. victory back to B.C.I.V.S. from which for the past few years it has been obsent, owing to our lack of participation in their league. The first play-off game will be a sudden death game between Port Hope High School and B.C.I.V.S. This very important game will be held this Saturday in Port Hope and will decide the better team to participate in a final playoff game at Toronto, Saturday, November 25.

The team after week of gruelling practice now appear in tip top condition and I am sure will put up a grand fight to bring back the C.O.S.S.A. to old B.C.I.—Good luck, fellas!—the whole school is behind you.

HOLLOWAY STREET WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

The regular monthly meeting and afternoon tea of the Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs. E. Hubbs, 38 Howard Street, on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 16th. The meeting opened with the President, Mr. Sills presiding. "What a Friend We have in Jesus", was sung followed with prayer by Mrs. (Rev.) Newman. The Scripture Lesson, 35th Chapter of Exodus was read by Mrs. H. B. Fetterly. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Fetterley, Mrs. C. Ostrom, and Mrs. A. Hitchon were appointed as nominating committee for the officers of the coming year. Reports of various secretaries and committees were given. Roll call was taken with 35 present.

This part of the meeting closed by all repeating the Mizpah Benediction. Mrs. J. Cordes then took charge of the program for Mrs. Fulton's group. Hymn "Blessed Assurance" was sung. Devotional reading was given by Mrs. Cordes, "Promises of the Lord", taken from "Leaves from the Tree of Life", followed by prayer by Mrs. C. Walters. Solo "God is Watching" by Mrs. S. P. Hagerman was much enjoyed. A number of short inspiring readings were given by twelve ladies, followed by a "Quiz" contest. Mrs. Fulton and her group then served dainty refreshments. Those asisting were Mrs. Fulton, Mrs. C. Green, Mrs. J. Cordes and Mrs. E. Hubbs.

CRISIS STILL

The world has its main crisis of course in the war between the Hitler-dominated Germany and the Allied Powers, Britain, France and the remnants of Poland, and in that crisis, which is always a crisis, there will be many minor crises. One of these was the possibility of a German invasion of the Netherlands and Holland and this possibility has not entirely faded, though the tension has lessened materially as the restoration of leaves for the Belgian soldiers shows. Now there is a new crisis in the north, an extended one—the Russo-Finnish crisis which will be protracted over months, it is indicated. Opinion is that the Soviet will not fight the Finns but that steady pressure of "nerves" will be the method used.

War has changed in many ways since the last great conflict of 1914-1915. The war in Ethiopia gave few hints of what war today was to be . Even the Spanish civil war gave little indication of what this war has so far been and it appears to give little idea of what it may develop into. It is well known of course that the international aspect of the Spanish conflict was for the greater part of the war a hovering cloud, which lifted at times but was never quite dissipated. Today this international aspect is over and above all.

But the springing of crises and the war of nerves have been a peculiar development which was raised to an art by that bad man of Europe, Adolf Hitler. Modern methods of communication have been perfected sufficiently and so has machinery of transportation, particularly by planes, to make possible this new method. The public in every land can be faced with a suddenly developed situation or crisis and this method will no doubt play considerable effect in the course of the war. Controlled Nazi newspapers are used to add effect inside Germany along with the radio programs, so that the Germans are fed only one type of story — the news-propaganda. All news in Germany is propagandized or made the vehicle of propaganda. In western countries it is different—papers are allowed to publish news as news and even news of the enemy, for the democracies trust to the highly developed public sense of the readers of democratic lands to achieve their purpose. Democracies trust their people. Despotism treats its people as infantile.

Totalitarian powers can use the crisis method more effectively than the democratic powers because the very motive of such surprises is the fear, the surprise and the stunning effect on the perception of the enemy—in fact it is the means of threat, which democracies avoid.

But the wholesale task Hitler has taken upon his shoulder will allow less and less opportunity for crises. The lines are hardening along which the war will be fought. The Allies are in a better position than they have been, for every week adds to their strength. The things that might have disturbed in pre-war days do not now disturb, for the mind of the democracies is set—to meet whatever turns up, with the faith and conviction that Britain and France are going to be able to direct the course of events and that it will not be Hitler who does it, though he was the mover of events in the days up to September 1st.

CANADA'S RICHES

Canada from its natural resources and its geographic position in the New World is one of the fastest growing nations of the globe. It is a young nation but not too young to be without an honored past. Its position in the British Empire makes it one of the greatest sources of strength which the Commonwealth of Nations has in these trying days of war when the world battles the "apparition" as Winston Churchill has called Hitler and Hitlerism. Not to mention Canada's resources of nickel in which she possesses one of the greatest sources of wealth in all the world, or of gold, or of lead and copper or of food and timber, she possesses large territory of various types which makes it possibly the greatest training ground of flying in the world. Out of this war will come by reason of this development a Canada, most advanced of any nation on the globe as far as aviation is concerned. What its expansion thenceforth will be in commercial aviation dazzles the mind to think of.

Hon. Dr. Manion, the other day, said that "Canada would be the richest prize on the face of the globe for any congested country to win. Imagine the joy of Hitler could he possess such a country as ours to which to send his excess population."

That sentence brings Canadians sharply to the fact. Canada is fighting not only for the British Empire and France and Poland, but for herself also. There is no doubt of that and every part of the Empire and France and Poland are fighting for Canada. Canadians see Hitler as he has advanced his Reich notions in Central and Eastern Europe. They know the Nazis' envy of the riches which any land contains.

Canada will become one of the happiest lands on earth. And the British and French will down the ambitious Hitler and his party who have been running amok in the world but now are blockaded.

That Canada's lovely acres might be populated by Nazis is unthinkable, yet Hitler would make it possible if he could. Therefore Canada fights for herself for today and for all the future. Her assistance in this war and her co-operation with the Empire will help to bring a just peace to earth, even to the war-torn Europe. It will rid Europe and even Germany of the incubus of an ambition-mad, power-obsessed despot, who regards no word of his own as sacred and regards no word of others, it will do what will help to bring a paeon of praise from the neutral nations who live on the edge of that cauldron which has been seething for centuries with intermittent eruptions in war, and it will assist in bringing about that better state of brotherhood among nations, so badly dishonored and disgraced by the Nazis, who have resurrected barbarism in their treatment of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland as makes civilized man shudder at the thought of the savage that can still inhabit the human body.

Nazism is so far from the peace and calm of Canada that Canadians cannot easily conceive of Nazi brutality and bloodthirstiness.

Remarks have been made by the foe that the British Empire would be the finest pickings in all history for a conqueror. Germany knows that, as she through her selfishness and spy rings knows a good many other things about the importance of other countries. Yet the Empire will stand.

But Germany never had any doubt where Canada stood. Before the war, it was freely predicted in the German press that Canada would stand with the Empire in event of war with Germany. Now Germany cannot understand the deep roots of Canadian loyalty, but she knew this that Canada's safety lies within the Empire.

Canada has been blessed by British sympathy and defence as she has been developing. No nation in all history has been more blessed than this land by Providence in her riches and in her protection during her growth by Britain. Canada still requires much to reach the full stride of her greatness but it is as sure and certain as it is that justice and liberty are realities. Canada too is blest in that she has been started on her way among the nations under Christian tutelage, that she can honestly and fairly claim she is a Christian nation and that she will endure as long as justice, liberty and right dominate because they are her ideal. Through the centuries, despite the wars of this century and other centuries, man has been striving for an ideal, and building up a power of justice on earth and a world spirit of right. The world yearns for it, despite the Hitlers who pass away, and in the strength of that increasing sense of justice in the world, the Empire and the Dominion and the French will triumph, chase Hitler and his minions out of power and place them where they can no more molest and terrorize the world with their frightful show of international thuggery, set Germany straight, rebuild Poland and help to usher in an ideal fraternity of peoples where desire and territorial grabbing are unknown.

STUDENTS CRY 'FREEDOM'

Students have always played a part in public affairs. Everyone knows how the students were movers of events in the Far East in years past. Today students are playing the familiar role of opposing the spirit of domination. This time it is the Czech students, a fine score of whom shouted "freedom", thought they were quickly dispersed by the police. On Tuesday there were two demonstrations, two hundred taking part.

Here is a sign of the flame of loyalty that is burning among the people of Czecho-Slovakia, which will singe the heart of Nazidom. Students are young and brave—they take risks and risk is the very foundation of agitation and revolt. Driving away and scattering students will not cure the spirit of liberty among the Czechs who have kept it alive for a thousand years in spite of supression. They are the soul of freedom. Against them Germany has nothing to offer but force—the very thing that rouses the spirit of heroes.

These students are the spear-head of the spirit of the people. And Czechs, drafted into German armies will bide their time for they know where Bohemia is.

Easing the Weekly Ironing Task

By Eleanor Ross

It was only a few years ago that household ironers were almost as big and bunglesome as sofas or bookcases. They were too large to be placed in any part of the house but the basement where laundering was done. Then Mrs. Homemaker rebelled, and as a result ironers are now small enough to be operated in any room in the house.

It is interesting to note that within a span of only a few years 15,000,000 ironers have been installed in American homes, and their adoption should be faster still from now on, for ironers have been further re-designed and made so easy to handle that ironing can be done in the living room if that is where the home ironer chooses to work.

Can Take it Easy

One of the nicest things about using an ironer is the fact that one sits down at the task, comfortably and pleasantly. A single control is operated, and the articles are guided through the ironer with a minimum of effort; the last article is finished as effortlessly as the first since the ironer itself supplies all the pressure.

The small household or the one where most of the washing is sent out doesn't really need an ironer. But for the large household where the laundry is done on the premises, such a device is more than necessary and is an investment that soon pays for itself. It does several swell jobs, including pressing suits and pleated skirts. It shapes sweaters, knitted wear and velvets. Linens emerge crisp and smooth, while curtains hang straighter and are easier to iron because of the large surface of shoe. Less starch is needed, which prevents easy scorching. Moth larvae are killed by running woolens through heat, and it shrinks yardage before dressmaking.

Trailer Travel

Mr. Arthur Jones of Belleville, has left the city for his annual trek to Florida. This letter is the first of a series that he has kindly promised to write for The Ontario Intelligencer of life, as he sees it, in the great holiday land of the South.

November 10th,—39 Dillsburg, Pa., South of Harrisburg:

Dear Sir,—

Your friendly travelling correspondent is sure wheeling it—Winter is on my Tail. We left Scranton yesterday morning at 6.50 a.m. in a blinding snow storm that came over the mountains as black as night with ice forming on car and trailer. This morning we are reminded of our fine old friends, the late C. M. Stork and the late Dr. Clinton. Years ago these Old Timers were driving a horse and buggy from Belleville to fish for speckled trout, in Squire's Stream, one concession south of the village of Springbrook It was a late June night and very dark Stork delighted in making this drive at night so it was midnight when they approached the left turn to teke them up Boardman's Hill and so over the Oak Hills. Everyone knows it is a heavy drag to get over the height of land. As he pulled on the left rein to direct the horse to make the turn and Dobbin having done so Dr. Clinton burst out with "Thank God, we are over the Oak Hills". Of course they had just started this long climb. I am in the position this morning to say "Thank God I am over the mountains of the State of Pennsylvania, U.S.A." and no "foolin'."

Hard Coal Section of Pa.

Last Spring coming up from Miami, Fla., we stopped over at Forty Fort for two days and learned a great deal about American anthracite coal. We were taken about Wilkes-Barre and Scranton by an official of the D. & H. R.R., our friend Mr. A. R. Swan of Forty Fort. We went under ground at the Loree Breaker viewing these hard coal veins. At the Laflin breaker we were shown the cone washing process whereby this coal from the gigantic Hudson Coal Co. is hoisted many feet up in the air, dumped into a huge cone where sand and water is emptied in, in huge amounts along with the coal which is washed and made free of slate as it goes over many sieves before being shot into the waiting coal cars. Coal floats—rock sinks. One hundred and fifty coal gondolas are loaded from this Laflin breaker daily, 6,000 tons. Nature is queer but generous. Pennsylvania derives its wealth from hard coal. The Lackawanna Valley of the Susquehanna River starts a few miles above Scranton, extends some sixty miles southerly. Below Wilkes-Barre, it is known by the known by the name of the Wyoming Valley. The Valley is not wide at any point, just a few miles at the widest. East or west of this Valley there is no coal just rock if you dig down. As a traveller approaches Harrisburg the Valley widens out into beautiful valley farms. The southern part of the state is given over to mixed farming. Yesterday we drove from winter into summer. Sunshine, weeping willows in green attire, garden truck still fresh and green in the ground—crows feeding in the fields, gloves and heavy jacket discarded. Old Sol shining bright and hot.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

I speak often of mucous colitis because it is probably the commonest abdominal ailment for which physicians are consulted. The outstanding symptoms are more or less pain or distress in abdomen, diarrhoea mostly but sometimes spastic constipation, gas, and considerable mucous comes away in the stool.

Mucous colitis is now considered due to nervousness and emotional disturbances, a tendency which can be inherited just as can hay fever or other allergic ailments.

The persistent diarrhoea, the colicy or spastic pains and the mucous in the stool makes the patient believe that there is something seriously wrong with her bowel—that it is probably badly inflamed and may later develop into cancer. As a matter of fact, these patients do not die of this condition and if they can learn a real philosophy of life, it often passes away.

In speaking of mucous colitis, Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, points out that there is really no "inflammation" of the colon (large intestine) as colitis implies and that if patients really knew this they would be less alarmed and be more free of their symptoms.

"If a patient with a sensitive colon is ever to be really helped, she must be made to realize that she has a pecular nervous system which will cause her discomfort off and on, perhaps for the rest of her days. It will cause the bowel (colon) to get sore whenever she gets excited or upset nervously or when she is very tired or when she is coming down with a cold or perhaps when she gets badly constipated or takes too many laxatives or when she eats some particular food to which she is sensitive (allergic).

If the woman has good sense, she will see then that she must not keep hunting for a complete cure but must settle down to live with her bowel avoiding as far as she can those influences that tend to upset her bowel".

I am handing on this information because of the very large number of individuals who suffer with mucous colitis, most of whom consider it a serious ailment, and also because of the high standing of the physician who gives us this information.

British Tanker Believed Sunk

Laurenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, Nov. 17—(CP—Havas)—A German cruiser sank the British tanker Africa Shell in the Mozambique Channel, crew members said today after landing at a point on the East African coast.

The crew members were quoted in messages reaching here as saying that the cruiser—which was not identified in the report—fired a shell across the tanker's bow to stop her.

A German officer boarded the ship with a squad and after taking off all the ship's provisions ordered the ship's crew to take to its boats. The captain was taken prisoner. When they were clear the tanker was sunk.

Why Not Make Sure?

It may be comforting, particularly in these times, to accept the belief that "what is to be will be." But would it not be wise to review your plans for the future security of your family in the light of present-day conditions . . . just in case.

All of us must realize that war brings many changes—perhaps in military service at home or abroad; perhaps in employment, in business, in family affairs. Now is the time to make absolutely certain that your life insurance will do all that you want it to.

Are you sure that your insurance money will be paid to those you have in mind? Do some of your beneficiaries no longer need as much protection, and others need more?

Do you know that you can probably increase the effectiveness of your present life insurance by anywhere from ten to thirty percent without any additional cost to you?

Do you know how much of your present insurance will give you an income at retirement and what the amount of that income will be?

Many such questions might be asked. Others doubtless will occur to you. A thoroughly trained Canada Life man will gladly answer them for you with absolutely no obligation whatever. And he may acquaint you with other facts which you should know if you are to get the most out of your life insurance. Why not ask him?

The Canada Life Assurance Company,
Toronto, Canada.

I would welcome an opportunity to discuss my present life insurance arrangements.

AT THE BELLE

"The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex."

The Belleville premiere of "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex", co-starring Bette Davis and Errol Flynn, is coming next at the Belle, according to an announcement from the management. The Warner Bros. production, filmed in Technicolor, has been hailed by critics who viewed it at the recent Hollywood world premerie as the season's most impressive offering, worthy to take its place with the finest screen achievements of all time.

Telling a highly dramatic and essentially human story against the magnificent pageantry of the Elizabethan court, "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" deals with one great love in the life of England's most famous queen. The role of Elizabeth is one which Miss Davis, universally acknowledged to be the screen's greatest dramatic actress, was destined to play, and according to advance reports, she is every inch and fibre the Queen! "The Academy may as well start shining up another award for Bette. She'll get it again for her magnificent, awe-inspiring portrayal", wrote the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express.

Side by side and pace by pace with her, strides Errol lynn as Lord Essex. It is the type of role precisely suited to the handsome Irishman—that of a dashing soldier, victorious in defeat, irresistible in all adventures of the heart, the hero of the populace—truly a man among men.

The story opens with the return of Essex from a victory over the Spaniards at Cadiz. But instead of receiving a royal welcome from his Queen, he is upbraided by Elizabeth for not capturing the Spanish gold. Furious and hurt, he retires to his country castle. An Irish rebellion is the excuse Elizabeth uses to get him back to court, but hostile courtiers, constantly plotting to rid themselves of the Queen's favorite, trick him into taking charge of the punitive army. Their plots against him prevent his receiving adequate supplies in Ireland, and his expedition fails. Angered because he believes the Queen has deliberately ignored him and his cause, he rides to the palace with his army to seize the throne; but his love for Elizabeth re-asserts itself and he abandons the revolt. Whereupon Elizabeth, once again the Queen, condemns him to the block for treason.

The supporting cast includes such names as Vincent Price, who plays the role of Sir Walter Raleigh, bitter rival of Essex; Olivia De Havilland as Lady Penelope Gray, lady-in-waiting to Elizabeth, and hopelessly in love with Essex; Donald Crisp as Francis Bacon, Essex' confidante and advisor; and Henry Stephenson, Henry Dariell, James Stephenson, Alan Hale, Ralph Forbes and hundreds of others.

"Sioux Me", a funny comicolor cartoon and the popular Belle World News Events, will be presented on the same program, on the week-end, a thrilling chapter of "Scouts to the Rescue" will be exhibited.

Carole Lombard Leaving.

Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis are featured in the gripping romantic drama "In Name Only", now at the Belle, with Joe Penner and Betty Grable in the funny comedy "The Day the Bookies Wept," "Information Please" based on the Radio show will also be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"BEWARE SPOOKS"

Fun is fun and Joe E. Brown is currently demonstrating at the McCarthy Theatre that he is one of the world's funniest. As an officer of the law in "Columbia's "Beware Spooks!", which opened yesterday, the mommoth-mawed mountebank provides an outstanding performance in an exceptionally well-written story. A brilliant cast and an ingeniously laugh-haunted setting provide further reason for the superlatives which must be lavished upon "Beware Spooks!"

Brown is introduced as a rookie cop, son of a famous father whose record has become traditional on the force. Because of kindliness, stupidity and carelessness, he becomes the scapegoat in a series of situations and perforce he is transferred to every outlying precinct in New York City. When he eventually allows the escape of a dangerous and wanted desperado, he is summarily dismissed.

This dismissal affords Brown, who has recently been married, his first opportunity for a honeymoon. The honeymoon, because of financial stringencies, is slated for Coney Island. At the famous beach resort, the ex-cop crosses the trail of the escaped criminal. In as weird and amazing a battle as the screen has ever witnessed, the blacklisted police officer and the public enemy practically demolish the fun house in desperate hand-to-hand combat.

Mary Carlisle, as the young bride, slightly daffy and completely bewildered, adds a piquant flavor to the film which enhances its innately humorous situations.

Come early and see "Beware Spooks"', it's the funniest picture you've ever seen. It will make you laugh and howl for 70 long minutes. On the same program as a second feature presentation "Konga" featuring Fred Stone, Rochelle Hudson and Richard Fiske, is an excellent action-packed outdoor adventure story and adds plenty of contrast to the comedy of "Beware Spooks."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Undercover Doctor"

Another dramatic episode adapted from the exciting true-to-life J. Edgar Hoover book, "Persons in Hiding", forms the basis of the thrilling crime film, "Undercover Doctor" which is now playing at the Capitol theatre.

The Paramount picture traces the career of a brilliant but weak-willed surgeon who can't make the grade because of his fondness for liquor. His nurse, instead of acknowledging her love for him, leaves him, hoping that he will be spurred on to new efforts. Unfortunately, the surgeon is called upon an emergency case which becomes a turning point in his life for the man he saves is a notorious gunman hunted by the nation's police. The gangsters convince the surgeon that they need a good undercover doctor to take care of them after their frequent sorties with the law.

Buys Office

With his ill-gotten gains, the doctor establishes an expensive office in a swanky section of the city and soon becomes an outstanding member of the community. His illegitimate activities begin to pall on him and he decides to quit his crooked associates. But he has become too deeply involved: The G-Men catch up with him when his nurse tips off the Bureau of Investigation. She had hoped that by trapping the gang, the doctor would have been freed from his evil associates. Her plans go awry when the police find several incriminating clues at the hide-out.

Paramount has assembled an unusually fine cast to interpret the dramatic characterizations of the story. Under Louis King's direction the picture's values are immensely enhanced. Lloyd Nolan, capable character actor, gives a popular and convincing conception of a G-Man.

Screen Find Debuts

Janice Logan, Paramount's most recent screen discovery, makes her film debut as the nurse to J. Carrol Naish who carries off an excellent characterization as the undercover doctor. Heather Angel makes an appropriate socialite, engaged to the society surgeon. Broderick Crawford paints a robust portrait of a hard-boiled, sentimental killer. Robert Wilcox is a competent associate to Nolan. "Undercover Doctor" is undoubtedly one of the season's better crime melodramas.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, November 18
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

RATHER adverse conditions prevail on this day, according to the auguries of the ruling planetary aspects. There may be sudden and disagreeable upsets, with friction, inharmony or quarrels with superiors, strangers or others of erratic temperament. Generally restive, unsettled and turbulent conditions are indicated, and these may be best side-stepped by close attention to rigid details of business, employment or hard work, which hold promise or recognition and suitable reward. Patience and perseverance win the day.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of sudden upheavals or turbulence, coming with whirlwind velocity and ending in quite unforeseen and possibly disagreeable denouements. Avoid disputes, friction with superiors, employers and strangers, and shun all manner of eccentric or revolutionay indulgences. Patience, hard work, close application may help in mitigating adverse and regrettable circumstances. Let prudence and restraint hold sway with the intuitions a guiding factor.

A child born on this day may be studious, industrious and earnest despite erratic, restless and ill-tempered moods or outbursts. It may be fond of sudden moves, change and adventure.

Madoc

Madoc—The W.M.S. of Trinity United Church met for their November meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the church rooms, with a fair attendance of members and visitors.

The leader, Mrs. A. H. Corrigal introduced the devotional period, the theme of which was "Our Response to God's Missionary Purpose."

The President, Mrs. F. Dafoe, with the Secretary, Mrs. Earl Burnside, assisting, conducted briefly the items of business. A grateful note of acknowledgement was received from Mrs. Reddick concerning the June bale. Reports were received with interest from the various secretaries showing keen interest in all activities and favorable progress financially. A prayer by Mrs. George Ferguson preceded an informal talk by Rev. A. Poulter on the work of Jonah. The pleading of the prophet with the people of Israel to carry out God's missionary purpose and thus depart from the bitterness of race hatred and narrow nationalism was clearly borne out.

The second chapter of the study book "Moving Millions" by Winifred Thomas, dealing with the arduous task of the missionary in India, in the breaking down of the caste system and the christianising of the untouchables was interesting synopsized by Mrs. S. S. Ashley.

With the Rev. A. Poulter presiding, the election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Manley Fox; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. A. Poulter; 2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. F. Dafoe; 3rd Vice Pres., Mrs. T. E. Burnside; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Leslie Ashley; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. S. S. Ashley; Treasurer, Mrs. Fred Fleming; Pianists, Mrs. L. Ashley, Mrs. R. C. Fair; Auditors, Mrs. Geo. Ferguson, Mrs. E. Demorest; Secretaries of the Departments, Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. F. Dafoe; Temperance and Christian Citizenship, Mrs. R. Wickham; Community Friendship and Associate Helpers, Mrs. A. H. Corrigal; Peace, Mrs. H. McMechan and Mrs. R. C. Fair; Literature, Mrs. Grace Lowery; Supply, Mrs. S. S. Ashley; Press, Mrs. L. Ashley.

Following the pronouncing of the Doxology a social time was spent with Mrs. Dafoe acting as hostess.

The Women's Institute of Madoc branch held a very successful euchre on Wednesday evening in St. John's Guild Hall. Mrs. Allen Burris and Mr. Govier were successful in winning the prizes. The proceeds of the evening will be used for war work.

6 TORONTO MEN UP FOR FRAUD

Toronto, Nov. 17—(CP)—Six Toronto men face charges today of conspiracy to defraud in various automobile accident claim settlements during the past five months. They are free on bail of $2,000 each.

The six, arrested late yesterday and last night, are W. B. Coatts and Grover Leyland, insurance agents; G. Deans Buchan and C. Wallace Pitt, insurance adjustors and Homer A. Newall and H. S. Wegg, K.C., lawyers.

Acting on instructions of Attorney-General Gordon Conant, City and Provincial Police took the men into custody on charges of conspiring to induce claimants to accept in settlement of claims smaller sums of money than they might otherwise have obtained through legal redress.

Coincident with the arrests, Hartley D. McNairn, Ontario Superintendent of Insurance, said he had notified Buchan, Pitt and Leyland that their licenses had been suspended. At the same time he notified the Provincial Service Agency Ltd., that its license and that of its officers, Coatts and Miss Louise Cain, "is terminated pending the lifting of such suspension."

"The prosecutions now pending are no reflection upon insurance companies generally," Mr. Conant said. "Anything likely to disturb business or confidence in our financial institutions should be avoided, particualarly in these troublous times."

RED CROSS

$408,000 For Materials Being Made Into Supplies by Canadian Women— Wartime Program Budget of $2,083,000 Outlined by Chairman Sumerville

Toronto, Nov. 17—Expenditures to date of $408,000 for materials being made into supplies by Canadian women, an estimated cost of $1,050,000 for further materials during the next ten months and a total wartime program of $2,083,000 are highlights of the three million-dollar budget outlined today by Norman Sommerville, K. C., chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Both peace-time and war work are included in the summary which provides $250,000 for the construction and equipment of No. 1 Canadian Base Hospital at Taplow, Buckinghamshire, England; $300,000 for emergencies such as assistance to the British Red Cross along the lines followed in the last war, and for supplementary services to the Army Medical Corps, and $950,000 for the normal peace services rendered by the Red Cross in Canada. The peace-time expenditures ordinarily average, it was explained, $1,146,500 a year.

Administrative Cost Only $75,000

Total administrative costs are listed at $75,000, inclusive of national, provincial and branch organizations. This low figure, Mr. Sommerville explained, was achieved only because of the voluntary services given Red Cross by outstanding executives who directed all activities. For instance, he said, the best wool and textile experts in Canada had bought the society's materials, totalling $408,000, at an average of 19 per cent. below market prices because of their knowledge of sources and because of the goodwill of manufacturers.

Details of the budget provide $450,000 for the forty-three outpost hospitals which treated 46,671 patients in outlying areas last year with a staff of 118 nurses; $165,000 for assistance to veterans of the last war, not inclusive of the official British United Services Fund handled in Canada by the Red Cross; $100,000 for general and sickness relief as requested by municipal and provincial authorities; $25,000 for home nursing, visiting housekeepers and nutrition services (which have increased five-fold in the past two months); $50,000 for Junior Red Cross work among the 425,000 child members in Canada; and $75,000 for crippled children's work which last year treated and fitted 1,733 children.

Voluntary Effort Invaluable

"The most important item cannot be included in the budget," stated Mr. Sommerville, "because it cannot be purchased. It is the voluntary effort which converts materials into supplies worth about three times their cost to Red Cross and the authorities. Any effort to acquire these supplies by means other than voluntary work would increase the cost tremendously.

"The same principle applies with greater force in wartime," he continued. "In addition to providing a means for men and women to devote their time and energies in service to country, this means of supplementing government services achieves results far below an amount at which they could be bought. And it covers fields such as civilian evacuation and disaster, particularly important in modern warfare, to which governmental attention cannot adequately be given during the conduct of a war.

Red Cross Supplements Services Provided by Govt.

"It must be realized that the Red Cross supplements the services provided by the government. The authorities provide the skilled medical attention, but warfare creates sudden need of tremendous quantities of materials. The Red Cross supplements these quantities of supplies, equipment and clothing, and does it at a cost so low because it is the channel through which goodwill, gratitude and charity flow. And because experience has taught that waste must be avoided, nothing is produced until the style and pattern has been officially approved by the Red Cross committee of wartime surgeons and nurses, and by official sources.

"The same factor applies in the case of hospitals," added Mr. Sommerville. "Canada's first hospital abroad has brought to bear the abilities of such men as Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and Sir Edward Peacock who are in charge of every detail. Through them, the advice of the British medical authorities of the War Office were obtained. Thus a completed hospital will be handed over to the medical corps, ready for operation.

"No contribution or service is undertaken with respect to the forces except on request or approval by the authorities,' Mr. Sommerville stated. "With their co-operation, stores are assembled at home and abroad, and these stores are indented upon for the medical supplies, surgical needs or wearing apparel that are needed from time to time."

Soap Stick Effective in Relieving Baby's Constipation

About the simplest remedy for baby's contipation is a soap stick. Of course this should not be resorted to until changes have been made in the child's food to see if diet will correct the condition.

As the name implies, the soap stick is merely a piece of soap cut from a bar and shaped into a cylinder about on inch and a half long and the diameter of a lead pencil. Care should be taken to see that all the corners are rounded and that there are no sharp places to injure the child.

This soap stick is inserted in the baby's rectum and the diaper is bound firmly in place so that the stick cannot come out. Then put the child to bed. At the end of twenty minutes the desired result will be effected.

The great value of the soap stick lies in the fact that it usually gets results in a hurry; that it is cheap and that anyone can attend to it. For ease in inserting, the stick may be sharpened slightly at one end. However there must not be a point to it otherwise it might do injury to the delicate membranes inside the baby's rectum.

The operation is often made easier by the application of vaseline or some lubricating cream to the rectum before the soap stick is inserted. This isn't often necessary, however, for the soap stick itself supplies lubrication.

One mustn't get the idea, however, that because the soap stick is quick, effective and cheap that it can be used every day. It works on the principle that when the rectum is distended here is a great tendency on the part of the body to empty it. It also follows that any child who had a soap stick once or twice a day for a period of weeks would likely lose this tendency to evacuate his bowels. The body would just accustom itself to the soap stick, and it would make no great effort to expel it. If this happened, the efficacy of the remedy would be gone.

Enemas are given to a great many children who suffer from constipation. For the ordinary case they are more difficult to give than the soap stick, and as a rule they aren't a bit more successful. Sometimes however, enemas are very necessary.

An enema, as I'm sure you all know, is an administration of fluid into the rectum which distends the bowel in the same manner as the soap stick, only to a greater degree The enema is used frequently in the relief of colic and distension, usually with a good deal of success.

For the administration of an enema to a small baby under the age of six months, there are special type of rubber bulbs which can be obtained at any drug store. These are effective and safe. I always advise against the use of an enema bag for small children. They may be all right for older children and adults, but if the bag is held too high while the baby is getting an enema there might be too much pressure, with the result that too much of the enema fluid would be introduced into the child. This over-extension of the bowel in babies is unwise as well as unnecessary, especially when the special rubber bulbs I spoke of before are inexpensive.

Even with an older child, when an enema bag is used it should not be raised more than two or three feet above the child.

Wilkinson and Mrs. P. J. Lynch. Mrs. Dan Donoghue was treasurer for the tea. Mrs. J. E. Logan was convener for the bridge and the following ladies arranged tables in their homes, later bringing their guests on for tea: Mrs. A. Black, Mrs. B. Bottum, Mrs. G. Brearley, Mrs. James Boyle, Mrs. A. Bremner. Mrs. W. Doyle, Mrs. P. Doran, Miss K. Dolan, Mrs. R. A. Flynn, Mrs. J. Grant, Mrs. F. Hudon, Mrs. E. G. Kennedy, Mrs. J. Kerby, Mrs. F. Lazier, Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Mrs. D. H. Marshall, Mrs. T. Morrell, Miss E. McMahon, Mrs. B. McQuaid, Mrs. R. Richards, Mrs. J. B. Ryan.

A delightful afternoon tea was held yesterday at Emmanuel Church Rectory under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Church. Mrs. S. R. Foreman, Mrs. W. Coles and Mrs. E. Rowsome welcomed the many guests. The beautifully appointed tea table was centred with bronze chrysanthemums and white tapers. Mrs. George Marshall poured tea and Mrs. A. Carmichael and Mrs. S. Pomeroy served. Mrs. James Reid, Mrs. Everett Bell and Mrs. Butcher also assisted. Mrs. T. Hallam and Miss Wilder were in charge of the home-cooking and Mrs. P. Gymer was in charge of the fancy work table. Mrs. Weeso was treasurer for the afternoon.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Bride Hopes to Make Garden Profitable

Dear Miss Fairfax

We've been married just two months. My husband has a lovely old place which has been in his family for nearly a hundred years. But it's terribly run down. Some paint, bright chintz and a little home carpentry, all of which we will do ourselves will help along the house. But I'd love to make a little money from an old flower garden pretty well gone to pieces.

There are some huge rose bushes, peonies, iris, chrysanthemums and other perennials. I have called on two or three florists in a nearby city, and they are willing to buy from me if my flowers are up to par. I've always had a garden and love growing things, but I want to make this the biggest, best and most successful garden for miles around. Beginning with next summer I want to have an open air tea-room.

I know something about soil and cultivation, but would like to get the latest advice. A friend told me to write to you saying that among other things you're a practical gardener,

Thrifty Bride.

I can't imagine a happier beginning for young married people than to start with a house such as you describe and have a garden as well. As you've tried your hand at growing things you know there is plenty of hard work involved before a wilderness will blossom as the rose—but it's such fun, and so healthful and thrilling.

Delphinium always finds a ready market,—the English hybrid or "hollyhock" type especially; daffodils and tulips in the early spring are good sellers and peonies around Decoration Day.

My attention has just been called to a splendid new garden book by Louise and James Bush-Brown. It covers every bit of needful knowledge from sub-soil up, and tells how to grow flowers, shrubs, fruit and vegetables, cures for diseases, pests and insects.

If you're going in for gardening seriously it will pay you to consult this volume.

Birthday Present Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I wrote you at least a week ago and have found no answer to my letter in your column and am so afraid Jack's birthday will come around before I hear from you. Shall I give him an expensive present? We're not engaged. Or shall I write him a note or send him a card? He's very find of reading. He has made me several presents, such as book and candy.

Undecided

Even if this misses Jack's birthday and he has given you presents, you may send him books, something in leather for his desk, handkerchiefs, a magazine subscription. Men have been known even to enjoy a box of candy immensely. If you're sure of his preference you can make it neckties.

What Makes a Gentleman?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Two years ago my girl friends and I went around with a crowd whose only idea of amusement was to turn out the lights and pet. We never went in for what is known a heavy petting, and eventually we broke away from this crowd. And we don't see them any more.

But there are still a few of the boys who talks about us and the lights-out pet parties. One young man is the prize exaggerator, and discusses us in a way that is decidedly cheap. What can we do, if anything, to stop this talk?

Seventeen

Gentlemen do not gossip or talk maliciously about girls, and a man who does put himself outside the pale of good breeding.

As a certain humorist has said of this type of man, like the skunk, he carries his own warning. Why worry about skunks, beyond avoiding them?

For Larger Women

By Prunella Wood

Two views of a frock which enhances the larger woman without any give-away camouflage details are sketched here today. Just as pretty in a size 12 as a size 46, the frock sums up to a good basic designing, we would say. It is made in crepe, lovely in various colors fit for a fur coat, and although it is complete with a necklace bib of filligree set with amethyst colored stones, one may detach this decor and wear any other that suits the fancy.

Easy sleeves, with fullness both at shoulders and elbows, are becoming, and the skirt, while looking full of back fullness, nevertheless has a slick fit. Lines are long, silhouette draped, but there are no fluttering capelets or surplice devices to cozen the large figure with patent disguise.

WEDDINGS

LOGIE—HUBBARD

Christ Church Cathedral in Fredericton, N.B., was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock when Right Rev. W. H. Moorhead, Bishop of Fredericton, assisted by Rev. R. S. Morissey, united in marriage Miss Marian Frances Hubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilmot Hubbard of Burton, N.B., and Mr. William Alexander Logie of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Logie, of Belleville, Ontario.

The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Kydd, of Fredericton, and Mr. Paul Gorham of Fredericton, was Mr. Logie's groomsman's The ushers were Mr. Fred Hubbard, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gerald Hubbard her cousin, and Mr. Dick Logie, a brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was met at the entrance to the Cathedral by the choir which preceded her to the chancel singing the Wedding Hymn "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden". During the signing of the register Miss Marcelle Gorham played Shubert's "Ave Maria', as a violin solo, and later the choir sang "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white net having a full skirt and bolero jacket made entirely of rows of ruffles Her three quarter length veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Kydd was wearing a dress of wine velvet fashioned with a bolero jacket smocked at the shoulders and a wine velvet hat having a bustle back. Her bouquet was of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Hubbard, mother of the bride wore black sheer over tafetta, floor length having a bolero jacket. Her hat was a black French model and her corsage was of orchids. Mrs. Logie, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in blue lace with a wine hat and accessories.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at Castle Hall, Loyalist Building, Fredericton, where the decorations were in the U.N.B., colors red and black, and were carried out also with palms and standards of cut flowers.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Logie left on a trip to Quebec City and on their return will reside in Montreal. For travelling the bride wore a navy blue tailored suit and navy blue accessories. The bride is a graduate of Netherwood School in Rothesay and received her B.A. degree from the University of New Brunswick. The groom is a graduate of the U.N.B. in electrical engineering, receiving the degree of B.Sc. Included among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Logie of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. D. King Hazen, Miss Ruth Allison, Miss Norma Linton and Miss Mary Akerly, of Saint John; Mrs. W. Malcolm Mackay, Mr. and Mrs Hugh Mackay, and Miss Portia Mackenzie of Rothesay, and Miss G. Helen Mowat of St. Andrews.

KIKES—ZAKOS

White chrysanthemums and ferns made a lovely setting for the wedding at five o'clock last evening of Helen, daughter of Mrs. Zakos and the late George Zakos, and Mr. George John Kikes, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kikes, the ceremony taking place at the home of the groom, 143 William Street. Rev. E. Demourlis of Ottawa, officiated.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Jim Zakos, wore a beautiful gown of white silk net over taffeta, fashioned in full bouffant style, with a fitted bodice in bolero effect. Touches of gold embroidery and a gold belt ornamented the dress. Her tulle veil fell in graceful folds from a coronet, ending in a slight train effect. The bride's bouquet was of American beauty roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Bessie Kikes, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a lovely cerise chiffon, with matching turban. She carried Talisman roses.

Miss Dena Pappas, was junior bridesmaid and Miss Diamando Pappas was flower girl. Both wore pretty frocks of pink net over taffeta and carried roses.

Mr. Sam Pappas was groomsman.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Mrs. Zakos, mother of the bride, wore black velvet with corsage of roses and Mrs. Kikes, mother of the groom, was attired in navy blue chiffon with corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kikes left on a motor trip, the bride travelling in a mulberry velvet dress, matching hat, gray broadtail coat with corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Upon their return they will reside in Trenton, where the groom is going in business.

Out of town guests included Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karis, Mr. George Palavous, Mr. Nick Speal. Gregory Sakell, (the bride's godfather), all of Kingston.

REPPARD—CREIGHTON

The marriage of Sarah Creighton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Creighton of Picton, to Sgt. J W. Reppard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reppard of Belleville, took place at the Presbyterian manse, Belleville, with Rev. J. W. Walker officiating, on Wednesday evening. The bride wore a dress of rose taffeta, grey fur trimmed coat and matching accessories. She was attended by her sister, Miss Winnifred Creighton, wearing a mauve frock, wine colored fur-trimmed coat and matching hat. The best man was Corporal A. Mountenay.

A reception for twenty-four guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. Following a short honeymoon, Sgt. and Mrs. Reppard will reside in Picton, the groom being a member of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

PECK—WILLIAMSON

A quiet, but pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized Wednesday, November the fifteenth, at the bride's home, when Ruth May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williamson, Carrying Place, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. James Beuford Peck, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peck.

Under an arch of cedar boughs and streamers, with potted flowers for a background, the ceremony was performed by Rev. Boomhour, pastor of Albury United Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a street-length frock of teal blue crepe with hat to match. Her corsage consisted of Talisman roses and lily of the valley.

For travelling the bride wore a teal blue coat with grey fur trimming, blue hat with black accessories and her corsage.

An "Apple" for The Teacher

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

We parents must expect to find some things at school we do not like, for teachers, like parents, are human beings. We may, however, have illusions, thanks to our lack of knowledge of our own imagination. We need to keep perspective. Certainly we can't afford to close our eyes to the many good things happening at school, and the many wonderful teachers there.

We take for granted what is best in our loved ones at home; we don't talk a lot about what is worst in them. That should be our attiture toward teachers and other school officials. We would act far more intelligently and we would do more to make our children happy and successful at school, if we were to cultivate the habit of talking more about the splendid teachers and the many good things occurring at the school.

We might well, indeed, express our appreciation of the school to the teachers and principal face to face. To do so will not only heighten the morale of our children and their teachers, but our own also.

Perhaps I might greatly improve my own attitude in reference to the schools. While I certainly have been sympathetic toward the teachers, my quarrels with certain philosophers of education might have seemed at times to be destructive. I think I had better turn my own eyes more upon the constructive items in our school development, and on the great personalities among our teachers.

More and more letters are coming to me from teachers. And what inspiring letters most of them are! Having spent many years at teacher training and having taught in every grade from the first to the graduate school, inclusive, I am keenly interested in teachers and school problems. I speak before a good many thousand teachers every year.

In so many of these letters from teachers I see great and lovely souls all wrapped up in their children—some of them too conscientious—eagerly endeavoring to find out how to do more for these personalities at school and how to induce the parents of these children to create a more wholesome atmosphere for them at home.

Of course, there are some teachers who merely watch the clock and draw their salary. But the rank and file of teachers, as I know them, are exceedingly unselfish in their outlook. In what other profession can we find more persons who live their lives for others? If you have not said a good word that is deserving to the teacher of your child, I hope you do so soon.

Call Your Closets to Order

Organizing our closets is like organising our budgets. We have just so much space to our credit; and we have just so many obligations to meet with the given space. Usually it avails us little to moan for "more money" for our budgets, "more space" for our closets. But if we plan wisely with what we have, our closets, like our budgets, can be made to yield 100 cents to a dollar.

In copy-book words, "A place for everything, and everything in its place", must be our system with closets. We are given the closet space. We can achieve the maximum of orderly closet capacity. A garment bracket, for example, will compactly occupy that unused space at the side. All those ties, now in chaos, can be arranged on a tie rack. Those shoes, now topsy-turvy on the floor, can be "filed" in shoe racks. Hats can be allocated to hat racks or boxes in which we can see the hats. Method can come out of madness!

Besides having the charm of orderliness and convenience, our closets can have charm in color, design, appointments. Today we should think of a closet as part of the room it services. It can match the room color, or it can be an effective harmonizing shade. A flowered or striped wallpaper makes a becoming background for clothes. Then, to complete an ensemble to our taste, such accessories as covered hangers and shoe trees, shoe pads, smart shelf-edgings, can add individually and personality.

Who Signs First?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Please tell me the proper way to sign any greeting card? I have been corrected several times because the cards carried my name first, for instance, Mary and John and I was told that the cards should have read John and Mary

Which is correct?

Yours very truly
Mrs. Mary Smith,

Those who have corrected you probably take the stand—and it is certainly justified—that it is courteous for the person who signs the cards to sign his or her name last. However, in spite of this point of view the custom prevails that a woman, signing greeting cards for her husband and herself, signs her name first.

And, while we are on the subject of a married woman's signature, would you mind if I suggest the correct form of signature, to your letter to me, or to anyone else who does not know your formal married name? The form of signature that you used in your letter to me is never correct; that is, it is not correct for a social letter, or for a business letter.

This is the correct form:

Very truly yours.
Mary Brown Smith
(Mrs. John Smith)

"My Back is Killing Me"

It is said that more people suffer from backache than from any other pains or aches. When the back aches the cause is usually traced to poisons in the blood as the result of defective kidney action.

Relief can be obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills because they help to arouse the activity of the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

The combined action of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on the liver, kidneys and bowels is a feature which makes this medicine so unique and entirely different to other kidney medicines. It is well to keep this in mind when selecting treatment, for naturally this feature accounts for the long success of this medicine.

Roslin

Roslin—The Young People of Foxboro Presbyterian Church presented a drama "The Road to the City" in the Presbyterian Church, Roslin, on Tuesday evening, November 14th.

The members of the cast played their parts in their usual excellent style before a large and appreciative audience.

The plot of the play was amusing and thrilling, presenting a powerful argument against the deceptive lure which the road to the city holds out to rural young people.

Characters

Robert Darnell, a country physician, Kenneth Peacock.

Jet Sanderson, (at the crossroads. Bright and vivacious in Act one; sad and disillusioned in Acts two and three), Muriel Bartlett.

Toto Lee, (Her cousin, a lively mischievous girl, awfully in love with Jud, but wouldn't "let on" for the world)—Mrs. Harold Longwell.

Lilly Morton, (a girl from the city. Very gushy and insincere, jealous and suspicious, in love with Richard, jealous of Jet)—Ruby Kelly.

Mrs. Sanderson, (Jet's widowed mother, a sweet motherly country woman),—Verna Peacock.

Marie, (a lady's maid), —Nellie Bell.

Mr. Grant Longwell and Rev. Mr. Macdonald entertained between acts.

After the play the ladies of the church served sandwiches, pie and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bunnett and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Howard entertained a large number of their relatives, friends and neighbours at a party in the Roslin Hall on Tuesday evening.

From 1914 to 1918 the Canadian Red Cross provided and equipped scores of ambulances for overseas service.

Again the Canadian Red Cross must build and equip several hospitals in England and France to care for our sick and wounded. Six overseas hospitals were maintained by the Canadian Red Cross in the last war.

X-Ray equipment, and thousands of cases of surgical supplies and dressings, must be provided to the Red Cross hospitals in England and France throughout the period of the war.

The Canadian Red Cross must be ready to send thousands of packages of socks, cigarettes, candy and comforts to the Canadian troops. Food, medical supplies, books, clothing and tobacco must be sent to Canadian prisoners of war.

THE NEED IS URGENT

The need is urgent even now. The call again goes forth from the Canadian Red Cross. You are asked to give big-heartedly, to give willingly, to give enthusiastically, to give quickly. The work of equipping hospitals for Canadian heroes in England and France must be started at once in preparation for the suffering which is to come. Our delay will be measured in human agony. Nurses and ambulances must be waiting. Surgical supplies, X-ray equipment, bandages and countless other necessities must be on hand. Not a moment can be lost, lest we fail those who will not fail us.

Here is a great work in which we all can share. Thousands of lives will be saved and untold suffering will be avoided if only we are prepared. In the last war Canada gave nobly of herself in humanity's name. Without coercion, without the painful domination of a barbaric government, Canada gave a generous offering in recognition of her debt to those who so nobly represented her in the battle for liberty.

Once again has come the opportunity to display our devotion to duty. There is only one answer. We must be prepared. We must not fail. We cannot all go overseas, but we can at least be ready to help those who do—we dare not forget that they will be fighting for us.

Let us be watchful and waiting to save life, to alleviate pain, to give comfort. We have a definite part to play. Be proud to help those who make the greater sacrifice.

A corps of voluntary workers will make a canvass of as many people as possible during this drive. If one of these workers should fail to get in touch with you, please send your contribution to your local Red Cross branch. Give big-heartedly.

LET SUMMER'S WISH BE WINTER'S GUIDE

REMEMBER last Summer when the "Limited" went by with its fresh, cool interior comfortably air-conditioned and you wished you were travelling on it! Let this—last Summer's wish, be your guide in buying a battery today.

To ensure the unfailing operation of air-conditioning and car lighting, as well as for many other vital services, Canadian railways rely upon Exide batteries because they know from long experience and exhaustive tests that they are dependable.

There is an Exide battery built to suit your individual requirements and it is made by the same company to just as exacting specifications and with the same careful workmanship as are the batteries selected by railroad engineers, men who know batteries and have the testing equipment to determine their TRUE worth. What other battery can put such absolute proof of dependability before you!

Go to the Exide dealer in your community. You will know him by the familiar Exide dealer sign he displays. Ask him about the Exide Hycap, an extra high capacity battery for cars doing a lot of starting or equipped with heaters, defrosters or radios. This dealer has been carefully selected to give you honest, dependable service. Let the Exide dealer sign be your guide to battery satisfaction.

TOM C. LOCKWOOD NAMED CONTROLLER

Ottawa, Nov. 16—(CP)— Transport Minister Howe stated today that with the power of regulating traffic possessed by his department in the National Harbors Board and in the newly appointed Transport Controller, there should be no difficulty in avoiding congestion of Canadian war commodity movements or congestion of United States commodities moving through Canadian ports.

The Minister confirmed the selection of T. C. Lockwood, Montreal shipping executive, as first Transport Controller.

Tom C. Lockwood is a native of Brighton, Ontario and entered the employ of the C. N. R. immediately on leaving High School. He is well known in this district.

WOMAN KILLED IN COLLISION

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP) — Mrs. James Clarkson, 24, of Little Britain, was killed last night when a car driven by her husband collided with a team of horses and a wagon, five miles southwest of Little Britain. Her husband escaped injury. Lesie Harrison, Little Britain, driver of the wagon, was shaken and bruised. One of the horses was killed.

HEATING HINTS
by James Stewart

BUILDING a fire is a very simple job but, as in everything else, there is a right and wrong way of doing it. From my experience, the quickest and easiest way to light a fire is this:

First of all, if there is a layer of ashes on the grates, leave it there. About two inches of ashes on the grates help a lot.

Then spread about two inches of coal uniformly over the ashes.

Be sure that the Turn Damper in the smoke-pipe and the Ashpit Damper are wide open and the Check Damper closed. This will create the strong draft which is needed to ignite the fire.

Now light the kindling and when it is burning freely, slowly add more coal. The kindling will ignite the fresh coal both above and below it, and you can then add more coal and thus quickly build up a good deep fire.

Occasionally you may find, when the kindling wood begins to burn, that smoke starts coming out through the crevices around the furnace doors. This is due to the fact that the chimney, being cold, does not provide sufficient draft to carry off the smoke. This condition can be quickly remedied by opening wide the slide in the fire door—or by partially or entirely closing the ashpit damper—or by a combination of the two. (1)

Argonauts, Bombers Enter Crucial Playoffs With Several Members on the Injured List

Jim Farmer And Art West of Argos Not Likely to Play in Ottawa

SARNIA QUITE FIT

Winnipeg Bombers to Enter Fray at Calgary With Four on Sidelines

(By Jack Calder, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Look out for the lion when he's wounded and look out for the great football clubs when injuries seem to have silenced their roars.

Toronto Argonauts and the team they have beaten in the Dominion finals of the last two years, Winnipeg Blue Bombers, will lope into the lairs of dangerous opponents tomorrow for crucial playoff tests. Some of the strength seems to be gone from their lineups, but these teams have risen up before when the odds appeared against them.

Four May Be Out

The Bombers will end their western interprovinical union finals with the rampaging Bronks at Calgary and four first-string players are so badly injured none may start. In the opener of the total points round at Winnipeg last week Calgary scored a 13-7 victory.

Chunky Jimmy Farmer will be missing from the Argonauts' array when they open the total-points finals for the big four championship with the Rough Riders at Ottawa. Farmer's absence and the game leg that Art West is toting will take much of the punch from the double blue's attack.

The resourcefulness of the Argos and the Bombers, though, seldom has known bounds in the last two seasons. There are enough punches left in the Bombers to score a quick converted touchdown and tie the round with Calgary. The Argos overwhelmed the Riders when they went to Ottawa as underdogs during the schedule.

Game a Toss-Up

Montreal Westmounts and the Imperials are alive and well for their opening of the Ontario Union Finals at Sarnia and on the surface their total-points round looks to be a toss-up. The Westmounts topped the league during the schedule but the Imps, who have won the title the last eight years, have precedent behind them and a great young kicker in Hank Galloway with them.

Manager Joe Ryan of the Bombers at least claims he isn't dismayed at the prospect of meeting Calgary without backfielders Art Stevenson, Bill Boivin and Wayne Sheley and outside wing Bud Marquardt. He recalls that "we proved during the regular season that we can get points against Calgary when we really need them."

Dick Haughian, young coach of the Bronks, thinks the Bombers already are calling on some of their resources. He says all the Winnipeg talk about injuries is "designed to put us off balance" and he's preparing Calgary for a tussle with a full-strength Bomber team.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

GORD DRILLON
Toronto Maple Leafs

By Central Press Canadian

Three autumns ago Conny Smythe turned into the National league ice lanes a couple of youngsters who proceeded to burn up the league, Syl Apps and Gord Drillon. Apps won the Calder trophy as the years best rookie for the 1936-37 season, and in second place was Drillon, the party we're discussing today. Gordie was born 23 years ago at Moncton, N.B., and thus has become known to some extent as the "Pride of the Maritimes". And no native of the Atlantic seaboard could resent that. In his second year under hockey's big tent, Drillon scored 26 goals, was credited with the same number of assists, and wound up as N.H.L. scoring champion for the season. He tied with the Rangers' Cecil Dillon for right wing on the Canadian Press all-star team, and last year, despite a slump from his 1937-38 performance, was given the mythical right wing post alone. He's replaced Chuck Conacher as the Leafs' "Big Bomber", and, like his predecessor, he will probably never go into the records as one of the game's best back checkers. But when he gets that puck around the nets—look out!

BILLY CONN LAYS TITLE ON LINE

Meets Gus Lesnevich in Madison Square Garden For Middleweight Title

New York, Nov. 17—(AP)—Handsome is as handsome does—and in this case "handsome" (in the person of Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh Adonis) should do very well for himself.

For Billy is an overwhelming favorite as he lays his light-heavyweight title on the line tonight for the second time in four months against Gus Lesnevich, the rugged Cliffside, N.J. scraper in a Madison Square Garden Show.

The fight is Conn's second defence of his title since he won it from Melio Bettina last July 13 in the same ring. Billy retained the title in a return engagement with Melio at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh September 25, winning the decision after 15 gruelling rounds.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century Sporting Club estimates that a sell-out crowd will watch the fight. The battle should draw a gate of about 50,000, Jacobs hopes.

SEIBERT INJURED

Backbone of Hawks' Defence Out For Three Weeks With Pulled Leg Muscle

(By Robert Clarke, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

A bar or two of soft music please, Professor, while Yogi Lester Patrick goes into a trance in an attempt to discover the reason why New York Rangers are having so much trouble in their efforts to mark up their initial victory of the National Hockey League season.

With only two changes in the team which finished second in the N.H.L. standing last year, and scored 149 goals in the 48-game season, the Broadway Blues have managed only two draws in four games. In comparison to their average of better than three goals a game in the 1938-39 schedule, Rangers have only a-goal-a-game record.

Part of the trouble undoubtedly can be traced to the fact that Patrick's big three — Alex Shibicky, Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall—have failed to click off goals with the regularity of last season. So far they have a total of one goal in the present season.

Shibicky Gets First One

That goal went to Shibicky last night as the Rangers dropped a 3-2 decision to Chicago Black Hawks in New York. The Hawks used the victory, their third against two losses, to go into first place in the standing over the idle Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal's Canadiens, who played a 3-3 overtime draw with Boston Bruins.

The Hawks suffered a blow, however, when it was learned that big Earl Seibert, backbon of their defence, had torn a leg muscle and will be out of action probably for three weeks.

All the scoring in the Rangers-Hawks game came in the final period with two rookies—Phil Hergesheimer and Doug Bentley—supplying the victory punch. Bentley scored the winning goal in the 15th minute with the veteran Bill Thoms drawing an assist on the tally.

Avert Defeat with Rally

The Stanley Cup-holding Bruins, finding difficulty like Rangers in hitting a winning stride, only managed to avert defeat with a great last period rally against the Flying Frenchmen. Down 3-1 as they started the final session, the Bruins tied it up with a quick goal by Bobby Bauer and another late in the period by Art Jackson.

The remainder of the scoring was confined to the middle period with Louis Trudel opening the scoring for Canadiens; Dit Clapper tying it up; and then Hector (Toe) Blake, leading point-getter in the N.H.L. last season, sending the habitants into a seemingly safe lead with a brace of goals in the last two minutes of play.

Oshawa Generals Show Power In Downing 'Flyers' 10 to 4 In Exhibition Tilt at Oshawa

Tracey Show Has Gathered Another Powerful Club For O.H.A. Race

TAYLOR REFEREE

"Airmen" Not Disgraced as Juniors Had Big Edge in Condition

Icing a fast skating and powerful potential puck powerhouse the Oshawa "Generals", last season's Dominion Junior hockey champions and holders of the Memorial Trophy, commenced another season of ice hockey in a most convincing manner, when they defeated the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" of Trenton by a 10 to 4 score in an exhibition game played in the Oshawa Arena last night.

Although the initial puck chasing game of the current season for both squads, the game was productive of some fast hard- checking and bruising hockey as a roster of 21 players battled with every ounce of their youthful energy seeking a berth on the Dominion champions and eager to make an impression on their coach and leader, Tracey Shaw. The pent-up efforts of the Oshawa kids forced Coach Toots Holway's "Airmen" to endeavour to keep pace resulting in some fine hockey and speedy efforts.

Taylor as Referee

One of the features of the evening's attraction was the appearance of Billy (The Kid) Taylor, star of last year's Oshawa junior champion club and now member of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, who acted as co-referee along with A. W. "Army" Armstrong. Some 2,500 hockey fans welcomed Taylor back to the Arena, where he rose to fame as he was welcomed with a tumultuous ovation by the entire patronage.

Showing the result of three full week's of practice, the "Generals" showed much better condtion than did the Flyers and were carrying the play for the greater part of the game. The Oshawa kids presented three fast-skating, smooth working forward lines and a sturdy defence and actuallyout-weighed the Airmen all along the line. All two-way hockey players the homesters literally checked the rapidly tiring Airmen into submission as Oshawa out-scored the R.C.A.F. 4-1 in the initial period. However, in the middle stanza the Holway-led Airmen made their bid and carried as much punch as did the Generals as each team scored three in a hectic frame. The fast pace set in the centre period took its toll on the "Flyers", who had only had the benefit of two practices prior to the game, with the result that the youthful "Generals" applied the hockey pressure to score three counters, while the visitors were held scoreless.

Wilson Scores Three

Roy Wilson with three goals paced the "Generals" on the attack with Nick Knott, former Kingston player, Peters, the McAtee brothers, Judd, Hellyer and Normie all coming in for the odd timely counter. Eddols and Ritchie carried the bulk of the defensive efforts of the winners. The Flyers' scoring efforts were well divided among the entire squad as Coach "Toots" Holway expressed satisfaction with the efforts of the Airmen in their initial game of the season, especially as they were meeting the cream of Canada's junior pucksters, many of whom are potential N.H.L. stars already. Two military bands, one from the Air Force and the other from the Ontario Regiment, stationed at Oshawa, were present while over 1,000 soldiers were the guests of the management of the Oshawa Arena during the game.

The line-ups—Oshawa —goal — McManus, defence— Eddols and Ritchie, centre—W. Wilson, wings —Knott and Sawyer, defence alternates—Daniels and Fraser, forward alternates—Smith, N. McAtee, Hewson, J. McAtee, Hellyer, R. Wilson and ePters.

R.C.A.F. "Flyers"—goal— Gibson and Bruce, defence—Higgins and Cameron, centre—Legris, wings — McNab and Baldwin, defence alternates—Dryer and Vinnicombe, forward alternates — Harrison, Smith, McLeod, Crawford, Lafferty, Lovelace and Lockyer.

ARGOS SECURE FIVE BERTHS ON ALL-STAR TEAM

ISBISTER CHOSEN

Bill Davies of Montreal Only Other Player Outside Ottawa And Toronto Chosen

(By JACK CALDER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

New backfield stars replaced the old as coaches and sports writers looked over the field and named the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union all-star team of 1939.

Only Bob Isbister, who has switched from Toronto Argonauts to Hamilton Tigers in the meantime, remained from the backfielders selected to the dream team last year.

Fourteen writers and coaches in Big Four cities chose the team for The Canadian Press, making Isbister the only Hamilton representative and Bill (Sixty-Minute) Davies the lone Montreal Royal to catch a place. The Argonauts and Ottawa, who start their union finals Saturday, gained five positions each.

Here is the team:

Flying wing:: Bill Davies Montreal.
Half: Red Storey, Argos.
Half: Bob Isbister, Hamilton.
Half (secondary defense): Tony Golab, Ottawa.
Quarterback: Bill Stukus, Argos.
Snap: George Willis, Argos.
Inside: Tiny Herman, Ottawa.
Inside: Len Staughton, Argos.
Middle: Dave Sprague, Ottawa.
Middle: Bunny Wadsworth, Ottawa.
Outside: Bernie Thornton. Argos.
Outside: Tony McCarthy, Ottawa.

Team is Young

The selectors took the best of tomorrow's finalists and added the marathon kicking of Isbister and the 60-minute fighting of the driving Davies for a team any coach could dream about.

In the main the team is young, and particularly in the backfield where only Isbister remains of the all-star backfielders of 1938. Herman, Sprague and Wadsworth are veterans of the Ottawa line and of all-star teams.

Garnering in the best procurable junior puck material in the Dominion, they hope, the Oshawa Generals, Memorial Cup holders and junior hockey champions of Canada, continued where they left off last spring as they beat the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" 10-4 in the Motor City last night. Although advertised as an exhibition game the boys laid it on without fear or favour. Coach Tracey Shaw has 21 teen-aged hopefuls, all of whom were giving every last ounce of energy in hopes of securing a berth on the junior champion's roster. To the "Flyers" however, it was merely a workout, but faced with an over-zealous junior avalanche Coach Holway's charges were forced to extend themselves and admittedly welcomed the final gong.

It was quite a show, the opening of the unofficial hockey season in Oshawa last night. Billy "The Kid" Taylor, star of the Dominion champions last year and who has already scored a goal in the N.H.L. since moving into the ranks of the Toronto Maple Leafs, appeared on the ice as one of the two referees of the night, "Army" Armstrong being the chief official. Taylor was advertised extensively and proved a drawing card. He received a momentous ovation when he appeared to face off the puck at the opening. To add to the night's color was the presence of military bands from the R.C.A.F. and the Ontario Regiment, the latter being stationed at Oshawa. The fans may have turned out to welcome home Billy Taylor, but all concerned were surprised at the pressure applied by both teams in an exhibition game, especially as it was their initial effort.

The Generals are a big, fast skating and powerful hockey machine and will take some beating, but aren't the team that won the Memorial Cup last spring. During the initial period the Oshawa kids' combination plays clicked nicely as they showed too much speed for the Flyers, especially after three full weeks of practice. However, in the second period the Airmen more than held their own and over-anxiousness around the nets cost the Holway-Stevenson squad several counters. Both teams showed signs of weariness in the third period, but condition gave the Motor City kids the margin. All-in-all the game proved a splendid workout for both teams and may be repeated before the O.H.A. season opens.

Mrs. Hilton, mother of Wally Hilton and resident of Belleville, saw her first rugby football game at Kingston last Saturday when Western beat Queen's and won the senior Intercollegiate football title. Naturally Mrs. Hilton was thrilled to see her son playing in that great school classic and her joys were unbounded when Western applied the pressure to win in a thrilling last period march. "I didn't know much of what was going on, but it was a marvellous sight to see that large crowd and naturally I was overjoyed when Wally's team won," Mrs. Hilton was reported to have said after the game.

Captain Ron Church, known throughout the Bay of Quinte district for his baseball ability, wit and humor was feted by the Picton Baseball Club this week and presented with a suitable gift from his teammates. Capt. Church retired from baseball leaving more friends behind him than any individual baseball player this district ever produced. A good player, Church was perhaps the most colorful showman ever to grace a district diamond.

Bill Hastie, former Oshawa junior star and later senior O.H.A. puckster, now employed in Gananoque and "Tabby" Gow, speedy Kingston forward, both visited the Belleville Redmen's dressing room at the Jock Harty arena on Wednesday evening seeking berths with the Redmen, as Kingston is not represented in the Van Horne series. Skipper Ed Thomas assured the two lads he was sorry, but only players from the Belleville area could be considered, as the locals are actually using the Van Horne series games for pre-season practice prior to the opening of the O.H.A. Incidentally the manager of the Perth Hockey Club told goalie Ken Watt he would gladly give Les Yates the Prescott winger with the Redmen, a berth with his club if Yates desired to move to Perth. Incidentally Ed Thomas' charges are far from discouraged over their unfortunate loss at the hands of the "Gunners" Wednesday night and are contemplating a couple of strong workouts prior to their next game. "We'll be in there when the big money is around," predicted Skipper Thomas today.

Do you remember when Bobby Jones, United Sattes amateur golf champion, abdicated the title nine years ago today to make motion pictures showing the novice "how to play golf." Jones was 28 at the time of his retirement, and had won 13 national titles, including four "majors" in 1930.

Several wrestling fans have enquired regarding tonight's suggested wrestling bouts. Owing to the continued cold weather it was decided to cancel the weekly wrestling bouts at the Hume arena for the season, so there'll be no wrestling at the arena tonight.

High in hopes of winning the right to enter the C.O.S.S.A. finals, Coach Eddie Schrieder's Belleville Collegiate senior Interscholastic gridders march to Port Hope on Saturday where they meet the Peterborough Collegiate in the eastern division final game which is a of the sudden death nature. The winning squad journeys to Toronto for the C.O.S.S.A. finals next Saturday and the locals say they're in.

BOBBY PEARCE DEFEATS DUNLOP

Professional Sculler of World Enters Mat Game And Wins First Bout

Toronto, Nov. 17—(CP) — Big Bobby Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., professional sculling champion of the world, turned to wrestling last night and defeated Al Dunlop of Toronto, in a preliminary of a professional card after ten minutes of the scheduled twenty-minute bout.

In the main event, Everett Marshall, 221, La Junta, Col., won two of three falls over Cy. Williams, of Florida, who weighed nine pounds more.

N.H.L. STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Hector (Toe) Blake, Canadiens, bagged two goals as his team played a 3-3 overtime tie with Boston Bruins.

Art Jackson, Bruins, fired the goal late in the third period that brought Bruins even with the flying Frenchmen and meant a split in points.

Doug Bentley and Phil Hergesheimer, Chicago, — former scored winning goal and latter tying goal as Black Hawks wiped out a 2-1 deficit to win 3-2 over New York Rangers.

Orchestra Members Are Entertained At Banquet

Members of the orchestra who play at gatherings of the local Masonic lodges, were entertained by Bro. Walter Aselstin at a banquet held in the Temple last evening as a mark of appreciation of their services to the order.

This was the one evening when the musicians did not bring their instruments and were not called upon to play for they were guests in the fullest sense of the word. About twenty of them were present and one of the features of the program after the enjoyable repast was the brief addresses by the musicians, each one of whom told how it was he became a musician, how he was attracted to the instrument of his choice and how he came to enter a musical organization. These experiences were novel, even to many of those present who hitherto had not known how some of their companions were inspired to join a musical organization.

The host, Bro. Aselstine, was in happiest mood and welcomed the company heartily. At the close of the after-dinner program, he was thanked by the orchestra members for his hospitality.

Capitols Have Chance To Go to Front

By The Canadian Press

Two of the International-American Hockey League's highest scoring machines, Indianapolis capitols and Cleveland Barons promise to set sparks flying when they meet in an important home and home series this week-end.

Evenly matched on the basis of their games so far this season, the joint leaders of the league's western section play at Cleveland Saturday and Indianapolis Sunday. It should be a bang-up double-header.

Capitols gained the first place tie last night by whipping Providence Reds 6-2. That victory gave them a record of five wins in six games, the same as the Barons who won the league title this year.

No player got more than a goal but Conny Brown of Ottawa did more than his share for the Capitols. He scored the last goal and assisted in three others to take point-getting honors for the game.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—General Electric Company announced today retirement of Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope from active management of the company. C. E. Wilson, one-time office boy, will become president and Philip D. Reed chairman of the board. The changes become effective Jan. 1, 1940.

GERMANY PUZZLED

The national characteristic of the Germans is to hit quickly but that did not happen in the first few weeks of the war. The best explanation is that the German High Command did not have plans for attacking in the west, so sure were they that general war could be avoided.

Although they must have realized that time was against them, they allowed France to mobilize, the British expeditionary force to land in France, and the Allied armies to construct vast defence works and build up air fleets.

Every day makes it more difficult for the German army to break through the Maginot Line— yet Germany does nothing. If it is difficult now, it will be impossible in the spring—yet Germany still does nothing.

Vast Air Attacks

It is admitted that Germany may launch vast air attacks on Britain and France, but the war cannot be won that way. It would invite retaliation for every bomb dropped on British and French soil and would breed hate for Germany which would prove to be an irresistible force in the end.

Meanwhile the German government contents itself with threats of "frightfulness." They do not alarm the British people, who see in them evidence of German weakness and dissension.

When asked if Britain intended to make any threats in return, military authorities today exclaimed: "Certainly not. We must preserve our dignity in this war," and: "We wish to retain our status as gentlemen."

But just the same they pointed out that international law releases a victimized country from restraints if its rules are broken by another nation. There can be no doubt that if Germany uses gas, Britain and France will use gas, just as they did in the last war. It is equally true that prevailing winds blow from France to Germany, so Germany will be the ultimate loser.

Civic Dissension.

Sources close to the British Government claim there is considerable civic dissension in Germany which can be cleared away only by military successes. They do not believe this unrest is dangerous to the Nazi regime at present but a few more weeks of military inactivity and naval blockade will be bound to increase it despite the Gestapo, the concentration camp and government propaganda.

British government sources insist there is nothing like the solidarity in Germany there was in 1914. There are many contributing factors to this, including the Russo-German agreement, the financial position of the country, strict rationing, the disappearance of all civil liberties and the domineering, crushing regimentation of the Nazi regime.

Meanwhile, a German stroke against British shipping in the Indian Ocean caused speculation today over where the Nazi pocket battleships are lurking as they avoid a clash with the British and French fleets.

Sources here advanced the possibility the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer sank the 706-ton British tanker Africa Shell on Wednesday off the coast of Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa.

The Ministry of Information said that the German raiders have caused little damage because they are reluctant to risk a fight with the British and French craft searching for them.

Not Definitely Reported

The Admiral Scheer has not been definitely reported since September 30 when the British steamship Clement was sunk off the coast of Brazil—about 4,500 miles from where the Africa Shell went down—but it had been considered likely here that the German warship rounded Cape Horn into the Pacific Ocean.

The Admiral Scheer and the Deutschland, another 10,000-ton pocket battleship, have been at sea for more than a month. The Deutschland was known to have been in the North Atlantic October 14, five days after she placed a prize crew aboard the United States freighter City of Flint.

British authorities have attributed only three sinkings to the two raiders up to Oct. 27, when a British report said they had been compelled by anti-sea raider naval operations to do "more cruising than raiding".

Statement Issued

In a statement last night the Ministry of Information said:

"That the two German pocket battleships which are at large have done so very little damage to the seaborne trade of the Allies must be ascribed to their reluctance to risk being brought into action, not only by British naval units, but also by French naval units".

Britain discounted her comparatively small naval losses as "the price we have to pay for command of the seas." The expression was used by Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in delivering for Prime Minister Chamberlain the Weekly Review of war progress.

Command of the seas meant that British merchant ships 'continue to move in great numbers', he said, 'while the merchant ships of Germany remain for the most part in their own or neutral ports." He pointed to Germany's loss of four ships in the past week—two, the Uehenfels and the Leander, captured, and two others, the Parana and the Mecklenberg, scuttled by their crew to avoid capture.

Advance Guard Arrives

Arrival of a group of Canadian officers—the advance guard of the Canadian Expeditionary Force — caused interest. The Canadians were a group of nine officers charged with strengthening the existing Dominion military offices in the United Kingdom. Colonel P. J. Montague of Winnipeg, Chief Administrative Officer and Assistant Adjutant Quartermaster - General headed the group which also included 14 non-commissioned officers.

The Air Ministry in its 10th casualty list revealed that a Canadian aviator, E. W. Allison, Acting Pilot Officer born in Brantford, Ont., has been killed in active service. It also listed Flying Officer D. F Elliot of Vancouver as reported missing and Pilot Officer R. M. Coste of Calgary was reported a prisoner of war. Coste was previously reported missing.

The list raised the toll of Royal Air Force men killed since the start of the war to 165 a figure which includes those killed in action and those killed in training and other accidents.

Von Ribbentrop Derided

Malcolm Macdonald, Colonial Secretary, derided Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop of Germany for his charges that most people in the British Empire were hostile to the London government.

Whereas the entire Empire had hastened to support Great Britain in the war, Mr. MacDonald said, Germany had "silent and sullen" people under her banner—in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia — who "felt the heel of the tyrant which had stamped out their freedom."

The people of the British Colonial Empire know that Britain respects them, Mr. MacDonald said. "They know that so long as they are associated with British rule their freedom will be steadily developed."

The Daily Telegraph said yesterday that the important war aim of the moment "is that aggression must be shown to be unprofitable, and that nations must be left free to live their own lives."

"To discuss in detail what is to come after that dominating purpose is achieved is to presume a foreknowledge of the shape and condition in which the war will leave the world, and to sow seeds of dissension and controversy which can only weaken and distract the vital, urgent and not yet victorious war effort of the Allies," the newspaper said.

A Crushing Effect

The Telegraph deplored the campaign being carried on by opposition groups in England for a further statement of war aims, predicated, it said, on events that have not yet taken place.

In an article entitled "Why Hitler Hesitates," The Daily Herald said that the Fuehrer's present "mood" of hesitation would pass but that meanwhile each day's delay "increases our output of arms, improves our already strong air force." At the same time, it added, "within Germany the indecision at the top must be having a crushing effect upon the morale of the mass."

Prague Incident Seen Sign of Trouble for Hitler, 'Eastern Door' is Insecure

Occupation of Poland Following Subjugation of Nationalistic Czechs Brings Simmering Mass of Hostile Peoples Within Reich—Signs Point That Germany Has Hands Full to Keep Them in Control

COMPLICATION IN WEST

Opinion is Expressed That This Situation Explains Lack of Action on The West Front — Czechs Would be Ready to Strike For Liberty — Belief is Held if Germans Are Fully Engaged in West, Eastern 'Back Yard' of Germany May Burst Into Flame

By CHARLES NICHOLS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Nov. 17—(AP)—A Prague dispatch to the German News Agency today said that nine persons had been shot to death and a large number arrested in connection with student disturbances there. The dispatch said Prague academies and universities had been ordered closed for three years.

The Agency said these extraordinary measures were taken after students, who were described as "followers of Benes," assaulted Germans. Dr. Eduard Benes was the last President of independent Czecho-Slovakia.

Trouble knocked sharply on Germany's eastern back door today as dissension broke out again in the Reich's "protected" city of Prague.

In itself, the occupation of institutes of learning in the ancient Czech capital and the detention of 1,200 students, did not appear on the surface a major worry for the Nazis.

But taken with other recent manifestations of latest revolt in the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, it supplied some observers with another reason why the Reich is unable to risk offensive warfare on the strategic western front.

Trouble May Break Out In East.

It led to the belief that if the Reichswehr forces once became fully engaged in the west, Germany's eastern "back yard" might burst into flame.

The Prague incident today, in which Nazi guards carted away 1,200 Czech students and occupied their schools, apparently was the aftermath of the demonstration last Wednesday by 2,000 students against the protectorate government.

After the Wednesday demonstrations, sixteen were reported arrested. A large body of students attempted to escort the coffin of a student killed Oct. 28 in a patriotic demonstration.

Along with these disturbing reports came unconfirmed word that President Emil Hacha of the protectorate government was being detained because he refused to disassociate himself with Czech patriotic activities abroad.

Still another report said all Czechs who fought for their fellow Slavs against German occupation of Poland would be shot if captured.

Simmering Mass of Hostile Peoples

If the Nazis had only such relatively minor incidents to deal with, it probably would not be sufficient reason to cause Adolf Hitler to hold back in the west. But it is another drop in the Nazi's bucket of trouble in their eastern hinterland.

Occupation of Poland following subjugation of the intensely nationalistic Czechs brought the greater Reich a simmering mass of hostile people along with their territory. At best, under conditions of peace, the Reich would have had its hands full keeping these peoples in check while their gains were consolidated.

When the Nazi strategy backfired and Great Britain and France declared a state of war, the Reich leaders faced a war on the west and threatened upheaval on the east if their vigilance there was rlaxed.

No Security in East

Meeting this with the share-the-spoils pact with the Soviet Union failed however to bring any degree of tranquility either by scaring off the Allies or securing the east.

The Nazi leaders scarcely can have any such illusion as that Czech dissension will pass. It broke out first in the middle of the last century when, under the benevolent Austrian regime, official posts were taken from the dominant German group in Bohemia and given over to the Czechs. It continued until the first Great War brought short-lived national independence in the Czecho-Slovak Republic.

Hitler's regime is faced with the fact that once the vigilance of his authorities is relaxed the Czech struggle for integrity will be fought again.

MAIL MARRIAGE RULED VALID

Husband Claims Wife Married Him to Get Way Paid Out From Hungary.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)—St. of a love which flowered by mail from Fabianhaza, a small town in Hungary, to die when the lovers met in Hamilton, was unfolded before Mr. Justice John Keiller MacKay, in Supreme Court here today. The principals were Frank Gabriel and his wife, Anni.

The husband, a young Hungarian resident in Hamilton, sought a declaration from the court that his marriage with the pretty girl, whose passage he paid from her native land, was null and void.

The young woman, the husband claimed, married him "solely for the purpose of having her passage paid from Hungary to Hamilton, so that she could not be deported." Remarking that the circumstances were "most unfortunate," His Lordship refused the declaration, and the marriage was ruled valid.

"One's knowledge of human nature, and women, limited as it may be, leads one to the belief that women want to marry," Mr. Justice MacKay said.

"She saw an opportunity of coming to a new country, where her sister was living, and her imagination constructed in her brain an appreciation of this man, who, in the common parlance of the day, was her Prince Charming. That was the picture in her mind when she left Hungary.

Must Face Deportation.

"She comes to this country, wants to spend as much time as she can looking over this man. She becomes faced with a serious situation: she must marry this man, or face deportation."

It was His Lordship's opinion that "the young woman is not in love with this man, and never was in love with him after she saw him."

But he found that the marriage had been consummated, and that the marriage therefore could not be annulled.

"It is most unfortunate," the judge said. "I have a great deal of sympathy for the man, but a court of law cannot be moved by sympathy."

Because the man had paid between $400 and $600 to bring his bride from Hungary to Hamilton, where he married her 27 days after her arrival—in three more days she would have been liable to deportation—he dismissed the husband's suit without costs.

NAZI WARNING GIVEN BELGIUM

Told Not to Become An "Accessory to The British Blockade"

Berlin, Nov. 17 (AP) — Belgium, which is negotiating a trade agreement with Germany, today became the object of a Nazi warning against becoming an "accessory to the British blockade".

Belgians were asked to be more energetic in getting their ships released from the British contraband control.

Recently a statement was attributed to the British Ambassador in Brussels that it was to Belgium's interest to collaborate with British measures, for this would shorten the war.

Magistrate Dismisses Manslaughter Charge

Sudbury, Ont, Nov. 17—(CP)—Magistrate Willard Cooper today dismissed a charge of manslaughter which had been laid against Charles Travers in connection with the death of William Hodgins, miner of the International Nickel Company. Hodgins was riding in Travers' car when it was involved in a collision on the Long Lake road.

Travers, however, will appear in court again tomorrow, to face a charge of dangerous driving. He was freed under bail of $500.

ACTION DISMISSED

Toronto, Nov. 17—(CP)— Mr. Justice Greene, in a judgment at Osgoode Hall yesterday, dismissed an action of trustees of Union School sections 1 6and 18, Townships of Murray and Brighton, Northumberland County, against the united Counties of Northumberland and Durham. The school board claimed $1,178 for the transportation of pupils to and from its continuation school at Wooler. Mr. Justice Greene finds that the power of the board is limited in this respect.

DUKE GRANTED LEAVE

London, Nov. 17 — (CP)—The Duke of Gloucester returned to London today on several days' leave from France, where he has been serving as Chief Liaison Officer of the British forces in the field.

MAN IDENTIFIED BY HIS SISTER

John Janice Struck And Killed By Train Near Simcoe

Simcoe, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)—A man killed on the Wabash railway tracks a mile east of Nixon when struck by a train today was identified by his sister, who resides in Charlotteville Township as John Janice, a laborer who had been working in the vicinity of Nixon. Janice was walking along the tracks when he was run over by the train and cut in two.

A brother resides in Brantford. Chief Coroner Dr. E. W. Zumstein, Delhi, was notified, and it is expected an inquest will be held.

HIGH OFFICIAL OF VIENNA POLICE REPORTED SLAIN

Slayer is Said to Have Fled Toward Yugoslav Border —German Side of Border Closed For Whole Day

TRAIN SEARCHED

Murder Said to Have Been Connected With Many Arrests in Vienna Since Attempt on Hitler's Life

Maribor, Yugoslavia, Nov. 17 (CP-Havas)—A high police official of Vienna was murdered yesterday and the murderer, according to the Esapo fled toward the Yugoslav border.

Yugoslav officials revealed the border was closed on the German side for the whole day. The Vienna-Trieste express was held for several hours at Spielfeld and all passengers were closely searched and questioned.

The murder was said to have been connected with the numerous arrests made in Vienna since the attempted assassination of Adolf Hitler at Munich.

Mayor La Guardia Refuses To Kiss Babies Due to Cold

New York, Nov. 17 (CP)—Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's political path is strewn with broken precedents but none more time-worn than the one he cracked yesterday when he declined to kiss not one baby but several.

Dedication of a child health station provided a golden opportunity for indulgence in the infant-fondling practice at which most public officials are traditionally adept. Seventy-five mothers and their babies were on hand and so were a number of news-photographers.

But when the cameramen asked the mayor to pick up the two nearest babies and do his stuff he not only declined but refused to even approach his potential constituents.

"Sorry boys, but I've a heavy cold and can't take a chance on passing it on to these tots," he explained.

GUILTY OF DESTRUCTION

Stratford, Ont., Nov. 17 (CP)—Herbert High, Hibbert Township farmhand, was fined $5 and costs on each of four property damage charges when he appeared for sentence in court here today. Costs totalled $19.

High pleaded guilty a week ago to breaking 20 panes of glass in each of three Hibbert Township schoolhouses and to cutting the wire around a nearby farmer's field. He told Magistrate J. A. Makins he had paid $24 for the windows and $5 for the wire.

ORDERS FOR FAST FRENCH BOMBERS BEING RUSHED

With the lifting of the arms embargo, aircraft plants in Southern California have started hiring several thousand workmen to help in rushling the construction of hundreds of planes for the British and French governments. France has ordered 500 fast Douglas attack bombers, a large number of which are already finished and on their way to France. One of these fast attack bombers, which are known as DB-7's is pictured making a landing, top, after being tested for speed, carrying load and ceiling. A workman, bottom, is shown putting the finishing touches on one of the new bombers, which, according to test pilots, will have a speed far in excess of 300 m.p.h. and are are fastest machines of this type in the world.

IS THE NEXT U. S. PRESIDENT ONE OF THESE MEN?

Campaigns aimed at the United States presidency in 1940 are under way. The recent trip of Thomas E. Dewey to his native Michigan was regarded as a bid for midwestern support, and further western travels are scheduled. Still left unanswered is the momentous 1940 question — will President Roosevelt seek a third term? His recent conferences with party leaders have been regarded as significant. Regardless of F.D.R.'s decision, Vice-President Garner and Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheler have ordered full speed ahead on their campaigns. Garner is busily setting up state headquarters. Both are angling for the support of Postmaster-General Farley. New Hampshire's Republican Senator H. Styles Bridges' plans call for addresses in the midwest after a flying visit to the Pacific coast, while Senator Robert Taft, son of the late president and Ohio Republicans' white hope, will follow up a tour of the west and midwest with a speaking trip through New England. The possible presidential candidates are shown above, LEFT to RIGHT.

ALLIED COUNCIL MEETS IN LONDON

Complete Agreement Reached on Coordination of British And French Forces

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—The Allied Supreme War Council met here today to review the military situation and consider possible future developments.

An official communique announced complete agreement as to the best method of co-ordinating the use of French and British forces to give operations maximum effectiveness.

In addition to Premier Edouard Daldadier and Prime Minister Chamberlain, the meeting was attended by:

General Maurice Gamelin, French Commander-in-Chief; Admiral Jean Darlan, Commander-in-Chief of the French Navy; General Victor Vuillemin, Commander-in-Chief of the French Air Force; Lord Chatfield, British Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, and Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood.

After the meeting, which began at 11:15 a.m., Mr. Chamberlain and M. Daladier issued a joint statement.

It was announced that the two governments, profiting from the experience of the war of 1914-18, had decided from the beginning of the present conflict to co-ordinate the war efforts of the two countries in the most complete and economical manner.

The statement added that this effort had been put into effect at once, and had been reinforced and completed by the carrying out of decisions adopted by Mr. Chamberlain and M. Daladier at the last Supreme War Council.

Common action is now assured, it continued, as concerns aviation, armaments, raw materials, petroleum, supplies, sea transport and economic warfare.

FORMER KAISER REVIVES HOPES

Believes Time Will Come When Hohenzollern Will Sit on Throne of Reich

Doorn, The Netherlands, Nov. 17 (CP Havas)—Developments in Germany have revived the hopes long dormant in the breast of former Kaiser Wilhelm that a Hohenzollern again may sit on the throne of the Reich, according to informants close to the former ruler of Germany.

The former Kaiser was described as being disturbed by reports of the arrest of the former Crown Prince Wilhelm. Nevertheless, rumors of the increase of monarchist tendencies in Germany have strongly revived his hopes of a Hohenzollern restoration, this informant said.

ANGLICAN CHURCH BEHIND GOV'TS.

Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen Urges Canadians to Support Measures Passed

Winnipeg, Nov. 17 (CP) — Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of the Church of England in Canada, believes the Church of England "stands squarely behind the governments of the Dominion and of the Empire in the war against aggression, but the church recognizes that there may be some of its members who are sincere in a conscientious objection to warlike methods of any kind."

In an interview here today, Archbishop Owen urged Canadians to do everything possible to support the measures which are being taken to resist aggression.

"I think there is doubt about the position of the Church of England in regard to the matter," Dr. Owen said. "The church will do everything in its power to strengthen the morale of the people during this time of testing and trial."

"But I think it ought to be said that there may be some members of the church who are sincere in their conscientious objection to warlike methods of any kind and they are as much entitled to the church's ministration as any others."

Dr. Owen is in Winnipeg to preside at a meeting of the House of Bishops. Next week the Executive Council of the General Synod will meet here.

SAMUEL DAVICH KILLED BY FALL FROM TOWER AT AUNOR GOLD MINE

Timmins, Ont., Nov. 17 (CP)—Killed at the Aunor Mine yesterday when he fell from a steel tower which was being erected at that property, Samuel Davich, 47, of Sarnia, Ont., is being taken back to that city for burial this afternoon.

Davich was an employee of the construction company engaged in the building of a steel shaft tower at the Aunor Mine near Timmins.

The usual mine inquest will be held into the death. No date for the hearing has been set as yet.

AIRCRAFT DRIVEN OFF

The Hague, Nov. 17 (AP)—Netherlands planes and anti-aircraft guns drove off foreign aircraft sighted today at various places along the coast going westward. Nationality of the planes was not determined. None was damaged.

CHILD OF SIX KILLED BY CAR

Boy's Father Severely Injured Trying to Save Child's Life

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 17.—(CP)—Douglas McCallum, six, was instantly killed on Highway 34, near his home at Glengordon today, when struck by an automobile driven by Rev. Duncan McDonald, pastor of Nativity Church, Cornwall.

The boy's father George McCallum, 53, in an effort to save the little fellow, was struck at the same time and is a patient in the hospital here, suffering from fractured ribs and a broken leg. An inquest will be held.

Photography on Royal Air Force Film Done by Canadian

London, Nov. 17 — (CP-Cable) Korda Productions, which made the Royal Air Force film "The Lion Has Wings" disclosed today that the outside photography was done by Osmond Borradaile, 39, a native of Winnipeg, who served in the first Great War with the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Borradaile, who did the outside work on the films "Four Feathers" and "Drums" discovered the famous Indian boy actor Sabu when the youth was working in the stables of the Maharajah of Mysore.

The Korda publicity department said only one Canadian appears in the film, which depicts the return of a British squadron from the first bombing raid on the Kiel Canal. His name was withheld.

DISCUSS PURCHASE OF AMERICAN FRUITS

Washington, Nov. 17 — (AP) — Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said today the United States Embassy in London was discussing with the British Government the question of continuing British purchases of American fruits.

Great Britain yesterday issued restrictions on the importation of fruits, limiting Canadian exports to Britain to half the normal flow.

SIR F. BANTING IN ARMY

Montreal, Nov. 17 — (CP)—Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto, Canadian scientist and co-discoverer of insulin, arrived in Montreal today in the uniform of the Canadian Army Medical Corps.

A medical officer overseas in the first Great War, Sir Frederick said "I guess I was in uniform about the first day war was declared." He did not disclose the object of his visit to Montreal.

Dealer Fined $50 for Shipping Under-Grade Eggs

Sudbury, Ont., Nov. 17 (CP)—D. Tusmer of (Dundas Street West) Toronto today was fined $50 and costs, with an alternative of two months in jail, for shipping under-grade eggs to Sudbury.

George Solomon was the complainant. F. G. Ward, a government inspector under the Farm Produce Act, testified he examined the shipment of eggs and found 20 per cent were under-grade. The law permits only 6 1-2 per cent to be under-grade.

Tusmer did not appear in court. He was represented by his agent, Abraham Kesher.

Duchess of Bavaria Denies Statement Allegedly Reported

Hoboken, N.J., Nov. 17 (AP) — Duchess Eleanora of Bavaria, sister-in-law of Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium, said today she "never even had in mind" statements attributed to her when she arrived last Friday from Europe aboard the S. E. Veendam.

At that time she was quoted as saying there was "likely to be a revolution in Germany". She also was described as expressing belief the war would not last, as saying Belgium would remain neutral "if England does not try to get over there", and as adding Germany "seemingly" would not invade Belgium.

The Duchess stated today she had been informed "certain shocking statements" attributed to her had been cabled to Europe and said it was possible "my imperfect pronunciation and knowledge of English might explain the extraordinary misunderstanding."

CROAT STUDENTS STAGE UPRISING

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Nov. 17 — (CP-Havas) — Nationalist Croat students demonstrated at the Zagreb University today, throwing portraits of young King Peter and of Serb political leaders out of windows and shouting "long live free Croatia."

Police and the "civic defence" guard of Vladimir Matchek, Croat leader and Vice-Premier in the Belgrade cabinet, did not intervene.

The Ultra-Nationalist group opposes Matchek as much as it does the Serbs, is pro-German, and ims at complete separation from the Serbs. Most of its members are young students.

Two Cargoes of Wheat Unloaded at Oswego

Oswego, N.Y., Nov. 17 — (AP)—Two cargoes of wheat from Canada were unloaded here today because of what elevator officials said was an overflow of grain in Kingston, Prescott, Montreal and Lower St. Lawrence River, Canadian ports.

The Steamships Lennox and Lenark of the Canada Steamship Lines, each with a capacity of 80,000 bushels, arrived last night from Cataraqui Bay. Reported en route to Oswego with more grain from Fort William, Ont., were the steamships Ferris, Soodoo and the Alex Mackenzie, the latter with 225,000 bushels.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 17 (AP) — The stock market today balked at extending Thursday's climb and leading issues had all they could do to retain small advances. Dealings slowed appreciably after a fairly fast opening and, near the fourth hour, minor fractional price changes either way predominated.

Bonds were higher, as were most foreign securities markets. Commodities were a shade mixed.

Best share movers were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, Owens-Illinois, American Telephone, Armour, Wilson and Co., Loft, Union Pacific, Brooklyn Union Gas and Goodyear.

Fractional gainers among Canadian shares included C.P.R., Distillers and Lake Shore. Dominion 4s moved evenly in the bond market.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 17—(CP)—Trend on Toronto Exchange today was upward.

Golds were featured by Preston, MacLeod - Cockshutt, Hard Rock and Chesterville, all trading in heavy volume at gains of 5 to 15 cents. Falconbridge, Smelters and Noranda were strong spots in the base metal list while Sherritt sold off 5 cents or more.

In comparatively quiet trading the tone improved slightly for the Food, Steel, Utility and miscellaneous industrial issues. Western Oils posted minor gains. Calgary-Edmonton, Okalta, Davies and Dalhousie added 2 to 3 cents.

SOVIET NEWSPAPERS CHIDE UNITED STATES

Moscow, Nov. 17 (AP) — Two Soviet publications chided the United States today, holding up to ridicule American policy toward Europe.

The Soviet youth newspaper Komsomol Pravda published a cartoon showing Uncle Sam contentedly puffing a cigar, counting money bags surmounted by skulls and saying: "Oh Lord, let us have continuous war."

The newspaper Trud, organ of the Trade Unions, attacked American administration of the Philippines while, it said, the United States was "shedding crocodile tears over the fate of small states in Europe."

HUGE EAGLE SHOT

Galt, Ont., Nov. 17 (AP)—James Hobbs, 22-year-old Ayr farmhand, today saw a huge bird swoop down on a duck on A. G. Ritchie's farm. The bird attacked him after he started to chase it away with a club and he clubbed it to death. It turned out to be an eagle with a wingspread of more than six feet and talons an inch and a half long.

Top-Grade Eggs Ease in Value

Toronto, Nov. 17.—At the Toronto open produce market Thursday, top grade eggs showed reduced values. No change occurred in butter.

The prevailing small volume of fresh receipts was slightly in excess of slow demand on the egg market. Grade A pullets were in keen demand, however, and these receipts cleared well. More activity was noted in lower grades also. Dealers reduced prices one cent per dozen on the two top grades in both sections of the market.

Butter experienced a quiet session, but former prices prevailed. Offerings were not heavy with the continued light arrivals of fresh supplies. Sales were reported in first-grade Ontario creamery solids at 28½c per pound.

Montreal Produce.

Butter — First grade creamery prints, job price, 29½c; first grade solids, job price, 29c.

Eggs — Grade shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 43c; A-medium, 36c; A-pullets, 32c; B-large, 26c; C, 20c. Receipts — 1,412 cases, including 1,163 export.

FASCIST

Del Popolo of Turin warned, "whose position is very clear, to be on guard and not lose sight of the so-called 'Imperialist' aims of Russia. The policy of the Kremlin has lost nothing of its barbarous and anti-European virus."

The Gazeta Del Popolo of Turin, which was founded by Premier Mussolini, said that Russia's advance in the Baltic was but a step in its Imperialist progress, and that the "Western door" has been opened to Soviet expansion which now threatens the Balkans.

Formation of Bloc

(Reports from Balkan Capitals in recent weeks have indicated that Italy is discussing formation of a Balkan bloc of neutrals designed to insulate the Mediterranean area against the war and Soviet encroachment.)

"The policy of the Kremlin has lost nothing of its barbarous and anti-European virus," Gazeta Del Popolo said.

The Corriere Pavano ironically attacked Roman weeklies for publishing articles tending to present Soviet Russia in a favorable light. It denied there was any reason for regarding Moscow differently than hitherto, and said that "Italians are and will remain anti-Bolshevists."

JAPAN REPORTS

They said Chinese resistance was negligible.

The Chinese, however, said the Japanese landing and "attempted advance" were resisted stubbornly, with Chinese gunners sinking a number of Japanese landing boats. They did not acknowledge the Japanese report of an inland advance.

Chinese reports of the drive's scope varied. Some said the Japanese military was assembling strongly in the Pakhoi area, and others that the landing forces were largely seamen weakly supported by the army, without which an inland campaign would be impossible.

MEDIATION OFFER

(France, in her reply last Sunday to a Belgian-Netherlands offer of mediation, demanded as a precondition that Germany repair "injustices which force has imposed on Austria, Czecho Slovakia and Poland." Great Britain put it up to Germany to assure an end of "aggression.")

German guns will speak in an unmistakable manner in ensuing weeks it was hinted.

The western front was quiet today. A communique from the army high command said: "In the west with minor local artillery annoyance fire, no noteworthy fighting activity."

Offensive Foreshadowed

An inspired announcement of yesterday that Germany "must liberate Europe from the unbearable yoke of British rule of might" was seen as foreshadowing offensive rather than defensive war.

(Reaction in London seemed to be that this was the same threat heard almost weekly since Germany invaded Poland Sept. 1.)

The declaration against the "British rule" was the German response to the Anglo-French refusal to accept the Belgian-Netherlands mediation offer except on conditions cited in the replies, authorized source said.

Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop answered the invitation to Germany with a polite but firm "no", and the Netherlands Minister to Germany has been called home to report on the response.

Czech Patriots to be Shot

A Prague radio broadcast last night announced members of the so-called Czech Legion—patriots who fought in Poland—would be shot whether taken as prisoners of war in the Polish cleanup or caught after returning home.

General Lev Prchala, former Czech army officer and commander of the legion, escaped to France with a number of his men. Some, it was reported, returned secretly to the protectorate of Bohemia- Moravia, the Czech part of dismembered Czecho-Slovakia.

An unconfirmed report says the Czech Legion numbered more than 30,000 men.

Directly following the dinner Rev. Mr. Cooke and Mrs. E. B. Finkle conducted the election of officers for 1940.

President, Mrs. E. B. Finkle; first vice-president, Mrs. F. Campbell; second vice-president, Mrs. F. Heasman; recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Frederick; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Tanner; treasurer, Mrs. B. Mitts; systematic giving, Mrs. B. Searles; strangers secretaries, Mrs. F. Heasman, Mrs. F. Finkle; supply secretary, Mrs. A. Hamblin; temperance secretary, Mrs. F. Campbell; press secretary, Mrs. P. Meale; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. F. Finkle; pianist, Mrs. F. Campbell; Mission Band, Mrs. W. Lough; group leaders, Mrs. Hamblin, Mrs. Searles, Mrs. Bleecker.

The president opened the meeting and onducted the worship period at the close of business. Mrs. Marisette, group leader, was in charge of the program. Mrs. A. Tanner gave a reading. Miss Aleitha Horton sang a solo. A reading was given by Mrs. Marizette. The meeting closed by all singing "God Save the King".

EVIDENCE HINTS

These discoveries were reported by Dr. Helmut De Terra, of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences and the American Museum of Natural History, New York. They were made in the last two years with aid of the Peabody Museum at Harvard, the American Philosophical Society, the Carnegie Institution of Washington and Harvard University.

Human Race Never Faltered.

Dr. De Terra said they enable scientists to visual the life pattern of Asia's earliest known inhabitants. This pattern, he added, is an unbroken story of improvement.

The seas invaded early man's homelands and drove him out, changes of climate starved some of his civilizations, but the great human race never faltered in beating all obstacles to rse to higher standards.

This is the first time that the effects of great ice ages have been mapped in tropical regions. To complete the ice age calendar De Terra worked in Burma, near the middle of the triangle.

In all the areas the river terraces were the same in number. These terraces are ancient deposits of gravel eroded from highlands during the periods of high rainfall.

At the north tip of this triangle is the recently discovered home of Peking man. At the south that of Pithecanthropus. At the east are Indian relics. These had been thought to be isolated groups of primitive men.

The new evidence may mean that man originated more or less simultaneously in several parts of the earth.

RAID WARNINGS

A Warrington man said he saw the machine about 1,000 feet up.

The Press Association said anti-aircraft guns went into action in Cheshire and at one town shortly after the all clear signal three British pursuit planes sped westward after the unidentified craft.

No Bombs Dropped Over Shetlands

The Air Ministry said the German plane which flew over the Shetlands dropped no bombs.

The ministry later announced: "An enemy aircraft, apparently a Heinkel reconnaissance plane, was detected by the Royal Air Force Observer Corps. Anti-aircraft guns were in action near Manchester and at Merseyside, where British fighters went up and drove away the enemy aircraft. No bombs were dropped."

Lancashire is a shipping and industrial county with Liverpool and Manchester its leading centres.

DOMINIONS TO AID

there is a unity of spirit and determination of purpose that has never been surpassed on any issue that has hitherto come before them.

"If I am asked what lies behind all this I would reply that there are two reasons. First, the natural desire to stand by the side of Britain, to whose stock a considerable majority of Canadians trace their ancestry and upon whose example we have almost entirely based our political and educational ideals and institutions.

Canadians Love of Pioneering

"I would give as a second reason the issues involved in the present war as we see them in Canada. We have still much of the pioneering spirit that opened up for settlement half the continent. We cherish freedom, liberty, the right of the individual to plan his own life and develop his own personality within the framework of ordered liberty.

"We believe that in the present struggle these are the great issues at hazard. If the philosophy of Nazi Socialist Germany triumphs in Europe we realize that sooner or later its shadow will be thrown across our Dominion.

"In the few weeks I have been in Britain there has been an opportunity to see at first hand the magnificent effort that is being made in this country to carry the war through to a successful conclusion. A visit of several days to France convinced me that the French nation is making a splendid and equally successful effort.

Determined Will to Victory

"In both France and Britain

"In both France and Britain there is a determined will to victory which assures one that it must in the end triumph. And so with gallant Poland, France and Britain, we are putting our full weight into this struggle to maintain and afford opportunity for further development of that state of human society pictured by the Hebrew prophet of old where every man can sit under his own fig tree, enjoying the fruits of his own labor and where none dare molest him or make him afraid."

Similar messages were read by Richard Casey, Australian Minister of Supply, Peter Fraser, New Zealand Minister of Education, Deneys Reitz, South African Ministe rof Native Affairs, and Sir Muhammed Zafrulla Khan, Finance Member of the Viceroy's Council in India. They pledged that the entire British Empire would stay in the fight until Hitlerism has been crushed.

Mr. Eden, referring to the joint effort of the component parts of the British Empire, mentioned the air training scheme in Canada.

"This scheme is unique," he declared. "It is probably the greatest example of Empire coordination to be centred and carried out in a part o fthe Empire other than Britain."

The Empire discussions now will take largely the course of talks between British Ministers and Dominions representatives individually, and may continue for another two weeks.

JAPAN AND SOVIET GROW FRIENDLY

Japanese Spokesman at Tokyo Says Japan Anxious to Ameliorate Relations

Tokyo, Nov. 17—(AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman asserted today relations between Japan and Soviet Russia had changed to a point where the situation was more favorable "than ever before" for resolving outstanding differences.

He said the change was due to the Sept. 6 truce which ended fighting on the border between outer Mongolia and Manchoukuo, the European situation and Japan's "fundamental policy" for conclusion of the conflict with China.

"Japan is sincerely anxious to ameliorate relations with the Soviet," the spokesman asserted.

The main questions before the two countries are the demarcation of frontiers on the Asiatic mainland and Japanese fishing rights in Soviet waters.

Some observers said they believed Japan might use the prospect of friendship with Russia as a means to put pressure on the United States and Great Britain for straightening out her problems with them.

DIONNES FINISH SHOPPING TOUR

Intend to Visit Niagara Falls on Their Way Home to Callander

New York, Nov. 17—(CP)— With the back seat of their automobile piled as high as Santa Claus' sled, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne ended their five-day visit to New York yesterday.

Because they didn't visit Niagara Falls on their honeymoon, the parents of Canada's beloved quints will view the scenic wonder en route to their home at Callander, Ont.

While here, the Dionnes did their Christmas shopping. Gifts for the quints are a sled for Emilie, an airplane for Annette, "a car like Daddy's" for Yvonne, a doll for Cecile and a carriage and doll for Marie. And there were toys and clothes for the other seven Dionne children, including Pauline, who came here with her parents.

Pauline, 11 months older than the quints, who will be six next May, could hardly wait to get back to tell her sisters about New York.

Transfusion Helps Girl With Blood Disease

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 —(AP) — New hope in a mother's heart and new strength in her daughter's weakened body sprang today from blood which a childless woman gave to the girl on the chance it might save her life.

But science still shook its head and declared that Kathryn Felt, eight, can never recover from the blood disease — acute lymphatic leukemia—which has been draining her life away for four months.

From Westport, Conn., came Mrs. Joseph Root '56, a stranger to Kathryn and her parents until she responded to their appeal for blood donors.

Mrs. Root, wife of a tank car company executive, believed she had been cured of the disease which afflicts the Felt child, a rare malady causing a breakdown of the body's blood-making machinery. She was treated for it in New York 15 years ago.

One hundred cubic centimetres of her blood streamed yesterday into the dying girl's veins. And last night Kathryn's mother, Mrs. Charles Felt, reported from Germantown hospital—

"She had something to eat for the first time in days. She's stronger. Her condition is satisfactory."

'CONTEMPT' FOR KUHN

New York, Nov. 17—(AP)—District Attorney Thomas Dewey, called as a defence witness, testified today he felt "contempt" for Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader, on trial for the alleged theft of Bund funds.

Dewey was called as a witness in an attempt to support the defence assertion that the prosecution of Kuhn was a "persecution' based on politics and was for the purpose of "destroying him".

OWNER OF SHORTEST R.R. DIES

Cassville, Mo., Nov. 17—(AP) — David Dingler, 74, President and engineer of the shortest standard gauge steam railroad in the United States died yesterday. His Cassville and Exeter line is four miles long. The few passengers ride in the cab of an 1694 locomotive.

LAW VIOLATORS FINED $15,000

General Motors Corporation And Affiliates Charged With Violating Anti-Trust Law

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17—(AP) Judge Walter Lindley imposed fines of $5,000 each today on General Motors Corporation and three affiliates convicted last night by a jury of violating the Sherman Anti-trust law.

Prior to imposing the fines, the maximum provided by law, the judge overruled motions for a new trial and arrest of judgment.

The three affiliates convicted were General Motors Sales Corporation, General Motors Acceptance Corporation and General Motors Acceptance Corporation of Indiana.

The judge ordered that General Motors and General Motors Sales Corporation each pay half the costs of the prosecution.

Government lawyers hailed the conviction as a victory in the broad anti-monopoly drive of the government and a blow at the factory control of car financing.

SKELETON FOUND IN BUSH ON FARM

Disappearance of Indian Recluse May Be Solved By Discovery Near Mount Hope

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)— Mystery surrounding disappearance of an Indian recluse was believed to have been holved by the finding yesterday of a skeleton in a bush on the farm of S. B. Smith near Mount Hope.

Two Indians, Freeman and Joseph Smith, were trapping when they discovered the skeleton of an elderly man lying in a hollow. It was fully clothed with the exception of the shoes which were beside the remains.

Police believe the body to be that of John Jackson who vanished from the House of Providence, Dundas, about six months ago. Before that he lived in a tiny hovel in Hendrie's Creek, off the Lakeshore Highway. He was removed from his shack in an exhausted condition some months ago and taken to the House of Providence but later wandered away and was not seen again.

Dr. Jurben Lannin, coroner, is investigating.

CHARLES L. HYDE LIKELY TO RUN FOR MAYORALTY

Member of Board of Education And Former Alderman is Considering Question

WELL KNOWN IN CITY

In response to the requests of a number of friends and supporters that he offer his name in the forthcoming mayoralty contest, Mr. Charles Hyde of this city, is giving the matter his earnest consideration, he said today.

While he expressed appreciation of the honor, thus far he was undecided as to what course to take Mr. Hyde stated.

At present he is a member of the Board of Education on which he has served for a number of years. He has also had extensive experience in municipal matters.

Roosevelt Denies Finland Promised Economic Aid From U. S.

Hyde Park, N.Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Finland has a perfect right to borrow money from United States banks, President Roosevelt said today, but he told reporters there was nothing to stories that the Baltic Republic had stiffened her attitude toward Russia after obtaining promises of economic and financial aid from the United States.

No such help was promised, he said in response to questions.

Admonishing newsmen to check up on his memory, he added that the Finns sought a loan about two months ago for some specific purpose, perhaps for a railroad. They were referred to New York banks, he said. They have a pefect right to seek loans from the banks.

ARTHUR GREENWOOD IS ORDERED TO REST

London, Nov. 17 (CP)—Arthur Greenwood, Deputy leader of the opposition in parliament, was ordered by his physician today to make no more speeches this year, and to reduce his work.

Mr. Greenwood was placed under a strain during the illness of Clement Attlee, leader of the Opposition, who has now recovered. He made frequent weekend speeches in addition to his talks in parliament during the week.

BAD STOMACH
Pain Relieved

Perhaps there is a tip for you in the experience of Mrs. S. Villiers, who says: "I went to doctors and then a specialist, who, after X-ray, found a serious condition. Nothing seemed to relieve me until I started taking Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. I have known such pain that the relief I obtained makes me very grateful." Maclean Brand Stomach Powder contains four powerful alkalies in proper balance to combat excess acid. Pain is relieved and the digestive process helped back to normal. Be sure to ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which is only genuine if the signature "Alex. C. Maclean" appears on bottle and carton. Not sold loose, but only in bottles in cartons, of powder or tablets—at druggists—75c; family size, $1.75. 142

Picton Electors Will Not Vote on Gov't 2-Year-Term Proposal

Picton, Nov. 17—Due to lack of time to pass the necessary by-law, electors of Picton will not be called upon to express their opinion of the Ontario government's proposal for two year terms or longer for municipal council. At its meeting last night, the council was informed by the solicitor that there was not sufficient time to pass the by-law as three weeks were required. Council members, however, are still opposed to the plan.

Also due to lack of time to make a by-law legal, it was decided to drop the plan to have electors decide if a permit be granted James Livingstone to erect a gas station on the corner of Main and Chapel streets. Opposition arose due to the fact the proposed site was near the United Church.

However, if the council is not returned by acclamation, the electors will be asked if they approve or not of the proposal to observe daylight saving time for a period of five years. This by-law was passed at a previous session of council. If there is no election, then daylight saving time will not be observed unless the 1940 council so decides. Last year the electors voted in favor of its observance.

Ask For Curfew

Council heard a letter read from the Home and School Club asking that a curfew be enforced here as provided under the Children's Protection Act. Council decided to inform officers of their plan to enforce the section of the Act which required all children under sixteen to be at home by nine o'clock unless accompanied by a suitable guardian or parent. If the warning is unheeded the provisions of the section of the Act state that the parent who permits his child to violate the section of the Act is liable to a penalty of $1. for the first offense, $2 for the second and $5 for third, levied upon conviction.

A letter was read from seven guards at the town reservoir in which they regretted the wide publicity, that had been given the charge, that guards of the town reservoir had been discovered asleep, while on guard duty, and asked that the council have the Chief of Police, to whom the charge was attributed, attend and that the matter be aired. Frank Starr, a war veteran and one of the guards, stated that the men were those who understood guard duty and its responsibility as a result of service in the Great War. He felt they had not been treated fairly, and that if there had been any delinquency on the part of a guard or guards, that the guard should have been arrested and dismissed.

Councillor W. Henley stated, that the guards were all veterans and recommended by the Legion.

The guards further offered to supply Councillor Clifford Gerow with potatoes if he wished to try and throw them one by one into the reservoir without being detected as he had claimed he could do.

Councillor Gerow stated that the charge regarding the guards being asleep had been a repitition of police charges.

Councillor G. Ovens stated that since the Chief of Police could not be present owing to illness, further discussion would serve no good purpose, and the matter was dropped.

Royal Cards For Sailors, At Christmastide

London, Nov. 17 (CP Cable) — Men serving in the Canadian navy, as well as those in the British and other Dominion navies, will get Christmas cards from the King and Queen, the Admiralty announced today.

The Royal cards for the navy will be sent to all personnel serving in warships flying the White Ensign, including mine-sweeping and anti-submarine trawlers and armed merchant cruisers and to those serving in hospital ships and men ashore in hospital from ships of these types.

Truth for Ruth

By DAPHNE A. M'VICKER

"Give me," the pretty girl in the gray tweed suit ordered, "a head lettuce beanwich with baked sands."

The waiter stared. The other girl at the table choked. The one in the gray tweed was staring with smoky violet eyes at a couple that had just entered.

"Ruth," the second girl admonished, "come back to earth. The young lady," she added turning to the waiter, "wants a head lettuce sandwich with baked beans. And, my dear, even if Clayton Chambers is over there with another woman, you mustn't lapse into spoonerisms again."

The gray tweed girl flushed scarlet.

"Oh, Joyce, did I?" she wailed. "It's my mesetting sin. Whenever I get the least bit excited by words hop around into the wrong order and my initial letters turn somersaults. It's the reason I never could take dictation."

Then, seeing the significant glance from her friend at the words "get excited" she flushed rosily again. But she could not keep her eyes from the couple down the aisle and the man suddenly spied her. With an exclamation he sprang to his feet and came toward her.

"Miss Sinclair," he exclaimed. "What grand luck. Would you come over to be introduced to my mother? I've so hoped you two might meet."

A moment later, looking down into the pleasant patrician face of the older woman, Ruth felt her heart jump. If he wanted her to meet his mother, it must mean something, mustn't it?

Her dream had built a little brick cottage and installed the elderly woman in a chair in a sunny living room and all but tucked a grandchild on a stool at her feet when she finally smiled back into Joyce's knowing eyes and rose to go. The other couple had left first—the man was just helping his mother into a taxi.

He spoke to the taxi driver. And all the color left Ruth's face at the overheard words. Her eyes widened in amazed incredulity. Then, to everybody's astonishment, she stepped forward.

"J—just a moment," she said. "I—I'd love to have you come to see me, Mrs. Chambers. To stay for awhile and visit my mother and me."

The woman's face was perplexed.

"That would be very nice," she said distantly. "Good afternoon, Miss Sinclair."

The telephone in the Sinclair hall was never quite silent. A romping flock of brothers and sisters all had their own calls.

For many, many days, there was no call like that.

Then finally one day there was such a call. But the voice that answered was a strange one.

"Yes?" it said. "Mr. Chambers? Why thank you, I'm so sorry but I have an engagement. Yes, tomorrow, too. Yes, every evening next week."

But on one of those evenings the engagement seemed to be with the apple tree in the garden. She was perched on one of the lower limbs, swinging her feet idly. And she slid down in vast confusion when the gate clicked.

"Mr. Chambers—"

"In person," he answered, unsmiling. "Miss Sinclair, I had to see you. I just located your house this evening—I had been looking for you on this street in town; I didn't know you lived in a suburb. I know you don't want to see me but I talked to your friend and she says she's sure there's some misunderstanding."

Purple twilight was laying a soft curtain about the wide yards and pleasant vistas of the little suburb. It reflected in Ruth's dreamy eyes.

"But why did you wait so long before calling?"

The man flushed. "It's an asinine thing to say—but I was a little surprised at your being so enthusiastic over my mother—on such short acquaintance."

Ruth nodded. "You thought I was chasing you? And when you found I didn't want to see you, you thought it was a better game than you'd supposed? Well—" She whirled to look directly at him. "Well, I didn't like what I heard you say to the taxi driver. You spend money very freely, Mr. Chambers. You have the name of being a very successful business man. So I was a little surprised to hear you tell the driver to take your mother to the Old Ladies' Home. That was why I asked her out—a foolish gesture, but I made it."

Clayton Chambers stood still, his face a blur of astonishment. Then he suddenly gave a roar of laughter. He seized Ruth by the arm and led her to the street. He pointed at a sign in the window of the white house next door.

"What does that say?"

Ruth stammered a little. "Tombs for Rurists—"

The arm went on around her.

"You little nut! Your friend told me about that way you have of tangling up your sentences. 'Tombs for Rurists', indeed! I didn't know you could even hear cockeyed. My mother has not lived in the city for some years. The taxi driver is an old employee of ours. And what I said was this—" He shook her a little. "Now listen carefully. 'Jones,' I said, 'take her to the lady's Old Home.'"

"Ruth," her sister's voice demanded a moment later, "what is that man doing?"

Ruth's answer was prompt.

"Missing Key," she said, dimpling.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was on my stummick reading Fred Feernot Between Two Fires, and pop said, Haven't you any lessens to do young man?

Yes sir, some, I said, and he said, Then suppose you do them first and get your reading in later, if any. Do you know what procrastination means? he said, and I said, Yes sir, it means never wasting time.

Well to be alitely more explicit it means never wasting an opportunity to waste time, pop said. It's an art, in a way, but it's not one of the higher arts, and so many experts have mastered it already that there is practically no future in it for a newcomer. So you'd better stick to the good old platinum rule of never putting off till the next chapter what can be done at the end of the present sentence, wich happens to be right now, he said, and I said, G, pop if this was only New Year's I'd make a New Year resolution to always get my homework done before I even open a lyberry book.

Every day is New Year's day if you only see it in the proper spirit, pop said. A year from today will be the 17th of November, just exactly one year later so, if you look at it like that, to all intents and purposes today is New Year's day, isn't it? he said, and I said, G, sure.

Then how about making the resolution today, New Year's day November the 17th, pop said, and I said, Only G, pop if today's New Year's it wont seem naturel unless last week was Chrissmas and if it was I didn't get any present, and I'm one of the only fellows that hasn't got a cowboy outfit.

And that's the way you're going to remain, now for Peet sake do your lessens and do them now, pop said.

Wich I did.

Pains That Puzzle

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

Q. What is the mechanism of pain in a tooth on the contact of sweets?

A. This is a fact but it is without any very definite explanation. Of course, it means that there is a cavity in the tooth. Contact with sweets does not cause pain in the case of an intact tooth. We must assume that the nerve endings which are exposed in the dentine of a cavity are sensitive to the chemical stimulus of sweets. The enamel overlying the dentine of the tooth acts as a protector, and if the tooth is exposed close to the gum margin where the enamel stops, pain will be caused in this fashion.

It is, of course, easy to explain the effect of temperature, hot liquids, or cold liquids, upon tooth pain.

Under any circumstances, the pain is a protective device of nature and means: Go see your dentist.

Aching Corns When it Rains

Q. Why do corns hurt during damp or rainy weather?

A. The relation of barometric pressure to pains of the joints and of calluses, such as corns and scars is principally due to changes in the caliber of the blood vessels and to changes in blood pressure at this time.

In a series of about 1,000 rheumatic patients, this symptom was acknowledged in over 80 per cent.

Value of Bacon for Babies

Q. Is bacon good or bad for babies, or does it make any difference?

A. Children's doctors and mothers are likely to advise the addition of a little bacon to the diet of babies and small children. Hygeia, the official journal of the American Medical Association, recently asked several children's doctors whether this was a good practice. Their replies were as follows:

"There is no adequate explanation for the common practice of adding bacon to the diet of babies."

"If it is done, as is commonly said, to give the baby something to chew on, other articles of diet could be used to better advantage, such as toasted bread crusts or zweibach."

"The use of bacon in the diets of babies and small children was for many years a fairly common practice among doctors, but I think it has pretty well died out. It is a little difficult to tell why it had so long a popularity."

"Bacon contains no nutritional factor besides the fat and protein."

"The old-fashioned bacon rind that some babies got in a certain strata of society is fortunately no longer encountered and I believe had no real standing with physicians."

Mrs. J. M.: Is it all right to give beer to a baby from six months until he is several years old? My baby is nine months old, and I have refused to let him have any. My mother-in-law says that it will not hurt him, as it will only to make him sleep.

A. Good heavens, no! It is not all right to give a baby, six months old, beer; nor six years old. It is very bad. A baby, nine months old will sleep all right, and beer will just make it sleep an unnatural, profound sleep. I think a good, old-fashioned mother-in-law fight, so that she would stay away for a year, would do your household good.

M. H.: What is the average or normal blood pressure of a person at the age of 21?

A. The systolic pressure—that is, when the heart is in contraction—should be from 100 to 120. The diastolic—when the heart is opening or in relaxation—should be 70 to 80. The figures refer to millimeters of mercury pressure. There is no definite normal; the blood pressure, like every functioning thing in the body, changes.

Windsor S. S. Bd. Hopes To Negotiate Agreement With Bd. of Education

Windsor, Ont., Nov17—(CP)—J. A. Kennedy, Chairman of the Windsor Separate School Board, returned from Toronto today and said Provincial Government officials are in favor of the board's attempt to have the Ford motor assessment case settled out of court through a compromise.

A letter will be forwarded immediately to the Windsor Board of Education, asking for negotiations for an agreement to end the case. That already has gone to the Supreme Court of Canada, Kennedy said.

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Provincial Minister of Education, told the chairman of the Separate School Board he considered the proposal to settle the litigation over assessments by compromise as "good business," Kennedy said. Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs, said he hopes the compromise proposal is successful.

The Supreme Court of Canada awarded the Separate School Board here $1,250,000 or 18 per cent of the Ford Motor Company's assessment. The Separate School Board indicated this week it would be prepared to settle for a smaller amount if the Board of Education were prepared to waive its right to appeal to the Privy Council.

The Separate School Board asked Mr. Cross if his department would supply a mediator in the event that the Board of Education here agreed to the principle of settling the dispute by compromise. Kennedy said that while he did not promise that assistance, he said his department would co-operate in every possible manner.

DIRT'S WORST ENEMY

THE RUNAWAY

Kathleen Norris

"No, you'll do that! You'll just say casually, 'I'm going to ask you to let me rearrange the table, Mrs. Lee. It seems that Barbara met a man you used to know in Paris'—be sure you don't mention that he was in Hawaii!—'and I'm putting him up near me.' You'll do that, won't you? I mean sort of encourage him along, and tell him how domestic I am, and how different from modern girls!"

"Doesn't he like modern girls?"

"My dear, I'm so desperate to find out what he does like and what he doesn't that I'm dizzy! To see him walking across the room at the Park Lane—it was enough to drive the breath right out of your body! He's an artist, you know," said Barbara.

"Artistic, do you mean? Or really an artist?"

"Really and truly an artist, studying at the Beaux Arts."

INSTALMENT 20

"His uncle's an artist—Fox, Duane Fox," Barbara said. "Larry's an orphan, the darling, and lives with his uncle in a place called Foxaway. Isn't that adorable, Becky? It's a barn, the most adorable old place—rocks and long roofs; he had a picture of it. They work there together. Here's mother; I've got to go dress."

Barbara vanished as the older woman came in. As Mrs. Lee talked about the final arrangements, Becky made a little ejaculatory sound.

"I forgot! Barbara met a man she used to know in Paris, today, and asked him to dinner. I must send word to Bonaficio to put an extra place."

"Oh, I hope it wasn't that Moulton man!" Harriet Lee said.

"I'm afraid it was. You don't like him?"

"I don't like him to like her," the other woman said, accenting the pronouns. "Otherwise he's a charming man. Handsome. Stunning. But he hasn't a penny, and Barbara's twenty-four, and it's high time she made up her mind, especially as Pedar—" Harriet's voice dropped to a cautious note. "Pedar is wild about her," she said.

"Perhaps he's in a profession that makes money?" Becky suggested.

"Painter!" Barbara's mother answered scornfully. "Wants to do portrait work. I wish to goodness she wouldn't pick up such freaks," she said regretfully. "First she got hold of a Roumanian prince or something, and then...."

Becky sat half listening, her eyes on fire. Gibbs had tired now, and when Stephen Dinsmore came in the small boy went to him and climbed on his knee.

"You're too tired to hold that baby," Becky protested. But the doctor, without a word, sent her the glance that told her he was utterly content to feel the small head resting against his shoulder, the small fingers in his.

Then Carris-Sis came for Gibbs, and Harriet went away, and Becky and the doctor sat in a dreamy peace, with only the firelight and the glow of one dim lamp to break the comfortable darkness. Winds continued to blow fiercely out in the wintry night.

"No Decembers like this in California, Becky. You're happy here, my dear?"

"Happy! I'm in heaven." The sensitive, earnest face she turned to him was very lovely.

"What's the plan now?" Dinsmore asked after a pause.

"I don't know, exactly. If I went home it would be to just the old situation," Becky said. "It's for my mother that I'd go back. She knows I love her, she knows nothing will change me. But she probably wants to see Gibbs."

"You've written her?"

"Only twice. Once from Chicago, not telling her what I was doing, or that I was on my way to New York. Just to reassure her. And then the day after we came here I wrote and had Hatsy mail it from Boston. I knew it would be safer with that postmark."

"You're so much afraid of your husband's following you?"

Becky was silent staring into the fire.

"I wish you would stay here," the doctor said. "We go down to Florida next week. I'll be there only a week, but Harriet and the girls will stay on for a while. Gibbs will fatten up in no time, and you'll like it. And when you come back I wish you'd stay on here.

"In that case you might have your mother and father come on here," he presently resumed. After a moment he added, "Why don't you telephone your mother. Are you involved in this party tonight?"

"Mrs. Lee and I are at the table, and Barbara has commissioned me to amuse a certain man that she likes, until she is free to take him on."

"Well, come up to my study about ten. It'll be only seven o'clock out in California then; it won't frighten your people."

"Mother'll be doing the dishes with Sophy, and the boys doing homework!" Becky exclaimed, her heart warmed with the mere mention of the names. "Oh, Doctor — to heart them....But I can't believe it! Tonight—just whatever they're doing...."

"Well, here's where I make good my escape!" The man was on his feet as a jumble of loud and cheerful voices surged in from the hall. The company was arriving.

Becky did not really notice Laurence Moulton until just before supper, when everyone was churning about the long table finding place cards, and she saw a tall, lean, nice-looking fellow moving away in the wrong direction.

"Mr. Moulton? Are you Mr. Moulton? If you are, you're right here." Becky laughed at his frankly disappointed face. "Yes, Barbara's way down the other end. And as you are the last comer, you are put down here below the salt."

He was looking at her intently. "And who are you?" he asked flatly.

He was the sort of man who could speak thus flatly, the sort of man all women trusted instantly, liked instantly. He was a gentleman; his hands, his voice, his manner, the way his clothes rode his lanky tall figure all said that, and yet there was somehow a suggestion of hoosier strength and bigness and leanness about him, infinitely likable. His hair was the tawny color of Becky's own, but without the gold lights that danced in her loose waves and scrools, his voice was delightful, his eyes a clear gray; altogether his face had something lumpy, homely, angular, fascinating in its contours that added up almost into fine looks.

"Rebecca Gibson, visiting here," she said.

"Miss Gibson, as one old married woman to another—"

"Married?" he asked, surprised.

"Married, and with a boy racing around to three."

"How definitely disgusting," observed Laurence Moulton.

"Try to bear it," said Becky, busy with turtle soup.

"Old friend of the family?"

"I feel as if I were. As a matter of fact my small boy was one of Doctor Dinsmore's patients, and Mrs. Lee invited us to stay here while he was getting well."

She turned to the man on her other side.

"Here's a funny thing," Laurence said, recapturing her attention. "I never saw you until tonight, did I?"

"I don't suppose so."

"But I've seen you somewhere. Been in France? Honolulu?"

"Never. California, and then New York City, and then here. I was a saleswoman in the little girl's dresses in Rheingolder's. Have you any little girls?"

"Not that small. I begin on the seventeen sizes. But I've seen you somewhere with a bang."

"Why with a crash?"

"No, no, I mean the other kind of bang, hair down in a fringe into your eyes. You'd look cute that way, by the way."

"Cute!" said Becky, squaring her fine slender shoulders, arching her brown rounded throat. "The cute female giant."

"You're the perfect height. You're just about up to my heart."

"Hold everything!" Becky said, laughing. She turned away again, devoting herself to the rich, rather uninteresting husband of one of the brilliant women present. Presently Laurence pulled at her sleeve peremptorily.

"Listen, do you like that lad?" he demanded plaintively. "Have you ever seen him before tonight?"

"I've never seen you before tonight," Becky reminded him.

"That's a very different thing. Tell me, are these Lees rich?"

"Very rich," Becky answered, thinking less of him for the question.

"I didn't know that," he said with an honest, baffled note in his voice that did something to restore him to her favor.

"Well, when people travel in Europe and go to Honolulu for months at a time...." she offered significantly.

"I suppose so. She acts like a person who's always had too much, too," Laurence mused. "Ha! But then who's Dinsmore? She said 'my uncle's place.' I didn't know but what he was taking care of them."

"No, they have two or three places of their own. A camp in the Adirondacks, an apartment in Baltimore, and a farm somewhere."

Laurence Moulton looked at her spectulatively before he said, "Is your husband here?"

"No, he's in California."

"Divorced?" Laurence asked with so simple a note of hope in his tone that Becky laughed in spite of a little sense of vexation and confusion.

"Oh no. Things—things got a little difficult," Becky confessed, "and I ran away. I'd run away to get married, and this time I ran away from marriage. I'm a terrible coward, I suppose," she added lightly, "but there seems to come moments when anything is better than facing the music. Edifying, isn't it?"

"I dare say it seemed sound at the time," the man observed pleasantly. "You'd lived in California?"

"All my life until two years ago."

"San Francisco?"

"Not very far from it. Off toward the northeast, toward the mountains."

"God, I love those mountains!" he said.

"I love them too. Hillmen desire their hills," Becky said.

"Kipling."

"Do you like Kipling?"

"No, I couldn't say that. Not like, Adore," Laurence answered soberly. Becky's eyes brightened.

"Oh, I'm so glad you do! I've battened on him all my life. Mother bought Daddy a set at some sale two years ago, when someone died and left a lot of books, and I've worn them thin. Do you know ...."

They could not match quotations fast enough; the minutes flew. Becky was only aroused to a sense of time when the whole group suddenly rose and began to stream toward the game room, where backgammon and domino tables had been set out, the billiard table uncovered, the slot machines supplied with slugs, the fire piled high.

She lost Laurence deliberately in the confusion, and ran upstairs to look at Gibbs, and to cross the upper hall to the study. Stephen Dinsmore was alone under a cone of green light, working at some papers against which little tufts of green and red silk and tiny curves of wire were visible.

"Nothing important!" he said as she hesitated in the doorway.

"Ever do any fishing?"

"Lots. In the river and up at the lake. The river is only a stream. You keep crossing and recrossing it," Becky said, "but it's great fun."

"Trout?"

"And salmon trout. And bass, if you go down as far as the bay. But I've never done any bass fishing. My father does.

They laughed together.

"What's your home telephone number, Becky?"

"Salletts 83. It seems so funny to be saying it again!"

He had the telephone in his hand. "Salletts 83; it's California," he said. "One special person, I suppose? Your mother?"

"Mr. or Mrs. Spencer Gibson." She was trembling, lights flickering through eager tears in her gold-brown eyes.

WAS VICTIM OF GASSY STOMACH

Mr. Marcuz Suffered After Every Meal — Had Sharp Pains Across Back Due to Sluggish Kidneys — Now Mosby's Tonic Has Given Him Relief and He Feels Like Himself Again.

Some of the Best-Known People of this Section are praising and endorsing Mosby's Tonic. This

MR. PRIMO MARCUZ

New, Scientific Medicine is now being introduced to the public daily in this city at Lattimer's Drug Store, your Tamblyn Dealer, 228 Front Street. Just a few days ago, Mr. Primo Marcuz, of 966 Pierre Ave., Windsor, Ont., made the following statement. Mr. Marcuz is employed at the Ford Motor Co., and his Grateful Testimonial about Mosby's Tonic reads as follows:

Food Soured, Fermented Caused Gas Bloating

"I had become a regular victim of stomach gas and sluggish kidneys," said Mr. Marcuz. "I had such an upset stomach that everything I ate would sour and ferment in my stomach and I would fill up with loads of gas. I was afraid to eat because of the gas pains I always suffered afterward. My kidneys were so sluggish that I was subject to sharp pains across my back. Also had chronic constipation.

"Well, that's the condition I was in, and I certainly was a discouraged person, for I tried about every medicine I heard of and never got any real results from anything. Then one day I read about Mosby's Tonic and what it was doing for so many people. I got it and now I want to say that it has done me more good than all the other medicines I took put together. It cleared the gas and sourness from my stomach so that I can eat without distress now. It also relieved those pains in my back and regulated my bowels. I can't praise Mosby's Tonic enough after what it did for me, and I gladly give you my statement and urge others, who suffer like I did, to get this splendid Medicine and take it."

Many Ingredients!

Mosby's Tonic is a medicine of many Ingredients, that is, it contains 15 roots and herbs blended with 5 other splendid medicaments. 20 INGREDIENTS IN ALL. That is why this medicine acts in 5 ways ALL AT ONCE. It helps flush bowels —helps clean out stomach gas—aids digestion —helps sluggish kidneys—assists you to Richer and Stronger Blood. Try this New, Scientific Formula. It is helping THOUSANDS of sufferers all over this vicinity. Costs only a Few Cents a Day!

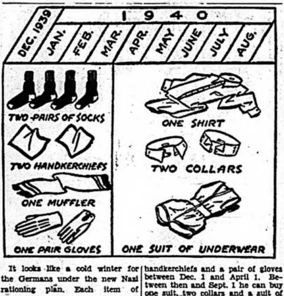
The stirring battle screech of the pibroch and the rattle of the war drums wake echoes in the rain-drenched street of a little French town as British Tommies in column threes are "piped" to the front by a band of highland pipers. Bicycle troops lead this rain-cloaked column in its move up to the front. Day after day sees the advance of similar columns of British troops through similar little French towns as Britain mans her section of the line facing against Germany.

Wang already has been branded a traitor by Chinese loyal to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, and his life is forfeit should he ever fall into Chiang's hands.



It looks like a cold winter for the Germans under the new Nazi rationing plan. Each item of clothing is valued in units, and ration cards containing 100 units must last a year. A man is permitted two pairs of socks, two handkerchiefs and a pair of gloves between Dec. 1 and April 1. Between then and Sept. 1 he can buy one suit, two collars and a suit of underwear. If he buys more than two pairs of socks, he must forego something else. A shirt counts 20 units.

TRIO ARE HELD AT NORTH BAY

Kitchener Men Arrested After 90-Mile-Hour Chase by Police

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 17—(CP)—Arrested last night following a 90-mile-an hour chase through North Bay streets and on the North Bay-Callander highway, Lorne Utly, Alfred Deitrich and Donald Boekler, all of Kitchener, Ontario, are in custody here as result of the alleged hold up of a Powassan service station last night. Utly and Deitrich are charged with robbery and Boekler with armed robbery.

The youths were arrested by Constable N. C. Small, N. Chartrand and L. Needham, of the Provincial Police on the highway a few miles south of the city. The trio were driving a car allegedly stolen in Kitchener. The arrest followed a holdup at Donald A. Cadden's service station near Powassan Thursday night, when gasoline, oil and cigarettes were taken.

Gun shots were fired as the police chased the stolen car. The youths were met by the officers a short distance south of the city and a chase ensued which took them into North Bay, around several city blocks and back onto the Callander highway. They finally stopped when Constable Chartrand fired at the tires of the speeding car. Because of the crooked highway and the traffic, the officers were unable to pass. Police said a toy gun and a mask were found on Boekler.

SPIES BEHEADED

Berlin, Nov. 17—(AP)—Three spies, convicted of treason for disclosing military secrets to a foreign intelligence service, were beheaded today.

Belgians Fire on German Plane

Brussels, Nov. 17—(AP)—Belgian air defence forces reported they had fired today at a Germain airplane about 16,000 feet over Ghent. The plane was believed not to have been hit.

A British plane landed on Belgian soil yesterday, and the three members of its crew were interned.

I Go to Church

By REV. B. S. MURRAY
(In Montreal Gazette)

I go to church because I am a members of the Long Procession of life. From my parents and grandparents I caught a desire to go to the House of Worship. From them I also learned that I needed a weekly encouragement to right living and always keep close to the Master of Life.

I go to church because I am an heir of the ages. Great men have sought and invariably found within the church's sphere the inescapable Christ. As His custom was, the Prince of Life reguarly attended religious worship whilst on earth and after He returned to His—and our—Father He assured us that where two or three are gathered together in His name there is He in the midst of them always. I could not do better than walk in His steps. From the dauntless, practical, myriad-minded Paul of the first century who urged us "not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together" in worship to the clergy and religious leaders of this century comes the same clarion call: Worship God.

I go to church to water that little plant named Reverence. In this hectic, baffling, out-of-joint era we need an "arrest" upon the fascination of the material. When I keep in touch with Him Who is the Way I cannot go astray but rather in His power—of which there is an inexhaustible, ample re-supply—I can do all things.

I go to church because I need her to show me the all-sufficient Father. Her aim is to make God real and present every man perfect (Col. 1:28). Of that mystical body I am a member. I must bear my witness, therefore, as I identify myself with her Founder in action, and try to make her mission, which is to awaken spiritual realities in the hearts of those dead to a sense of responsibility to God, fruitful. "Ye are my witnesses" was the Master's clarion call. As He still chooses to function through me I must therefore witness for Christ and the church till the end of the day.

Teaches Art of Good Living

I go to church to give and not to get. Her glorious history and great contribution to civilization thrills me. Within her scope the art of good living is taught, therein the making of spiritual character is directed, motives to do good work and lofty ideals are supplied. Our spiritual mother is the guardian and custodian for the maintenance, propagation and defence of the faith; she is the mother, too, of philantropy and all things good, beautiful and true. She needs me and I need her to save me from a colorless, insipid life and challenge me to attain to the life abundant. It is my privilege, therefore, to identify myself with her and support her with my interest, co-operation and offerings.

I go to church because I cannot afford to neglect her. I would not care to live in a churchless community, for soon there would be a loss of moral tone and earnest convictions. Loose notions and easy, worldly ways would soon capture me. Rather must I commit myself as a disciple and by daily witness enlarge, transform and change my environment until Christ reigns supremely as King. As an intelligent being I must follow her directions whose Founder is the Prince of Life.

I go to church to worship God, for I need Him always. As I worship in His house on His own day I find that awareness, that sense of the presence of God. Deep calls to deep. The finite is in touch with the infinite as I soar Godward, inward toward myself, outward toward my fellowmen. Never must I mistake polished eloquence, operatic singing and music, dramatic functions and the crowd for worship. The highest object of my reverence is God. In a nervous discontented, warring world we need a worshipping, prevailing, victorious church. Therefore I must take time to learn the art of worship and practice the presence of God in worship, regularly, earnestly, sincerely, endeavoring to identify myself completely with God in thought and purpose. Then will others catch the power of the living Christ and proclaim unceasingly and confidently His message. The living church needs worship and not entertainment; prayer rather than preachments; the Gospel and not substitutes. Many are they who say that they can worship effectively "out-of-doors," at home, anywhere but in church. One questions that! The spirit of man needs renewing but the oil of grace is not found in a gasoline station nor the soul restored in a repair shop. The church, the Body of Christ, with sacrament and prayer, "the means of grace" and all other possible aids, human and divine, stands ever tempted mortals to live good lives and save their souls in their bodies. If we obeyed the advice of the angel in Revelation to "worship God" we would be better Christians and Canadians.

I go to church in order that I may exercise my spiritual prerrogative as a man. Here I must think straight. One rarely neglects the physical. Provision is made for things mental and normal. It behooves me therefore not to neglect the spiritual, the permanent, the eternal. Experience has taught me that in the church's environment I may best develop myself, so I go regularly and rarely come away disappointed.

I go to church to receive inspiration and daily strength for daily need. With the sound of her voice I am challenged to straight thinking and noble living. I am aware of those who say that they find nothing in the church to interest and help them. Such are so consummately egotisical that nothing outside themselves will ever interest them. At any rate I will stand with and for the church, the pillar and ground of truth, a fountain of goodness, a source of beauty, and daily endeavor to help her attain that perfection which her Founder envisaged for her.

I go to church because I need the power of her living Lord to touch my heart to fine issues, to keep my conscience clean and brace me to live a true manly Christian life. "Behave thyself" is her war cry. With angels and archangels and all the heavenly host I worship Father, Son and Holy Ghost, chanting my "Te Deum Laudamus"— with its dream which I must help make a reality—"All the earth doth worship Thee, the Father everlasting." Lured by sustaining sacred Scripture, holy song and helpful friendship, but chiefly to worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness, I go to church.

JOE WRIGHT, JR., KEEPS FIT WITH KRUSCHEN

Recommends "The Little Daily Dose" to Others

KEEPS ME FEELING LIKE A MILLION DOLLARS

Here is what Joe Wright, Jr., Diamond Sculls winner and ex-Argo football star says about Kruschen Salts: "I realised the pitfalls of suddenly dropping out of active sport. I still take a fair amount of exercise but as a preventive against common ailments I depend a lot on my 'little daily dose' of Kruschen Salts every morning in a glass of water. I recommend it without hesitation."

Kruschen contains several highly refined salts, each for a special purpose. Potassium Chloride, for example, for rheumatic symptoms, as a means of retarding formation of harmful biurates in the tissues. Kruschen helps prevent sluggishness, acid indigestion, clears out poisons and imparts that priceless feeling of fitness that makes you enjoy every minute of the day. 25c, 45c, 75c at drug stores.

Banquet of Ontario Athletic Association Recalled by 1914 Menu

Like a spectre out of the dim past, bringing with it memories of those grand fellows who formed the Ontario Athletic Association a quarter-century ago, comes a yellowed ribbon-bedecked menu of a banquet of that Association held in the Hotel Quinte on December 26th., 1914.

The boys dined regally in those days, according to the second page of the old keepsake. There it states the tables were loaded with oyster cocktail, fillet of halibut, iced cucumbers, sweetbreads, Saratoga chips, roast turkey, asparagus tips, fruits, nuts and ice cream.

The toast list was an extensive one, and contained such names as W. Wallace, master of ceremonies, Charles Pearce, George Wardrope, Phil Harrison, Mackenzie Waters, W. McGie, Ernie Hagerman and others.

On the back pages of the menu are inscribed the signatures of many of Ontario's athletic great. Inscribed are the names of H. E. Alford, E. P. Chapman, E. G. Moore, Robt. D. Macaulay, R. J. Elliott, W. H. Wallace, A. H. Ketcheson, Gordon Reid, Jame Marshall, J. G. Patterson, R. White, D. G. Waters, Mick McCargar, W. C. Robb, Bob Graham, J. G. Caldwell, Ray A. Tuite, R. Hinch and many others.

Many of the old company have long since crossed the "Great Divide" while others are scattered to the far-flung sections of the Dominion.

The menu was sent to the office of The Ontario Intelligencer through the courtesy of Mr. Randolph Hinch, Toronto, himself a member of the Association in those days, and who was present at the banquet.

THREE MORE CZECHS SHOT BY NAZIS IN PRAGUE

Guilty of Acts Against a German Only Reason Given

Many Czechs Arrested And Three-Year Closing of Czech Academies Officially Announced

REIGN OF TERROR

Dr. Benes Says as Internal Situation in Germany Become Difficult, Reign of Terror Will Become More Brutal And Terrible

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP)—Execution of three more Czechs in Prague today, bringing to 12 the total of those shot in a two-day campaign to end "rebellious activities", was announced by German authorities.

The three shot today, two of them policemen, were declared "guilty of acts against a German." Identity of the third was not disclosed. All nine executed yesterday were students.

Authorities declined to divulge further details concerning the 12 who had paid the extreme penalty for demonstrating against German rule in the Reich's Boehmia-Moravia protectorate.

The power of the Nazi regime to deal with Czech disaffection was reported broadened by extension of German law against treason to Bohemia-Moravia, heart of the vanished Czecho-Slovia Republic.

Yesterday many Czechs were arrested and a three-year closing of Czech academies ordered. The nine students executed were charged with assaulting German citizens.

London, Nov. 18— (CP)—Eduard Benes, former President of Czecho-Slovakia, today said the execution of nine Czech students in Prague by the German Elite guard made it "clear to the whole world that there is a reign of unbearable terror in Czecho-Slovakia."

He said that as the internal situation of Germany becomes more difficult, this reign of terror gets "more brutal and terrible".

"The Czecho-Slovak nation never gave up, as history shows, to any regime of terror, and will not give up even now," Dr. Benes added. "What happened yesterday in Prague is supposed to be a retaliation for the celebration of the Czecho-Slovak Independence Day, but it was simply brutal assassination.

"Those responsible for this crime are those who issued the order to accomplish it. It is assassination which strangely deminds us of acts which happened in occupied Belgium during the last war.

"Naturally this crime will play in Czech public opinion the same part as the assassination of Miss (Edith) Cavell did on English opinion. The time will come when the nine executed citizens will be National Saints in Czecho-Slovaka.

"These events prove to the whole world that a free Czecho-Slovaka lives spiritually and morally. It is only a question of time, and rather a short time, before Czecho-Slovakia will be free politically and nationally."

TRIED TO RIDE HORSE

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP)—"He must have thought he was in the cavalry," commented Magistrate Glen Strike yesterday when he allowed suspended sentence to Gordon Brushey of the Royal Canadian Ordinance Corps on a charge of disorderly conduct. Brushey was arrested for trying to ride a milkman's horse at four o'clock in the morning.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Salt air! It is no hallucination when one stands on the seashore and thinks he is breathing in salt mixed with the air. The air there is really salty—strikingly so to the lands-man—because every time a wave breaks into spray some of it is evaporated, leaving tiny particles of salt to be scattered far and wide by the winds. These salt particles provide most excellent cores upon which the water vapor of the air may condense, as salt has a great affinity for water. Thus many a cloud droplet has salt for its core, which may be rained down and finally reach the ocean again.

YOUTHS BOOKED FOR VAGRANCY FOLLOWING DEATH

Police Suspect Myrtle Leonhardt of London Victim of Poisoning

DRANK LEMONADE

Dr. E. R. Frankish, Medico-Legal Expert Asked to Assist Investigation

London, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Two youths were booked on nominal charges of vagrancy today in connection with the death of Myrtle Leonhardt, 17 years old, suspected by police to have been a victim of poisoning.

The two held by police are Lawrence Leonhardt, 20, brother of the girl and Harvey Abel, 18, a friend of the Leonhardts. Parents of the dead girl are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leonhardt of this city.

The girl was taken ill suddenly Thursday night and died within two hours. Investigation by police and officials of the coroner's department turned up the fact that Miss Leonhardt had taken a glass of lemonade shortly before she became ill.

Last night it was learned that police were making an exhaustive investigation of the case and that following an autopsy, internal organs of the dead girl were sent to Toronto for analysis by Ontario government experts.

Asked to Assist

Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Attorney General's Department, has been asked to assist in the investigation.

A physician arrived at the Leonhardt home an hour after the girl became suddenly ill. Almost immediately he called in a colleague for consultation. After the girl died, the two communicated with Chief Coroner Dr. A. R. Routledge.

Detective Gavin Monahan and two provincial constables, Ben Milligan and Eric MacMillan, began questioning friends and relatives of the girl. As a result her brother Lawrence and Abel were taken into custody

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from the C. L. Evans Chapel to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Remanded Without Bail

Lawrence Leonhardt and Abel were arraigned before Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw in court this morning and remanded until next Friday without bail. They were not asked to plead on the vagrancy charges.

"Can't I get out to my sister's funeral?" asked Leonhardt. The Magistrate made no reply.

Decisions of Capital Importance Reached by Supreme War Council

London, Nov. 18 (CP)—The Daily Telegraph today described as of "capital importance" Friday's decisions by the Supreme War Council for common economic action by the Allies.

"Decisions of capital importance were reached at yesterday's meeting of the Supreme Council in London," The Daily Telegraph said editorially, "decisions which concerned not merely the general and military situation, but the strengthening and ordering of those economic resources which are the very sinews of war.

"Such a comprehensive alliance was indeed effected in the four years' war, but not until that struggle had been raging for three years. It now is to come into operation in less than three months from the opening of hostilities."

The concerted action will make Great Britain and France "partners in the same trading firm," the paper said. They will enter world markets as a single entity and thus command more favorable terms by their ability to place larger orders, it added.

Transport Facilitated

"It is contemplated that the range of the agreement already reached may be still further extended in the light of experience, but already it covers air, munitions and other war materials, oil, food, shipping and plans of economic warfare" The Telegraph said.

"Transport will also be much faciliated, for the convoy system will be easier to work and it voyages will be more rapid. As a consequence valuable shipping space will be saved and a present handicap to export trade will be removed."

The Allied economic co-operation, the newspaper said, might well become the foundation for organization of peace when the war is won, since any enduring settlement would have to have a solid economic basis. At any rate the new system, so "far reaching and vital, is bound to have an influence far beyond the emergency which has called it into being.

The Daily Herald called the economic alliance "another important step towards victory in this war!"

"The economic strength of ourselves and our French Allies is one of the most formidable of the weapons we possess in this war against Hitlerism," said The Herald. "We can be sure that there will be no wastage of strength through dissipated effort."

Nazi Treason Law Imposed on Czech Provinces

POOLING BY ALLIES OF ALL RESOURCES IS GREATEST STEP

Britain and France Will Reap Benefits of Bulk Purchases and Eliminate Competition

FULL ALLIANCE

Economic Organization Will Hasten Victory and Improve Economic Situation of World

London, Nov. 18 (CP) — British spokesmen today said that the decision of the Inter-Allied War Council to pool British and French economic resources was the most important step taken in the economic field since the war began.

It was stated Great Britain and France will reap the benefits of bulk purchases and eliminate the possibility of bidding against each other, since nations exporting food, raw materials and manufactured products will deal with a single organization for the two allied nations.

The program also will facilitate transportation and delivery, it was stated.

Common Action.

1. To establish joint committees to assure common action in aviation, munitions and war materials, oil, food, shipping and economic warfare.

WOMAN DIES AFTER EXPLOSION

Wife of President of Macassa Mines Suffers Heart Attack in Home

Toronto, Nov. 18—(CP)—An explosion in an electric refrigerator and the subsequent excitement is blamed for the death today of Mrs. Robert A. Bryce, wife of the President of the Macassa Mines Co., Ltd, at her home here.

Mrs. Bryce was upstairs when the explosion occurred. She went into the basement and collapsed. She was suffering from a heart condition and the shock of the explosion and hurrying downstairs was too much for her.

Firemen worked over Mrs. Bryce with an inhalator for more than half an hour without success.

The explosion was believed to have been caused by a spark from the refrigerator motor.

Mrs. Bryce moved into her new home about two months ago. Coroner Dr. Julian Loudon pronounced death due to heart failure.

FRENCH TROOPS 'DIGGING IN' EAST OF MOSELLE RIVER

Take Advantage of Lull on Western Front to Improve Emplacements

PLENTY OF FLYING

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP)—French troops were reported today by the German news agency to be digging in east of the Moselle River during a lull in fighting on the western front.

Emplacements for long range artillery have been constructed by the French in this sector, the agency said.

The entire northern end of the front from the Moselle to the Rhine was reported quiet yesterday except for occasional artillery fire at isolated points. The upper Rhine also was quiet save for intermittent French machine-gun fire directed against the German bank near Breisach.

German scouting planes, the agency claimed, yesterday penetrated into France as far as Bordeaux and executed reconnaissance missions over the Shetland and Orkney Islands. It further claimed that three British planes, which the Germans assumed had intended to attack the naval base at Wil-

FIRST DIVISION TO GO OVERSEAS AS FIGHTING UNIT

1914 Contingent Went to England For Training and Organization

NAVY TO ASSIST

By FRANK FLAHERTY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP)—When the time comes for the First Division of the Canadian Active Service Force to go overseas old soldiers of 1914-18 will recall the departure of first contingent of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First Great War. They rank alike as great gestures of empire solidarity.

This First Division of the army Canada is readying has been so constituted that at embarkation time it will move in fighting formation, however much its training and polishing before it takes its place in the theatre of war. Different was the 1914 contingent which went to England for training and organization.

On its arrival in England that first body of Canadian troops came under the command of British Officer, Lt.-Gen. E. A. H. Alderson. It was not for some months that out of it a fighting division was organized and permanent divisional, brigade and battalion officers appointed.

Daily War Survey

(By The Canadian Press)

The marriages of Kings may still be a factor in European policies. In an earlier day wars were sometimes avoided and sometimes caused by the relationships between different royal families.

Yesterday came word from Brussels to the effect Italy and Spain had made representations to Germany in favor of the continued neutrality of Holland and Belgium. This dispatch recalls the hurried visit of King Leopold of Belgium to Queen Wilhelmina of Holland last week and the subsequent abatement in the alarm felt for a time about German intentions towards Holland and Belgium.

King Leopold's sister is married to the Crown Prince of Italy. The Belgian King is considered one of the best informed men in Europe by reason of his connection with the Italian royal family and the friendly relations he maintains with other Kings such as Boris of Bulgaria and Carol of Rumania.

It is not improbable the King learned something from his sources of information which he felt bound to impart to the Queen of Holland without delay. Perhaps it was a warning. Perhaps it was a suggestion that by taking a certain course he might avert danger. The fact that the prospect of a German invasion of Holland was mentioned in the strictly controlled Italian press is also not without its significance.

While Italy has not actively supported its axis partner in the present war and, again according to the controlled Italian press, reacts unfavorably to Germany's alliance with Communist Russia, against which both countries were once pledged to fight, Premier Mussolini and his government still remain benevolently neutral with regard to Germany.

Italian ports provide Germany with access to Mediterranean trade routes. It would hardly pay Germany to take a course which would incur Italian hostility.

Survivors of Tanker Identify Raider As Admiral Scheer

London, Nov. 18—(CP)—A Reuters news agency dispatch from Lourenco Marquez, Portuguese East Africa, said today that survivors of the British tanker Africa Shell had identified the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer as the raider which sank their vessel.

The 706-ton Africa Shell was sunk Wednesday in Portuguese waters off the coast of Mozambique. Reuters said survivors identified the Admiral Scheer from photographs.

Whereabouts of the Admiral Scheer had been the subject of speculation since Sept. 30, when the raider was reported to have sunk the British steamship Clement off the coast of Brazil. It had been considered possible that the rocket battleship since had rounded Cape Horn into the Pacific Ocean.

GERMAN AIRCRAFT WERE DRIVEN OFF BRITISH ISLES

None of The Planes Dropped Bombs And No Damage Was Inflicted

OVER VAST AREA

London, Nov. 18 (CP)—German aircraft were driven off England, Scotland and Wales yesterday without dropping bombs or inflicting any damage.

Anti-aircraft gunfire and shrill sirens sent civilians scurrying to shelter in four European countries Friday as German planes covered thousands of miles in their most extensive scouting flights since the outbreak of war.

Anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on the Nazi squadrons in Great Britain, France and Belgium and the alarms were sounded in seven districts of Switzerland.

In Many Localities.

The German planes were sighted in localities within a vast area stretching from Switzerland to Western England and from the Shetland Islands to the Mediterranean.

Propaganda pamphlets written in French and containing bittel attacks on Britain were dropped in France and Switzerland but no bombing attacks were carried out by the planes.

Thirteen cities in England, Scotland and Wales had alarms and a

"AIR COLLEGES" FOR THE EMPIRE TO OPEN SOON

Organization Details And Means of Financing Project Nearly Completed

1,500 PLANES ORDERED

Approximately 5,000 Planes Will be in Use Training Pilots For War Service

By WALLACE WARD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Nov. 18—(CP)— Classes in Canada's "air colleges" endowed to train the young men of the British Empire how to fly and fight, will open within a few months, it was learned today.

Representatives of Canada, Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand have about completed organization details as well as arrangements for financing the giant training project, and a general description of the plan is expected to be announced next week.

An initial order for 1,500 advanced training planes has already been placed with a United States manufacturing firm, it was reliably reported, and approximately 5,000 aircraft will be in constant flight from about three score airport 'campuses' by the time the air training scheme is in full swing.

Diplomas for graduates of the air colleges will take the form of Royal Air Force wings attached to the tunics of fledgling flying men from all over the Empire.

JAPANESE TAKE A WALLED TOWN

Little Resistance Encountered in 50-Mile Advance From Southern Coast

Honk Kong, Nov. 18 — (AP) — Japanese Campaign Headquarters on Dragon's Head Island in the Gulf of Tonking reported today that a drive aimed at Southwestern Chinese Supply Routes to French Indo-China and Burma had penetrated Kwangsi Province and captured a walled town thirty miles from Nanning, the Provincial capital.

The Japanese indicated little resistance was encountered in the 50-mile advance from the Southern coast. Earlier today they had announced occupation of Yamhsien, a city in Western Kwangtung Province near the Kwangsi border.

They said Chinese forces left the city and its 20,000 civilians undefended. Yamhsien is forty-five miles northwest of Pakhoi, treaty port on the Gulf of Tonking, and about thirty miles inland from where the Japanese landed Wednesday under covering fire from warships.

Chinese Government sources acknowledged that the Japanese had advanced thirty miles since Wednesday and that they had approached Yamhsien. They declared however, that the Chinese retreat was pre-arranged to lure the invaders from the coastal plain to the more easily defended hills of the interior.

KILLED BY TRANSPORT

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) — Mrs. Lewis Fisher, 18 Victoria St., Ingersoll, and Bernard Moore, same address, were killed early this morning east of Ingersoll when their car collided with a transport truck driven by Romeo Ouellette, 1238 McEwan Avenue, Windsor.

Lewis Fisher, husband of the dead woman, is in hospital with serious lacerations about the head.

Hamburgers Go High Hat as Heiress Entertains Orchid Set for Debutante

Philadelphia, Nov. 18—(AP) — Hamburgers went high hat and a bandage peeped from the guest of honor's blond bangs as 200 of the orchid set danced till dawn today at a birthday party given by Doris Duke Cromwell, the tobacco heiress, for a debutante injured in an automobile accident.

The story going round was that the bandaged "bud" Peggy Anne Huber of the "air line" Hubers, left a sick bed for her 18th birthday party and would enter a hospital afterwards for a skin-grafting operation.

Champagne flowed at a large square bar but the counter attraction was a hamburger dispensary, rigged up as a roadside diner in a setting of transplanted trees and hedges. Inside were a short-order cook, entertainers and plenty of catsup.

The Cromwells invited 250 and paid out about $25,000 to entertain Peggy Anne and her friends.

Treasonable Actions, Broadly Defined, Punishable in Extreme Cases by Death — Action Taken After Nine Students Executed

DR. E. HACHA ILL

President of Shrunken Czecho-Slovak Republic Succeeded Dr. Benes And His Life May be in Jeopardy Due to Interest in Native Land

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP)—Nazi officials, spurred by "rebellious activities" in the Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, were reported today to have followed up the execution of nine Prague students by clamping German laws against treason on the provinces of dismembered Czecho-Slovakia.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said Nazi treason law had been imposed "in addition to the old Czech law for defence of the republic."

Invocation of the German treason law, which was enacted in the Reich April 24, 1934, would give the Nazi authorities extensive power in dealing with the situation in the protectorate. Treasonable actions, which are broadly defined, are punishable by severe penalties and in extreme cases by death.

48 U. S. SHIPS DETAINED IN WAR

Great Britain Responsible For Stopping 33 Ships Since War Started

Washington, Nov. 18—(AP)—The State Department today reported 48 cases in which belligerents detained United States ships for examination of papers or cargo since the outbreak of war.

Of the total detentions, Great Britain was responsible for 33, France for 10, Germany for four and an unidentified vessel for one.

The report included information received between Sept. 1 and Nov. 17. Forty-four ships were detained, but four of these were stopped twice.

In most cases, the department reported, American ships were not stopped by warships on the high seas but were detained when they docked at belligerent ports. A departmental statement said:

"As a general practice, for reasons of their own, the vessels which cleared from ports of the United States on or before Nov. 4, the effective date of the neutrality act of 1939, ordinarily put into belligerent ports enroute to their destinations, and the principal difficulty thus far has arisen in connection with delay involved in the examination of the vessels and their cargoes before being permitted to proceed on their voyages.".

A CONSTANT REMINDER

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 18 (AP)—The old fashioned, long-time courtship has not gone entirely out of fashion. Fay Smith and her mother walked into the auditor's office and dumped 450 pennies on the counter. They represented 450 visits by her intended, Ernest Faler. "Every time he came to call he left a penny to pay for the licence," she explained.

ROSEBERY'S TUTOR WINS STAKE RACE

Manchester, Nov. 18—(CP Cable)—The Earl of Rosebery's three-year-old Tutor today won the Manchester November Handicap, bringing to a close the English flat-racing season. Lady Nuttall's Wayward Miss was second and the Marquess of Zetland's Bienn Dearg third.

Tutor, at 9 to 2, won by four length, with a head separating Wayward Miss and Beinn Dearg. Wayward Miss started at 10 to 2 and Beinn Dearg at 100 to 6.

Manufacturers Insured Against Early End of War

London, Nov. 18—(CP)— Some London underwriters are insuring British manufacturers against an early end to the war at the rate of 10 per cent a month of the value of the stocks insured, well informed circles in the city said today.

They explained that [illegible] are anxious in case an armistice should leave them with lar[illegible] of war goods on their hands. Some underwriters therefore have agreed to insure fully the stock of any merchant or producer against the war coming to an end before Dec. 31. The charge for this insurance is 10 per cent of the value of the stock

CITY and DISTRICT

NOVEL FEATURE IN THIS ISSUE

A novel feature appears on page three of this issue. The announcement of an outstanding picture at one of the local theatres for next week is accompanied by special advertisements from many Belleville shops.

This type of advertising "tie-up" has been proven in other centres to be of particular value, both in interesting the public in the motion picture and in the shops which align themselves with the announcement. No doubt this advertising plan will prove equally effective in Belleville.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CANCELS ANNUAL TOY DISTRIBUTION

The annual collection and repair of broken toys by members of the Belleville Fire Department during the few weeks prior to the Christmas holidays, will be cancelled this year, Fire Chief William Lynch announced yesterday.

With various organizations of the city devoting their efforts to work of a wartime nature, it was felt by members of the department that it should fall in line.

This fact, plus that of reported dissatisfaction among certain recipients regarding the method of distribution of the Christmas gifts, caused department members to decide in favor of cancellation of the usual Yuletide activities, for a year at least, Chief Lynch said.

NEW INDIAN AGENT INTRODUCED TO RESERVE COUNCIL

Reception to the new Indian Agent at the Tyendinaga Reserve, Mr. Hubert M. Jones, was tendered this week by members of the Reserve Council.

The new Agent was formally introduced by Inspector of Indian Agencies for the Province of Quebec, I. Thibault, who performed that duty in place of Ontario Inspector M. McGoogan who was absent on account of illness.

P. S. ENTERTAINMENTS TO BE CURTAILED THIS CHRISTMAS

While the regular Christmas entertainments will be held in the public schools of the city this year, they will not be as elaborate or lengthy as those of previous years, it was announced today.

Formation of Junior Red Cross branches in the institutions and the pupils application to this important phase of work, will not leave much time for the preparation of the usual programs, it was stated.

Bridge Street United Church will mark another milestone, the 124th anniversary tomorrow, Sunday, November 19th. Special services of music have been arranged for the day and the Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies of Toronto, well-known throughout Canada as a preacher, will be the special preacher of the day.

BOARD OPPOSES ABANDONMENT OF LOCAL ELECTIONS

Says Measure Smacks of "Dictatorship and Contrary to Democracy"

MONTHLY REPORTS

R.C.A.F. Given Permission to Use "Gym" Provided Fee is Paid

Criticizing the Ontario Legislature's proposal of the abandonment of municipal elections for the duration of the war as "leanings towards dictatorship" and "contrary to the principles of democracy" voices of dissension sharply criticized the measure at last night's regular meeting of the Belleville Board of Education when the matter was presented in committee as a whole as a letter was read from Hon. Eric Cross, of the Provincial Department of Municipal Affairs.

Incorporated in the letter, which was subsequently filed and no action taken, the Hon. Mr. Cross stated that the Ontario Legislature intended to abandon all municipal elections for the duration of the war at the next sittings of the Legislature under the proposed extension of terms of office for members of municipal councils and local boards and the government proposed to hold no municipal elections in Ontario after 1940, as a war measure gesture.

"This proposal is nothing short of absolute dictatorship and may lead to very dangerous conditions. It is contrary to British law, haven't we any government procedure? The thing hasn't even passed through Legislature yet," protested Rev. A. B. Payne, while Dr. Kinnear stated the proposal as drafted was "purely contrary to the principles of democracy and should be protested vigorously before some serious outcome resulted." The letter was later filed and the matter brought no further comment.

Committee Named

In the matter of school management Messrs H. B. Fetterly, Rev. Mr. Payne and J. W. Deacon were named as a committee to represent the Belleville Board in Toronto in connection with the inequity as to municipal representation on Public and Separate School Boards at a forthcoming convention proposed by the Department of Education. Several letters were received by the local Board congratulating it upon its stand in the matter, including one from Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, who stated he was "glad the local board had adopted a resolution with reference to school boards including in their personnel representatives of municipal councils."

P. C. MacLaurin, principal at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School submitted his monthly report which showed there were 30 classes being conducted in the school at present with an average attendance of 97.33% for the month of October. "This is an exceedingly high average for such a large enrolment," explained Mr. McLaurin and he added the annual commencement exercises of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School would be held on Nov. 29th this year.

To Resume Clinic

The Advisory Vocational Board reported that the current night school classes totalled a registration of 204 with an average attendance of 65%. The Board voted to resume the annual fall tuberculosis clinic throughout all schools and accounts totalling $574.00 were passed by this Department, which include all night school salaries. The supply committee passed requisition account for $1,570.00.

In the matter of inquiries Mr. Reg Moncrieff asked if the Royal Canadian Air Force could be afforded the use of the Collegiate gymnasium for the purpose of practicing basketball two nights a week. Chairman R. Wotten stated he believed it would be permissible providing the R.C.A.F. officials paid the conventional rental fee. The motion was passed, but with the understanding that if basketball games were played in the Collegiate gymnasium a much larger fee would have to be levied.

All reports of committees were received and adopted.

Crowds Turned Away as B.C.I. Dramatic Class Delightfully Presents Noted Movie Story

BAND IS PRESENT

Play in its Entirety Presented Again Monday in Order That All Interested May Attend

So overwhelming was the response of the Belleville public to the annual school play of the Collegiate Institute that crowds of peope had to be turned away last evening, the collegiate auditorium, spacious as it is, being unable to accommodate those wishing to see the stage version of "You Can't Take it With You," the comedy which all recall with pleasure in its film presentation. The dramatic reputation of the school built up by careful training under Miss Nellie P. Merry, head of the English department, has made the play-goers of the city expect something fine in dramatic art when the school play is staged. Last evening's performance fulfilled the highest expectations and sustained to a brilliant degree the collegiate's standard of stage craftsmanship.

It was of added interest, that the director of the play this season was a former student of the Collegiate and one who had given generously of her talents in the school productions during her student years, Miss Joan Maraskas whose splendid work of preparation was evident by the remarkable success the play attained. For the consolation of those who last evening could not find even standing room, the play in its entirety will be repeated on Monday night it was announced.

School Band Present

The audience not only came in large numbers but came early and eight o'clock saw the auditorium filled with spectators. The School Band under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper gave a very satisfying performance before the play and contributed selections between acts. This was a most enjoyable part of the program and the band and its director are to be congratulated for the quality of their work.

Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School welcomed the visitors, whose presence was of great encouragement to these, who had assisted in the production. He referred to the work of Miss Maraskas as director voicing the pleasure felt in welcoming a former student in this capacity. Mr. MacLaurin paid sincere tribute to Miss Merry, whose careful training and supervision had been responsible for the development of dramatic work in the school. Sincere appreciation was expressed by the speaker to all those who had contributed in any way to the evening's success.

"You Can't Take it With You" one of the most charming plays to captivate a blase Broadway and to enchant movie-goers the continent over was re-introduced with all its appeal and delight by the talented cast last evening. The original play version brought somewhat different situations to light and those who were seeing it for the second time were overjoyed to meet new Sycamore whimsicalities. The eighteen young players who comprised the extensive cast peopled the stage with all the fascinating folks who, completely without guile or inhibition, follow their hearts' desire in "You Can't Take it With You." They were all there, and so were the snakes, the kitten, the mechanical devises in the midst of which the family pursues leisurely and happily the avocation of the moment. The freshness and sparkle of youth enhanced the cast of last evening's performance and yet each one taking part seemed to have captured the spirit of the play so that the individual performance was a convincing characterization.

Action in Living Room

The action of the play takes place in the living room of the home of Martin Vanderhof, which as the program note explained, "the every-man-for-himself room would be more like it. Here meals are eaten plays written, snakes collected, ballet steps practiced and printing presses operated. This is the house where you do as you like and no questions asked."

The cast entered into the idea of the play with zest and for two hours and a half the audience laughed and sighed with the fortunes of the family. The climax of the second act when the stately in-laws arrive unexpectedly to find affairs more chaotic than usual was splendidly achieved. Stricken for one moment by the disaster, the aplomb of the Sycamores asserts itself and the entire household rises superbly to the occasion, unaware of impending disaster.

The stage version cleared up what had always been a mystery to those who had seen the film, the solution of grandpa's income tax difficulty. This disappeared when grandpa having allowed the milkman (who had lived eight years at the house without being identified) to be buried under his name, informed the government that Martin Vanderhof was dead.

Adding another to their list of successes the cast last evening by the spontaneity of their acting and their finished performance won sincere praise. The audience found that it could, at the play's end, take home with it something of the charm and gaiety that was the Syramore legacy to all who made that family's acquaintance.

The cast follows:

Penny Sycamore (Mary Lou Lazier), Essie (Marianne Adams), Rheba (Loretta Stark), Paul Sycamore (William R. Doyle), Mr. De Pinna (Tom Hyland), Ed (Eugene Lang), Donald (Philip Flagler), Martin Vanderhof (Ralph Atyeo), Alice (Jean Stobie), Henderson (William Boynton), Tony Kirby (Jim Graham), Boris Kolenkhov (Irving Kroch), Mrs. Kirby (Bernice Saunders), Mr. Kirby (Les Pickering), G-Men (Ronald Warren, John O'Connor and Ronald Herman), Olga (Judy Scott).

Flowers Presented.

In this play, however, the success of the evening hinges on the perfection of the off stage arrangements. An incredible number of situations must be accomplished by the mechanical crew and their work last night was worthy of the professional. Timing, setting, lighting were perfect, blending the mechanical background almost imperceptibly with the action of the plot. To those responsible should go acknowledgment of their outstanding contribution to the play's success. They include:

Properties — David Payne, Jean Archibald and Marjory Cook; Stage Crew, Mr. Davies, Doug. MacBride, Art Young, Cecil Rouse, Frances Cavanagh and Ron Lynch; Sound Effects, Frank Foley and John Locke; Stage Design, Miss Ash, Marie Caracallen, Bill Davies, Corinne Mantle, Isabelle De Long, Mary Bunnett; Prompter, Ted Doyle; and Make-up, Miss Helen Keeler.

At the conclusion of the play, Miss Joan Maraskas, the director, and Mrs. G. B. Reed of Kingston who assisted the players, were presented with flowers by the cast.

Monthly Report Of School Nurse

Endeavoring to bring the home and the school into closer relationship, some 50 personal visits were made by the public school nurse, Miss E. A. Earshman, to private homes in Belleville during the month of October it was disclosed at last night's regular Board of Education meeting, when the monthly report of the school nurse was presented. The co-operation of the home with the school in the matter of health conditions and problems is being urged and sought by the Board through Miss Earshman.

A total of 36 visits to schools, where 694 inspections were made from Oct. 20th to Nov. 17th, were made at which time a complete and thorough examination of 208 pupils was completed and a special physical inspection of 46 beginners was completed. In the latter cases the mothers were present to foster a greater co-operation between the home and the school and to acquaint the parents with the medical health facilities that are available through the Board.

Parents of school children made 38 visits to the nurse's office during this period to discuss health problems of the children, while in her visits to the homes Miss Earshman sought to obtain all possible information regarding communicable diseases.

Seven dental clinics were held at King George School where 18 pupils were treated and two students were referred to the Belleville Kinsmen's Club for glasses, the provision of glasses being the service club project of the Kinsmen Club among the needy of the community.

Wellington Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Picton, Nov. 18—Esteemed residents of Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster Christy will mark their Golden Wedding anniversary on Sunday, by a quiet celebration. They have been life-long residents of Prince Edward County and have taken a prominent part in the activities of the comunity all their lives. Mr. Christy has been a member of the Masons for over 45 years and is also an Oddfellow. Both are members of the United Church. They were married at Gilbert's Mills at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Foster. They have resided in or near Wellington since their marriage fifty years ago, and Mr. Christy was born there. Both enjoy fairly good health, Mr. Christy supervising the management of his farm. They have a family of four, Douglas Christy of Toronto, Mrs. Rowena MacDonald of Wellington, Mrs. Benjamin Wright who resides with her parents and Foster J. Christy of Crofton. They also have sixteen grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Police Blotter

The Burlington police today requested the assistance of the Belleville police in the possible apprehension of a man whose name was given as George Cunningram, no address stated. Cunningham is wanted by the Burlington authorities on a charge of theft of three boxes of celery-hearts. He was believed to have been proceeding easterly in a Pontiac motor car, the information continued.

Complaining that a neighbors dog had ruined her dress, Mrs. F. Doherty, 60 South Foster Ave., registered a complaint with the police yesterday. Mrs. Doherty had placed a dress on the family clothes line for airing and it is alleged that later a neighbor's dog had pulled the dress off the line and later tore it beyond repair. Mrs. Doherty informed P. C Thomson she had paid $5.00 for the dress, but would accept $2.00 in the matter of restitution. The matter is still in the hands of the police.

The only arrest necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours resulted in a soldier boy being apprehended after allegedly imbibing a little too freely. Only nine transients sought shelter at the police station last night.

OBITUARY

MRS. EMILY L. COLLING

After an illness of two weeks' duration Mrs. Emily Louise Colling, widow of William Colling, passed away in this city on Friday, Nov. 17th.

The late Mrs. Colling had reached an advanced age, being in her 94th year. She was born in Colborne, Ont., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cox. After residing in the place of her birth for some years she moved to this city and made her home here for the past sixty-five years. Mrs. Colling possessed many fine traits of character and occupied a high place in the regard of all who knew her. In religion she was a member of the Church of England and when age and health permitted she took an active part in the activities of the organizations in connection with Christ Church parish.

Surviving to mourn her passing are two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Ives, Belleville and Miss Bertha E. Colling, Orillia; three sons, Mr. John Charles Colling, Mr. Frank E. Colling and Mr. Harry C. Colling, all of Toronto. Her husband died in the year 1921.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE ROBERT K. VANNORT

Friday afternoon the funeral of Robert Knox Vannort, late residence, 81 South Front Street, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery, was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bearers were Messrs Gilbert Seams, B. Woodcock, P. Smith, E. Bunnett, D .Weese and Ed George.

MRS. EZRA SMITH
(Formerly of Madoc)

Mrs. Ezra Smith, a former highly esteemed resident of Madoc Village, passed away at the family residence in Arnprior, Ont., on Friday evening, Nov. 17th. She had been in failing health for some time. Old friends will regret to learn of her death. The late Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Lula Jones of Crookston.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her husband; two sons Francis of Ottawa, and Stanley of Arnprior; two daughters, Ruth at home in Arnprior and Evelyn of Sudbury, her mother, Mrs. Arthur Jones, of Tweed; one brother, Arthur Jones, Crookston; two sisters, Mrs. Bert Bates, Windsor, and Mrs. Thomas Francis, Stirling.

The funeral will take place in Arnprior on Monday afternoon.

"Golden Glow" Corn Proves Most Adaptable For Soil at Plainfield

"Golden Glow" corn for husking is the best variety adapted to the soil, in the vicinity of Plainfield, according to a test that included eight varieties, carried out by youthful Joe Brintnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brintnell, farmer of that locality.

The test was conducted according to instructions received from the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union, connected with the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

The varieties of corn were planted in specially prepared and measured plots, with the seed being furnished by the Experimental Union.

"Golden Glow" proved the most adaptable to the soil, was productive of well-filled ears and leafage, and proved to be the easiest shelling variety. Varieties known as "Jacques 95" and "Jacques 100" finished in the test in the order named. Other varieties tested included, Seltzeas North Dakota, Minnehybrid, 301-401-403 and Jacques 105.

RETIRED TEACHER VISITS DISTRICT

Mr. D. M. Moore of North Vancouver Taught Many Years in Western Canada

A visitor in Belleville who has spent a lifetime in the teaching of the boys and girls and the youth of Canada is Mr. D. M. Moore of North Vancouver, who has been the guest of his brother, Mr. Alex Moore. He received his education in the schools of Hastings County and Owen Sound Collegiate. In the year 1935 he retired. He had taught at Johnston's Corners near Flinton, at Anson near Springbrook, then in Alberta, and twenty-five years between Vancouver and Mission City. He was teaching eight years at Prince George.

Mr. Moore predicts a vast development in British Columbia and the Peace River country.

He sees a great growth to follow the projected highway which it is expected will be built by the United States from the United States border to Alaska through British Columba with the consent of the Canadian people. This would, he said, provide the greatest of tours it would be possible for motor tourists to take.

Mr. Moore starts back to British Columbia in a few days.

During his trip east Mr. Moore has visited familiar scenes in Hastings County and met numbers of old friends.

ANGLO-FRENCH CO-ORDINATION

The fine co-ordination of the French and British navies which have fitted together like a perfect piece of mechanism is one of the happiest auguries of the victory which is to come. Britain and France have known that they would require to stand side by side and they have worked together accordingly. But the German leader though he worked on the Axis with Italy, was always Hitler, never the Axis. The result is that he went at last to Russia for aid, has lost Italy as an active participant, has no one with whom to consult, his armies have been built along Pan-German ideas with none of that co-operation as in the Anglo-French navies because there was nothing with which the Germans could co-ordinate. They did not co-ordinate in the last war.

Wisdom lies in counsel. Hitler was his own counsel in a general sense. Where he did trust to others it seems he erred or was led astray. Adolf Hitler was not the man to take advice. In counsel is breadth of knowledge. In this Hitler is also lamentably lacking for his breadth of view has never been developed in any way by breadth of experience and by contact with other peoples.

The co-ordination of the British and French navies which work under a unified command, and whose ships supplement in an admirable way the ships of one another assures the most effective performance of the Alliance.

How can the one-man Reich meet the wisdom of different peoples bound by one thought, and emerge conqueror? It cannot.

Hitler is of the type which must do everything alone, he is the individualist who cannot succeed because the task is too gigantic for one man. Democracies trust in many men's wisdom and prove most effective in the long run.

This fine spirit of fellowship between Britain and France, which is supplemented by the good wishes of the neutral states of Europe, is just what would be required in that ideal state or confederation of nations which ex-President Benes of Czecho-Slovakia foresees as ultimately to develop in the course of time and which France, and Britain also see as a possibility in spite of great obstacles.

WITHIN GERMANY

News out of Germany hints at strong feeling by the junkers or landed gentry of Prussia, the industrial chiefs and by army heads over the military situation in which Germany finds herself. These forces no doubt fear Russia and stories are to the effect that the German groups would like the western front matters cleared up, as the eastern front does not appear favorable. Italy is active in a Danubian bloc of the Balkan states to protect that portion of Europe from the possibility of growth of Russian influence.

Even in England where such stories are always read conservatively for the Britisher does not like to buoy himself up on what may not come to pass, it is said there is marked difference of opinion between Adolf Hitler and the German army command over the war in Western Europe, seeing in the military inactivity a sign of divided opinion. As one military authority in London remarked the Germans do not know what to do with the Nazis demanding action and the army refusing to throw their men away against the Maginot Line.

So the days pass largely with inaction, though "with threats," which Britain takes for a perfect demonstration of a surprised and disappointed enemy.

The opinion is expressed that Hitler's Germany, built on theft of independent nations, has not the solidarity of imperial Germany. The days since the war with the rise of the upstart Hitler and the crushing of every semblance of opposition have left the Germany of today with less dignity and no doubt more hesitation than the Germany of 1914 which went to war confident of victory. Adverse opinions are expressed on the question of the economic strength of Germany.

Whatever the cause of the hesitation, it is clear that Germany is not strengthening her morale. Talk by Hitler of a five year war probably did not cheer the German people much, who probably had no thought of another Great War. Whatever the cause of Hitler's hesitation it is clear that he is in a new role. Hitherto he has been the bluffer, the boasting challenger, the leader who swept the people along on his violent speeches, who took three states, but who now is in the role of man-waging a war when he wants to be doing something else.

Late news yesterday emphasized the situation in Eastern Europe where Germany has engulfed the peoples of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, which are and will continue to be bitter foes of the Nazi regime.

The full import of the event at Prague where student riots of a few days ago were followed yesterday by the clearing out of the students, boys and girls, from Prague institutions, and the placing of Hitler's elite guards in the institutions and the execution of nine Czech students in Prague will be revealed in time.

There is also the Yugoslav report of the shooting of a Viennese high police official on Thursday, connected, so the story goes, with the numerous arrests in Vienna, the capital of old Austria which Hitler "took" in the late winter of 1938, in connection with the Munich attempt on the German chancellor.

ADMIRAL BYRD'S 'CRUISER'

Admiral Byrd has a twenty-seven ton snowmobile which will do work where few can see it—in the Antarctic, where it will be used in connection with the expedition. A New York Times writer deals with what he calls a "dinosaur on wheels" in a happy style. Here is how he speaks of the mechanism:

"Admiral Byrd's twenty-seven-ton cruiser, which has just completed its voyage from Chicago to the Boston army base is a thing which has to be seen to be believed. Once seen, it makes one happy as well as proud to know that it will soon be travelling around the Antarctic Continent, where it cannot hold up 70,000 motor cars and create a ninety-mile traffic jam, as it did in Massachusetts recently.

"We have had many forecasts of the automobile of the future, but not even that far-seeing genius, Mr. Norman Bel Geddes is likely to dream that this is it—not even if he raids the ice-box and eats an entire mince pie before going to bed. Yet 20,000,000 snow cruisers, roaming the highways of the United States, breaking through the bridges, falling into creeks, rolling into wheat fields, rearing up like dinosaurs to contest the right-of-way, would no doubt reduce the traffic mortality to a minimum. No one could get hurt unless he went to sleep in one of the few unoccupied places in the road. Life would take on a massive and slow-moving dignity. The driver who now holds the wheel with one finger of his right hand, the other hand gracefully clutching the top of the window frame outside, would become a grave and serious man, pre-occupied beyond speech by the task of controlling power delivered separately to four mighty wheels.

"But we are glad, on the whole, that things are more or less as they are. If snow cruisers have to come they will come, but we trust that they will not be epidemic in this generation. In Antarctica they may do very well, indeed. One fervently hopes so. A small but conspicuous percentage of American motorists, including those who cut in, those who run red lights and those who dare out of concealed side roads, might do well in Antarctica, too. Can't Admiral Byrd take some of them with him, please?"

WAR'S COST IN CASH OUTLAY

A Washington story estimates how the war in cash outlay alone is costing one hundred million dollars a day, besides the losses of property, arms and commercial revenue. This figure of course is not exact, no figure could be exact at this stage of the hostilities. It is admitted that the estimate may be far too high while on the other hand costs of war by destruction may be even more.

It is believed that Germany will have spent by the end of next March a total of twelve billion dollars. Of course she heads the list, the total cost of Britain and her Empire is put at $5,262,000,000, and France by the end of the year 1939 $2,194,758.000.

The estimates of German costs are not the entire story, for the whole life of Germany has been moulded into armaments and cash outlay is only a small part. Germany cut non-military expenditure fifty per cent, lowered wages and prices, increased taxes and so cut down the cost of war supplies.

It is estimated that Britain and Germany will have spent in 211 days of war to March 31, the total of $17,262,000,000, and France the total of $2,194,758,000 in 120 days to Dec. 30, or an average for the three nations of $81,000,000 a day, while the French outlay per day to the end of this year averages at the rate of $18,200,000, it is figured, but when France votes money for 1940 its total may approach the British total.

This is the cost which Hitler has brought upon the world. The nations must endure hardships to sustain this cost but it is the price of liberty to spend money on armaments to defeat the enemy and crush Hitlerism. Germany's outlay is higher than either of the other powers and she is drawing on her very lifeblood to maintain the Hitler plan of world domination.

War May Prove Powerful Ally For Waterway

Washington, Nov. 18 — (AP)—The war may prove a powerful ally in bringing to fruition one of the greatest peacetime projects on the North American continent — the long-discussed St. Lawrence Seaway.

Although they have not been informed officially of any change in Canadian sentiment for the project, State Department officials say privately they expect "some developments" shortly in the seaway negotiations.

Prospective industrial expansion in the Dominion to meet war needs is expected to increase the demand for Hydro - Electric power and transportation facilities. In view of these circumstances, officials admit they would not be surprised if the Canadian Government replied soon to the draft of a proposed seaway treaty submitted to the Dominion in May, 1938, by the United States. Recent reports reaching Washington have encouraged Washington officials in their belief that negotiations for construction of great navigation and Hydro - Electric power development might be renewed.

Whether the seaway could be constructed in time to be of value in the war is a debatable question. Estimates of the time to complete the project range from four to seven years.

General George L. Carpenter, former commissioner of the Salvation Army in Canada and Newfoundland, was received by commissioners of the Army when he arrived at the William Booth Memorial Training college in London to take over his office as head of the Army, in succession to General Evangeline Booth.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

One in Every Four Dyspeptics is Sensitive to Certain Foods

"The subject of food sensitiveness must be of interest to everyone in medicine because one in every four dyspeptics is sensitive to at least one food, because being sensitive to a certain food or foods can upset the workings of so many organs of the body, and because every so often the physician can work a miracle by removing one or more articles from a patient's diet."

It is unfortunate that so many physicians have not given thir allergy or sensitiveness to foods more attention because the fact that certain foods cause hives, stomach upsets, and a running nose has been known for many years. As a youngster I can remember an aunt with beautiful skin breaking out with hives after eating a small piece of butter. Another relative always had a head cold when she ate eggs.

Dr. Alvarez says that there are two big problems today in the field of food sensitiveness; one is to get more physicians to wake up to the importance of food sensitiveness and to keep on the watch for patients whose indigestion, headache, or mental sluggishness is due to the eating of some food, and the other is to keep a few physicians from becoming so enthusiastic over the miracles that they have performed that they will starve their patients unnecessarily and for too long a time. "Every so often I see persons who have lost 20 to 60 pounds from having been left too long on a "test" diet or a diet lacking a score of important foods."

I have spoken before of the five basic foods which Dr. Alvarez allows his patients to eat because they seldom if ever cause symptoms. These foods are lamb, rice, sugar, butter and canned pears, which are the only foods eaten for two days. Then foods are added one at a time — gelatin, carrots, asparagus, rye krisp, arrowroot cookies, turnips, potatoes, beef, apple-sauce with tapioca or sago, and then dry toast. Later he can begin to use the foods that most frequently cause symptoms—milk, chocolate, eggs and coffee.

It will be noted that such nourishing foods as milk, egg, and chocolate cause symptoms. This does not mean that they should not be used, but that they should be used in small quantities at any one time.

Mr. John Pound Recalls Early Pioneer Days in N. Hastings

MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Pound Will Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary on Monday

A storm-battered full-rigged sailing ship staggered into Halifax Harbor in early September 1862. Aboard her, wind-weary after the strenuous six-weeks voyage, were emigrants from the Old World, eager, anxious to carve a home for themselves out of the wooded fastnesses of the New World.

Sturdy British stock, they were. Tall rugged sires, hardy women, with curious frightened offsprings clinging to their flowing dresses. From Cornwall's rockbound coasts they came. From Norfolk's reedy broads and from Yorkshire's broad acres, these pioneers of a new country, ambitious in their humble way to share in the building of a new country, looked with eager eyes toward the west.

In the arms of a sturdy Cornishwoman, an eleven-months'-old baby whimpered. Six weeks at the mercy of the windswept Atlantic, tossed and buffeted by mountainous seas, the sturdy ship, bearing the brunt of Neptune's whims, had rolled and staggered at the mercy of the elements. And it had taken its toll of the passengers.....

But let that eleven-months'-old baby tell the story....

He is now John Pound, third concession of Thurlow farmer, who with Mrs. Pound, will celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary at the modest farm home on Monday, November 20th.

Pioneer Stock

Seventy-eight years have taken their toll of this scion of fine old Hastings County pioneer stock. But the bright eyes still gleam with the fires of Memory as he recalls the days when the Pound homestead was built in a clearing from which three trees had been cut. "It was in Tudor Township, in the densely wooded part of that section of Hastings, that my father built our home," he said. "In the winter we stood waist-deep in snow, felling trees that had to be felled in certain directions to prevent them from crashing down on the top of our cabin."

He talked of the gradual though sparse settlement of that district; of the preacher who rode his horse around the circuit; of long hard winters, snowfilled trails that prevented them from seeing neighbors sometimes for intervals of a month.

There were nothing but trails through the woods in those days. One had to walk or ride a horse, he said. He smiled when he mentioned the casual visitor who was insistent in a prophecy, "that the time would come when horses and buggies would be driven through that section of the country."

Worked in Lumber Camps

Later he went to the lumbercamps of the north country. Many winters were spent with those hard-living, hard-working lumberjacks whose exploits wrote a blazing page in Canadian history. "Work," he laughed, "why we thought nothing of sawing and axing logs all day, tramping home, getting supper and walking another eight miles to a dance."

"The trouble with the young people of today is they don't walk and work enough. They can't travel forty rods without getting out the car," he says.

He married Lois Annie Hazzard, daughter of another famous Hastings County pioneer sire, on November 20th, 1889, in Trenton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Young, pastor of the Methodist Church in that town.

In 1905 they moved to their present home in Thurlow Township.

"Did Not Know as Much"

"Folks weren't different in the old days to what they are now," Mr. Pound says. "They had a good time because they did not know as much as the folks do today. People dropped in around mealtime, and were promptly asked to stay. Nowadays they will call you up and ask what you are going to have for dinner before they 'drop in.' They never had cars, radios or airplanes in those days, but if they had, they would have done the same, probably, as the people of today."

He took a great interest in the development of Tudor Township and was its reeve for a number of years.

"Healthy? I don't feel too bad", he smiles. "With the exception of some foot trouble, I am all right."

Eight in Family

In the eyes of Mrs. Pound, shines the light of a life well and truly lived. She is a member of Cannifton United Church, and takes exceptional pride in the fact that her family of eight children have proved faithful, loyal, and traditional sons of traditional parents.

Two of the children, Clarence and Martha have passed on. Twin sons blessed the union, and George and Frank as they were named live in Saskatchewan and Thurlow respectively. Harry lives in Thurlow and Roy lives at home with his parents. Two daughters, Miss Grace Pound of Trenton and Mrs. C. A. Greenley of Toronto complete the family circle. All with the exception of George will be present at the anniversary celebration on Monday.

Mrs. Pound's philosophy of life is simple. "Do what you can, as well as you can, and as right as you can, and leave the rest to the Lord." She has followed that philosophy down through the years, and to this she attributes her seventy-six years of life of happiness and contentment .

She has a sister Miss M. Hazzard living in Trenton, while a brother, Mr. Frank Hazzad, resides in Plainfield, Ont.

Mr. Pound comes from a family noted for its longevity. A sister, Mrs. Fennimore of Cobourg celebrated her 89th birthday on Wednesday. Mrs. George Sprackett, Belleville is another sister, while a brother and sister passed on a number of years ago.

Proud of Family

The light of maternal pride shines in the eyes of Mrs. Pound when she speaks of her family. "Raising eight children, and oftimes milking as many as twenty cows, was hard work, but I didn't mind it for we strove to better ourselves and thus bring our children up in the proper environment," she said. "We succeeded, and today we are proud of our children. They are all true Christians, have lived right and to my knowledge have never smoked nor touched liquor."

Has Family Heirlooms

Tenderly, almost reverently she unfastened a yellowed cardboard box. Two slightly tarnished silver spoons rolled out on the snowy tablecloth. On the handles was engraved the initial "E. W."

"These", she explained," are spoons made from the silver shoebuckles of a great uncle of mine. General F. Smith of the British Army, who fought in the Revolutionary War. It was the fad in those days for military officers to have their shoe-buckles melted down, moulded into spoons and other articles, and present them to their sweethearts. The initials, are those of my great-aunt, who was the former Elizabeth Wyant."

"The spoons are part of a set of six, which were distributed to my sister, brother and myself by my father before he died," Mrs. Pound said.

Relatives and immediate friends will gather at the Pound home at noon on Monday when a Golden Wedding dinner will be tendered the bride and groom of fifty years. In the afternoon a tea will be held, when friends and neighbors will "drop in", to tender their congratulations.

POLICE WERE GULPING

Peterboro, Ont., Nov. 18—(CP)—The goldfish murder case had the police here gulping today.

A distraught citizen entered the police station and said his wife had threatend to poison the goldfish. He returned home for lunch and found them dad. What could he do about it, he demanded to know. The police were astounded, but said there was nothing they could do.

The Society Performed a Notable Service in World War And is Again Ready to Give That Service Again

The service which this organization performed during the last war, providing medical facilities and supplies, food and clothing, building and equipping military hospitals, establishing contact with and tending to the comfort of prisoners of war, and so on. All this is well known. And now that the need has arisen again, it is doing everything in its power to give that service again.

So far as the Canadian Red Cross Society is concerned, the big job started when word came that help was needed for survivors of the torpedoed Athenia, aboard which were many Canadians. Ten thousand dollars was cabled to England for their relief, and when the first of these people reached Halifax the Red Cross was there to care for them.

With the formation of a national war council a few hours after Canada had declared war, the Canadian Red Cross went into war-time action. On the 13th of this month it launched a campaign for funds to carry on its work.

For the Red Cross is a voluntary organization. It is a permanent body, and, by international agreement, it becomes an auxiliary of the Army Medical Corps in war time. It is to the Red Cross that requests are directed for supplies. And it is by working with and through Red Cross facilities that other voluntary organizations the country over send assistance overseas.

Besides its medical work and the other well-known branches of its service, one important piece of work undertaken by the Canadian Red Cross during the last war was the Information Bureau in London. Volunteer women made regular visits to hospitals where Canadians lay wounded. These women wrote letters to the men's homes in Canada, informing anxious relatives of the progress being made. Often they located men listed as "missing" and sent the happy news to this country. But their job didn't end there. They did everything to make for the comfort of the sick Canadian soldiers.

There will be more volunteer women to do this kind of work during the present war. The need will be just as great this time as it was in the last war for this service and for every other branch of the work performed by the Red Cross. And it is only by the goodwill of the Canadian people, the co-operation of other organizations and the generosity of donations from rich and poor, that the record of the last war can be repeated.

in Belleville

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this month the Belleville Burial Company was established with the objective of offering to the people of the city and vicinity a comprehensive funeral service. We regard it as a mark of approval that we have been enabled to continue and expand that service for a quarter of a century, and take this opportunity of thanking the public for their confidence.

Continuing the policy of constant improvement, we have added to our equipment the latest model of Plymouth Invalid Coach.

WEDDINGS

TAYLER—WALTERS

Picton, Nov. 18.—(Special)—A wedding of wide interest was solemnized this (Saturday) afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walters, Bloomfield, when their only daughter, Rose Leah, was married to Garnet Douglas Tayler, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Tayler of Wellington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard of Bloomfield, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the bride entered the room with her father, taking her place beneath an arch of evergreen and flowers, with a white wedding bell suspended above. She wore a gown of teal blue crepe made on simple lines and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and fern. Miss Jeanne Tayler of Wellington, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of navy sheer and matching accessories. She carried Ophelia roses. Mr. Homer Walters, brother of the bride, was best man. Wedding music was played by Miss Vera Simmons of Bloomfield and during the signing of the register, Mr. C. H. Maybee of Sydenham, uncle of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly".

A reception followed, the home being decorated with golden and white 'mums. Later Mr. and Mrs. Tayler left by motor for Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara and other points west, the bride travelling in black sheer crepe over which she wore a black coat with Persian lamb trim and wine accessories. On their return they will reside at Wellington.

SHYMZYSHYM — SHERSTENIUK

A pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning, November 14, in St. Michael's Church, Belleville, when Olga, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sherstenluk of Point Anne, became the bride of William, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Shymzyshym, (Mundick) of the 2nd of Thurlow.

The bride, given in marriage by her father looked charming in a gown of white brocaded satin with floor length veil, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Miss Anne Shymzyshym attended the bride and wore baby blue georgette and carried bronze 'mums. Mr. John Shymzyshym supported the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father J. J. Collins.

A reception was held afterward at the home of the groom's parents. The guests were received by Mrs. Shymzyshym gowned in black sheer who was assisted by the bride's mother, who wore rust crepe. About seventy-five relatives and friends were present. Out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Brown, Mrs. William Holowich, Mr. G. Zurawski and Miss Anne Shymzshym of Hamilton.

The young couple will reside in Point Anne.

BILLCOX—ROBINSON

A pretty wedding took place at Christ Church on Thursday evening, November 16, the Rev. G. G. Wright officiating when Alice May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, became the bride of Mr. Cecil Billcox, son of the late Mr. and Mr. H. Billcox of Colborne.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Alexander, 144 Station Street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Billcox left on a honeymoon to Niagara Falls and western points, upon their return they will reside in Colborne.

Posture's Purpose

By Helen Follett

LET US consider the girl who stands with her weight on one foot. What is going to happen to her figure? One hip will be higher than the other; skirts won't be uniform, will sag on one side. Shoulders will fall forward; the chest will fall in. The backbone may take a turn for the worse, get tired of all that monkey business and pain and ache in protest.

Drop into any restaurant and observe the lady patrons, the poses and attitudes they assume. Pretty legs twisted around chair legs, backs bent, elbows on the table, shoulders humpy. That sort of thing doesn't pay. In due course of time posture will be wretched, the muscular bands of the tummy will lose resiliency; there will be a shelf where there should be flatness.

Posture begins in the mind. The self-respecting girl will treat her muscles with respect, so carry her body that fibres will keep strong and elastic. Not only that, but she will find time each day to give them a workout so she won't have to travel in the fat girls' class. Excessive tonnage is a handicap, especially before middle age; even then it is no beauty asset.

How some girls look when they dance! Twisted, distorted or dragged around like a sack of coal. But let us draw the curtain. The vision is painful!

Don't fool around with your toenails; if you do, you'll be likely to be walking with a cane, maybe not walking at all. Digging into ingrowing nails makes wounds and invites infections. Chiropodists will tell you it is being done all the time and puts money in their cash register.

Cut the nails straight across. Don't touch a corn with a sharp steel instrument. Soak in warm soap suds, friction with a toilet pumice stone, massage with mineral oil, and on the sore spot. No pressure, no corn.

GLORIA CARTER. . . . posture, she knows, is a quality of beauty.

Cutting away cuticle that banks up beside the toe-nail only makes the fleshy area thicker and heavier; for that, a good soaking and plenty of oil. Few women have feet that are not deformed one way or another. A sad state of affairs.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Quints' First Enema Equivalent to Minor Operation

Yesterday we talked of enemas for babies as preferable to laxatives. Although an enema isn't a very difficult thing to give a baby, I'll never forget the first enema we gave the Dionne Quintuplets.

They were only a few days old—four I think—and all five of them had constipation. Their abdomens were distended and they were in some pain. We couldn't adjust their diet to get their bowels to work properly for they were too young and all we could give them was breast milk. Finally I gave orders to the nurses to give them enemas.

Well, my nurses had been through a lot by that time. There had been crisis after crisis in the lives of those five tiny babies. So I guess the nurses had lost their nerve, for they just refused to do it. They just announced that they couldn't do it. I knew there was no use insisting. The nurses had simply been driven beyond their endurance. So the only thing left was for me to do it.

I looked at the little things, two of them weighing less than two pounds each, and all five weighing under ten. I knew it was going to be quite a job. However, I also knew that if we didn't get those bowels moving, they couldn't live long. So I rigged up a hypodermic syringe, put a small rubber catheter on it for a nozzle and proceeded to give those five enemas. Really, it had all the difficulties of a surgical operation, and while I was doing it I was afraid one of the nurses might break under the strain.

However, we got the job done and all five responded beautifully. Another crisis had passed.

Since then we have had to give the Quints an occasional enema, but I have never attempted to administer them. I leave that up to the nurses.

It might be well for me to point out to mothers the circumstances under which we have had to give enemas to the Quintuplets more recently. The children like to play jokes on the nurses. Sometimes when a new one was in the nursery one of the Quints would sit on the toilet before the nurse could check. Then the Quint would go out and tell her sisters how she had fooled the nurse and they would all try it. In this way they have several times interfered with their regular habits; they became constipated as a result and we had to give them an enema.

We always impress upon them while they are getting the enema that they brought it upon themselves. However, we have found it a good idea not to take the young child's word for it that the bowels have moved. It is better to see for yourself just in case the little tyke is trying to put something over on you.

Just because children do sometimes resort to such subterfuges parents shouldn't get too upset about it. It is quite a normal thing among your children and it is your duty to show them where they are in error. Do it quietly, for it is likely that this will have more effect than a scolding or a spanking.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington"

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," Frank Capra's latest Columbia hit co-starring Jean Arthur and James Stewart, oepns next at the McCarthy theatre.

Hailed from coast to coast as Capra's most brilliant screen achievement, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is justifying that acclaim by shattering all records of previous Capra successes, which include "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "You Can't Take it With You," adjudged the best pictures of their respective years.

A gay, exciting, warmly emotional comedy drama, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is enacted by a truly outstanding cast. In addition to Miss Arthur and Stewart, who share the romantic leads, Edward Arnold, Thomas Mitchell, Claude Rains, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Eugene Pallette, Beulah Bondi, Harry Carey and H. B. Warner play prominent roles.

Many others of importance handle the story's record-breaking 168 speaking parts, and 43 impressive settings were utilized to show "Mr. Smith's" sudden ascent to fame and its unexpected consequences.

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" comes to the McCarthy theatre at the same time that it is also playing a second big week at the Uptown theatre, Toronto, it was also held over three weeks at Radio City Music Hall, New York City. "Mr. Smith" is the greatest motion picture production since Capra's 1938 Academy Award Winner "You Can't Take it With You," we recommend it as this year's Academy Award winner.

"Beware Spooks"

Joe E. Brown and Mary Carlisle in the laugh hit "Beware Spooks" also Fred Stone, Rochelle Hudson and Richard Fiske in a second feature presentation that is really tops in swell entertainment entitled "Konga" are now showing at the McCarthy theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex"

"The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," now playing in the new Warner Bros. special production starring Bette Davis and Errol Flynn has its first local showing at the Belle Theatre, carrying to still greater heights their parade of new show season hits which has included such memorable films as "The Old Maid," "Each Dawn I Die" and "On Your Toes."

Bette Davis, of course, is cast as the self-willed, vain and domineering Queen Elizabeth, torn between her love of England and its people and her overwhelming love for the handsome and dashing young Earl of Essex. Flynn, as Essex has precisely the type of role in which he had endeared himself to audiences the world over, that of a handsome, swashbuckling hero, as victorious in love as he is in war. But his victory over Elizabeth is short-lived in the film; for, loving him, she sends him to the executioner's block, because she realizes that if England is to live, Essex must die. Played against the spectacular background of the pomp and pageantry of the Elizabethan court, the love story is still the all-important theme on which the film is focused.

The brilliant supporting cast for the two stars includes Olivia de Havilland, Donald Crisp, Vincent Price, Henry Stephenson, Alan Hale, Ralph Forbes, Henry Daniell, James Stephenson, Nanette Fabares, Robert Warwick and Leo G. Carroll.

"Sioux Me," a funny Comicolor Cartoon and the popular Belle World News Events will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"STAR REPORTER"

Coming to the Capitol Theatre is Monogram's "Star Reporter", a thrilling newspaper story starring Warren Hull and Marsha Hunt.

"Star Reporter," directed by Howard Bretherton, concerns John Randolph, idealistic young newspaper owner who uses his paper as an instrument of public good. The picture tells how Randolph, in a pledged campaign against crime, runs grafting politicians out of town successfully until the district attorney, father of the girl John loves, discovers that Randolph's father is the criminal they are seeking, and refuses to prosecute him. Randolph, not knowing the true cause of Burnette's backing down, then turns against him and tries to run him out of office.

Outstanding in the cast are Marsha Hunt, Wallis Clark, Morgan Wallace, and Virginia Howell, and on the same programme.

"Nancy Drew Detective"

First picture in what bids fair to be a highly popular series, "Nancy Drew—Detective" with Bonita Granville in the title role and Frankie Thomas, talented youngster from the New York stage, as her boy friend and 'Watson.'

The new series is based upon the exploits and adventures of the heroine of the Nancy Drew stories by Carolyn Keene, a succession of novels which are probably the favorite reading matter today of both girls and boys of the adolescent age.

In this first picture and in all those to come, every effort has been made and will continue to be made to reflect faithfully the spirit of venturesome youth which is so characteristic of the Nancy Drew books. And in Bonita Granville, the producers feel they have a little actress who will fully realize the ideal of the central character which the readers of the books have pictured in their imaginations.

"Nancy Drew — Detective" the screen play of which was prepared by Keneth Gamet, is concerned with the heroine's successful solving of the kidnapping of a wealthy old spinster who mysteriously disappeared the day after she announced a gift of $250,000 to the girls' school which Nancy attends. In her quest of and eventual rescue of the old lady, Nancy is given valiant—and smart—assistance by her boy friend, Ted Nickerson.

In the cast, besides Bonita and Frankie, are John Litel, James Stephenson, Frank Orth, Renie Riano, Helena Phillips Evans, Charles Trowbridge, Dick Purcell and Tommy Bupp. The production was directed by William Clemens.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

The Triangle Again

Dear Miss Fairfax

We're terribly in love with each other, but he is married. You see I loved him before he married this woman, from whom he is now separated. He wants to divorce her, but she refuses to spite me and keep me from the man I love.

He can't afford a divorce, though he has plenty of grounds, and I'm not spending my money on her divorce, even if she never gives in. He wanted to marry me before I finished college. I objected and to spite me he married her. Now he realizes how foolish he was. I feel I have nothing in life but heartaches.

Miss Fortune

It's pretty difficult for me to understand your religious scruples, after all you have confided in your letter, and which you must realize cannot be discussed in a newspaper. There seems to be in this triangular situation too great a desire to "get even" and spite each other.

However, for the sake of giving your young sons a home and a father, you might well forget your personal feelings toward this man's wife and spend a little money to regularize the situation in which you and your children find yourselves. I wish that you had written me a personal letter. with a stamped and self-addressed envelope enclosed, in which case I could have written you more fully.

A Prejudiced Family

Dear Miss Fairfax

The girl I'm in love with seems to have displeased my family, because they want me to give her up, and I'm thinking of doing so just to keep peace in the family. She loves me too, and as we're both in our middle twenties, I think we ought to know what we want.

Do you think I'd be doing right to give her up? I've always given in to my family in almost everything but now I think I'm old enough to know what I want. Would you suggest seeing her on the sly? They don't really have anything against her, except that they've just become prejudiced.

R.

If you have a job and are self-supporting and pay part of the expenses at home, it seems to me you should be allowed to exercise freedom of choice when it comes to picking out your friends. However, if you are being supported by your people, they have it in their power to impose conditions.

If there is really nothing against the girl, and you're independent, I don't see why you should not keep on going with her.

Show Some Independence

Dear Miss Fairfax

I am in love with a young man with whom I have worked for about eight years. He always treated me very nice and for the past two years we have been going together, and he has taken me everywhere.

Lately he has been made department chief, and while it didn't seem to effect his love for me, he seems to have grown rather cold. I keep thinking that perhaps I've offended him in some way, but I can't imagine what I could have done. Perhaps another girl is trying to get his attention.

I honestly love him and feel sure that he loves me too. But for some unknown reason he avoids me.

In Doubt.

Do not show too much anxiety, my dear, about having offended the young man. It doesn't do to spoil them completely and let them get the idea it's their privilege to call the tune. Girls who show a little independence of character always have a better time than those who accept cool treatment and then wonder and worry over what they could have done to offend.

Perhaps his new duties in the office are making him a little reserved. Be patient and I'm sure everything will be all right.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Home Entertaining Should be Planned Thoroughly for Every Guest To Be at Ease

If, in your home entertaining, you must be both captain and crew (with your husband the usually well-intentioned, and we hope, the brilliantly capable "mate"), you must watch carefully where you sail and the manner of voyage on which you embark. Don't endeavour to do something elaborate lest, you ground your ship on a thousand unsuspected shoals. Rather confine yourself modestly to simple, easily managed meals.

These informal repasts, which can be carried off smoothly and graciously, proceed with an ease and felicity made all the more charming by their necessary intimacy. Your guests, you may be sure, would a thousand times rather be themselves and have you be yourself than squirm uncomfortably at the sight of your frantic attempt to do more than you comfortably can.

Your aim should be to put them at their ease, and you can do this best by being yourself at ease. And you cannot be at ease if you have not planned every last important and unimportant detail thoroughly in advance. Only so can you avoid that "Jack-in-the-box" darting that completely destroys any sense of repose—the trips back to the kitchen for this-or-that that you have forgotten, the fumbling in the silver chest for the fork you have forgotten to give Miss Blank.

Make everything as simple and carefree as you possibly can. Don't even try to be formal about it, for such an attitude is obviously out of key with the friendly cooperation upon which the success of your dinner must depend.

And above all, don't be apologetic about your lack of service. If you have planned your dinner well, and have arranged your menus so that it includes only dishes of which you are very sure, your party will undoubtedly be a success. If you can cook a few good dishes, and plan the serving of them with imagination, you need not worry.

And you must surely remember that some of the very best dinners that you have ever eaten, dinners at which you have had the very best times, have been simple, unaffected ones like those you are going to give!

How To Pay Doctor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman, —

1—It is necessary for me to send a money order to a doctor to pay a bill, and I am at a loss just how to have the money order made out.

2—Please tell me also how the letter should be addressed?

3—How should the ending of the letter read?

K.

1—On the money order use the form of name that is used on the bill. This usually is John Science, M.D.

2—Your letter should be addressed to Doctor John Science.

3— The Complimentary close and signature of your letter should be:

Very truly yours,
Rosalind Brown Kent
(Mrs. Edward Kent)

(This also, by the way, should be the form of your signature to your letter to me.)

Beauty BELOW the Chin

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOU CAN collar and cover a stringy neck in the daytime, but life is not filled with joy and ecstasy when you put on the grand evening attire. Necks don't seem to care how they act. They go crinkly before their time, and they take on discolorations. Some of our demon sun worshippers show the effect of summer sunburn all winter long.

Combine equal parts of strained lemon juice and olive oil, massage into the flesh ever night if you would have a pretty, nicely colored throat and a rear portion that doesn't carry yallery speckles or a gray surface. Smooth up and down with the palms. Include the collar bones, so there won't be a high-water line. Do gentle kneading at the back. And, while you're at it, you might give your ear lobes a few gentle dabs. Ears are on show, need attention.

To keep the fibres of the neck strong and to resist the mangling of old Pop Time, stand erect, hands on hips, chin on the level. Then with quick, little jerks keep getting the chin higher. Hold the teeth tightly together. Keep on going until you can't get your head back any further. Back to the first position and repeat. A neck that has started to go to seed will perk up, look decidedly better.

Use the lemon and oil at night, sponge with ice cold water in the morning, then lave with witch hazel.

Even though the hair may not be of pigtail length, the ends may split. Split ends are dead tissue, showing that the natural nutriment does not extend the entire length of the shaft.

Pour a few drops of hot mineral oil in the palms of the hands, lubricate the hair. Mineral oil is also effective for loosening dandruff and putting the scalp in good condition. The best means of applying it to the scalp is with a large medicine dropper.

A five-minute massage should follow. Friction gets the flesh into a glow, a condition that is conducive to a healthy growth of dome fuzz.

Presentations

A large number of friends and neighbors met at the home of Mrs. Bentley Simonds and family at Massassaga recently to wish them farewell before leaving to make their home in Belleville. After a period of social intercourse, the family or families, long established, gether, and Mr. Ignatius Nightingale made some opening remarks and asked Mrs. Hillman to read the following address:

Massassaga, Oct. 24, 1939.

Dear Mrs. Simonds, Murray, Ronald and Ruby:

There is in each community a family or families, long established, a sort of foundation or cornerstone, upholding all that is best in community life. We become so accustomed to such a family that we feel there will always be members of it among us. Of such is the Simonds family who have been here for over fifty years. But as Tennyson has said, "The old order changeth yielding place to new." And we, your friends and neighbors who are here tonight, would wish that the old had remained, at least in part, because in the new, you, Mrs. Simonds and your family will have removed and will not be, as you have been in the past a part of our community life.

You have each had a large part in our neighborhood and church activities, you, Mrs. Simonds as a member of our Women's Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid, and have helped very materially toward the success of these organizations, Murray, Ronald and Ruby we have appreciated too your help in church, Sabbath school and Young People's meeting.

We are indeed glad that you are not going very far away and that we shall meet from time to time and we assure you a hearty welcome whenever you can find it convenient to be with us.

We ask you to accept these gifts, not for their monetary value, but as slight tokens of our regard for you. To you, Mrs. Simonds, this lamp, may it be a light reminder of our good will to you, to you, Murray and you Ronald, these pen and pencil sets, may they be useful to you and as you use them may they remind you of your friends at Massassaga. To you Ruby, these lamps may they lighten some dark places for you.

Ronald as you go so far away we wish you a safe journey, and success in your chosen work.

To you all we wish success in your future labours and may God's choicest blessings follow you always.

Signed on behalf of Massassaga community: I. A. E. Nightingale, Margaret Hillman, Lillian Valleau.

Mrs. Simonds was presented with a beautiful tri-light floor lamp by Clarence Thompson, and Murray and Ronald with Parker pen and pencil sets, by Harry Way, and Ruby with two pretty pink vanity lamps by Hessie Cook and Margaret Valleau. Although the family had been taken completely by surprise each member of it rose in turn and expressed their thanks and appreciation for the lovely gifts, after which "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung and community singing was indulged in for a time led by Mr. Gerald Snider at the piano. Shortly after refreshments were served and reluctant good byes were said as the gathering wended its way homeward.

SCOTT'S W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Scott's W.M.S. was held on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 15, at the home of Mrs. Ross Dafoe with thirteen ladies present. The president, Mrs. Morley Sine, opened the meeting. A reading was given by Mrs. Gerald Sine. The temperance clip sheet was conducted by the temperance secretary, Mrs. Lott. Mrs. Earl Chapman gave the treasurer's report.

President, Mrs. Gerald Sine; vice-president, Mrs. Alton Sine; treasurer, Mrs. Morley Sine; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ross Dafoe; recording secretary, Mrs. H. W. Rose; supply secretary, Mrs. Robert Read; strangers secretary, Mrs. William Moon; temperance and press secretary, Mrs. J. A. Lott; peace secretary, Mrs. Kenneth Paul; Mission Band superintendent, Eleanor Chapman; assistant superintendent, Jean Badgley; organist, Mrs. Carman Frost; finance, Mrs. Earl Chapman.

The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Morley Sine.

H. R. Pearce Heads Laymen's Association Of Marmora Church

Marmora—The annual meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening with Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell in the chair. Following opening prayer minutes of last annual and regular meetings were confirmed. The financial statement and review of the year's activities were presented by W. J. Cottrell, secretary-treasurer. Rural Dean Caldwell gave a report of the annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Deaneries Laymen's Association and thanked St. Paul's Association for their efforts of the past year. The election of officers resulted as follows—

President—H. R. Pearce.

Vice-President—A. Winters.

Secretary-Treasurer—W. J. Cattrell.

It was decided to observe Dec. 6th, as Ladies' Night, when Harrison F. Lewis, Chief Migratory Bird Officer of Ottawa will give an illustrated talk on "Canadian Birds." It was also decided to hold a euchre party in the Parish Hall on Monday evening, November 20th.

The second night of the Sacred Heart Church Bazaar again attracted a large crowd, who were treated a chicken supper served by the ladies. The different forms of amusement were again well patronized, and several tables of euchre were played in the Council Chamber. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. Richard Moloney, and the gentleman's prize went to Edward Moloney. Thursday the closing night also brought a large crowd, and a tasty supper was served at six o'clock. The chief attraction of the evening was a dance, the music being furnished by the Ace's Orchestra. At eleven o'clock at a pause in the dancing, the lucky tickets were drawn for the prizes, which resulted as follows:—

3rd prize, $5.00—Robert Scott, Havelock.

4th prize, $5.00—Miss Marguerite Feeney, Madoc.

5th prize, $5.00—Miss Margaret Flynn, Peterboro.

6th prize, $5.00—Darlene Aboud, Marmora.

Box of Candy—Miss Annie Tour, Madoc.

Ham—Mr. George Dunn, Peterborough.

Set of Doylies—Mrs. Archie McCallum, Cordova.

Door Prize—Jimmy Moir, Marmora.

Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher and H. W. Sabine attended the November sessions of the Belleville Presbytery at Shannonville on Tuesday.

Miss Dorothy Marett, B. A., of Kingston spent the week end at her home here.

Mr. Thomas Crawford of the Dominion Bank staff, Brooklin, is spending a couple of week's holidays at his home here.

Mr. Charles Jones left on Thursday on a business trip to Western Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Cavanaugh are visiting relatives in Napanee.

Mr. C. T. McCormack and son of Coe Hill and Messrs. E. H. McCormack and Roy Pereman of Oshawa visited Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Henry on Sunday.

Miss Hilda Taft is confined to her home through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Forestell of Lindsay are visiting relatives here.

Misses Madeline and Mary Ann Flynn and Mrs. Clancy of Peterborough, attended the Sacred Heart Bazaar on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint McGee of Port Hope were visitors to Marmora on Thursday.

HEATING HINTS

by James Stewart

"TOSSING on a few shovelsful" is the common way of refueling a furnace, but it is not the proper way, nor is it the way to obtain the most economical heat. Try this method next time you find it necessary to refuel:

First, shake the fuel bed gently, until you can see the first red glow in the ashpit. Don't shake the fire roughly or allow red coals to fall through the grates. Then take a shovel, or hoe, and pull a mound of live coals to the front of your furnace fire-box, just inside the fire door. Do not disturb the layer of ash under the live coals.

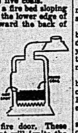
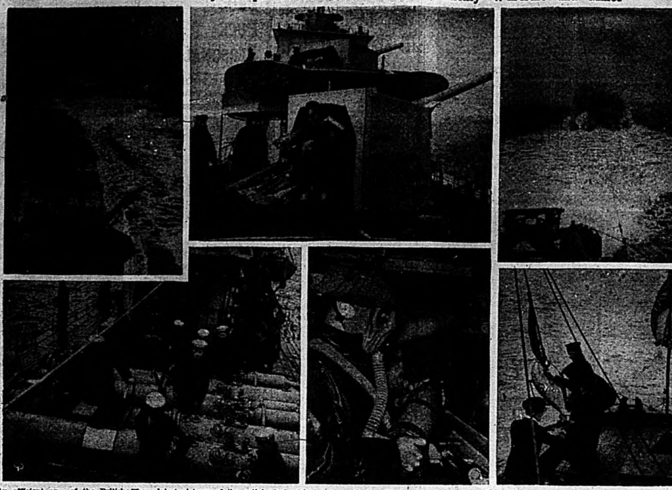
Now you have a fire bed sloping downward, from the lower edge of the fire door, toward the back of your furnace.



Into the hollow formed by this slope, put the fresh charge of coal—shoveling it in carefully toward the back of the furnace, leaving a mound of live coals in front near the fire door. These live coals in front will ignite the gases arising from the contact of the fresh coal with the hot coal, and will cause them to burn without odor.

Next remove the ashes from the ashpit, and reset the dampers: The Turn Damper in the smoke pipe should be as nearly closed as possible; the Check Damper should be closed; the Ashpit Damper should be open. It is also advisable to open the slide in the fire-door slightly—about the width of a wooden match stick. (2)

Canada's Efficient Navy Keeps Coastal Waters Free of Enemy Warcraft and Mines



An efficient arm of the British sea fleet, is the small but powerful Canadian navy, which is at present patrolling the coastal waters of the Dominion, convoying ships, patrolling for enemy submarines and keeping Canadian harbors free from enemy mines. These latest pictures of the activities of his majesty's Royal Canadian Navy were taken with the co-operation of Canadian naval authorities. Destroyers of the Royal Canadian Navy are shown, UPPER LEFT, surging through coastal seas on their ceaseless patrol against enemy shipping. Equipped with four 4.7 guns, one of which is shown, UPPER CENTRE, as well as a battery of two-pounders, the destroyer's most deadly armament is its complement of torpedo tubes, LOWER LEFT. The nemesis of submarines are the deadly depth charges, one of which is shown exploding, UPPER RIGHT. The gas-masked sailor, LOWER CENTRE, standing ready to reload one of the guns aboard the destroyer to which he is attached, is just as at home handling one of the deadly torpedo tubes as he is manning the gun itself. He also knows how to rig a paravane, LOWER RIGHT, which is used to locate and cut hidden mines from their moorings. When the mines are freed from their moorings they float to the surface and are readily destroyed by gunfire.

Eldorado

ELDORADO — The Eldorado and Union Young People entertained the young people from Trinity United Church Madoc, on Monday evening, at the Eldorado church. A large number of the Young People were in attendance from both groups.

Miss Florence Walker spoke a few words of welcome to the Madoc Y. P., and called on the president, Miss R. Smith, of the Madoc group, to take charge of the program. She opened the meeting by a few words of appreciation for the invitation to visit the Eldorado and Union People. Miss Betty Demorest was in charge of the program. The Bible lesson was read by Miss Schell and Rev. A. Poulter offered the prayer. The topic, on Mendelssohn, was given by Miss Betty Demorest, after which a duet was rendered by Misses Kay and Ruby Parks, which closed that part of the program. Miss Florence Walker introduced Rev. A. Poulter of Madoc and Rev. G. Crabbe of Eldorado, both responded by a brief talk. Sergt. Vernon Strebe of Hastings and Prince Edward Battalion, who had only arrived home for a short visit, was honored by the following address read by Miss Grace Robinson.

Eldorado, Ontario,
November, 13th., 1939

Dear Vernon:—

With mingled feelings of pride and regret, we, your fellow members of Eldorado and Union Young Peoples, address you this evening. Our feeling of pride is not alone that you so readily and willingly offered your services for your King and Country, but that you have already shown your ability as a soldier and have been chosen to go to England for more advanced work. As a group of young people we have had reason to be proud of you, Vernon, in times of peace. Your services to the betterment of our group have been an inspiration to us all. We recall your unique and sincere worship services and your genial manner of presiding when acting as our president.

We who remain must endeavor to maintain in our group the high standard you have set.

We regret that our country has been forced into war to defend our democracy and that boys, such as you, Vernon, of necessity must aid their country, that we at home may enjoy security.

Our prayers and good wishes will be ever with you and may you never cease to be a true soldier of your Heavenly King as well as of your earthly King.

Due to your very sudden appearance in our midst tonight we have only wishes to extend to you with a promise of something more tangible in the very near future.

Signed: The Eldorado and Union Young People's Union.

Vernon very feelingly thanked all for their kind thoughts.

The young people then adjourned to the Sunday school rooms where games were enjoyed and refreshments were served and community singing brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

On Tuesday afternoon the neighbors and friends of the surrounding community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Strebe to spend a short time with Sergt. Vernon Strebe. During the afternoon he was presented with a purse containing twenty-one dollars.

The Bannockburn and Eldorado Women's Institute held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Clayton Blackburn on Tuesday evening, about forty were in attendance.

Mrs. Ken Holmes and Joan were tea hour guests of Mr. W. Holmes on Monday evening.

Mrs. C. D. McCann visited her daughter, Mrs. Harold Pigden on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parnell and Farley were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Diamond on Sunday.

Tweed

Tweed—The Marion Coon Evening Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. T. E. Moffat on Tuesday evening with Miss Hazel Grindell presiding. The theme for discussion was "Our Response to God's Missionary Purpose."

Miss Grindell gave a brief address on Remembrance Day in the twenty-first anniversary of the signing of the Armistice on November eleventh, 1918. This was followed by a prayer for Canada. Miss Catharine MacQuarrie read a poem "Are You Living God's Way?"

Mrs. Harold Emerson and Mrs. Wm. Morris had charge of a chapter "The Untouchables", from the Study Book, "Moving Millions." Mrs. Morris, dressed in a sari, impersonated a woman of India who is an untouchable, uninfluenced by Christianity or any of the modern reform movements. In response to several questions propounded by Mrs. Emerson and Miss Florence Blaney, she told the story of the Untouchables of India and explained why Ghandi opposes the conversion of the untouchables to Christianity.

It was planned to hold the December meeting at the home of Miss Marion Newton to take the form of a pot-luck supper.

A nominating committee, composed of Mrs. M. G. Dales, Mrs. H. Emerson and Mrs. W. Johnston was named to prepare a tentative list of officers for 1940.

Tweed Red Cross Campaign Fund Committee, headed by Mr. C. E. White, began the canvass of Tweed and immediate district on Monday, November 13th. The canvass will continue until November 23rd or until such time as a complete canvass has been made.

Mr. White and a small committee of men is engaged in a canvass of business men. They had by Wednesday night obtained promises aggregating nearly $1200 and cash to the amount of $175. The committee of ladies engaged in a house-to-house canvass is also meeting with a gratifying response. It is expected that an amount in the neighborhood of $2,000 will be subscribed.

Christian Street

Christian Street—A number from here attended the charivari for the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Caughey, on Monday evening and on Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lough at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hubbs. They were lavishly treated at both places.

Mr. and Mrs. David Fox attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Edmund Sanford at Eldorado on Wednesday.

Mr. Harold Cross went to Combermere on Wednesday and brought out a truck load of shingles.

Mrs. Henry Dick spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mr. Herb Rutter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Noxon and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cross, attended the meeting of Quinte Chapter No. 59, O.E.S., at Ameliasburg on Thursday evening.

INSTALMENT 21

There were traces of tears left, despite Becky's efforts to efface them, when she went downstairs more than an hour later. She met Laurence in the dim square lower hall.

"What you been crying about?" he asked her abruptly.

"Talking to my people."

"Your people? What made you cry about that?"

"I've not heard their voices for more than two years."

"Oh?" He dragged out the monosyllable, comprehending. "I see they're in California, are they? You telephoned?"

They had reached the drawing-room, now deserted. She seated herself on a davenport, and Laurence sat down beside her. The room was soothingly dim now; the noise of the game players came in intermittent hysterical bursts from the distant billiard room.

"So you heard their voices?" he asked.

He could see her eyes flash in the firelight. "Mother, yes! Oh, and dad first," she told him eagerly. "And all the boys, all four of them. I couldn't talk fast enough, and we were all crying!"

"And they're all well?"

She liked his sympathy. "All well. Oh, they sounded so delicious!" she said. "I told them that I was well, and that Gibbs had been terribly sick but was all right again—"

"Who's Gibbs?"

"My little boy."

"And your husband—was he there?"

A shadow fell on her bright face. "No. But they expected him back any day," she said in a subdued tone. "He went into the mountains this year, my mother said, helping a guide."

They were silent, looking into the flames.

"And you ran away twice?" Laurence presently said musingly.

"Yes. Cowardly, but I'm made that way."

"There doesn't seem to be anything especially cowardly in taking a job in Rheingolder's and supporting your little boy," the man said in his understanding, pleasant voice.

"He remembers everything!" Becky thought, liking him better every minute. "Ah, but you see," she said aloud, "I didn't know what I was running into! I ran into marriage, ran away from home to do that, and then ran away from my husband, and then ran away from the awful mess I'd brought down on my people! And now, what do you think of my going upstairs to bed, and you going in there and playing games with the others? Barbara will be expecting you."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because you're Barbara's guest, aren't you?" She's been telling me about you, and moonlight in Hawaii, and a picnic out on an island."

"You can imagine that after tonight I am not apt to bother Barbara very much," Laurence said. "This—this isn't my kind of thing. And isn't she engaged to this — what's his name? Peter something?"

"It's a family understanding. You know very well that her heart isn't in it," Becky said.

"I know very well that there isn't the shred of an understanding between Barbara and me," the man said definitely. "I sell two pictures a year for a few hundreds. I live with my uncle, who is the bachelor of the world. There never was anyone so against the idea of a woman in the house as Duane. It isn't a house; it's a high-hipped grand old barn with a little furniture in it. The idea that I'd look at a girl whose family has so much money—and .... Well, the idea is fantastic."

"You didn't know until I told you!"

"I'll say I didn't!" said Mr. Moulton fervently.

"Yet you liked her well enough to—to fall in love with her?"

His look was surprised in its turn. "I didn't fall in love with her. We liked each other; we like each other still, very much. As a matter of fact there's another woman."

Becky looked at him sharply in the gloom.

"Another woman!"

"Yes. Since five minutes past eight tonight there's been another woman."

Staring at him suspiciously, Becky said uneasily, "I don't think I understand you."

"I don't understand myself," he answered promptly. "And that's where you come in. And the thing is to make you believe it."

"That's where I come in," Becky stated rather than said, in a cool tone faintly ironical. "Are you trying to say that I'm the other woman?"

"That's the exact fact."

A silence. After half a minute Becky broke it with a definite, impatient "Nonsense!"

He was sitting looking into the fire. In his charming careless voice he answered seriously, "Isn't all love nonsense? Is there any reason to it?"

After another pause, Becky said, "You know I'm married, of course?"

"But as good as divorced. That could be arranged.

"Oh, that could be arranged?" she echoed, scandalized and amused.

"You think I'm fresh," the man said. "I want to tell you something. I've been waiting all my life to meet you. I've seen a picture like you somewhere. I don't remember where; in some gallery maybe. Lots of Renoir's models wore their hair that way. But wherever it was, it stuck in my mind, stuck in my heart. When I saw you tonight, the first minute, I knew that you were the sort of woman I wanted to have my arms around, your hair was the hair I wanted to kiss.

"Now this may take time," the pleasant cultured voice went on as Becky, staring at him transfixed, made no remark. "You've no money and I've no money, and I can't ask my uncle for any—not that he has much himself. He gave me my education, art schools here, Paris for two years, and since then I've been on my own. As I say, I make a few hundreds now and then, and take a trip, and come back to the barn and work like blazes and make a few more. That's what I've been doing for six or seven years. But now that's over. Now I'm going to work for you. It's all come to me in a rush; I've been in a dizzy dream since dinner. You're for me and I'm for you, forever and ever. Amen."

"I wish you wouldn't talk in quite this way," Becky said uncomfortably.

"I know. I've no business to. I didn't mean to."

"It isn't fair to Barbara, for one thing. And of course as far as I'm concerned, it's out of the question —But here I am answering you seriously," Becky broke off impatiently, "when it's all such utter nonsense!" Her cheeks were red with distress as she faced him. "For if I were divorced—if Gavin were dead," Becky went on with spirit, "it wouldn't make any difference! I think," she added in a lower tone, her eyes returned to the fire now, "that I'm done with men forever."

"That's nonsense if you're going to talk about nonsense!" Laurence protested.

"No, it's not nonsense. I don't think I like men—as husbands. Men like Doctor Dinsmore or my father, that's different. You can love them; you can adore them. But when it's married love, it's too hard on the woman, it's too unfair to her. She gets all the bad part. She does the waiting at home and crying and wondering."

Laurence spoke soberly. "It isn't always like that. How old are you?"

"Twenty-four."

"I'm thirty. And I'm in earnest, Becky. I'll get you if it takes ten years. You know that, don't you?" he asked in a low voice.

Becky sat helpless under a rush of emotion as unexpected as it was unwelcome. Every fiber of her being responded to him; she knew herself completely under the spell of this new voice, this new touch, the look in these keen, friendly gray eyes.

She was conscious of backing away a little, of withdrawing her hand from the smooth leather of the davenport, where his hand touched it, raising a shoulder almost as if in self-defence.

And at that moment, Stephen Dinsmore walked into the library. "Is it you, Becky? Where are the others?"

"In the game room," Becky said, on her feet, eager and radiant. "We were going back this minute." She presented her companion; Stephen gave him a keen look .

"I came down for a book. Did you see it?"

"'The Murder in a Walnut shell?'" Becky laughed.

"Not quite so bad. But it was a crime book."

"Here it is. Ah, but don't go!" she pleaded, a folding card table already in her hands. "Two games —one game? Two games. Thank you!"

The last words were to Laurence, who had taken the table from her and was opening it. Becky moved a tall lamp, pushed a chair, Dr. Dinsmore, well pleased, had the dominoes and the pegging board in his hands. When Laurence left the room the other two were already deep in their game. He turned into the hall and found his coat, and went out unnoticed into the black snowy night.

In the shadowy blue light of the cold afternoon of the eve of Christmas Eve the old barn studio was mysteriously lovely; its old rafters and high windows took on a strange beauty as the last chill light of the day moved and lingered on the dim beauty of tapestries and brasses, on pottery gay with Spanish color, on the tooled leather of antique books, the age-softened wood in Colonial chairs and chests.

"Well, did yu like Duane?" Laurence asked.

Becky turned to glance toward the great airtight stove and the great chair that stood empty beside it. A lingering luncheon for three had just ended.

"Oh, he's gone?" she asked. Then quickly: "Of course I like him. But the question is why he tolerates me. I thought you said he couldn't stand women?"

"He can't. But you're not 'women' Becky. You're you. And he's mad about you."

"I can imagine. I've been here twice."

"Well, that was enough. I can assure you he is completely yours, my dear. Ever since you were here on Monday he's been talking about you. You were a real girl. No nonsense about you. If I liked women like you he'd never object to having 'em around."

"He's nice," Becky said, touched. "Tell me again. He's your uncle?"

"He's my mother's stepbrother. She was two and he was four when his mother married her father. So he stands in the position of an uncle. I didn't know him at all well when he showed up after my father's death and offered me a chance to work with him for a while and see if I had anything. I had a job on a printing press at eighteen a week. You can imagine what it meant to me. That was eight years ago. I stayed here and tried to paint, and he helped me and finally sent me to Paris, where I got on to —well, got onto whatever - have. It isn't much, but it tickles him to death to think that I've got it at all. He and I are alone in the world and we like each other; he's a grand old guy."

"He's a dear." Becky fastened her coat collar. "I have to go," she said in an odd strained voice.

They came to the parked car, and he opened the door for her, but before she could step up his arms were about her and his half-savage kiss hard on her mouth.

CONN DECISIONS LESNEVICH IN FIFTEEN ROUNDS

Pittsburg Adonis Has No Trouble in Retaining Middleweight Crown

CLASS CLEANED UP

Conn Will Now Move up to Heavy Class and Meet Bob Pastor

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—A shanty Irish kid who always says mister and sir to sportswriters, an outsize middleweight who weighed 171¼ pounds in defending his lightheavyweight championship—that is Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh adonis who soon will be battling among the heavyweights and eventually against Champion Joe Louis.

By winning a 15-round decision over Gus Lesnevich in Madison Square Garden last night Conn just about mopped up all the suitable talent in his class and Manager Johnny Ray is remaining in town to talk business with Uncle Mike Jacobs, the promoter.

Their talks may touch upon many things, but they're bound to come upon a possible heavyweight bout with Bicycling Bob Pastor sooner or later because Conn himself wants it. And it's a logical step toward the heavyweight heights that Conn and his manager have in mind.

You Can't Have Everything.

The fact that Conn will be tackling concrete pillars with a tack hammer instead of a sledge is passing off with a quaint remark that "you can't have everything".

Unquestionably Conn has something—a handsome face, an Irish spirit and a great left hand that has made him the champion in his class.

He swarmed over Lesnevich for a $45,000 near-capacity house last night, or three rounds he stalked his foe cautiously, taking meaningless punches that raised a rosy blush on his young chest and had no other effect whatever.

Then he began taking the brakes off his darting left jab, the hook that time after time jarred the Cliffside, N.J., fighter to a standstill, and the right cross that never, never missed.

In the eleventh and the thirteenth rounds he had Lesnovich dull-eyed, hanging and clinching, and couldn't finish him. The outcome never was in doubt, but it was the ineffectuality of these punches that caused Conn afterward to smile wryly and say:

"It was a stinkin' fight. I couldn't get going."

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—The New York Fight Managers' Association is trying member Hymie Caplin for stealing Lew Jenkins, Texas lightweight, from Frank Bachan....Green Bay Packers (pro football) didn't practice for Brooklyn today because coach Curly Lambeau had to go out to the Polo grounds to see his son, Don, play for Fordham vs. St. Mary's.

Attention scouts: Pen High School at Greenville, Pa., has a six foot six pass-catching defensive wizard named Ed Kochis (who also kicks off and carries the ball from the fullback spot) ready for delivery soon....The Willard-Dempsey fight films will be ready for distribution Jan. 15 under the caption, "The Birth of a Champion."

Last week we chronicled that Dale Isaacs of Washburn went hog wild and completed eight straight passes against Drake......Whereupon, Bobbie Stephens, captain-elect of the Michigan Tech squad, went out and gave Isaacs and friends something to shoot at by completing 11 in a row, Mike Jacobs, James J. Johnston and John Roxborough, one of Joe Louis' managers, were in a 46-minute huddle yesterday....It ain't true is it, that a couple of California slickers peddled off a phoney citrus grove to Jim Londos, one of our 24—or is it 26—burping champions?

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

By the Canadian Press

New York—Billy Conn, 171 1-4, Pittsburgh, Light Heavyweight champion, outpointed Gus Lesnevich, 174 1-2, Cliffside Park, N. J., (15).

HORSEMAN DROWNS

Dunlaoghaire, Eire (CP)—Daniel Burke McKenna, once a jockey trainer but more recently the author of a successful play "Van Gogh," was drowned in the sea here. He was 39.

One of the most thrilling sights at a rugby—or football, if you will—game is that of a completed forward pass, a play sometimes made out in the clear, sometimes from amid a cluster of players of both sides—some trying to catch it, others trying to knock it to the ground. Here the camera has caught a number of pass-catchers, on a variety of gridirons, pictures that attest to the grimaces and muscular exertion the boys go through in their efforts to grab the ball—and, as an inevitable consequence, the headlines. Weird and wonderful on many occasions are the expressions the camera "freezes."

Finely-Trained Toronto Squad Ready for Wings

(By The Canadian Press)

Although some coaches and managers may disagree with the formula, canny Conny Smythe likes to have his Toronto Maple Leafs in tip-top form from the very start of a National Hockey League season. The Toronto manager likes the idea of piling up early points, believing it makes the task of finishing well up in the standing a lot easier than coming through with a late season rush.

The heavy pre-season campaigning undoubtedly is the reason that the Leafs have looked so good in winning two and drawing one in their three starts this season.

The finely-trained Toronto squad swings into action twice this week-end against Detroit Red Wings. The teams play at Toronto tonight and then switch over to Detroit for a Sunday contest.

In all, five games are up for decision during the week-end. In another Saturday encounter, New York's two teams—the Rangers and the Americans—clash in their first scheduled game. Before the start of the schedule, the clubs played an exhibition series in Western Canada.

Tomorrow night Montreal Canadiens, boasting like Leafs of a record of two victories and a draw in three contests, take on the Rangers at New York. It is the first away game of the season for the Flying Frenchmen. The week-end schedule is rounded out with the Bruins playing the Black Hawks at Chicago.

BEAVERS IN SECOND PLACE

Quebec, Nov. 18—(CP)— Quebec Beavers gained a second place tie with Lachine Rapids in the Provincial Senior Hockey League last night when they defeated Sherbrooke Red Raiders 2-1. The loss kept Raiders from entering first place with St. Hyacinthe.

A goal by Paquet five minutes from the end of the game decided the evenly contested match. There was no score in the first period but in the second Emil Fortin tallied for the Beavers. Phil Piche got Sherbrooke's goal on a long shot early in the final session.

SPRONGBOK SKIP DIES

Johannesburg, South Africa (CP)—Hubert Deane, who captained South African cricket teams against England in England in 1927 and in Africa in 1928, died here recently at 44.

Gus Giesebrecht, Detroit Red Wing centre, was demonstrating a favored method of preventing an opponent from getting at the puck when this picture was taken in Madison Square Garden while the visiting Detroiters were downing Red Dutton's Americans, 4-2. Art Chapman, American centre, is the enemy involved, and he's effectively pinioned behind the goal by the arms and stick of Gus, while Sid Howe comes up on the other side of him to assist. Chapman had shoved the puck at Tiny Thompson in the Detroit goal, and Tiny is sitting on it here. Ebbie Goodfellow is the Red Wing at the left, rushing to help out his teammates.

Sailors Step Into St. Catharines And Win 3-1—Cataracts Defeat Galt

By the Canadian Press

Toronto Goodyears had things pretty much their own way last season in winning the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" Crown, but things are going to be tougher this winter—a lot tougher. Goodyears, just as good if not better than last season, are up against classier opposition. Witness their game last night with Hamilton Dominions in Hamilton.

The champions won—but not by their usual margin. They eked out a 5-4 win and were lucky to do so in the face of a spirited last-period rally that gave Hamilton all their goals. It was Goodyears' third win in as many games.

Port Colborne Sailors stepped into St. Catharines and handed the Saints their first defeat of the season. The score was 3-1 with the Saints handcuffed so effectively they did not score until late in the third period.

Just to make it an all-round dismal night for the home folk, Niagara Falls Cataracts ran in five goals in the final period at Galt to defeat the Moose team of that city 6-5. By the loss Galt fell into the league cellar with no wins against three defeats.

Toronto Now First

The standing shows Toronto in first place with Port Colborne, Hamilton and St. Catharines tied for the second rung with four points, two less than the leaders. Niagara Falls are third.

Jimmy Drummond, Turney, Eddie King and Captain Frank O'Brien counted for Goodyears before the Hamilton attack began. Dinning, Brunnell and Ab Conick scored for Hamilton in the third before King snared his second goal of the game. Hamilton rallied again but could score but one goal, that by Miocinovich with one minute to go.

Galt, leading by four goals starting the final period, went to pieces in the face of a determined Falls offensive. Scorers for the winners in the hectic third were Tony Pavone, with two counters, and Phillips, Morrison and Astle, each with one. Hero of the piece, however, was George Brown in the Galt nets, who played sensationally throughout and had no chance on the shots that beat him.

A goalie also was to the fore in the Ports-Saints tilt. He was Art Child of the Sailors who stopped many goal-labelled shots as his mates fashioned out a win. The game was rough and wide-open.

Mac McKelvie, Al Allan and Tommy Thompson were the visiting marksmen, with Red Reynolds netting for St. Kitts.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

EDDIE SHORE
Boston Bruins

(By Central Press Canadian)

Eddie Shore

Not much can be said about Eddie Shore from any angle that hasn't already been said, not once, but a few dozen times. The mighty Boston Bruin defenceman is only making N. H. L. appearances for the Bruins' home games (at $200 per) this year, spending the rest of the time at his job as owner of the Springfield team in the International-American League. He's just about a unanimous choice for an all-time all-star berth, and has made The Canadian Press annual every year since it was inaugurated except once when he played in less than half the scheduled games. The record books list him as being born at Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., in the neighborhood of 36 years ago, and he came hurtling into the major league picture in 1926. Eddie shows no quarter to the opposition and expects none for himself. And the opposition has been very obliging in the latter respect. He has come battling through aches, pains, cuts, breaks, bruises and mental and physical turmoil with his brilliance undiminished. He doesn't rush with the puck as often as he once did. but as an all-round defenceman he had no equal in the league last year. He has posted 101 goals, 174 assists and 17 hours and 14 minutes on the penalty bench during his career.

International Intercollegiate Hockey Schedule

Montreal, Nov. 18 (CP)—Following is the revised schedule of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League:

Jan. 4: Toronto at Princeton.
Jan. 6: McGill at Harvard.
Toronto at Yale.
Queen's at Princeton.
Jan. 8: Queen's at Yale.
Jan. 13: Dartmouth at Harvard.

Feb. 22: Yale at Princeton.
Harvard at Toronto.
Feb. 23: Harvard at Queen's.
Feb. 24: McGill at Dartmouth.
Feb. 28: Harvard at Princeton.
Feb. 29: Dartmouth at Yale.
Mar. 1: Toronto at McGill.
Marc. 2: Dartmouth at Princeton.
Yale at Harvard.
Mar. 9: Harvard at Yale.

Closest to a unanimous choice for the 1939 edition of the Big Four all-star team was Bernie Thornton, ABOVE, outside wing with Toronto Argonauts, who corralled 25 out of a possible 28 votes, to make the mythical team for the second year in a row. Last year he tied with Ottawa's Tony McCarthy for one of the outside positions, the other going to Wes Cutler, but this year there was no competition for Thornton and McCarthy as they each took one. Thornton starred in the intercollegiate for Queen's before joining Argos, and before that had played in the Big Four with Hamilton Tigers.

This picture is noteworthy these days in that it is one of Joe DiMaggio, slugging Yankee outfielder, taken WITHOUT Dorothy Arnold that was, Mrs. J. DiMaggio that is. Instead, Joe is seen with his younger brother, Dominic, a centre field star with San Francisco Seals in the Coast league least summer, who was recently sold to Boston Red Sox for a pretty fair sum. The Sox are well supplied with outfield strength and Dom may be farmed in the east for another year, but should he stick, it will be quite a sight seeing the brothers making sensational catches on each other's drives to centre field.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

The Peterboro' Sports scribe predicts the Highway from the Liftlock City to Port Hope will be congested with motorized traffic this afternoon as a large number of Peterboro' sports fans have indicated their intentions of journeying to Trinity College campus to take in the Peterboro-Belleville senior Interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. district final football tussle. Coach Bamforth, who guided the destinies of the Peterboro "Orfuns" in the senior O.R.F.U. has returned to his old love and original charges as mentor of the Liftlock City collegians. No doubt Coach Bamforth's experience, gained from watching such squads as the Westmounts, Imperials and Balmy Beach roll over his Orfuns, will prove a boom, if not prolific, to the efforts of the Peterboro' kids. Regardless as to how strong the Petes may be, they'll find a courageous band of pigskin punchers in Eddie Schrieder's local squad. Actually the Petes have had more experience this season, but they do not possess any stauncher hearts. At the same time the group champion O.S.D. six-man team will meet Cobourg Collegiate in the first senior Interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. six-man grid playdown at Cobourg.

While on the subject of football the Kingston scribe is high in his praises of the newly inaugurated five yard interference rule and the regulation that permits the throwing of forward passes from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage as employed in the Eastern Interscholastic football conference. Regarding this rugby football innovation the Kingston sports scribe says—

"The five yards of open interference does away with the confusion and zone system of the present Canadian Rugby Union code, which only allows line men to interfere three yards in advance of the scrimmage line and the backs can only block up to one yards of the scrimmage line. It creates a zone system and it is even difficult for officials to keep track of the play while with the five open yards it is simple for average fans to follow the play. Many in the large crowd yesterday probably did not know the difference in the rules but they must have appreciated the wide open play with holes made for backs to go for long plunges or streak out on extensions."

Joe Turner, former Queen's gridder, viewed the new rules and stated that the Western Canada Union's ten yard interference is still better yet for open rugby. Regarding Turner's statement Scribe Walshe adds—"

"The ten yards may be too much for conservative east to adopt in one big move but the five yards of interference in front on the line of scrimmage for both backs and line seems a sane, simple solution that would please both players and fans. The C.R.U. rules commission knows its football but many of them favor the old style so much that they refuse to give new ideas a chance."

Whenever changes in playing rules are suggested in Canada, whether it be hockey, football or tiddle-winks the veterans and oldtime die-hards issue the cry—"you'll ruin the game—it can't be done—leave things as they are," etc, which is far from being progressive or constructive. If modern business and industry did not change its procedure in an effort to attract and satisfy the public it would soon become stagnant and the same applies to sports. When suggestions for the betterment of the game come, give them a trial at least and let the public be the judge. The Canadian Rubgy Union could at least attend one of these games in the Eastern Conference and perhaps learn something to the advantage of the fall classic.

Do you remember when—Bill (Young) Stribling lost on a foul to Primo Carnera in the fourth round of a bout at London 10 years ago tonight. Stribling was killed in a motorcycle accident two years later, and the gigantic Italian became world heavyweight boxing champion in 1933 with a six-round knockout over Jack Sharkey. He lost it a year later to Maxie Baer.

Paul Thompson, playing-manager of Chicago Black Hawks; Eddie Shore of Boston Bruins, and Marvin "Cyclone" Wentworth of Canadiens are the only survivors of the great flood of players which poured into the National Hockey league starting the 1926-27 campaign.

After viewing the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" against the Oshawa "Generals" we could see no playmaking Frank Lowrey, nor wingmen the calibre of Ernie McNeely on this year's Airmen roster. Forwards today must really apply the power and speed after they cross the opponent's blue line on the attack, that's where hockey players are, not fancy skating around in the centre ice zone. Defensively, however, the Flyers seem to be well fortified. Coach "Toots" Holway having "Mush" Higgins and "Big Red" Cameron, both proven rearguardsmen, as well as Dryer and Vinnicombe, the latter being a New Brunswick hockey product who reminds us of Johnnie Lalonde with a wide, sweeping poke check. On the offensive, however, the Flyers appear to lack that scoring punch, but no doubt continued practice will whip the Airmen into a system of more successful attack. Incidentally the Holway-led Flyers get their real test on Monday night when they meet the 'Signals' in the Van Horne Memorial series.

Big Opportunity Missed!

A recent survey conducted by the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association reveals that while the average newspaper reader scans and remembers about 60 per cent. of the contents other days, the Saturday editions are given close to 90 per cent. reader attention. The reason is at once obvious: Readers have an extra day of relaxation during which they read more thoroughly and consequently remember more of the detail of what they read.

Retail shops are thus presented with an exceptional opportunity of stressing the salient features of their stocks and thus implanting in the minds of newspaper readers the advantages to be gained by shopping in these stores.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING HAS BEEN PROVEN TO BE THE MOST EFFECTIVE PUBLICITY MEDIUM EVERY DAY; BUT DON'T OVERLOOK THE ESPECIAL EFFECTIVENESS OF THE SATURDAY EDITIONS.

Ontario Intelligencer Circulation Covers 93% of the homes in Belleville and Immediate Territory.

PUBLIC NOTICE
VOTING ON QUESTIONS

NOTICE is hereby given that a statement of each of the questions to be submitted to a vote of the electors at the Annual Municipal Elections for the election of a Council for the Corporation of the City of Belleville to be held on Monday the 4th day of December, 1939, is hereinafter correctly set forth.

FIRSTLY

Electors will have the opportunity of voting on the following question:

"Are you in favour of suspending the Annual Municipal Elections for a period of two years and / or for the duration of the present war, provided it continues beyond two years from the date hereof?"

SECONDLY

Electors will have the opportunity of voting on the following question:

"Are you in favour of an application being made to the Legislature to pass an Act extending the period for which members of Council are elected from a one year to a two year term and providing for retirement of one half of the members each year?"

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Belleville or a member of the Council duly appointed for that purpose shall attend at the Mayor's Office in the City Hall in the said City of Belleville on the 28th day of November, 1939, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon and if requested so to do, shall appoint in writing signed by him two persons to attend the final summing up of the votes given for and against the Questions, and one person to attend at each polling place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of promoting the proposed Questions and voting in the Affirmative thereon, and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of opposing the proposed Questions and voting in the Negative thereon.

Certified correct and dated at Belleville the 10th day of November, 1939.

J. WILFRED HOLMES,
City Clerk.

"Blond Baby"

By LEE CALVERT

Stella Norton poked the pillows into a more comfortable angle at her back and picked up the open letter on the counterpane. Two warnings in one morning were sufficient to rouse her to action. Etta's telephone call had followed immediately on the receipt of a letter from the ingenue of the company whose innuendoes had not been as carefully veiled as she had hoped.

It would be like Billy to get roped by a chorus girl. Stella was frankly panicked.

"I had a letter yesterday from Fay Campbell who is in Chi with 'Pretty Baby'," Etta had said in the cat-has eaten-a-mouse-tone. "She says that Billy sure likes 'em young and snappy. There's a blond baby—"

"Oh, yes," Stella broke in, confident, however, that Etta would not believe the hastily invented lie, "that's Margie Ray's cousin and Billy got her with the show."

It was only the second time in their twenty years of married life that Stella had been separated from Billy. The first had been when Jane Ann was born eighteen years before. Jane Ann was the most exquisite mortal ever created, in her parents' opinion, and was still safely tucked away from the turmoil of their theatrical world in a small exclusive school in Cleveland.

Warnings had reached her then, as now, and just a few weeks after the infant's birth, Stella had lost no time in rejoining the troupe of which Billy Taylor was the leading comedian. The chorus girl who had understudied her none too well on the stage, had endeavored to replace her out of the theatre.

Poor Billy! He was so susceptible. A trim ankle was as provocative to him as a sweet pea to a bee. Not that Stella believed that he had ever been more than mentally untrue to her. But it had been a slightly difficult life keeping him clear of scrapes.

"There's no fool like an old one," she muttered. "At your age, Billy Taylor, you should have some sense."

An inconsiderable appendix had sent her to the hospital just a few days before June Francis opened in Cleveland. For six weeks she had raged and fumed, for not only a well founded fear of Billy's misadventures prompted her anxiety, but also an acknowledged fact that Billy never played as well as when she was present.

"Billy ought to consider Jane Ann," Stella fussed. "Doctor or no doctor, I'm going to leave for Chicago tomorrow. I won't wait another week. That may be too late."

Stella carefully timed her arrival in Chicago. She drove directly to the hotel where Billy and she always stayed and had her bags checked in the parcel room.

"Don't you want to go up, Miss Norton?" the clerk who knew her, inquired.

"It's a surprise for Mr. Taylor," she refused. "I'll go directly to the theatre, but if I should miss him, please do not mention that I am here."

She would drive to the theatre and park the taxi opposite the stage entrance, she would follow Billy, and..... it was another nasty mess she feared, but she was not taking any chances with her happiness or Jane Ann's. Billy of course would be penitent, as always.

Stella sat back in the corner of her cab watching. The matinee jam evaporated. One by one the members of the company emerged, blinking in the bright light of the late afternoon sun. Stella's heart beat more rapidly. Any moment now and Billy would come.

The echo of Billy's effervescent chuckle reached her and she leaned as far forward as she dared, without being seen as the comedian's long slight figure appeared. With him was Jane Ann clinging adoringly to her father's arm.

What was Jane Ann doing there in Chicago? Stella shook her head to clear her eyes and then leaning forward, her arms extended, called to the pair standing in the shadow of the stage door.

"Billy—Jane Ann."

"Stella!"

"Stella!" Billy Taylor was half in and half out of the automobile, his arms around her and his lips on hers. "Stella, old girl, this is a surprise! I didn't expect you for weeks."

"So I see," she lifted her daughter's face to hers. "Jane Ann, what are you doing here?"

"Oh Mommie darling," Jane Ann flung herself in the waiting arms almost strangling her mother in her embrace. "I knew you would never let me go on the stage; not for years and years and years. When Daddy left Cleveland I ran away and met him at the train and he just had to take me with him, didn't you, Billy dear?" she appealed. "And Mommie, darling, no one knows who I am. I use a stage name and I'm in the chorus, and I love it so."

Stella Norton sat between them, an arm encircling each. This was the one time she need have no fear of a Blond Baby. Perhaps if Jane Ann were with him, Billy would be so busy teaching her the tricks of the game he knew so well he would [illegible] anyone else. And after twenty years of vigilance, [illegible] was due her....

"Oh Mommie," their daughter was pleading, "please don't send me back."

Stella patted her hand gently. "You haven't an ounce of sense, Billy Taylor," she scolded, but both husband and daughter read the laughter in her voice. "The minute my back is turned you get into mischief, both of you!"

Members of Leafs Take Officer's Course

Toronto, Nov. 18—(CP)—All the members of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team are taking the officer's training course with the Toronto Scottish.

That doesn't mean, of course, that they're going to quit hockey and go overseas before the season is over.

It does mean, however, that if the war continues on past next spring, these lads, all in A-1 physical condition, will have qualified for officers' commissions, and then will wind up their hockey affairs and go across.

MISSED ONE CALF BUT HIT HIS OWN

Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 18 (AP)—Trying to stab a calf while butchering, Irving Goodman missed and hit another calf. It was his own. Now he's in the hospital with his left leg cut to the bone.

Hog Brooder Must be Well Made

A hog brooder must of necessity be well constructed. The plans made available by the Revelstoke Sawmill Company in Calgary, Alta., call for the use of matched lumber and insulation. The plans are of a very practical nature. The insulation suggested consists of dry shavings and lime.

The brooder house is also practical because it can be used for other purposes than keeping the little pigs warm at farrowing time.

The cost of the regular size hog brooder to the average farmer is approximately three hundred dollars.

EGG PRICES EASE 5 CENTS A DOZEN

Decline From 45c to 40c For Top-Grades — Chickens Plentiful at Steady Prices

Egg quotations declined sharply from forty-five cents the dozen to forty cents from last week's quotations, while the chicken offering was one of the heaviest of the season, with prices holding at the same high levels that characterized them a week ago, the city market today offered a good display of fall and winter produce.

Eggs were fairly plentiful with prices of mediums and pullets dropping to levels commensurate with those of the better grades. The former were quoted at thirty-seven cents with pullets at thirty-five cents. Butter was steady at thirty cents the pound in either one or two-pound rolls.

Chickens fairly flooded the inside market, and in spite of the quantity offered, little or no change was noted in prices quoted last week. Yearling birds were offered at prices ranging from ninety cents to one dollar while choice six-months-old chickens commanded "tops" at from $1.30 to as high as $1.50. Fowl was plentiful in varying degrees of age and quality, and were offered from sixty cents each. A few capons that weighed in the vicinity of seven and eight pounds were offered at $1.75 each. Duck offerings were heavier than usual and sold at from one dollar each.

Apples Higher

Governmental edicts to the effect that none but high-grade apples be sold on the markets of the country, have apparently reacted locally, for the better grades of winter stock noted an advance in price today. McIntosh Reds, Tolman Sweets, Snows and Northern Spies were offered at $1.10 and $1.30 the hamper lot, an increase over the one dollar quotations of the past few weeks.

On the outside market vegetable quotation were steady, although in some quarters staple vegetables noted a slight increase. Parsnips sold today at seventy cents the bushel, a rise of ten cents over last Saturday's prices, with carrots, beets and turnips remaining firm at fifty cents for the same quantity. Onions were offered at $1.10 the bushel.

Whitefish Cheaper

Whitefish dropped a few cents in the fish department selling at eighteen cents instead of the twenty cent prices of a week ago. Lake trout was steady at twenty cents with mudcats offered at fifteen cents the pound. Pike was offered at ten cents the pound with fresh lake herring moving well at six for twenty-five cents.

Six-weeks-old pigs were plentiful but sales were slow at from $4.50 to $6.00 each.

CHICAGO PRICES FOR HOGS LOW

Corn Cribs Bulging And Pens Teeming With New Fall Crop of Hogs

Chicago, Nov. 18—(AP) — Hog prices today were the lowest in five years.

"It was bad news to livestock farmers whose corn cribs are bulging with feed grain and whose pens teemed with a new fall crop of pigs.

The drop in prices marked the elimination of the last vestige of the war boom which lifted hog prices about $2.50 in a single week, the sharpest rise in the history of the Chicago stockyards.

During the past week best hogs lost 55 cents a hundredweight here and before the opening of the market today were $3.35 under the Sept. 6 war market peak of $9.40 and 90 cents under the Aug. 31 top before hostilities broke out in Europe.

Top price a year ago was $8 and in August, 1937, when hogs reached their post-drought peak, $13.75. From that peak prices gradually declined and supplies increased.

Toronto Top-Grade Eggs Lower

Toronto, Nov. 18—As has been pointed out before, the rapid rate at which Canada is shipping cheese to the United Kingdom, and, in turn, diminishing cold storage holdings, is the reason for strong prices now prevailing on the cheese market here. Exports to United States are slowing down, but shipments from this country are still crossing the border. There has been of late a keen demand from Canadian exporters who are anxious to take advantage of available shipping space before the close of navigation at Montreal ports.

A fair volume of business was reported on the local cheese market yesterday, with current makes of new, large paraffined selling in wholesale channels at 16 3-4c to 16 7-8c per pound. The retail division was unchanged.

Slow demand, with buyers remaining cautious, caused further price reductions in top grades on the egg market yesterday at Toronto. Pullets and lower grades were still moving well. Grade "A" pullets again were in the majority in the light shipments to Northern Ontario points during the week. Two cars containing 900 cases of grade "B" large were exported to Great Britain this week.

Buying remained at a low ebb on the butter market. Limited demand appeared for No. 1 creamery solids at 28½c.

Montreal Produce.

Butter — First grade creamery, prints, job price, 29½c; first grade solids, job price, 29c.

Eggs — Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 42; A-medium, 33-34; A-pullets, 32; B-large, 26; C, 20. Receipts, 246 cases.

$315.35 COLLECTED ON POPPY DAY

Proceeds from the Poppy Day held last Saturday under the auspices of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201, grossed $315.35, according to figures released yesterday by officials in charge.

This amount is a direct increase of $35.00 over and above the amount collected last year, it was stated.

Officials of the veterans' organization voiced their appreciation of the generous response of the public to the appeal of the veterans launched through the medium of the red symbol of those men who gave their lives in the last Great War.

Principal S. MacKenzie Guest Speaker at St. Andrew's Church

With the Rev. Principal F. Scott MacKenzie, Presbyterian College, of Montreal, scheduled as the guest speaker, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will observe its 116th. anniversary with special services tomorrow.

The noted Montreal speaker will deliver addresses at both morning and evening services while the choir under Mr. Charles Kilgour, will offer appropriate music for the occasion.

Amateur Talent at Ameliasburg School Put on Fine Program

With a show that brought out the best amateur talent of the village and district, pupils of the Ameliasburg Public School last night replenished their coffers for payment of the school piano, when they played to a capacity crowd in the Ameliasburg Town Hall.

Vocal solos, duets, old-time fiddlers, piano and other instrumental numbers, rounded out a program that was enjoyed to the utmost by the large audience.

Tommy Mason, Belleville's ace master of ceremonies acted in that capacity with Gerald Irtz doing the announcing. Community singing led by the M/C. and entered into with great gusto by the audience filled the interim while judges were choosing the winners.

The winners:

Children's class — "Four Little Waitresses", the Misses Jean Sagar, Jean Corfield, Margaret Corfield and Donna Casson; Jimmy Tanner, buck and wing dancer.

Eleven S. A. Chaplains To be Appointed for Service With Forces

Eleven Salvation Army officers will be appointed in the immediate future, as chaplains in the Canadian Active Service Forces, it was announced yesterday at the meeting of the Toronto Advisory Board.

An Army group will also go overseas with the First Canadian Division, Commissioner Orames, in charge of the meeting, told members of board. He outlined the work of the Army, in which was included the erection of a Salvation Army Hut in every military district across Canada.

Dressedweights: Barrie $11.65, Chatham $11.45, Hamilton $11.50 plus transportation, Hull $11.30, London $11.25 plus transportation.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Nov. 18—(CP)— The junior golds attracted the main trading in today's two-hour session on the Toronto Exchange and narrow gains predominated in the group. Medium-price gold issues were slightly off under realizing and minor losses out-numbered gains in the industrial and western oil lists. Base metal action was dull with prices generally steady. Aggregate turnover was around 225,000 shares.

Malartic gold fields, Senator Rouyn, Siscoe and Stadacona traded in substantial volume at firm to strong prices. Siscoe gained 5 cents to 85 cents on the announcement of a slightly larger dividend and Senator added a cent or more. Perron advanced about 8 cents and Sylvanite firmed about 5 cents.

Buffalo-Ankerite was weak on announcement of a reduced dividend, selling around 7.25 for a loss of 65 cents. Other senior golds were steady.

Sherritt and Steep Rock were most active base metals and held steady. Eldorado lost a few cents.

A slightly easier tone ruled for the utilities, papers, implements and steels and the foods, senior oils and banks showed little change. Canada Packers moved up more than a point and Massey-Harris Pfd slumped nearly 2 points to 60.

The bid for Distillers-Seagrams was advanced to show a gain of 3-4. In quiet trading the western oils were unchanged to slightly lower.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 18—(AP)— Mild recoveries were sprinkled over the stock market today in one of the most sluggish sessions since the start of war.

Dealings lagged from the opening on and numerous issues were unchanged to off small amounts. Transfers were around 300,000 shares.

Stocks achieving a degree of popularity included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, North American Aviation, Southern Pacific, Brunswick-Balke-Collender, Kennecott, Anaconda, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. C. Penney, Container Corp., Allied Chemical, General Electric and Standard Oil of N. J.

In a mixed Canadian group small gains were scored by Dome, McIntyre Porcupine and Distillers. C.P.R., Lake Shore and Hiram Walker retreated a little. Dominion 4s were neglected in the bond market.

Talk of the Chrysler labor stalemate being broken over the weekend aided the automotive group. Rails contested selling.

POOLING BY ALLIES

2. To create joint committees for each of these categories to work under an Anglo-French Coordinating Committee which will be similar to the Allied Supply Council set up after three years of the First Great War.

3. To adopt new measures to improve production and tonnage.

4. To share all products on which a shortage exists in either country.

5. To draw up joint import programs to avoid competition in purchases abroad.

6. To provide for extension of their joint measures to other countries if they enter the war on the side of the allies.

Economic Organization of World.

Newspapers hailed these decisions as not only likely to hasten victory but also to have a favorable effect on the economic organization of the world both during and after the war.

"It is pointed out," said the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph "that by the steps now taken the way is being paved for that post-war economic ordering of world affairs which Great Britain and France would have sponsored at any time during the past few years had Germany shown any disposition to co-operation instead of preferring to risk everything in a great aggressive military gamble."

The Times said in an editorial entitled "The Full Alliance":

"What was hardly achieved after nearly four years of war in 1918 in the war of unity of effort between Great Britain and France is now well on the way to attainment within three months, and, owing to the unexpected course of the struggle, before the armed forces have actually come to grips.

Full Alliance.

"The lesson of 1914-18 has been learned. This is a full alliance."

The Air Ministry announced last night that "an important German naval base" was successfully photographed by the R.A.F. today.

The announcement said the planes flew over northwestern Germany and encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire.

FIRST DIVISION

Intact From Militia.

From the first, the 1939 division operated under the command of Major General A. G. L. McNaughton and a staff of Canadian officers. Every unit in the division came intact with its officers and organization from the permanent and non-permanent militia.

The safe transport of the First Canadian Contingent of some 30,000 to England in the early months of the First Great War was one of the dramatic episodes of that conflict so far as Canada was concerned. It was the biggest force of armed men ever to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

Weeks before the movement was to take place, Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, called representatives of the large shipping companies to Ottawa and learned from them the vessels which would be available. Officers of the department inspected the ships, made their selections and contracts were concluded.

Ships Refitted

The ships chartered were refitted for troop transport at Montreal. More than 1,000 beds with bedding were loaned to the shipping companies by the Defence Department.

Embarkation began Sept. 15, 1914, and was completed Oct. 1.

Arrangements were made for the safety of the contingent on the high seas. The Admiralty provided an escort of fighting ships to guard against enemy attack.

The 31 transport ships steamed from Quebec to Gaspe Basin where they met four British cruisers.

The escort was strengthened the following day when the battleship Globy took up a position on the south flank at a distance of five miles and the battleship Lancaster provided a further guard on the south below the horizon. Far to the south the old Canadian battleship Niobe, the battleship Suffolk and the auxiliary cruiser Caronia, kept a watch on the New York area.

Joined Convoy

Throughout the voyage the troops maintained something of a camp routine.

After the noon meal the troops were busy with parade, rifle exercises, squad and section drill, signalling, fire and boat drill.

Two more warships joined the escort on Oct. 10. The battle cruiser Princess Royal took up a position about six miles to the north of the flotilla and the battleship Majestic sailed out in front.

The original destination of the contingent was Liverpool but owing to congestion there it was changed to Southampton. Reports of enemy submarines led to a further change and the transports put in to Plymouth Sound. The last transport docked at Plymouth late in the afternoon of Oct. 15, 12 days after the departure from Gaspe Basin.

INVOCATION

Among the definitions of treason believed particularly applicable in the Prague situation are "acts for bringing about or maintaining organized contact" with enemies of the state; attempts to "keep the army or police from fulfilling their duties," or efforts to "influence the masses through writings, phonograph records, pictures, or radio messages."

President Quite Ill.

At the same time, Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter reported that Dr. Emil Hacha, President of the Bohemia-Moravia Protectorate, had been taken ill and that his recovery was expected to require considerable time.

(Dr. Hacha, 66, was elected President of the shrunken Czecho-Slovak Republic Nov. 30, 1938, to succeed Dr. Eduard Benes, who resigned after the Sept. 29, 938, Munich conference on partition of his country by Germany.)

Berlin officials remained silent concerning the executions, which were disclosed last night by DNB, the German news agency.

Information obtained from a foreign official in Prague shortly before telephone communication with the former Czecho-Slovak capital was cut off, indicated the city was quiet.

Executions Follow Raid

Reports in informed Prague circles were to the effect that the executions followed a raid on an illegal printing establishment in the home of a former Czech official.

DNB said the executions, which were accompanied by numerous arrests, were ordered because of assaults on Germans on Oct. 28 and Nov. 15 by students described as followers of Dr. Benes.

Czechs celebrated the 21st anniversary of the founding of their Republic on Oct. 28, defying a German ban on public demonstrations. Several clashes with police resulted, and many arrests were made.

The funeral of a Czech student who died of injuries suffered in one of these clashes was made the occasion for a mass demonstration, which resulted in more arrests.

"AIR COLLEGES"

Canadians Predominate

Canadians will predominate, it is understood, just as Canadians proved outstanding in the Royal Air Force during the first Great War, when every man of the R.A.F. personnel at the end was a Canadian.

The training project is one of the major events developing in Ottawa as Canada throws her resources and men into the war but the government and the various British missions, also have plans, which may be made public soon, for vast purchasing and construction contracts for munitions and war materials.

Empire airmen who come to Canada under the training scheme will have learned the abc's of flying at home, and will receive only advanced flying instruction here with their Canadian colleagues.

Young Canadians will first attend preparatory schools here and the 22 amateur clubs of the Canadian Flying Clubs Association will play a prominent part in this preliminary training.

R.A.F. Curriculum Adopted

The standard curriculum of the R.A.F. will be adopted in the Canadian Air Colleges. Newcomers to the force will study advanced aerobatics, the technique of air fighting, gunnery, bombing, wireless telegraphy, mapping, meteorology and air navigation.

Much of air force work is specialized, and those assigned to special duties will attend different schools. Crews of army co-operation planes will train at Ottawa in artillery spotting, reconnaissance, delivering food, ammunition and messages to ground troops and other duties.

Men selected to fly the high-speed single seater fighting planes and 300-mile-an-hour bombers will receive specialized training at Trenton, Ont., and Camp Borden, Ont. Pacific Coast air stations will likely see the majority of training for the big flying boats and the seaplanes for patrolling Canadian coastal waters.

Long before the war broke out, the rush to the Canadian Flying Clubs for preliminary training was in full swing. In the first nine months of the year, flying time of the clubs was 19,063 hours, an increase of 17 per cent compared with 16,303 hours for the corresponding period of 1938. The club at Halifax showed an increase of 130 per cent, St. Catharines, Ont., 90 per cent, Vancouver, 70 per cent and Regina and Toronto 35 per cent each.

Will Need More Planes

When the full scheme is in operation, however, Canada will need more planes both for preliminary and advanced training. The clubs have about 100 aircraft, all of light types. The R.C.A.F. placed orders for additional primary trainers before the war, but many more are needed now.

Bulk of the aircraft, both primary trainers and the advanced type, will probably be built in Canada and the United States. Great Britain needs at home all the trainers it can turn out from the factories. Some Canadian factories are turning out primary trainers now, but in relatively small numbers.

The North American Harvard, a two-place low-wing monoplane with retractable landing gear will be the standard advanced trainer for fighting pilots, it is generally conceded. With a top speed of about 250 miles an hour, the Harvard provides a good intermediate between the 100-mile-an-hour primary trainer and the service fighter, which hits a clip of between 350 and 400 miles an hour.

Avro Oxfords, twin-engined planes imported from England in some number recently, will be the standard advanced training craft for bomber and reconnaissance squadrons, and various types of somewhat slower airplane will be used for training army co-operation units.

FRENCH TROOPS

helmshaven, were driven off by coastal anti-aircraft fire.

(The British Air Ministry announced last night that Royal Air Force planes had successfully photographed an important German naval base.)

The morning communique of the German high command said:

"In the west, local unimportant activity. An attempt by three British planes to attack Wilhelmshaven failed through timely action of anti-aircraft. No bombs dropped. Several planes made scouting trips over France."

GERMAN AIRCRAFT

solitary plane was sighted over the Shetland Islands. Six Swiss cities and towns reported that they had sighted Nazi planes and alarms were sounded in ten French cities.

In most of the British towns and cities, business continued as usual and there was little interruption in street traffic. In one police tribunal, however, the judges suspended court. Pupils of some schools were taken to underground shelters.

Entertain Members Of Official Board Madoc United Church

Madoc—On Friday evening last a very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Kincaid, Madoc Township, when the men of the Official Board of Madoc United Church were entertained to supper and a social evening. Mrs. Kincaid provided a supper that would satisfy the most fastidious person and proved a charming hostess. Twenty men of the board sat down to a table laden with deliciously cooked food and feasted to the limit of their capacity. After the supper a time of social fellowship was enjoyed consisting of intelligence contest, songs, recitations and speeches. A vote of thanks was tendered the host and hostess for their kind hospitality and the pastor, Rev. A. Poulter, expressed his thanks and appreciation of the good feeling and fellowship that was so evident among the members of the board.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pigden, Madoc Township, recently when about 125 neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Franks (nee Lillian Pigden) gathered to celebrate their marriage. About 11.30 the gathering was called to order by Mr. Elliott Burris and an address was read by Miss Grace Robinson and signed on behalf of the community by Jenny Burris, Grace Robinson, Elliott Burris, Ernest Lough and Allen Ketcheson. Among the numerous gifts was a magazine stand from the charivari gang. The bride and groom thanked their friends most sincerely and after singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" dancing and card playing continued for the remainder of the evening.

Trinity United Church Young Women's Club held their monthly meeting on Wednesday evening. After the devotional period, Miss Ferguson read the minutes and gave a summary of the year's work. The financial report was given by Mrs. Irwin. Mr. Johnston entertained the club with moving pictures taken while on his trip through the Western States and Western Canada which were very much enjoyed. Mrs. Geo. White gave a talk on the work of the Red Cross and the aim of their work. The evening closed with a lunch being served by members of the club.

Tweed High School rugby team met Madoc High School rugby team for the second game of the play-offs for the C.H.H.S. championship. Madoc had Tweed outplayed at every turn but were very heavily penalized in numerous counts. Tweed took advantage of every break and proved a real threat to Madoc's stalwarts. In the first half Tweed scored a single point. In the second half Madoc worked their way down the field and McCoy scored a touchdown from Tweed's fumble behind the goal line. In the next five minutes Tweed completed a long forward pass and then bucked their way over the line for a touchdown.

Stewart and Harris brought the spectators to loud cheers time and again with their broken field running. Wagar of Tweed was a real match for Munro and Keller of Madoc who excelled for their tricky dodging.

Madoc—Munro, Hawthorne, Stewart, Harris, Phillips, McBain, Demille, Hawthorne, Downey, McCoy, White; subs, White, Poulter, Scott and Armstrong.

Referee—Townsend, Belleville.

Head linesman—Beach, Belleville.

ORCHESTRA CONDUCTOR PAYS NO ATTENTION TO FLAPPING COLLAR

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP) — The athisthenics of orchestra conducting have finally scored against sartorially splendid Leopold Stokowski. His "gates ajar" collar came loose with a pop at a Philadelphia orchestra concert yesterday, flapped for five minutes and sent a murmur of consternation through the academy of music. But the music flowed on and Stokowski made repairs during intermission.

BITTER UNDERCOVER FIGHT AGAINST GERMAN DOMINATION

German Reprisals Said to Have Been Increasingly Fierce After Munich Bombing

6,000 ARRESTED

By IVAN GUEBROFF
Havas Staff Writer

On the Austrian-Yugoslav Frontier, Nov. 18 (C.P.-Havas) — A bitter undercover fight against German domination preceded the open Czech demonstrations which culminated yesterday with the shooting of nine Prague students by the Nazi elite guard.

In the past three months, according to confidential reports by Czech police in Prague, at least 30 bodies of Nazi elite guards have been pulled out of the Vltava River, which runs through Prague.

German reprisals are said to have been increasingly fierce. In a single day after the bombing at Munich, which Adolf Hitler just missed, 6,000 Czechs were arrested, and 600 of them were reported sent to concentration camps.

At the same time the German government has intensified its drive to absorb Bohemia and Moravia completely into the Reich — economically, politically and culturally.

Take Advantage of Laws

The German administration has taken advantage of the anti-Semitic laws to introduce German commissioners into every business firm which formerly had one or more Jewish directors. These commissioners discharge Czech employees in favor of imported German workmen. This is especially true of armament works, such as Skoda.

Germans brought "home to the Reich" from Poland and the Baltic States are being used to take over these factories.

German officers with the Army of Occupation are encouraged to bring their families from Germany.

Both the schools and the Government administration are being Germanized. Study of the German language is compulsory.

Czech hostility toward these German innovations has grown stronger and better organized. Individual non-co-operation with the German program has become practically unanimous.

Canadian Forces Will Soon be Supplied With Full Equipment Says Gen. McNaughton After Trip

By Frank Flaherty, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Nov. 18—(CP)—Supplies for the Canadian Active Service Force now are going forward and within a short time the troops will be fully equipped with all personal equipment and clothing, Defence Minister Rogers and Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, Officer Commanding the First Overseas Division, said today.

Recently returned from his trans Canada tour in which he visited every first divilson unit, General McNaughton said he was impressed with the high standard of the men in the units and with their seriousness.

The tour, he said, was more in the nature of a visit than an inspection. The object was to find out at first hand just what difficulties the different units were encountering and to aid them. In this it had been successful. It brought the units into close touch with headquarters and many requests from officers commanding units were met at once.

The whole question of supplies was reviewed item by item right down to tooth brushes some time ago, said Mr. Rogers. The War Supply Board had then undertaken to meet all demands by a date which was now near at hand.

"Deliveries of all esesntial articles are now on the way," he said. "Some minor articles may be delivered a little later."

Among the essential articles he listed boots, uniforms, socks and underwear. Canadian industry had risen to the demand and co-operated fully with the War Supply Board in order to meet the heavy demand for equipment at short notice.

Shoulder patches of khaki cloth bearing the word "Canada" in silvery-grey letters will identify Canadian troops overseas. They will be worn on the new battle dress uniforms which do away with polish buttons and badges. The question of unit identification marks or badges is still under discussion.

C. HAMILTON LOSES 2 FINGERS IN GUN ACCIDENT

Foxboro Resident Was Walking Through Woods at Denbigh When Gun Accidentally Discharges

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

With two fingers shot off as a result of an accident while hunting near Brule Lake, north of Denbigh, Clayton Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hamilton, Foxboro was taken to Belleville General Hospital last evening, where his condition today was reported as being good.

Hamilton was carrying two guns, his own and that of a companion, through the woods after they had brought down a deer, and had swung the weapons over his shoulder, when the one owned by his friend, an old style rifle with no safety catch, suddenly discharged. The bullet struck the fourth and fifth digits of his hand, mangling them to such an extent that they had to be removed.

Companions, after binding the wounds, started with the injured man in a car for a hospital. Reaching the highway, they had only travelled a short distance when the car broke down. A passing motor party from Peterboro, enroute to Ottawa, halted, and brought the injured man to Belleville and hospital.

Hamilton had, only a short while previous recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia and the hunting trip had been prescribed as part of his convalescence.

Police Investigating Disappearance of Medical Doctor

Montreal, Nov. 18—(CP)—Police are investigating the week-old disappearance of Col. George E. Beauchamp, Medical Officer in the quarantine service of the Pensions and National Health Department, who last was seen when he drove away from his office Nov. 11.

Inspector Armand Brodeur said no trace has been found of the 58-year-old officer or of his automobile. Brodeur said Col. Beauchamp left his office for the waterfront at about six o'clock last Saturday evening, ostensibly bound for the waterfront to meet a ship.

Police believe the man, who complained of illness the night before, may accidentally driven his automobile over the edge of a wharf into the river.

WAR BRIEFS

London, Nov. 18 (CP)—Convicts in Exeter Prison kept up a night-long chorus last night of "we're Englishmen, we want to fight".

Prisoners were confined to their cells and all guards recalled.

About 200 prisoners serving sentences of less than three years were involved.

Moscow, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Russian press continued its thrusts at Finland today, printing a Tass (Russian News Agency) dispatch from Helsingfors describing the "pitiful plight" of the working class of that country. The government announced award of more than 16,000 decorations "for valor and merit" to Red army soldiers and political organizers.

Baltimore, Nov. 18 (AP) — Five attack bombers left the Glenn L. Martin aircraft plant yesterday bound for New York and transshipment to France. A company spokesman said the plant was turning out three planes daily to fill the Frenct government's order for 245 ships.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Nov. 18 (CP)—British Guiana will stand on its own feet for the duration of the war, Acting Governor Sir John Waddington said yesterday as he anounced plans for turning a deficit into a surplus in 1940. With an estimated deficit of $210,467, the government hopes to have a surplus of $87,533 by boosting income and export taxes.

Berlin, Nov. 18 (CP)—Adolf Hitler publicly thanked German farmers today for harvesting their crops and planting new ones "despite the worst of weather and a lack of farmhands."

He declared that "with the aid of the Almighty, the German people's nourishment from products of their own soil will thereby be guaranteed for the ensuing year."

Cairo, Nov. 18 (AP)—Premier Ali Maher Pasha assured Great Britain today of "all possible help". He spoke at a new session of the Egyptian parliament, opened by King Farouk. Egypt severed diplomatic relations with Germany Sept. 4, one day after the British and French declarations of war.

TAXIDRIVER REWARDED

Toronto, Nov. 18—(CP)— Lawrence Owen, Toronto taxidriver, was presented with a reward of $50 yesterday for his action last April 29 in attacking an armed youth who attempted to rob him. Owen was shot during the scuffle and Chief Inspector John Chisholm, in relating the facts, said it was an "act of Providence" he was not killed.

BRITISH ORDER $20,000,000 IN TRAINING PLANES

First Contract For Airplanes Made Public Since U. S. Embargo Repeal

400 TO 600 PLANES

Majority of Machines Will Likely be Sent to Canada For Empire Scheme

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—A contract for 400 to 600 North American aviation training planes and extra parts for an undetermined number of planes—an order aggregating approximately $20,000,000—was signed today by representatives of the Inglewood, Calif. company and the British Purchasing Commission in the United States.

The contract was the first aircraft order made public since repeal of the United States arms embargo. Britain contracted last year for 400 planes of the same type and 325 of them were delivered before the arms embargo went into effect.

The majority of the newly-ordered ships probably will be sent to Canada to be used in the "empire air scheme" which embodies training of 25,000 men a year for service in the Royal Air Force.

To Be Wheeled Over Border.

No details of delivery plans were given but it was understood the planes would be flown to an airport adjacent to a Canadian airport and wheeled across the border to comply with the new Neutraylity Act.

The United States army has accepted 174 of the same type of plane, known as the BC-1. Although called trainers, they can carry a light load of fragmentation or demolition bombs and are built to provide for installation of one fixed machine-gun firing through the propeller.

They are two-seated, low-winged monoplanes with metal fuselage and fabric wings, are powered by single 550-horsepower Pratt-Whitney radial motors and have a top speed of 240 miles an hour.

MRS. T. A. NEWTON
(Formerly of Tweed)

Tweed, Nov. 18—(Special)— Mrs. Thomas A. Newton formerly Miss Melsena Blanche VanDusen, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Allen VanDusen of Tweed, passed away at the age of eighty at her home in Drumbo recently. She was born in Tweed where she lived until her marriage to Mr. T. A. Newton. Moving to Woodstock they remained for fifty years. The past year has been spent at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. E. Peterson of Drumbo.

The deceased was an only sister of Mrs. (Dr.) W. A. Dafoe formerly of Madoc, mother of Dr. Allen Roy Dafoe of Callander. Friends and relatives were present from Toronto, Tweed, Kitchener and Woodstock.

CAPONE READY TO CRY QUITS

Brother Says 'Scarface Al' Bears No Resentment to Society

That, at least, was the word passed along today by his brother, John, Villanova, Pa. business man, whose name has never been connected with the $25,000,000 crime syndicate Al once ruled in Chicago.

Speaking for the bed-ridden gangster, John Capone asserted his brother bore no resentment toward society for his seven years in prison.

"He's in a cheerful mood and doesn't hold a grudge against anybody," the family spokesman said.

He added that the "big shot," who is suffering from paresis, was "a little on edge"—"nervous like anyone coming out of there." By "there" he meant Alcatraz, the Federal prison in California, where Capone served most of his sentence for income tax evasion.

Last night, Dr. Joseph Moore said Capone was "chronically but not acutely ill." He replied "no comment" when asked if Capone was rational.

The War This Week

By DWON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Cable Editor)

Germany is fighting a ferocious war on paper.

Almost daily in the eleventh week of hostilities Nazi spokesmen and Nazi newspapers reiterated the old theme that the British Empire must be destroyed, that England must be shown "what it means to be at war with Germany".

It was an offensive of words. There was no sign of devastating war from the air. There was no move to storm the Maginot Line, or to push through the Netherlands and Belgium.

Dissension in the German councils of war reported with increasing persistency. The generals were said to be unwilling to undertake a campaign in the west. There were reports of reviving monarchist sentiment, of Czech student demonstrations in Prague, and of Separatist activity in Bavaria.

Excitement Subsides.

Excitement subsided on the Netherlands frontier where the massing of German troops had caused the opening of dykes and other defensive measures in Holland. There were reports of reviving monarchist sentiment in the Reich and of Separatist activity in its Bavarian Province. Czech student demonstrations testified to mounting unrest in the Protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia.

The Belgo-Netherlands mediation offer came to naught. Britain said the menace of Nazism must be removed in any settlement. France introduced a new factor in allied war aims by declaring for the first time that Austria, as well as Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, must be restored. Germany replied negatively, holding the allies had "sabotaged" the peace plan.

Winston Churchill in his broadcast last Sunday challenged the Germans to unleash the frightfulness they have so often threatened and pictured Adolf Hitler as "a cornered maniac" not knowing which way to turn.

And while the Germans temporized, the Allies went steadily ahead with preparations to meet whatever is in store. Conversations continued between Empire ministers from overseas and United Kingdom ministers. On Friday Premier Daladier and General Gamelin crossed to England for a meeting of the Supreme War Council.

The week's principal military development was the loss of a British dstroyer Monday. Only two lives were lost. German aircraft flew over the Shetland Islands and the Mersey Estuary in western England. Bombs were dropped in the Shetland raid but no damage was done beyond the shattering of windows. The row between Russia and Finland took a turn for the worse when the Finnish delegation suspended negotiations and left Moscow. The Soviets followed up the rupture with a violent press campaign against the Finns.

Glancing back twenty-five years: Preparations for a winter campaign were made by the opposing armies in Belgium and France when the Germans were checked in their westward drive in the week Nov. 12-18, 1914. In the east the Austrians evacuated Central Galicia while successes were reported by the Russians in Poland where they were fighting reinforced German forces.

Union Vale

Union Vale—Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tripp celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday. About thirty relatives were entertained to a sumptuous dinner at their home. The bride and groom of fifty years received many beautiful gifts including a bouquet of 'mums presented by the Gore G. Bell Telephone Company. Late in the day the guests departed to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Tripp good health and many more years of married life.

Miss Reta Pearsall and Miss Vera Simmons were joint hostesses on Tuesday night at Miss Simmons' home at Bloomfield, where about thirty girls were invited to shower the bride-to-be, Miss Rose Walters, of Schoharie, with miscellaneous gifts. A most modern model house in blue and white with electric lights centred the table and it was filled to capacity with gifts. Mrs. Ray Clapp of Picton, gave a reading "Keeping House for Two", after which Miss Walters was asked to remove the gifts from the house by lifting the roof. Miss Walters thanked her many friends for their beautiful gifts. A wedding bell contest formed the amusement for the evening. Lunch was served with Misses Mary Greer, Vera Simmons and Reta Pearsall serving. About midnight all departed wishing Miss Walters much happiness.

Mrs. C. A. Vincent spent last Thursday with her sister, Mrs M. Riedell and family at Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vincent and Marie of Rochester, arrived on Monday at Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tripp's to attend the golden wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vincent and George, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pearsall.

SMALL SUM COUNTERFEIT

Washington, Nov. 18—(AP)—The United States secret service reported with satisfaction today that of the $93,772,195 spent by 25,780,127 persons at the New York World's Fair only $1,376.20 was found to be counterfeit.

All Picton Children Under 16 Years Of Age Must be Off Streets by 9 P.M.

A figurative curfew will "toll the knell of parting day" for children and young folks up to sixteen years of age in the Town of Picton, according to regulations issued the other day to police by the Council.

The instructions were the aftermath of a letter received by Council from the Picton Home and School Club, requesting that certain sections of the Children Protection Act, be enforced.

A straw vote of council members was taken with the result that Town Clerk F. L. Ward was instructed to advise police officers, probationary officers and Children's Aid officials of the wording of that part of the act that prohibits children from frequenting the streets after 9 p.m.

Enforcement of this section of the act will go into effect immediately. Violation on the part of parents will draw fines.

PICKERING COUPLE NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH BY FIRE

Morley Black Rescues Wife And Son Through Upstairs Window

OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Pickering, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Morley Black, proprietors of the service station at Liverpool, a mile and a half east of Pickering, and their young son, Billy, had a narrow escape from death, when fire, believed to have been caused by defective wiring, broke out in the cellar of their home early this morning.

Mrs. Black awakened shortly before three o'clock choking with the smoke that filled the house, carried the boy to a window while her husband made his way downstairs and obtained a ladder. He effected their rescue from the window.

Returning to the house, he opened the cellar door, but was overcome by smoke and fell down the stairs, cutting his face. Mrs. Black returned to the house to search for her husband and managed to drag him up the stairs to the living room. Then she was compelled to leave. She ran to the service station next door to call the Pickering fire brigade.

Meantime Black had regained consciousness and had managed to roll out the front door to safety.

On arrival the brigade gave first aid to Black who was suffering from cuts and bruises, then called Dr. D. E. Cartwright of Pickering.

The firemen managed to confine the blaze to the cellar of the house and extinguish the blaze.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Sunday, November 19

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonies of a contradictory nature. While there are auguries of happiness, success and much activity of a social interest, with much visiting, probably comradeship and courtship, or other sentimental relations, there also are signs of turmoil strife and recklessness.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a productive and progressive year, with the fortunes favored and with many pleasant business and social contacts. But these may be put in jeopardy by rash, impetuous and ill-governed behavior. Moderation and restrain should permit the auspicious auguries to rule.

A child born on this day may be energetic, practical and have good creative abilities and fair ambitions, but it also may be tempestuous, passionate and wilful. Early direction and discipline would help a promising career.

For Monday, November 20

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for sudden and surprising developments. There may be unforeseen change, journeys or removals, with new matters and distant interests uppermost. And while there are favorable auguries, at the same time here are conflicting and adverse signs. Be cautious with business as well as private correspondence, and avert unhappy complications.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of unexpected change or adventure, involving new objectives, persons and environs. With caution and vigilance, trouble, trickery or fraud may be avoided. Social and domestic activities may give much pleasure. Be prepared for surprises in all affairs.

A child born on this day may be talented in unusual lines with much originality and independence in thought and action. It may be fond of adventure and frequent change in residence and employment.

Says Domestic Need Underlies Spurt In U. S. Business

New York, Nov. 18—(CP)—Owen D. Young, who yesterday announced his retirement from the chairmanship of General Electric Company, believes actual domestic need underlies the general business spurt in the United States.

Differing with economic observers who have predicated a sharp slump next spring, Young said in an interview that "a large part" of domestic activity is based, not on preparations to handle war orders, but on needs which had been deferred by uncertainty as to what would happen in Europe.

"I have heard many people say the fall upturn in general business especially in machine tools and factory equipment, represented efforts of industrial companies to put their plants in order to handle the demand which might come from Europe if the war long continued," Young said.

"I do not agree with this. It is true that American business activity has spurted ahead since the war started, but a large part of the orders placed the past couple months actually represent commitments deferred the past year or so by the uncertainty seen in those months leading up to the war declaration."

COSTLY WEEKEND FOR BRITISH, NEUTRAL SHIPS

Nine Ships Sunk By German Mines Along Ship Lanes

177 Persons Dead or Missing Latest Information of the Admiralty—One Sunk By "Enemy Action," the Others by Mines

NEUTRALS SUFFER

Five Neutral Ships Including the Simon Bolivar, a Passenger Liner of the Netherlands, Sunk During the Weekend

London, Nov. 20 (CP)—Mines at least temporarily supplanted submarines as the leading sea menace off the British coast today as the floating explosives added still further to the war's greatest week-end toll of merchant shipping.

Nine vessels were reported sunk in the North Sea over the week-end, with 177 persons dead or missing.

The sinkings included the 345-ton British trawler Wigmore with a crew of 16, the 1,267-ton British collier Torchbearer and the 4,258-ton British ship Pensilva. The last mentioned was sunk "by enemy action", the Admiralty announced, while the first two ran onto mines.

Four survivors of the Rochbearer's crew, reported to have numbered 13, were landed at an English port. The crew of the Pensilva were saved.

Neutrals were the chief sufferers of the week-end havoc, losing five ships to Britain's four.

The sunken vessels were:

Pensilva, British, 4,258 tons.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Tuessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Ballistics! This is the art of throwing projectiles, and projectiles in their flight are influenced by weather conditions. Still air has its well-known slowing effect, but the amount of this changes as temperature, density and pressure changes. Air, however, is generally in motion and the correction for this must be known. Wind varies both in direction and velocity from the surface up to the highest elevation reached by the projectile. It is the duty of the weather unit of the army to observe the weather conditions and to give to the artillery the temperature and the calculated corrections called, "ballistic density" and "ballistic wind" that suitable corrections to the aim may be made.

Going to Do Job When Arrested

Toronto, Nov. 20 — (CP)—Ten minutes after a car was reported stolen in the Pape Ave. division, a 20-year-old youth was arrested, driving the machine, He told Sergeant William Nevin he was "just starting out to Bowmanville to do a safe job," police said.

"I will be very frank with you," the young man told Sergeant Nevin. "I saw a nice little safe in a store at Bowmanville and I was on my way to get it.'

Police also said the youth was carrying an unloaded revolver. He was charged with theft of the auto mobile and carrying concealed weapons.

ACTION AT FRONT GENERALLY QUIET REPORTS STATE

Flood Waters Stall War Operations Along the Fighting Zone

SEVERAL RAID ALARMS

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Western front was quiet today after a week-end in which the French reported great German aerial activity and minor patrol skirmishes between the lines.

The general staff's morning communique said merely, "nothing important to report during the night." Earlier, however, military sources said the French fought off German patrols near Blies, killing six Nazis and capturing one.

Summing up the war at sea during the past month, a French communique estimated German shipping captured by French patrols "certainly exceeded by several thousand tons the tonnage of French shipping lost because of the enemy."

Flood waters stalled overland war operations along the length of the Western Front, forcing the Germans to abandon a number of inundated positions on their side of the Rhine.

RETURNS FROM FRANCE

Paris, Nov. 20—(CP—Havas)—War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha left for London by plane today after meeting Premier Daladier and other French leaders.

"Our two countries are working in the same spirit," he said before departing. "The conversations I had today with the French Premier and War Minister, as well as the Ministers of Air and Navy, confirmed that this union is absolutely complete."

STOLEN CAR CRASH INTERRUPTS SERVICE OF HYDRO AT LONDON

London, Ont., Nov. 20—(CP) — When Donald Fleming, 19, of Sault Ste. Marie, charged with attempted murder of Sergeant Percy last, of the city police, crashed a stolen car early today, 700 rural Hydro consumers west of London were without power for two hours. As the auto swerved from the highway, it struck a pole carrying trunk power wires. The air beacon at Lambeth Airport was also darkened by the disruption in service.

Agreement Reached on Securities Held by Canadians in Britain

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 20 (CP) — After weeks of negotiation an agreement has been reached between the British Treasury and the Canadian Foreign Exchange Control Board relating to Canadian securities owned by Canadians resident in Great Britain.

Under defence regulations the treasury has the power to expropriate at its own price securities of which the principal, interest or dividends are payable in Canadian dollars. The treasury issued an order requiring the owners of such securities to make a return of their holdings.

The treasury has now agreed that "any order transferring securities to the treasury shall not apply to securities which are shown, to the satisfaction of the treasury, to have belonged on Aug. 26, 1939, to individuals resident in the United Kingdom who are Canadian nationals and are not more closely connected with the United Kingdom than Canada."

The agreement exempts Canadians resident in the United Kingdom from offering holdings of Canadian dollars and other foreign currency provided they can satisfy the treasury they owned them prior to the outbreak of war. The agreement also covers the sale of Canadian securities abroad which coincide with regulations of the Canadian Foreign Exchange Control Board.

Gen. McNaughton in Interview Praises Quality and High Intelligence of Personnel

MEETS NEWSPAPERMEN

Tells Press Troops Are Getting Excellent Rations and Many Have Gained in Weight

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP)—Canada's overseas military commander knows his troops and is proud of them. He is proud of their physique, their intelligence and of their serious view of the great moral issues in the present war.

Over the weekend Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton Commander of the first overseas division, took a group of newspapermen into his confidence and told his impressions of the units under his command. He had just returned from a quick coast-to-coast tour in which he visited every first division unit.

The General received the newspapermen in Defence Minister Rogers' office and the Minister who served as a private in the first Great War while the General held a commission and rose to command the Canadian Corps Artillery, was present throughout the conference.

Address of C. P. Pres. Broadcast in Part by German Radio Station

London, Nov. 20—(CP)—A summary of a speech on conditions in Germany attributed to W. Rupert Davies, President of The Canadian Press, was broadcast during the English news period over the Hamburg-Cologne radio station last night.

Here is what the announcer said: "The President of the Canadian news agency, The Canadian Press, Rupert Davies, stated in a speech in Toronto that all those journalists and politicians who talk about revolution in Germany should be described as silly fools.

"The authority of Hitler was not menaced in the home front. Why should a majority of German people not be prepared to support Hitler who has done so much for his country? Davies warned his audience not to believe falsehoods about starvation in Germany. It was very dangerous to underestimate the military strength and economic resources of the Reich."

The German home stations also broadcast the summary in German.

(Mr. Davies, in his speech to the Toronto Canadian Club November 13, said he was convinced the German people were 'right behind Hitler', but asserted that on that account the war guilt was not Adolf Hitler's alone, but had to be shared by the German people "who supported him and idolized him."

("I am sick and tired of hearing people say 'we must not blame the German people," said Mr Davies. "Why not? They put Hitler where he is."

Mr. Davies said that he expects a long war, which could be shortened only by "a revulsion of feeling in Germany against Hitler's iniquitous marriage of convenience with Russia.")

"HEIGH-HO, HEIGH-HO, IT'S OFF TO WORK WE GO"

PRISONER SHOOTS POLICE OFFICER DURING SEARCH

Donald Fleming, 19, of Sault St. Marie, Faces Charge of Attempted Murder

HIT IN KNEE

London, Ont., Nov. 20 — (CP)—Donald Fleming, 19, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was charged today with attempted murder here following the shooting of Police Sergeant Percy Last while he was being searched at headquarters following his arrest on a traffic charge.

Sergeant Last was not wounded seriously. One of the two bullets fired by Fleming struck the officer in the right leg above the knee.

Fleming is also charged with stealing a car in Windsor owned by Deputy Fire Chief. Hedley Coates, of that city. He was arrested this morning by Provincial Traffic Officer Burt Moore after he crashed a car into a telephone pole at Glendale, about three miles west of London.

After being booked on a reckless driving charge, Fleming was taken into a "search room" by Sergeant Last, accompanied by Traffic Offiicer Moore, and Constable William

PLANS MADE TO QUADRUPLE BRITISH TROOPS IN FRANCE

First Effort to Supply Administrative and Supply Bases Near Maginot Line

POLAND ASSISTS

By YVES MORAN
(Havas Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 20 (CP-Havas)—A qualified soudce said Sunday that plans to quadruple the 158,000 British effectives now in France are responsible for the elaborate supply and transport machinery set up by the British Expeditionary Force.

British officials since the beginning of the war have built brick by brick an organization capable of caring for four or five times the present number of Tommies along the Maginot Line. The procedure was dictated by the following considerations, this source said:

1. Despite Britain's pre-war defensive preparations, she did not in September have an army answering the needs of a long and exhausting conflict. The general staff decided therefore to concentrate its first effort on establishing administrative and supply bases in France, thus paving the way for the army which was stil lin the making.

2. Polish resistance to the German invasion, together with later Reichswehr hesitation, gave the British unexpected time to create an orderly groundwork for a vast future military installation.

Mulqueen Retires from O.A.C.

Toronto, Nov. 20- (CP)— Resignation of P. J. Mulqueen from the Ontario Athletic Commission was received today by Hon. Harold Kirby, Minister of Health, who said he had no idea who would succeed the veteran member.

Mr. Mulqueen recently resigned as Chairman of the Commission, being replaced by Lionel Conacher, Liberal Member of the Legislature for Toronto Braconadle, but remained as a member until today.

SOVIET OFFICIALS REPORT PROGRESS IN JAPAN TALKS

Russian Press Continues Attack on Finland for 'Increasing Preparations for War"

PRAVDA'S CHARGES

Moscow, Nov. 20 (AP) — Soviet Rpssian official sources reported progress today in negotiations to improve relations with Japan, while the press continued to attack Finland for "increasing preparations for war."

Tass, Soviet News Agency, announced agreement has been reached on the "composition and functions" of a mixed commission to establish a boundary between Sovietized Outer Mongolia and Japanese-protected Manchoukuo.

The commission, which will attempt to settle frontier problems left unsolved. when the two countries concluded a truce Sept. 16 after more than four months of border fighting, will meet soon at Chita, Siberia, Tass said.

At the same time, Tass reported the Soviet premier and foreign commissar, Vyacheslaff Molotoff, and Japanese Ambassador Shigenori Togo had found "a community of views" after "exchanging opinions on the fundamental principles upon which a Soviet-Japanese trade which a Soviet-Japanese trade agreement must be based."

More Satisfactory.

(A Japanese spokesman said last Friday conditions were more satisfactory "than ever before" for settlement of outstanding questions between the two countries.)

The Communist party newspaper Pravda, meanwhile, said in a dispatch from Helsingfors, "Finnish troops are marching evehywhere on the eastern frontier" which Finland has refused to revise in accord with Soviet demands.

"There are nightly blackouts," Pravda said, "but on the Soviet side everything is normal."

Finnish military and "ruling classes", Pravda added, are "increasing preparations for war" against the desires of the masses.

Daily War Survey

(By the Canadian Press)

The second great civilian sea tragedy of the war was the sinking of the Dutch liner Simon Bolivar, with the loss of some one hundred and forty persons. In the destruction of civilian lives it outranks the first, the sinking of the British liner, Athenia, which took a toll of one hundred and twelve.

Nazi propagandists will no doubt attempt to lay the responsibility for the Simon Bolivar sinking on Great Britain as they did in the case of the Athenia, taking advantage of the impossibility of identifying the nationality of a mine.

The Athenia was sunk by a submarine and the Simon Bolivar by a mine, apparently placed without notification in a channel followed by neutral shipping. The fact that the channel was one used regularly by British ships is enough to convince anyone it was an enemy mine but will probably not deter German apologists from drawing other conclusions.

When they were able to advance the contention that the British Navy sank the Athenia, a British ship, travelling between a British and a Canadian port with hundreds of British subjects on board they can be expected to produce the same story about the Simon Bolivar.

The near future should indicate whether this tragedy is an isolated event or the start of a new German campaign of frightfulness on the seas, such as the German Imperial Navy carried on for a time in the last war.

Reports of the sinking of four other ships by mines tended to confirm the view German sea warfare was becoming more ruthless.

Since the sinking of the Athenia most of Germany's war activity on the seas has conformed fairly well with the rules of war and humanitarian considerations. Hints of intensified sea warfare have been dropped from time to time from German official sources and the resort to more desperate methods will not be wholly surprising.

Dutch Anti-Aircraft Guns Engage German Plane Which Falls

Roermond, the Netherlands, Nov. 20 (AP)—A German military plane, apparently disabled by Dutch anti-aircraft guns, crashed in a meadow near here today, killing the pilot who was the sole occupant.

This was the third incident in three days in which the Dutch engaged German aircraft flying over the Netherlands.

The fact that the Dutch fired on the plane at Roermond before the crash was disclosed in an official communique from The Hague. The machine flew low over Roermond with its motors dead before attempting a landing.

Reports from Berlin indicated one German flier was seriously injured in yesterday's engagement over the Island of Schiermonnikoog.

Barracks Filled And Many Schools Opened for Courses

Destroyers Patrol Offshore in Ocean Waters While Fishing Vessels, Fully Equipped, Scour Bays and Inlets

PERSONNEL INCREASED

Men Are Housed in Comfortable Quarters With Recruits Drawn from High School Graduates and University Students

(By Everett Graeme, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Royal Canadian Navy on the Pacific Coast, Nov. 20—(CP)—There's a hum of activity at the Royal Canadian Naval Base on the Pacific.

Since the war, the personnel has increased by hundreds. Barracks are filled and more are going up along with other buildings for various training purposes and the all important task of keeping up supplies for men and equipment.

This is a self-contained compact unit and despite the strain caused by wartime expansion all facilities are running smoothly and efficiently.

Here are schools for seamanship, signalling, wireless telegraphy, gunnery, in fact everything from teaching elementary seamanship to the finishing touches that fits new men to take their places as first class seamen and fighters.

There are destroyers for patrol offshore in ocean waters; former fishing vessels manned by their crews under the fishermen's naval reserve enlistmnt, who scour the bays and inlets; minesweepers and tugs which chug around continually.

Working on New Buildings

The number of artisans and clerical workers ashore has grown overnight.

Everywhere is activity, in storehouses, boat building works, machine shops and ordnance warehouses. There is the clank of concrete mixers and the hammer of carpenters.

Like all Royal naval barracks the Pacific has the name of a ship, H.M.C.S. Naden.

In the morning the "ship's company" assembles for roll call on the parade ground. Some are clad in dungarees ready for fatigue details, others are in uniform for regular duties and still others appear in civilian clothes, latest recruits to His Majesty's Canadian Navy.

Comfortable Quarters

Petty officers and lead'ng seamen inspect their divisions on the parade ground and report to commissioned officers. They in turn report to Commander A. C. Wurtelle, executive officer on the quarter deck, and the Commander reports to the officer commanding, Commander R. I. Agnew.

"Attention. Off caps." The men stand bareheaded while Rev. Arthur Bischlager, conducts services. The Lord's Prayer is recited in unison, followed by the chaplain's prayers for their majesties and for the Empire's forces.

A tour of barracks reveals comfortable quarters. Hammocks are "as good as beds, once you get used to them!" in the words of one young seaman.

The canteen has billiard tables, a piano and a separate room with a beer counter, but no youngsters are allowed the beverage.

That rule holds good for issue of the traditional rum ration. Daily the men are issued each a tot—a half gill—of grog, two parts water to one part rum. If they don't want the grog they receive six cents per day instead. Of the eligible men in barracks only 20

TWO-GUN WOMAN SHOOTS LAWYER

Surrenders to Police Saying She Shot Man Accused of Stabbing Her With Ice Pick

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 20—(AP) — A woman armed with two guns shot down Brooks Coffman, 39, a lawyer, on Main Street today. He died a half hour later.

Miss Corrine Maddox, 26, whom Coffman was charged with stabbing with an ice pick last May, surrendered to police soon after the shooting.

"I have just shot Brooks Coffman," Jimmy Martin, assistant district attorney, said she told him.

Coffman was under a charge of assault to murder for the ice-pick stabbing of Miss Maddox. Miss Maddox, found wounded in a gravel pit near Irving, Tex., recovered after several weeks in a hospital.

Food Rationing Awaits Compilation Of Census Results

London, Nov. 20 (CP)—Food rationing in the United Kingdom will not start until the government compiles the results of the census which began September 29, and is expected to end Thursday, Food Minister W. S. Morrison said today.

Ration cards will be delivered to family heads in the meantime. They contain blanks for identification, profession and military position, and for information regarding other persons living under the same roof. Sixty-five thousand census takers have distributed the forms among 11,000,000 homes.

SHARP PROTEST GIVEN

Berlin, Nov. 20—(AP)—Germany has protested sharply to the Turkish Government against alleged attempts of the Turkish press, especially the Instanbul "Tan", to disturb relations between Russia and Germany, the information service Dienst Aus Deutschland said today. Ambassador Franz von Papen made the protest at Ankara, the service said.

CITY and DISTRICT

WORKMEN REPAIR WATER-MAIN VALVE

Public Utilities Commission workmen went into swift action Saturday midnight and Sunday, excavating that section of the Front and Bridge Street intersection that covers the main water-line supplying the western section of the city, where they effected repairs to a large valve.

Extensive pumping operations furnished residents of that part of the city affected, with a necessary supply of water although pressure was considerably reduced. Service was not disrupted at any time during the repair operations.

POLICE COURT

"I will not register a conviction against motorists who through no fault of their own may happen to become involved in an accident at this intersection," emphatically stated His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's local police court when Edward Henn, Belleville, appeared on a charge of careless driving. The charge arose out of a minor accident of last week when a motor car driven by Henn collided with a large transport, that was parked on the south side of Dundas Street in front of Baker's service station.

"There were large transports parked on either side of the street when I turned into Dundas Street off Front," complained Henn in defence to the charge.

"I understand Mayor Bone has a plan to stop these transports from parking at that end of the city. I have seen large trans ports parked on either side of the street making driving anything but safe and this practice must be stopped," added Magistrate Butler as he further stated that "no parking signs" of some description would solve the problem. In the meantime Henn's case was indefinitely enlarged until called.

At the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., a warrant was issued for the arrest of Frank Mitchell, former Belleville resident, wanted for non-support. "I'm sick and tired of this man not keeping his obligations, so perhaps a jail term will teach him to respect court rulings," suggested Mr. Donnan as the warrant was granted. Mitchell is residing in Peterboro.

After being afforded a night's lodging, a transient, who gave his name as Roland Bouchard, appeared on a charge of vagrancy. "We are holding this man for investigation and for another police department," explained Chief Kidd as Bouchard was held.

Several inebriates appeared charged with intoxication, all pleading guilty and enriching the city's coffers upon the payment of assessed fines.

Filling Operations To Be Resumed Soon

Filling operations on the old Walker Foundry raceway that parallels the east bank of the Moira River, suspended a few weeks ago because of lack of relief labor, will be resumed at near capacity soon, City Engineer Charles Mott stated today.

With relief rolls assuming their seasonal proportions, labor will be available within the next few days, he added, and the men will be employed at completion of the work started in the summer.

Necessity for immediate resumption of the work, the engineer stated, is seen in the fact that hundreds of tons of fill at present located in the middle of the river bed behind the J. B. Boyce Garage, will be washed away when spring freshets swell the water. This fill is immediately available, and trucks and workmen will be employed as soon as circumstances permit in hauling the shale and gravel to the raceway.

Completion of the project should take place in March, he added.

Chas. Lang, Son of Former Belleville Resident, Gets Five Movie Offers

Attracts Hollywood Attention as a Result of Fine Performance in a Broadway Production

SETS A RECORD

Attaining unusual success for one so young Mr. Charles Lang, of New York City, son of a Belleville old boy, Mr. Charles Lang, now of New York City is being sought after by five movie companies as the result of his exceptional performance in the Broadway production "Pastoral."

Mr. Lang, a nephew of Mrs. C. C. Davis and Mrs. J. Stewart of Foxboro, and a cousin of Mr. E. Lang of this city, is a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Art and had a part in the Hollywood productions "Having a Wonderful Time" and "Stroke of Genius". Returning to Broadway he received a part in "Pastoral" by literally "crashing in." The following story by Douglas Gilbert in the World-Telegram tells in an interesting manner of the young actor's career.

Chrleas Lang, 24, "tall, goodlooking and virile," his agency report lists him, will presently be on his way to Hollywood, a fattish contract in his pocket. If he recovers from his daze long enough to make a couple of pictures, you girls 'll have another pan to put on your dressing table.

Mr. Lang's fairy tale is one of those things that happen in but seldom, to the movies.

When Bonfils and Somnes were casting Pastoral, their current comedy at the Henry Miller theatre, a friend of Mr. Lang's was summoned to read a small part. Having no job and nothing better to do, Mr. Lang accompanied his friend. Some dozen other actors were reading for the same role, that of Sam Tenbroeck. Mr. Lang sat himself down in the darkened orchestra and listened; hoping his friend would get the job.

Crashes In

Presently Victor Wolfson, author of Pastoral, noticed him, asked him to read. Mr. Lang went to the stage, a Broadway stage upon which he had never heretofore set foot, and read three or four lines…"Step down here," said Mr. Wolfson. And Mr. Lang, complying, strode across the wire net that covers the non-used pit for the orchestra—and crashed through.

"You'll still do," said Mr. Wolfson, and hired him for the part his friend read for.

Comes opening night with a movie representative from every studio in Hollywood present. The next day there they were in his lap—five offers from as many studios. Those who bid for him were 20th-Century Fox, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, RKO, Warner Brothers and Universal. They are still bidding, and Maynard Morris, of the Leland Hayward office, is still listening.

Sets Record

The statistics of the miracle will interest those with movie dreams. In the first place, five immediate offers are tops—a record: Mr. Morris says that the chances for one bid are about one in 1,000. The average selection is one juvenile and one ingenue a year.

The nearest to Mr. Lang's record was Tyrone Power, who jumped into the folding money class from an obscure part in Katharine Cornell's St. Joan. Since then no juvenile has been tapped, but two ingenues were: Doris Nolan, yanked out of the Night of January 16; and Brenda Marshall, lifted last year from a WPA show.

Mr. Lang's home is in Three Bridges, N.J., which is a filling station, about four miles from Flemington. He is not married, but he has two sisters who are married.

Has Seen Three Shows

He has never appeared professionally in the theatre. Indeed, his interest in dramatics is but slightly more than casual.

"To tell the truth," he confessed, "I have only seen about three shows in my life." For a year he has been a student at the American Academy of Dramatic Art, but largely because it was something to do. He is 6 feet, 2 inches tall, has blond hair, blue eyes, weighs 185 pounds and is a bit on the Gary Cooper side.

Since he graduated from Flemington High School he has played baseball (tried out as a pitcher with the Brooklyn Dodgers), sold insurance, has driven a milk truck and has been an adjuster for the Edison Co. During the World's Fair he was a Greyhound bus lecturer.

He lives at 73 W. 68th St. in a rooming house run by a kindly Southern lady named Mrs. Carr and whose menage is affectionately dubbed the "Carbarn" by the roomers. Mr. Lang says it is a lucky place: Lee Bowman, a one-time inmate, got a Hollywood contract and so did another, Roger Converse.

Back stage at the Henry Miller the Pastoral cast kids him; calls him "Clark" and "Gary" and "Our Dream Prince."

But it's O. K. with Mr. Lang; and the Leland Hayward office doesn't care, either.

Program of Old-Time Melodies Enjoyed at Red Cross Band Concert

Reminiscences of 1914 were brought back along musical trails last night at the McCarthy Theatre, where the Belleville Municipal Band under Lieut. Fred Jobson, revived the old wartime musical comedy and other tunes before a capacity audience. Proceeds of the concert were donated to the local branch of the Red Cross.

Familiar melodies of "Chu Chin Chow," famous wartime hit that thrilled many thousands of Canadian soldiers, were revived in all its tuneful glory. "Nights of Gladness," popular waltz tune of years ago, brought back reminders of the gay times of two decades ago. The "Squire's Song," the popular "On Parade," "After Sunset" and the old familiar Aldershot "Military Tattoo" rounded out a band program that was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd present.

The fine artistry of Bandsmen Reg. Wardle was exemplified in a trombone solo, "Long, Long Ago," while the fine baritone voice of Harold Barrett received the well merited acclaim of the audience. Mr. Barrett was accompanied by the ever-popular Leo Riggs. The initial number on the program was the "Kibocema March," especially written by Mr. Reg Hinchey for and dedicated to the ex-members association of the Kiltie Band of Canada.

P. C. MacLaurin acted as chairman. During the concert an urgent appeal to residents of the city to aid the Red Cross by contributing generously to the campaign now under way, was made by Mr. Howard Clarke, campaign chairman of the local Society committee.

DESTINATION LOST IN A MAZE OF PACTS AND ISMS

Must Proclaim Message of God to Waiting World Says Dr. Trevor Davies

124th ANNIVERSARY

Capacity Congregations Attend Services in Bridge St. United Church

"Racial unity, the value of human personality and man's sense of impotency and moral inadequacy, are three of the great features vitally connected with the message of Christianity today," the Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies, Toronto, declared here yesterday.

Speaking before a capacity morning congregation at Bridge Street United Church on the occasion of the 124th anniversary of that institution, Dr. Davies said that "never in the past 124 years has the message of Christ been so magnificently needed as it is today. It is timely, and most important."

"Something is being overlooked," he continued. "Certain people are losing hope in the world since war was declared, and certain facts are looming ominously. It is folly for us to close our eyes to these things."

There is no basis for racial unity the speaker said, except in Christianity. "Geographically, culturally and commercially we are one. One nation claiming religion would attempt to revive and run the twentieth century on theories that have long been obsolete. When racial unity is proclaimed Christianity is being assailed. Christianity stands for utterly irreconcilable ideals, not from dreams of humanitarianism but from the fact that that one God is our Father."

The world has lost its destination in a maze of pacts and isms, Dr. Davies said. Its attitude is changing so that it doesn't know where it is going, which is far more serious. We must proclaim the message of God to a confused world that is trying to beat back that powerful tendency that God is the Father of all."

Human Personality

Turning to the value of human personality, the speaker declared "we are dishonoring God's creation in suggesting that man is a cog in a machine. Individual personality to the totalitarian states is something that must be destroyed. There the machine is important and not its cogs of which man is but merely a part. That is why today we are engaged in the struggle for freedom. Man is an end, not the means to one," he said.

Assurance for this, Dr. Davies pointed out, is seen in God's own experience, when he took the place of a humble carpenter on earth. We are only beginning to unfold the splendor of human nature. Just as God the Father implies racial unity, so does Man reveal a personality.

In no realm of industry has production exceeded consumption as it has in the moral realm, the speaker asserted.

"Years ago progress was the world's theme, but later the very things that made progress sure became the world's problems. Invention, science, have given us things we do not know what to do with. Bombing planes swooping down killing hundreds of innocent people and many other such inventions. Lately, I have yet to see what good has come from a submarine," Dr. Davies said.

"We have all kinds of power behind us but we are sometimes being frustrated because man is suffering from moral impotence. We must bring God into our lives to furnish that much needed Supreme Power to strengthen our weakened ideals and theories."

"You, the individual need not be weak. You can win a victory. The church today stands as confident as it ever did before and it will remain so, if when Jesus Christ knocks at the door, we shall see that he gains entrance. To a world that is giving up hope, I say God is near. Your need is the great gospel, of Christ and the Christian religion of Father, Son and Holy Ghost," Dr. Davies concluded.

Memorial Flowers

Prior to the address, the Rev. Dr. James Semple paid brief tribute to the late Mrs. Nathan Jones to whose memory was placed by her grandson, Mr. H. Holden of Detroit, a lovely basket of yellow and white chrysanthemums in front of the altar. Dr. Semple drew attention to the splendid work done by the late Mrs. Jones in the phase of young men's work in the church.

Two beautiful anthems sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Leona Riggs and a solo by Mrs. Helen Stobie added to the musical beauty of the service.

Dr. Davies also addressed the congregation at the evening service.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY HOLLAND, (Eldorado)

Mrs. Mary Holland passed away at the family residence in Eldorado on Tuesday morning, Nov. 14. She was in her 76th year and was in failing health for the past two years.

The passing of Mrs. Holland was the cause of sincere regret to a wide circle of friends. A devout member of the Roman Catholic Church and of the Catholic Women's League, Mrs. Holland's chief interests were her church and her home. Her last illness was borne with admirable patience and resignation. She was of a kind and loving disposition and throughout her life always gave of herself willingly and unselfishly to help her friends.

The late Mrs. Holland was born in Marmora Township, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn. She was married to the late Thomas Holland who died Dec. 22, 1913.

Surviving her are three daughters, Sister Mary Angelus, St. Mary's of the Lake, Kingston; Mrs. T. J. Palin, Coleville, Sask., Genevieve at home; three sons, James, Edward and Joseph; four brothers, John Quinn, Campbellford, James, Patrick and Alex, of Marmora; three sisters, Mrs. Edward Holland, Sr., Eldorado, Mrs. Stanis Bertrand, of Marmora, Miss Susan Quinn, Marmora and four grandchildren.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning from her late residence to Sacred Heart Church, Madoc, thence to Sacred Heart Cemetery.

Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father Hyland, P.P., while Mrs. Gus McNally, Deloro, assisted in the choir.

The bearers were the three sons, James, Edward and Joseph and her three nephews, Edward, Joseph and Johnny Quinn of Campbellford.

The spiritual tributes were many showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

LATE STILLMAN (JAKE) CROTHERS

Saturday afternoon the, funeral of Thomas Stillman (Jake) Crothers, a former resident of Belleville, who died in Toronto on Wednesday last, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. J. Alexander, J. Canning, R. Gowdy, J. A McFee, William Lynch and W. Day.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER
It may be the cause of your troubles. Buck it up the right way, with Fruit-a-tives. Feel grand.
Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, stores energy, allows the proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headachy, backachy, dizzy, dragged out all the time.
Rid yourself of these miseries, as thousands have—with Fruit-a-tives, for 35 years Canada's largest selling liver remedy. Fruit-a-tives stimulate your liver, bring prompt relief—make you feel like a new person. Get Fruit-a-tives at your druggist's today, 25c, 50c.

Rawdon—Bethel Ladies' Aid sponsored a very successful pie social at the church on Thursday evening. The guest artists were Captain and Mrs. Hutchinson and daughter Dorraine of Campbellford. Mr. and Mrs. Tummon and Mr. Arthur Duncan of Stirling. Rev. Dr. Reddick of Seymour Circuit, who gave the address of the evening.

Miss Lawrence Scott rendered two elocution numbers "Here Comes Charlie" and "The Stove Pipe Hole." Mr. Duncan contributed two vocal solos.

The Hutchinsons sang a couple of sacred numbers "Wonderful Story of Love" and "Abide With Me" with guitar accompaniment. Little Miss Dorraine sang "Austumn Leaves" and Captain Hutchinson contributed a couple of concertina solos. Mr. Tummon rendered two vocal numbers with Mrs. Tummon as accompanist, the one being the story of a "Traveller on the byways". Rev. J. E. Beckel was chairman for the occasion and at the close of the program all enjoyed a sumptuous lunch with pie of all kinds being the main item on the menu.

Centenary

Centenary—The service at the church on Sunday was in charge of Mr. L. Ireland who delivered a forceful message on temperance, pointing out the need for action on behalf of the temperance cause.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McLeod entertained at dinner on Sunday, their guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. Adams, Miss Clara Adams of Toronto and little Joan, Mr. and Mrs. John Orr and Mr. Judson Kelley.

The Y.P.U. met at the church on Tuesday evening for their weekly meeting. Plans were made to practice for their play to be put on in the near future.

A most successful dinner was held on Thursday noon by the W. A. and W. M. S. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray. Several came out from Belleville and enjoyed the delicious dinner served by the ladies. Altogether about eighty attended, after the dinner a social time was spent, followed by community singing and a short program in which the following took part, Mrs. Mercer, Mrs. S. Spafford and Mrs. Parry Hamilton, with Mrs. Moore of Bayside at the piano.

Several items of business were then taken care of. Mrs. Holton, the president of the W. A. extended a vote of thanks on behalf of the ladies to Mr. and Mrs. Ray and Mr. Wellman for their kindness in opening their lovely home for such a happy gathering. The singing of "For they are jolly good fellows" and the Mizpah closed the meeting.

Tweed

Tweed—The third and final inoculation with diphtheria toxoid was administered on Friday to some sixty pupils of Tweed Consolidated and Separate Schools by Dr. M. G. Dales, M.O.H., Mrs. Ida Douglas, Reg. N. assisted.

A joint meeting of the Boards of Tweed High, Consolidated and Separate Schools was held in the Council Chambers on Thursday night. The meeting was for the purpose of discussing the proposal to assemble school at 1.00 p.m. and dismiss at 3.30 p.m. instead of at 1.30 p.m. and 4.00 p.m. as at present.

It was considered that the plan must be put into effect by all the schools or else be dropped entirely. This is made necessary by the fact that more than one hundred pupils are transported to the three schools by the Consolidated School buses and joint action is necessary.

Those who favored the scheme pointed out that the shortened noon hour would provide less opportunity for misconduct on the part of the pupils who take their lunch to school or those who return to school too early at noon hour. Moreover some of the country children who ride home in the buses frequently reach home after dark during the short winter days. The earlier dismissal hour will make it possible for them to reach home a half hour earlier.

After some discussion it was unanimously decided to adopt the proposed scheme to take effect on Monday, November 20th and continue until the Christmas holidays. If opinion at that time remains favorable the plan will continue in operation until the first of April.

Robert Crosbie, ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Crosbie suffered a fracture of his left arm at his home while riding a bicycle. He will be confined to his home for some days.

Rev. G. H. Mackenzie of Plainfield will be the preacher at Tweed United Church on Sunday morning and evening. Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison, B.A., will be the anniversary preacher at Plainfield.

Mr. P. W. Clark, Manager Tweed branch of the Royal Bank of Canada was called away to the home of his parents, owing to the death of his mother. His friends in Tweed deeply sympathize with him in his bereavement.

Chief J. C. Hayes arrested three Toronto men on a charge of operating a motor car while they were in an unfit condition. As a result the driver, Frank Day, was charged with reckless driving and John F. Day and C. M. Lamb with having and consuming liquor illegally.

Harold Elsbury, erstwhile stellar wingman of Tweed hockey team, will seek a berth with the Belleville Redmen this winter. He has abundance of hockey skill and should fit in nicely with the Belleville aggregation.

Mr. Paul Rashotte, local contractor, has been given a contract for supply of material for the erection of buildings at Hubbell's Hill north of Stirling for the new radio range station. The station will be used as a guide to trans-Canada Airways planes flying from Ottawa to Toronto.

Tweed United Church choir held its annual meeting and election of officers on Thursday, November 16th following choir practice. Votes of thanks were extended to the retiring officers with special mention being made of Mrs. W. E. Tummon, president and Mrs. H. A. Grier, secretary treasurer for the past two years.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. C. H. Garrett.
President—Mrs. S. H. Connor.
Vice Pres.—Miss Florence Blaney
Secl-Treas.—Miss Grace Reeves
Gown Committee—The ladies of the choir.
Social Committee—Mrs. W. A. Beatty, Mrs. W. E. Tummon and Mrs. W. M. Morris.
Membership Committee — Miss Lois Richardson, Mrs. H. A. Grier, Mr. S. H. Connor, Mr. Reg. Wilson.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Morrison motored to Ottawa on Monday where they attended the funeral of the latter's uncle Mr. W. H. Bradshaw.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Trumpour of Montreal spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Beatty.

Misses Jean McCrea and Marion Armstrong of Toronto spent past of the past week with the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Sim McCrea.

Mr. Leo "Toey" Meraw underwent a second operation at Belleville General Hospital this week. He is making favorable progress.

At Grove Hospital, St. John's, Newfoundland on Friday, November 3rd to Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Hayward, Terra Nova, Newfoundland, formerly of Tweed, a son.

Tweed High School rugby team defeated Madoc by a score of 6 to 5 in Madoc on Thursday afternoon. A previous loss to the same team by a score of 7 to 5 however gave them the small end of a 12 to 11 score on the round. Gerald Wagar scored all of Tweed's points.

HEATING HINTS
by James Stewart

IN ORDER to regulate the fire for daily temperature changes, rely entirely on the Check and Ashpit Dampers. The Check Damper is a flap-like damper which should be located in the chimney pipe between the Turn Damper and the chimney. When this damper is open it retards the burning speed of the fire. The Ashpit Damper is located below the grates and controls the amount of air supplied to the fire.

For best operation these two dampers should work together—that is, when one is open the other should be closed. In mild weather, when you want a slow, lasting fire, the Check Damper should be wide open and the Ashpit Damper closed. This saves coal. When you want more heat, the Check Damper should be partly closed and the Ashpit Damper opened part way. In extremely cold weather, of course, the Check Damper should be closed tight and the Ashpit Damper wide open. (3)

THE RED CROSS

Mrs. H. P. Plumptre, Vice-President of War Activities for Red Cross Started With the Red Cross in 1914 as Telephone Operator—is, Also, Toronto's Only Woman Alderman — Leads a Very Busy Life

Scarcely had the war of 1914-1918 been declared than a petite young matron with a pleasant smile and an Oxford accent walked into the small Toronto office of the Canadian Red Cross to offer her services.

There were two men in the office. They were working feverishly at desks stacked high with correspondence. Both were far too busy to notice the diminutive visitor. The telephone rang incessantly. A lone stenographer kept dashing from her typewriter to answer it.

"Would you," ventured the visitor quietly, "Would you like me to answer the telephone? You seem pretty busy here."

Two men looked at her for the first time. One was Major-General G. Sterling Ryerson, founder of the Canadian Red Cross. The other was Col. Noel Marshall.

"Yes," they said together, "Please do."

So the visitor took off her hat and coat and sat beside the telephone. All day long she answered calls. She turned up the next day and did the same thing. About the third day, someone got around to asking the young woman who on earth she was.

She replied that she was Mrs. H. P. Plumptre and that she had approached the Red Cross as a representative of the Patriotic League.

And that was the way in which this amazing woman, well known from one end of Canada to the other, started with the Red Cross.

Realizing immediately her executive ability, Red Cross officials asked her to assume responsible positions. It wasn't many weeks after she'd taken upon herself the job of telephone girl that she was appointed superintendent of supplies. In 1917 she had the position of corresponding secretary of the Canadian Red Cross added to her duties.

Now Canada is once more at war. And again Mrs. Plumptre, who has held honorary offices with the Red Cross ever since the day she walked in and answered the telephone, is working at top speed. She is now vice-president of war activities for the whole Dominion, and that position takes up so much of her time that this woman, who once addressed the Assembly of the League lunch box to the office with her of Nations at Geneva, takes a each day and eats as she works.

She finds it hard to suppress a chuckle as she enters the national headquarters these days. She passes the huge, busy switchboard and thinks of the time she took over the telephone duties from the Red Cross' lone stenographer. She watches dozens of people scurrying in and out the maze of offices and recalls a picture of two men trying to handle all the Red Cross work themselves.

Pinned upon her dress is a beautiful brooch—a Geneva cross of rubies surrounded by a circle of brilliants and set in platinum. It was presented to her, along with a wrist watch and an illuminated address, by the Canadian Red Cross Society in recognition of the work she did during the years 1914-1918. The Duchess of Devonshire had the brooch made by one of the court jewellers in London.

Born in England

Mrs. Plumptre was born in Surrey, England, and took honors in Modern History at Somerville College, Oxford. She is well known in Canada as one of the three representatives of the Dominion attending the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva at the end of the last war.

That was a critical meeting. First mention was made there of the dispute between Japan and China. Mrs. Plumptre was actually the only woman delegate of the whole world in attendance. There were women who acted as substitutes or experts, but none other as a delegate. She'll never forget that occasion—when she arose to speak before the representatives of 61 nations.

She has attended two meetings of the International Red Cross, one at Tokio in 1933 and one in London last year. Do you remember the story of what Queen Mary said when Mrs. Plumptre was presented as "Alderman" Plumptre to the Queen Mother at a garden party at Buckingham Palace held in connection with the latter international meeting?

"Alderman!" repeated the Queen Mother, "Does that mean that you are a member of a city council?" Mrs. Plumptre replied that it did—that she had sat on the Toronto City Council since 1936.

"I'm glad to hear it," the Queen Mother said, "I like to hear of women being active in the affairs of their city and country."

And when Mrs. Plumptre was presented to Queen Elizabeth at the Toronto City Hall earlier this year, the Queen paused and discussed the decorations which Toronto's only woman alderman wore. One was "honorary counsellor" of the Canadian Red Cross—the highest honor in that organization. Another was from the French Republic in recognition of what the Canadian Red Cross did for France. There were two honors from Japan—the Cross of Merit, which can be awarded only by permission of the Emperor, and one of honorary membership in the Japanese Red Cross.

Mrs. Plumptre is at present vice-president of the Canadian Red Cross Society. She founded the Ontario Division and was its president from 1921 to 1931. She has also been president of the Toronto Branch—the first woman to hold this position. She is still a member of all three executives—national, provincial and city.

Finds Time to Knit

And with all the work that she manages to put in with the Red Cross and the Toronto City Council, to say nothing of a score of other things, Mrs. Plumptre still finds time to knit socks for her husband, her son and her son-in-law. And now she is knitting for the soldiers, too. She can sew well, though she doesn't claim to be an expert.

At an election campaign meeting in Toronto a year or two ago, a heckler in the audience demanded in the midst of a discussion what a woman of her position in public life could know of domestic accomplishments—like sewing, he said.

Up jumped Mrs. Plumptre's son who happened to be in the audience.

"She makes good pyjamas for me," he said. The heckler was silenced. The crowd cheered.

From the day that Mrs. Plumptre made her humble entrance into Red Cross circles on that day back in 1914 she had held office continuously and given of her time voluntarily. Never once had she accepted a penny for her work.

Not easily daunted, she was, however, a little taken aback when her name lately became linked in the vicious campaign, being investigated by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, which sought to injure the national appeal the Red Cross making for funds by spreading the rumor that this organization did such things as "sell" socks to the soldiers in the last war. The rumor went around, too, that Mrs. Plumptre was being paid a salary for her work.

Nonplussed for the moment when she heard of the rumor, Mrs. Plumptre's pleasant smile came up quickly when a Scotswoman patted her on the shoulder and said soothingly, "Dinna fash yersel', lassie, it's the stingie anes that tell thae tales."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair, and ma said, Willyum, I'm afraid I've been rushing in where angels fear to tread, I mean I've bought you a little present and it's connected with smoking.

Now look here, I thought we had an unwritten unspoken unbreakable agreement that you were to have nothing to do with my cigars as long as I keep my eyes shut to the shades of your nail polish, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum dont jump before you leap, this has nothing to do with cigars.

Dont tell me you've been buying me pipe tobacco, pop said. Nobody can buy a man pipe tobacco except himself, and even he goes wrong 9 times out of ten, he said, and ma said, I've bought you a pipe rack, if you want a long story short.

O well, now that's different, that was really an inspiration, pop said. I dont believe I've had a pipe rack since I left college, and if anybody wants to know how long ago that was, it's none of his business, because a man's as young as he feels, though possibly not always as young as he acts. Is it one of these round ones with a tobacco jar in the center? he said, and ma said, No, it's the old fashion straight kind that hangs on a wall.

That's the kind I like, I'll get myself 2 or 3 new pipes and start life all over, pop said, and ma said, I should say you wont, this pipe rack is a real onteck more than a hundred years old and it was quite expensive and it's nothing to have pipes yanked in and out of. I thought it would be very appropriate to hang it between the 2 English hunting prints in the front room, she said.

Yee gods, it's a women's world, may be it's a good thing it's being shot up pop said.

SOLDIERS' ENTERTAINMENT

The welfare of the Canadian soldier is today receiving the attention of sporting organizations and of other bodies. Men of the various units have every opportunity to engage in sport and exercise, to be entertained and to have the opportunity of reading.

The effect of this program for the soldier when he is off duty cannot but be very helpful. Sports form one of the great unifying organizations and every soldier is interested in them because of the fine training which sports provide in self-control, in the spirit of good comradeship and in building up the body and brightenings of the mind. Reading, too brings its advantages.

The soldier loves entertainment. Dramatic groups have undertaken the preparation of skits and programs which are so popular among the soldiers. While the soldier today is perhaps the best trained soldier in history because modern war depends so much upon modern science, which requires keen minds, and on the spirit of the soldier in the presence of danger, he has time from his training to attend dramatic skits and all forms of stage performance. British and French soldiers at the front too are thrilled with the entertainment which the greatest entertainers of the stage and vaudeville can present.

The army contains a great variety of talent, more talent than is contained in any group of men. Naturally with such talent is dramatic talent which only awaits the opportunity to express itself and to make others react to the powerful suggestions of the artist.

Canadian soldiers now in training are very grateful to the various organizations which are working for the lighter side of the life of the soldier, when he has his time for recreation. Such recreation is wholesome, it benefits the soldier and he appreciates it.

Such games of sport, dramatic entertainments, and reading show the deep interest of the people in the soldier of today. The Canadian soldiers are the very spirit of the people of Canada. They come from the homes of the Canadian people and hence it is no wonder that the citizen soldiers of this country should be given the best in every way as they prepare for their task which is the preservation of the life of Canada which is the home of their parents and their brothers and sisters.

What Canada is doing through the Red Cross and other organizations shows another side of Canada's interest in her army.

SEALING THEIR OWN DOOM

The natural consequence of Nazi Germany's crime against civilization and liberty in the absorption by force of the provinces of the republic of former Czecho-Slovakia, Bohemia and Moravia has come. A number of students whose only offence was love of their country lie in their graves because Nazi brutality knew no other way than to execute these young men who represent the class who through the ages have uttered the cry of "freedom."

When Nazi Germany pried Sudetenland away from Czecho-Slovakia and later engulfed Bohemia and Slovakia under a protectorate, she was prepared to go the full measure of holding by force the people of these states. She has been doing so in many ways ever since the crime of subjugation was committed, and knows nothing else than to continue doing so until the Nazis themselves are wiped out as a force.

The situation has been growing tense in Prague, when such an event occurred as was reported on Friday with the clearing out of the schools of students, their removal in buses and the execution of the youths accused of having been the ring leaders

Nazi greed brought into the Reich millions of people, whose racial origin is not German and whose aims are not Nazi. They are one of the great forces of disruption within, with which Germany will have to contend as well as against the outward force of the Allies and the growing boldness of the neutrals. Nazis are fighting to crush liberty. They may have succeeded rather well within docile Germany but when they take away the privileges of freemen and threaten the rights of other freemen, they seal their ultimate doom.

A GREAT LESSON LEARNED

The Allied Powers have taken the most important step with co-ordination, which according to the British newspapers will tighten the blockade and make the Allies to all intents and purpose a military and economic unit. It is said that this achievement took nearly four years during the Great War, while now it has been accomplished in less than eleven weeks.

Many lessons have been learned from the Great War and this is one of the chief lessons.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Location of the Pain in Appendicitis

As it seems to be the general opinion that the pain in appendicitis must be in the lower right side of the abdomen, many health writers, including myself, try to remind readers that the pain 'usually' starts up near the stomach, then gradually shifts down to the appendix and stops there. It might be well, therefore, to learn that while the pain usually starts high in the abdomen, in a number of cases it starts elsewhere.

Dr. Gordon Murray, Toronto, in Canadian Medical Association Journal gives an analysis of 1,000 cases of appendicitis whose records in the Toronto General Hospital have been carefully studied. In this group, the proportion of appendicitis in the male was four to one in the female. Abdominal pain was the first symptom in 80 per cent. The situation of the pain was (1) general cramps in abdomen 75 per cent; (2) right lower part of abdomen (appendix region), 10 per cent; (3) above the stomach proper, 7 per cent; 4) umbilicus or navel region, 2 per cent; (5) at side of abdomen, 2 per cent; (6) underneath the stomach, 2 per cent.

It can thus be seen then that the pain in appendicitis may start from various parts of the abdomen, as in only 10 per cent did the pain start in the appendix region. However, in all cases whether the pain started high up, low down, or at the side of the abdomen, in 100 per cent of cases the pain finally shifted to the region of the appendix. The pain was crampy at first, but frequently the crampy pain became less severe, leaving a dull aching sensation in the appendix region.

Aside from the pain and its location, other symptoms mentioned in the report are: loss of appetite was an early symptom; vomiting occurred early and in about 90 per cent of the cases; nausea was present often

Another interesting point was that in 12 per cent the first symptoms were due to infection elsewhere—sore throat, running nose, influenza or pneumonia. In 8 per cent there was a stomach or intestinal upset just before the onset of the abdominal symptoms of appendicitis—indigestion, lack of appetite, or diarrhoea without pain.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 20TH, 1919

Mr. James A. Cokers, the new local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, is rapidly getting acquainted with Belleville business men. Mr. Cokers was stationed at Cornwall for some years and his departure from there was much regretted by many friends.

The new wing at the Belleville General Hospital is nearing completion.

Major-General Williams will be in Belleville this week for the purpose of reorganizing the 15th Regiment. Captain McManus, formerly Adjutant of the 38th Battalion, has been made Adjutant of the unit.

Dr. J. M. Wilson will resume the practice of dentistry in this city on Dec. 1st.

Mr. J. Dickman has left to spend some time in Kingston.

30 YEARS AGO

This being Sir Wilfrid Laurier's birthday, we wish him many happy returns of the day.

The man who runs for Mayor of this city for next year and has in his platform a plank calling for permanent pavement on Front Street, will certainly get a lot of votes. Permanent paving must come before long. The small lakes of mud on our main aisle this morning should convince any reasonable man that permanent paving on Front Street is badly needed.

We have had squaw winter; now let Indian Summer come along.

At Christ Church yesterday morning and at St. Thomas' Church last evening Mr. Edmund Jones of Toronto gave an address on the new Anglican Hymn Book. Mr. Jones is a son of the Rev. Septimus Jones, who at one time was Rector of Christ Church in this city.

If this weather keeps up the coal men will carry over some of his supply next spring.

Some of our streets yesterday looked more like ploughed fields than thoroughfares in a city.

If the cost of gas can be reduced to $1.50 per thousand in this city it should be done; if not give us electricity. We must have cheaper light. Only a favored few have been able to indulge in the expensive luxury of gas; now the man of moderate means wants a chance to use something better than vile smelling coal oil.

Mr. H. A. Fish has accepted a position in Peterboro and has left to reside in that town. His many friends wish him success.

PRESS PREDICTS DISORDERS WILL SOON BE REPEATED

Czech Demonstrations Another Proof of Incapacity of Germany to Rule Alien Races Says Chronicle

TYRANTS UNEASY

London, Nov. 20—(CP)—British newspapers today condemned Germany's repression of patriotic demonstrations in Czecho-Slovakia which The Times called "another proof of the utter incapacity of the Germans for ruling alien races."

The News Chronicle predicted that the disorders and bloodshed witnessed in Prague would soon be repeated in Poland.

"His mind is set upon turning the Czecks from the region which they have occupied for centuries and then incorporating it in the greater Germany," said The Times of Hitler.

"The Czechs stand now, as they have stood before in history, for national and moral values against a race of bullies who have tried to expel the spiritual life even from their own national system. They stand and they suffer for freedom of speech and freedom of combination and for the right of the small country to live in security and independence. These are liberties which Great Britain and France and all nations of the British Commonwealth are determined to see re-established in Europe, and which lend to their campaign the character of a crusade."

The Daily Herald: "All, other peoples, as they look on, will be strengthened even further in their determination not to allow the monstrous apparatus of terror now tormenting Central Europe to survive one day longer than it must. The Czechs have again helped to bring its collapse nearer.

"Though disarmed, spied on and overwhelmed by superior force, they strike against Hitler from within repeatedly, persistently and heroically. Therefore they are as true Allies of Britain as the people of France and Poland. Today we salute them for their courage. Tomorrow, when victory is won, we will have a debt of gratitude as well as of honor to repay them."

The News Chronicle said: "The tyrants are uneasy. They threaten similar ruthless measures in event of a similar outbreak in Poland. There, and in Austria too, they must be constantly on guard again internal rebellion. The greater Reich is rotten. It proclaims the political immaturity of those who created it."

Starting off the season in a manner that made it appear as if they were really coming back from the depths they reached last year, Chicago Black Hawks were dealt a severe blow when Earl Seibert, ABOVE, their ace defence player, suffered torn knee ligaments in a game against Rangers. He is expected to be on the sidelines for three or four weeks. Over the past five years Seibert has been one of the most consistent defencemen in the NHL.

ANOTHER REFUGEE

LEFT BEHIND

FIRE DAMAGES FOXBORO HOME

Fire-Fighters Work Heroically to Save Home of Elmer Breese

Foxboro Nov. 20 (Special)—Being hampered by a stiff breeze, which was blowing directly towards the adjoining out-buildings and also by the absence of any but the most mediocre fire-fighting equipment, local volunteer fire-fighters were extended to the limit on Sunday morning to save the farm home belonging to Mr. Elmer Breese of this village when fire caught in the roof and almost completely gutted one side before being brought under control.

Believed to have been started when a spark from the chimney ignited the wooden shingles, the fire had gained considerable headway and was blazing fiercely up the side of the roof before the owner became aware that anything was amiss. Rushing to a neighbour's Mr. Breese immediately sounded the alarm but before volunteer fire-fighters could form into bucket brigades and get water pouring on the flames, the fire had eaten completely through the sheeting into the attic and had also burned away a number of the rafters.

With the house being of full two-storey construction and also built upon a high foundation, the fire-fighters were seriously hampered by their lack of equipment and it was only after hacking their way through portions of the roof that the source of the flames could be reached. Even then it was with the utmost difficulty that sufficient water could be brought into play to subdue the flames and experienced fire-fighters are marvelling that the building is standing today.

Mr. Breese is confident that his home would have been destroyed had it not been for the fact that the wooden shingles were set in mortar and this unique construction apparently checked the spread of the flames sufficiently long to allow fire-fighters to obtain mastery. In addition to the actual fire damage resulting the decorating and furnishings in the upstairs rooms were damaged by water.

ACCIDENTS CLAIM 10 LIVES IN ONT. DURING WEEKEND

Youth Skating on "Thin Ice" Goes Through and Drowned but Body Recovered

DOUBLE FATALITY

By the Canadian Press

Accidents claimed 10 lives in Ontario during the week end with seven of the fatalities due to automobile accidents. A flying officer was killed in an airplane collision, a youth drowned while skating and an aged man was struck by a train.

Flying Officer G. P. Johnstone of Regina was killed Saturday when his training plane collided with another 3,000 feet in the air over Rockcliffe Military Airport near Ottawa. Flying Officer J. D. Morrison, Regina, pilot of the second plane, parachuted to safety. Both planes were wrecked.

First "thin ice" fatality of the season in the Province came Saturday when 14-year-old Henry Thomas of Williamstown drowned while skating on the Raisin River near Cornwall. He ventured on treacherous ice at midstream and broke through into 15 feet of water. The body was recovered.

Victor Kulaski, 37, Detroit barrister, was charged with manslaughter and placed under police guard in hospital at London Sunday following the death of Mrs. William Wheaton of London Saturday. Kulaski was driver of a car that collided with one driven by Mrs. Wheaton's husband eight miles west of London. Wheaton and Kulaski were injured and taken to hospital.

Double Fatality

In the only double fatality of the week end, Mrs. Lewis Fisher and Bernard Moore of Ingersoll were killed Saturday when their auto collided with a transport truck allegedly driven by Romeo Ouellette of Windsor near Ingersoll.

Mrs. Fisher's husband was injured and Ouellette escaped burns leaping from the cab of the truck after gasoline ignited.

Alex Collan, 81-year-old deaf resident of Lucknow, was killed Saturday when struck by a freight train near the Lucknow Station as he walked along the tracks to attend the funeral of a friend. The train was an extra.

Pinned beneath the body of an auto in which he was riding, George Tyo, 54, farm laborer and veteran of the first Great War, was killed Sunday near Cornwall. William Brownell, driver of the car which veered into a ditch then overturned, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter.

Musician Killed

John Albert Mulligan, 68, well-known Ottawa musician, died while being taken to hospital after he was struck by a car in that city. The car allegedly was in charge of Joseph Doyle of Ottawa.

Mrs. Albina Stamant, 47, Thornlof, Ont., was killed Sunday when two automobiles collided on a level stretch of highway 10 miles south of Kirkland Lake. Six other persons were injured.

Tony Kowalski, 66, first Great War veteran, was killed in Toronto Saturday night when knocked down by a car driven by Private Harry Jones of the Royal Canadian Air Force Division at St. Thomas, Ont. Police are attempting to find Kowalski's abode in Toronto and to determine if he has any relatives.

It is a foe because it puts tremendous hardship upon the men whose duty it is to keep vigil on the frontier. Here is a member of a Swiss patrol on duty near the Swiss-German border. He is enjoying hot soup, warmed in a "fireplace" dug out of the snow.

No Settlement in Sight In Chrysler Strike

Detroit, Nov. 20—(AP) — Hopes for an early settlement of the quarrel between the Congress of Industrial Organizations and Chrysler Corporation dimmed again today in the face of a dead-lock over wage demands.

During the week-end—until yesterday's stalling of negotiations—possibilities were seen of a quick peace to start thousands of workers back to jobs today. The Sunday conference, however, broke up without agreement.

Federal Mediator James F. Dewey said the two disputants were deadlocked on the wage question in such manner that a compromise probably would be difficult, but new talks will be held today.

Simon Bolivar, Netherlands 8,309 tons.
Grazia, Italian, 5,857 tons.
Blackhill, British, 2,492 tons.
B. O. Borjesson, Swedish, 1,586 tons.
Carica Milica, Yugoslav, 6,371 tons.
Kaunas, Lithuania, 1,521 tons.
Torchbearer, British, 1,267 tons.
Wigmore, British, 345 tons.

(By Fred Backhouse)

Authorities had not computed the full loss of life in the sinking Saturday of the 8,309 ton Netherlands Liner Simon Bolivar, but the number was set tentatively at 140. Eleven were believed drowned or killed by explosions aboard the four other ships.

These four were the Grazia, Italian, 5,857 tons; The Blackhill, British, 2,492 ttons; B. O. Borjesson, Swedish, 1,586 tons, and Cariva Milica, Yugoslav, 6,371 tons.

The seventh vessel lost was the Luthuanian cargo boat Kaunas, 1,520 tons, en route to Britain, which struck a mine near Zeebrugge, Belgium, with the loss of one man of a crew of 17.

Loss of life aboard the five smaller ships was less than preliminary reports had indicated. Twelve were believed to have drowned or been killed by explosions aboard the vessels, and 106 survivors were brought ashore.

Word of the Belgian loss came simultaneously with a report from Brussels that channel service between Belgium and Britain had been cancelled for the present.

Occur in Same Place

An informed source said that five of the sinkings occurred at about the same place, 20-odd miles off the British east coast, indicating the possibility of an extensive mine field in shipping lanes used by British and neutral shipping.

A claim in Berlin that a German mine "could not have been responsible" for the Bolivar disaster was ridiculed here. The Admiralty said the Nazi mine-laying had taken place in "utter disregard of International law and the dictates of humanity."

The Grazia was the first Italian merchantman to become a war casualty. The Simon Bolivar disaster was the worst to civilian shipping since the war started, unless the death list of 140 is reduced in the final survey. The highest previous loss was 112 persons killed in the sinking of the Montreal-bound liner Athenia Sept. 3.

The press announced the weekend losses in angry headlines such as: "Nazi murder mines sink five more ships."

Poignant Episodes Told

Indignation mounted as poignant episodes of the Bolivar sinking — mothers struggling to save children, passengers saved only to be flung back into the oily sea by a second explosion—were told by the survivors.

The Daily Express said: "Humanity owes nothing to German leaders who sink ships bearing infants in arms and little children. When Germany is defeated these villains should be destroyed."

The News Chronicle said that by deliberate failure to observe International law and declare mined areas as danger zones the Nazis "again show themselves enemies not merely of Britain but of all mankind."

The Daily Telegraph said: "The sinking of the Simon Bolivar is perhaps a foretaste of the terrible things with which Hitler has been threatening a world that is not prepared meekly to accept his will as supreme law."

Harrowing Experiences

Papers were filled with pictures of oil-stained women and children recovering from their ordeal.

Some of the two hundred and sixty survivors of the Netherlands liner told of harrowing experiences between the time two explosions rocked the ship and she settled in water so shallow her funnels showed.

"It was just like hell," a young Netherlander said. "The first explosion blew me down three decks. I saw people blasted dead., just like knocking down ninepins."

One survivor, a middle-aged man with a battered nose, said some passengers were smothered in their cabins when oil pipes burst and others, unable to get into boats, slid or jumped into the water."

"Some others, though, just stayed," added a barefoot, shirtless British bank clerk. "They just stood on deck and watched us go. Maybe they didn't get off."

The Admiralty said a report the Clan Buchanan was in trouble was a "case of mistaken identity."

Mackay Radio Marine Bureau in New York reported yesterday intercepting a message saying the 7,266-ton British steamship Clan Buchanan was being chased by a suspected vessel which represented herself as a French cruiser, and that two blank shots had been fired across her bow. The Clan Buchanan's position was given as about two hundred and fifty miles off Portugal.

Rationing Relaxed

Harwich, England, Nov. 20—(CP-Cable)—Britain's tight gasoline rationing was relaxed a bit here to assist in washing a heavy coat of oil from survivors of the Netherlands' liner Simon Bolivar which struck a mine Saturday with an estimated death toll of one hundred and forty. Authorities of Harwich made a special application for extra gasoline.

Only after two thorough scrubbings was one baby girl, first thought to be a Negro, discovered to be white. After a first washing she still seemed colored and was unclaimed, but the filth yielded the second time. Another infant was identified by the size and number of his teeth.

FIRST DIVISION

No Details Overlooked

Few details pertaining to the first division were overlooked. The General answered questions on rations training, physique, equipment but shied clear of certain angles on which secrecy is desirable.

The General spoke frankly to the reporters and said he had asked the commanders of the first division units to speak frankly to him on his recent tour. They had done so, had told him of their difficulties and in many cases suggestions offered had been adopted immediately.

General McNaughton's quick memory was displayed particularly when he said newspapers had recently dug up many of his old speeches and writings on military subjects. One correspondent said he had been looking for one without success and named it.

"Published in the Defence Quarterly of April, 1932," said the General.

Delivered Before April 1940

Canadian-made Bren machine guns will be delivered before April 1, 1940, the date specified for first delivery in the contract with a Toronto firm;

The troops now have all the machine guns they need for training purposes, including Bren guns;

Men in the army under 19 and officers under 20, the minimum age for going overseas, will be kept in training until they reach the minimum age;

Troops are getting excellent rations prepared by experienced cooks show gains in weight after a short period in uniform;

Experiments are being made with an intelligence test;

The first division will be as well equipped as possible and as well equipped as the British army when it takes the field;

In ordering Highland regiments to use battle dress instead of the kilt the Canadian authorities were following the example of the Highland units in the British army. The kilt could be worn in leave, some Highland emblems might be worn with the battle dress but the kilt was unsuitable for conditions in the theatre of war;

Troops Identified

Canadian troops overseas will be identified by a khaki shoulder patch bearing the word "Canada" in silver-grey letters;

All essential supplies will be in the hands of the troops in a short time;

The first division will soon be attired completely in the new battle dress uniforms consisting of loose-fitting slacks and blouse and canvas gaiters.

The General said he was impressed with the high calibre of men serving in all ranks and with their seriousness. They did not come forward in a spirit of adventure but because they realized a victory for the totalitarian states would destroy what Canadians valued in civilization. Those were his own sentiments. Canadians generally desired peace and the opportunity for peaceful work.

"My own ambition," he said in a brief personal reference, "was to continue scientific work with the National Research Council (of which he was Chairman). With other Canadians I hoped to do something to improve te standard of living and the happiness of the people.

"It is a peaceful contribution we want to make and we are a bit resentful that Hitler and his friends have thrown us out of our orbit for a time."

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Christie, Wellington Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

In the quiet seclusion of the home of their daughter, Mrs. Rowena MacDonald, Wellington, yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stinson Christie, highly respected residents of Gilead, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

The celebration dinner was attended by members of the immediate family and a few intimate friends. Golden chrysanthemums formed a beautiful setting for the golden wedding dinner for the bride and groom of fifty years.

Scions of sturdy United Empire Loyalist families who pioneered the old homesteads that are now flowing acres of Prince Edward County, Mr. and Mrs. Christie were married on Nov. 19, 1889 at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Foster, at Gilbert's Mills, Sophiasburg Township. The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. George Robinson.

Born on the old family homestead at Gilead, where he now resides, Mr. Christie lived there until a few years after his marriage. Removing to the village of Wellington, they resided there for a period of seventeen years. When the call of the homestead proved too strong theu went back to the farm that gave Mr. Christie birth.

While his health at present does not permit of heavy manual labor, he retains sufficient energy to supervise the management of the broad Masonic fraternity for the past 45 years, Mr. Christie still takes a keen interest in the activities of the lodge to which he belongs.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Christie are members of the United Church and during the past three decades have contributed much to the furtherance of the various organizations of which they are members.

Surprise Party Given.

Tonight (Monday) at their farm home they will be the guests of honor at a "surprise party" when upwards of one hundred neighbors and friends will "drop in" to tender their felicitations on the happy occasion. Gifts of handsome blankets will be presented to the elderly couple while a program of old-time entertainment has been arranged for their benefit.

A feature of the affair will be the cutting of a large "Fifty-years Wedding Cake". The ceremony will take place in the parlor, and conducted by the "bride and groom". The cake will rest on a silver cake-dish which was a wedding present of Mr. and Mrs. Christie at that memorable occasion a half-century ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Christie have a family of four children all of whom were born on the farm. Besides Mrs. MacDonald, there is Mrs. Benjamin Wright, at home, Douglas Christie, Toronto and Foster J. Christie, of Gilead. Sixteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren complete the family circle.

UNDERCOVERS RICH VEIN IN OLD MINE

Major Graham C. Dugas, veteran prospector (hatless) points out his bonanza gold strike to Rufus Jameson. Prospecting in the workings of an old gold mine at Dahlonega, Georgia, where the first gold lode in the United States was discovered —and which was thought to have been worked out—Major Dugas found a vein of quartz two inches thick assaying $60,000 in gold to the ton. A bonanza comparable to the richest "strikes" of California or the Klondyke.

ACTION AT FRONT

An artillery exchange started in the zone south of Saarbruecken by the Germans was one of the day's few features.

Air operations were equally reduced, but German fliers continued their long-range scouting flights — all at high altitude—over East and Southeastern France.

Air raid alarms were sounded along the Rhine Valley and in Normandy. At Lyon, in the Rhone Valley, the alarm lasted from 9:35 to 10:20 a.m. At Rouen, Normandy, the alarm was given at 10:25 a.m. The "all clear" followed at 11:10 a.m.

German Lines Flooded Near Rhine

French military sources asserted the rising waters of the Rhine had caused greater damage on the less-protected German side of the river. Abandoning some positions, German troops were reported raising dikes and attempting to pump out a number of flooded blockhouses.

In Alsace, the Lauter River was at flood crest. In Lorraine, the Blies and Saar were swollen by waters from the many streams crossing the mountainous and wooded country which marks the front.

"No Special Events" Germans Say

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP)—Reviewinng the minor activity on the Western Front, the German high command's communique today reported "no special events."

Apparently the "lively machine-gun and rifle fire on both sides" reported in yesterday's communique also took note of "localized artillery activity" elsewhere on the front.

(A dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, said flood waters of the Rhine had driven French and German soldiers from their riverfront pillboxes at the southern extremity of their lines.

(Of aerial activity, a dispatch from The Hague told of an exchange of fire between a trespassing German plane, over the island of Schiermonnikoof, and one of a flight of Netherland's pursuit planes. Apparently neither plane was struck.)

A collision between a Berlin-Kiel express and a local train just outside Berlin, at Spandau, yesterday resulted in nine deaths and injury of 20 persons. Cause of the accident was not announced, except that the express struck the local as it crossed the main track.

Second Railway Wreck

It was the second major railway wreck within a week. Forty-three persons were killed and 60 injured last Monday in an accident in Silesia.

Violent storms kept German troops on the Western Front busy yesterday removing unrooted trees, the German news agency reported. The weather prevented German reconnaissance flights, but planes already in the air returned safely, the agency said.

(Widespread scouting today over France by German planes was reported from Paris while in England anti-aircraft batteries went into action against an unidentified plane.)

Regarding mercantile sea warfare the report stated units of the German navy continued "to be busy in the Baltic, the North Sea and in all oceans."

As for the Western Front activity, enemy planes penetrated German territory only in the immediate neighborhood of the border, the agency asserted.

Becky struggled with fur-clad arms, gasped for breath, was free. "Well!" she said when she was seated beside Laurence and they were driving. "That was—unexpected."

"It wasn't unexpected at all. Why the hell do girls say things like that!" Laurence growled. "You know I'm mad about you. You don't care. You're going away in a few days to Florida; sure, why not? Have a good time. The old man's in love with you, I know that. I hate him. God, I loathe him! With all his money and his fur coats and his opera box!"

"You couldn't help loving him if you knew him," Becky said as the angry voice paused. "He's old enough to be my father, and you know it. But twenty fathers couldn't be kinder to me."

"Has he introduced you to Hilda Heinrichsen yet?"

"Hilda Heinrichsen?"

"Yep. She's singing in 'Lohengrin' tonight. You'll hear her."

"And he knows her?"

"Yes, darling, he knows her. She's one of the old warhorses' of the outfit. Doctor Stephen Dinsmore has known her for many a long sweet year. Barbara told me all about it. Her nusband got consumption and he sent them to Arizona, and after he died she came back and was down and out and he got her into the Met; she'd only done church singing. She's sixty if she's a minute. You can imagine she thinks he's a god."

"You sound very bitter," Becky observed composedly, over some inward twinge of hurt.

"Well, it gets me the way you adore that man."

"You'd adore him if he'd done for you what he's done for me. Why, Larry. Look at your loyalty toward Duane Fox! You're like a son to him. Why shouldn't I give the doctor whatever pleasure I can? He likes me, he likes to— to simply bury me in kindness. Why not? It doesn't hurt anyone."

"And what does he expect to get out of it?"

"Now you're being unpleasant," Becky said firmly, coldly. I've told you that immediately after we come back from Florida I'm going home to my mother, for a while anyway. And when I come back you and I are not to see each other any more."

They had reached the Dinsmore gate. Laurence stopped the car and turned to face her. His hand found hers and again she felt herself trembling, felt herself overwhelmed with some emotion as frightening as it was delicious.

"Don't be cross at me. I love you so much!" he said.

"Larry, I'm not cross at you. I like you a lot more," Becky said, laughing a little excitedly as he jumbled her in his arms, her lips close to his face, "I like you a lot more than I'm willing to admit! It isn't that. But I have a husband in California, and I have a child who belongs, partly, to that husband. I'm going home in about a month to see my mother, to talk to Gavin, to see what I can do to free myself from the feeling that— in a way—I still belong to him."

"You mean you're going to get a divorce and marry me?"

"Don't squeeze the breath out of me, dear."

"I can't help it! I'm insane about you. Will you marry me, Becky? Duane admires you too. We could manage on what I have; we could skip over to Paris and I could work there, if Duane would go. And when he dies I'll have something—"

"It isn't that, you idiot! It's that, in the first place, I'm married.

"You can drive to Reno in about five hours. You said so!"

"I know. But there's Gibbs to consider. Gavin will never give him up. Not that he wants him, but Gavin knows that he can hold that over me. So my affairs are all in a mess. I hate divorce and my mother does too. I would hate the idea that Gavin was alive in the world, and living with another woman."

"But sometimes, Becky, it's the only way. Promise me that you'll kick him out and come back here and marry me?"

"Ah, I can't promise anything. Doctor Dinsmore is going to Europe this year to study the sanitation situation or something. He's to take Hatsy and her mother and he wants me to go."

"For the Lord's sake! When?"

"In March, Ah, and I'd love that!" Becky said provokingly.

"Well," Laurence said sulkily. "I can't offer you anything like that, of course. But I love you so! And you could love me, if Barbara and the doctor and your damn husband were out of the way, couldn't you?"

Her voice was very low; her amber eyes glinted very close to his own in the dusk. "I'm afraid so."

Again he had her jumbled up close against him on the leather seat, tumbling hair and hat, pressing his mouth against hers. When she could break free Becky slipped from the car and ran up the path and steps to the door, being joined there by him, breathless and laughing, and once again imprisoned by his long arm.

"Becky, may I come in? Nobody's here."

Bonfacio opened the door. "Doctor telephone, Missy Gibson," said Bonfacio, "and say he come home now, and Carter drive you in to opera tonight. He say have litty supper happass six. He on way now. I say you take a walk."

"Oh, goody," Becky exulted. "I've got to fly if we're to have early supper. Good night!"

Laurence stood on the step irresolute for a moment, then turned and went down to the car. But within half an hour he telephoned her.

Becky laughed joyously at hearing his voice, "Larry, I haven't an instant! I've got the baby in the tub, and I'm pinning up my hair so it'll be gorgeous tonight!"

"I just wanted to remind you that I love you," he said.

"Thank you!" She replaced the receiver and turned to see Barbara coming into the room. Becky gathered her wits together with all speed.

"Hello!" said Barbara. "I knocked and Gibbs said, 'come in.'"

"I didn't know you were home."

"Just got here. Where's mother?"

"At the Daughters of the South thing. And Hatsy's in town with the Baggs girl for the Christmas Junior League dance."

"And Uncle Steve's home? What's he doing home on a Wednesday night?"

"We're going to 'Lohengrin'!"

"Oh, of course. Mother going?"

"He asked her. But she's having dinner with Mrs. Cromartie, who's coming back with her, and they said they'd be too tired. Barbara, he'd probably simply love to have you go."

"I couldn't. I'm dead. I thought —I was just thinking that I might telephone Larry Moulton and see if he's free for dinner. I suppose not. Have you seen him since I went away?"

"Met him today," Becky said, towelling Gibbs vigorously. "I met him and went over to the studio with him, and met his uncle," Becky further volunteered, her back to Barbara as she nightgowned Gibbs on the bed. "You didn't meet anyone you liked better, Barbara?"

"In all my life I've never been on such a lousy house party!" Barbara said frankly, lighting a cigarette as she lolled in a chair. "But I had an honorable offer. I could be Mrs. Colonel Fisher."

"Colonel! Isn't that rather high up?"

"Well, he's rather low down. Five feet flat, I should say. But nice. No," Barbara said, returning to her favorite topic. "I'll never like anyone as much as Larry. If he'd just go definite, I'd drop Pedar like a hot brick. But Larry's afraid he hasn't anything to offer me. What rot! Half the girls support their husbands nowadays and nobody thinks anything of it!"

Gibbs was in bed now. Becky proceeded with her dressing and Barbara tried various telephone numbers, finally finding Larry at the club.

"Damn it!" she said after an unsatisfactory conversation. "He's got a date. He's going to the opera too. Did he tell you so today?"

"No. Then why don't you come with us?" Becky said trembling inside. "There's sure to be another seat in the box."

"No, it isn't that. But Pedar'll be there with his mamma and his uncle Thomas, and I refused to go with them. He'd be sure to see me and it'd only make trouble. No, I'll stay home and do something. Damn it, what does he want to go to the opera for!"

Becky kissed Gibbs and went downstairs, Stephen Dinsmore was waiting for her in the library.

"Let's go right out and eat," he said. "'Lohengrin' begins on the stroke of eight."

Barbara loitered in to join them; she was going over to Kate St. Michael's to play bridge. "Give my love to that crook Laurence if you see him!" she grumbled.

"And what does that mean?" the doctor asked when he and Becky were being smoothly rushed toward the city.

"Did I? One way and another Barbara makes herself rather miserable about young men."

Well before the rise of the curtain Becky was seated in the front of the box, watching with fascinated eyes the gathering of the brilliant audience. The violins began to whine, and as the lights fanned lower and were gone, and the first hush of silence fell on the house, her heart began to beat with a heady rapture. With a great shattering sigh she settled down to an evening of ecstasy, her first opera.

When the curtain went down Stephen went away, and Laurence Moulton came up to talk to her. The lights were bright now, the orchestra pit and half the seats and boxes empty.

"Gorgeous, isn't it?"

"Oh!" Becky breathed feebly. "I never....dreamed...." She was still bewildered, speechless. After a while she asked him the position of his seat.

"I have no seat, darling. I'm standing, and I may go home after I come up and see you again. I" were coming tonight."

"You didn't tell me that you mustn't miss the eleven-fifteen."

"I wasn't, when I talked to you. I came because I had to see you, had to hear your voice again, Becky. There's just you and nobody else in the whole round world. D'you know what that means?"

"It can't mean anything," she said. And then in an undertone:: "I was there when Barbara telephoned you tonight at the club. I felt so horrible. I—don't like it. And if Doctor Dinsmore comes back, don't say that I had lunch with you and your uncle today. I didn't tell him."

"Why shouldn't you tell him?? Doesn't he expect you to make any friends of your own?"

"It's not that. It's Barbara."

"Oh, Barbara!" he said moodily. "That's all imagination. Shes not not in love with me."

"She'll probably get over it in Florida, or if she goes to Nassau," Becky said, reflecting, "But just now she wants to see more of you, and it makes it uncomfortable — impossible for me to go on seeing you. So please—please help me!"

Groups were sauntering back into the boxes. Laurence departed, stooping to kiss her hand before he went, leaving her fluttered and uneasy, glad of the returning dark.

After the second act the doctor took her to stroll along the balconies and the wide passages, and introduced her to old friends here and there. She was nervously on the lookout for Laurence, but he did not come upstairs.

"I went down to see Madam Heinrichsen a few minutes ago," Stephen said. "Would you like to meet her after the last act?"

"You mean go behind the scenes?" Becky gasped.

"No, at her own apartment. It's right in this building." He saw the disappointment in Becky's face and laughed. "Would you like to go behind?" he asked. "Of course we will. I'll send her a line."

Taking out his fountain pen and a doctor's prescription pad, he wrote a few lines and handed them to an usher.

INSTALMENT 23

Mme. Heinrichsen was not alone in her dressing room when Stephen and Becky went to it; Mme. Falmmavilla was there. Both women greeted Stephen affectionately and smiled at Becky for his sake. Mme. Heinrichsen, wig and costume gone, and figure wrapped tightly in an old discolored kimono, sitting at her dressing table, was smearing her pleasant, full, middle-aged face with cold cream, while a maid handled her heavy gray-streaked gold hair. The other woman was still in full costume, with beads of perspiration squeezing through the heavy oil make-up on her face, her long blonde wig and veil still in place, her voluminous white-and-silver gown looking a little rubbed and tarnished at close view.

They turned at once to Stephen and the conversation was evidently taken up at some point the three discussed before.

"Well, aye sing and sing and sing even ven dey don't pay me vun zent!" Mme. Heinrichsen presently said, laughing. "Steef knows it, don't you, Steef?"

"Oh, they couldn't shut you up!" Stephen conceded good-naturedly. "You are always retiring to that delightful farm at Helsingfors, only you never retire."

"Yes, this year aye go!" Madame had somewhat surprisingly put a magnificent chinchilla wrap over the kimono, and now she ca , youthfully at Becky's hand. "Come on, ve go upstairs and eat; aye don't eat since yesterday!" she said gaily.

COBOURG GRID TEAM WIN 28-18 OVER O.S.D. KIDS

Winners Roll Up 12 Points in First Quarter to Gain a Ten-Point Lead

SIX-MAN RUGBY

Piling up an early-game lead the Cobourg Collegiate squad coasted through to a 28 to 18 win over the O.S.D. kids in the first game of the senior Interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. six-man football playdowns at Cobourg on Saturday and enjoy a ten-point lead to hawl to the O.S.D. campus for the return game this week.

The homesters rolled in 12 points in the first ten minutes, but the courageous O.S.D. squad battled strenuously to score eight points in the second stanza as Cobourg was held scoreless. The homesters outscored the "deaf kids" in the third quarter and play was rather even in the last stanza.

Maher, Cobourg's hoofing ace, opened the scoring in the early stages with a punt to the deadline for a point. Later Phillips crashed over for a touchdown and Winter mounted the score for Cobourg when he snatched a forward for a last-second try and Cobourg led 12-0 as the second quarter opened.

May kicked the O.S.D. point early in the second period and later booted a second to the deadline for another singleton and Steve Graziano crashed over for a touchdown as the O.S.D. kids moved to the offensive in the second stanza and the hafway score was 12-8 for Cobourg.

On an O.S.D. extension play May went around left end for a major score after two minutes of play, but Phillips picked up five more points for the homesters on a power play and Platt added five more making the score 22-13 as the last period opened. Maher carried over for five points for Cobourg and May duplicated for O.S.D. making the final score 28-18.

The line-ups: Ontario School for the Deaf: Halfbacks, Kiniski, Graziano; quarter, May; snap, Robertson, wings, Bartu and Bartin, subs, Hazlett, Murphy, Parent and Cork. Cobourg High School: Halfbacks, Phillips and Wilson, quarter, Maher, snap, Winter, wings, Platt and Earle subs, Mallory, Savage and Bennett.

Referee: Homer (Red) Townsend of Belleville.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

JOHNNY GOTTSELIG

Chicago Black Hawks

By Central Press Canadian

Johnny Gottselig

Now in his twelfth season in the National League, John Peter Gottselig has been one of the most consistent stars in the loop. He joined the Black Hawks in the 1928-29 season and has been with them ever since, playing left wing and centre. Johnny is a Russian by birth, coming into this vale of tears in a tiny hamlet near the Black Sea. The Black Hawk star doesn't remember that locale however, his family moving to Saskatchewan when he was only a few months old. He's generally regarded as being the best stick-handler now in the major puck circuit and before making hockey his profession was some shakes as a ball player and bowler still is in the latter respect. His age is in the books as 34. Has scored 157 goals, two less assists for the Hawks during his career. Best season for goal-getting was 10 years ago when he sank 21, but he accumulated more points last season than he ever had before, 39. He and manager Paul Thompson have monopolised club scoring honors with the Chicago team for the past 10 years. Doesn't get many penalties, but had quite a flare-up with Referee Campbell last year in Toronto receiving a match misconduct. Dark-haired, hawk-faced, weighs around 160 pounds, popular with the fans. A Black Hawk asset.

TOMORROW: Earl Robertson, Americans.

N.H.L. STARS

Walter (Turk) Broda, Toronto, scored his third shut out of the season as Leafs beat Detroit 3-0 Saturday.

Gordon Drillon, Toronto, got goal Saturday and two goals and an assist last night when Leafs downed Red Wings 7-1.

Mac Colville, Rangers, scored twice to lead team to 3-1 victory over Americans Saturday.

Win at Home 3-0 and on Sunday Night in Detroit by 7-1

CANADIENS WIN

Flying Frenchmen Yet to Lose a Game in Four Starts

By the Canadian Press

Canada's two National Hockey League clubs, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, rode high without a defeat on their records today and people began to get steamed up for their meeting at Montreal Dec. 7.

This situation was hardly to be expected before the opening. The Leafs brought in more inexperienced players this year than any other club and the Canadiens put more reliance on aging veterans than the rest. Yet torrid Toronto has won four of its five contests and tied the other, while the Flying Frenchmen have scored three victories and a tie in four starts.

The Leaf rookies continued to fly in two overwhelming week end wins over Detroit Red Wings, 3-0 at Toronto Saturday and 7-1 at Detroit last night. Jack Church, up from the old Syracuse farm, scored the goal that started the Saturday sweep and Lex Chisholm and Don Metz, both just out of amateur ranks, potted the first two in the Sunday rout.

Leafs Two Points Up

The twin success put Toronto two points up on the second-place Canadiens, who kept moving with a brilliant overtime triumph against the Rangers before 12,000 persons at New York last night. Polly Drouin got the winning goal—his second of the night—with less than five minutes to go in the extra period.

But goalie Turk Broda of the Leafs continued to be the league's individual star with his third shutout of the season. He has been scored on only twice.

He and the veteran Tiny Thompson duelled in the nets at Toronto until Church stepped from the penalty box late in the second chapter, took a pass from Bob Davidson and closed in to pull the Detroit goalie to one side before hitting the net. Sylvanus Apps and Gordon Drillon scored in the third.

Don Metz Gets Goal

Don Metz made his first showing of the campaign at Detroit and immediately whipped in the first goal of his big-league career with the aid of the other members of his freshman line, Billy Taylor and Red Heron. Apps, Drillon and the battling Chisholm got the other Toronto goals with two apiece, while Kenny Kilrea spoiled Broad's attempt for his fourth shutout.

The Canadiens had to come from behind to win after Alex Shibicky punched a power-play goal while Captain Walter Buswell of the Habitants served a penalty. Drouin sank Toe Blake's pass in the third period to even the count and sailed in alone to catch goalie Dave Kerr out of position for the winning shot.

The Rangers broke even on the week end by outscoring their fellow-townsmen, the Americans, 3-1 at Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Mac Colville scored twice and his brother Neil once, while Tommy Anderson snatched the Americans' counter as the teams packed all the scoring into the third period.

Boston Bruins and the Black Hawks couldn't score for two periods at Chicago last night, either, but Roy Conacher, and Milt Schmidt potted goals in the third to pull the Bruins out with a 2-0 victory.

TENNESSEE VOLS SCORE 13TH WIN WITHOUT DEFEAT

Record All the More Remarkable in That No Enemy Score Has Been Made in That Time

New York, Nov. 20—(AP)—That late-season victories can offset early-season defeats was the chief plank in their platform today as a survey of the United States College football situation found Missouri, Iowa, Duke, Georgia Tech, Holy Cross and Ohio State campaigning for recognition and offering solid evidence to support their claims.

Missouri's Tigers, October victims of Ohio State, are assured of at least a tie for the big six title after knocking off Oklahoma Saturday 7-6 for the sooners' first regular-season defeat in two years. Iowa, badly beaten by Michigan a month ago, has charged back into the picture with a 60-minute-man Nile Kinnick marshalling the Hawkeyes to a 13-9 triumph over Minnesota.

Duke belted North Carolina out of the unbeaten brigade 13-3. Georgia Tech was a 6-0 winner over Alabama. Holy Cross thumped Carnegie Tech 21-0. Ohio State was a 21-0 conqueror of Illinois.

These six teams made notable advances, but there were challenges from other sectors as well. Cornell continued unbeaten and untied after routing Dartmouth 35-6; all-winning Tennessee shut out Vanderbilt 13-0 for its 13th game without an enemy score; Texas A. and M. continued in the "perfect" class by walloping Rice 19-0.

Together with Georgetown, which came through its 16th game and second season without loss by handing New York University a 14-0 lacing; unbeaten and untied Duquesne, which was idle; unbeaten Southern California, which rested up for next Saturday's four-star special against Notre Dame, and the Irish themselves, who trimmed Northwestern 7-0, the class of the country is pretty well wrapped up in those teams.

INDIANAPOLIS TAKES 3 POINTS FROM THE BARONS

Capitals Head Western Division of Int-Am Loop 13 Points

INDIANS ON TOP

By The Canadian Press

The International - American Hockey League, on the basis of the standings, appears to have the pick of its teams in the western division where Syracuse Stars, a last place club, have the same number of points as Springfield Indians, leaders of the eastern section.

And the pick of the western division appears to be Indianapolis Capitals who met their toughest opposition of the season over the week-end, the champion Cleveland Barons, and came out with three of a possible four points.

Gaining a draw and a victory against the Barons, Capitals took over sole possession of first place in the league and in their division. Meantime, Pittsburgh Hornets, with a pair of victories, moved into a tie with Cleveland, two points behind the Capitals

Indianapolis and Cleveland tied 1-1 Saturday night but the Capitals made the most of the home ice last night to skate off with a 3-0 victory on goals by McDonald, Alex Motter and Ronnie Hudson. Freddie Robertson's goal late in the third period brought Barons their tie Saturday after Motter had given Capitals an early lead.

Larry Aurie's Hornets gained two narrow victories, 2-1 against Springfield Saturday and 3-2 against New Haven last night. Babe Tapin sank the winning goal in both games.

Springfield lost two games as playing coach Jackie Markle led Syracuse to a 4-1 victory over Eddie Shore's team last night.

Eddie Convey, who tallied twice against Indians, got a goal Saturday as well when the Stars tied the winless Philadelphia Ramblers 2-2. Johnny Polich and Herb Foster got the Philadelphia goals and did all the scoring again last night when Ramblers played another tie, 3-3 against Providence. Polich got two counters last night.

'Six-Day' Bike Race Shortened to Five

New York, Nov. 20— (CP)—The 66th International "Six-Day" Bicycle race gets under way at Madison Square Garden tonight with a field of 12 veteran teams.

Canada is well-represented by the Peden Brothers, Torchy and Doug of Victoria, B.C., and by Jules Audy, blond racer from Montreal, who paired with Bobby Thomas of Kenah, Wis., to make up a Canadian-American duo.

The race has been "streamlined" —shortened to five days. Previous bookings in the garden necessitated the chopping off of one day from the fixture. The riders will be on view for six days but the total time they will race will be only two hours over five days.

Belleville Collegiate Grid Squad is Defeated 16-14 By Peterboro C. I. Students

Local Interscholastic Team Makes Courageous Stand Before Being Eliminated

RALLY STRONGLY

Petes Use Attack to Lead 11-0 at One Time but Locals Battle Back Gamely

In the most courageous stand ever made by a Belleville Collegiate football squad the local "Collegians" were pushed into 1939 football oblivion and elimination at the hands of the Peterboro C. I. students when the latter squad defeated the Belleville kids by a scant 16 to 14 score in a sudden death play-off in the senior Interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. playdowns at Port Hope on Saturday. In victory the Peterboro' team advanced to the C.O.S.S.A. finals.

Trailing 11 to 6 at the halfway mark, the Schrieder-coached Belleville squad battled and fought in a most courageous and sterling manner to force the play in the latter stages and ultimately lose through what is commonly known as "the breaks of the game." The Peterborough kids launched a most prolific aerial attack in the second quarter to net themselves eleven points, but the undaunted Belleville squad moved into the picture with a major score prior to the halfway whistle.

Petes Go to Air

The Liftlock City kids went to the air and gained an early third quarter touchdown and seemed the aggressors until the Belleville team swung into action and scored a major count and a placement, to draw within striking distance and command the respect of the large unbiased patronage which had gathered at the Trinity College campus, the scene of hostilities. Individual stars were somewhat of a minus quality but those to rise to the illuminous settings were Ross Clare of Belleville, who stood out as the individual star of the game followed by Harle and Scriver of the victorious Peterboro squad. Otherwise the Belleville line of scrimmage blocked and tackled in a most strong and determined effort, while the victors resorted to sudden stabs and lightning drives, all of which proved productive of scoring drives.

The Play

Play hovered around the midfield stripe throughout the entire initial quarter, the odd sensational runback of kicks being the only feature. To open the second stanza Bill McBride ran a Peterboro kick back forty yards to the Petes fifty, but the latter held. On an extended run Scriver and Harle carried twenty yards. Scriver tossed a long forward to Harle, who was brought down on Belleville's nine, Ainsley crashing over for the first score, an unconverted touchdown. Cavanaugh sustained injuries on the next play and was carried from the field. Scriver picked up nineteen yards going to the Belleville forty and on a sequence play Scriver fired a forward to Johnson for another twenty yards and Harle went around right end for five more points, converted via the air and the B.C.I. were trailing 11-0 when the locals staged a triumphant march after Clare ran back a kick some twenty-five yards. Bill McBride drove through for two successive first downs and Pigden tore off eleven more to put the ball on the Peterboro' five and Pigden pulled a quarterback sneak for a touchdown that Clare converted to make the count 11-6 at the halfway mark.

Sword Speared Ball

The Petes went to the air in a sudden attack to open the third quarter and on a fake-placement formation Scriver tossed a forward to Smith for a touchdown, which was not converted and terminated the Petes scoring as Belleville were the aggressors for the remainder of the game. It remained to have Doug Sword become the hero as he leaped into the air and speared an attempted Peterboro' forward and run rough-shod 40 yards through the Petes for an unconverted touchdown, making the count 16-11. Clare, Pigden and Bill McBride all made first downs to open the last quarter and Clare hoofed a placement from the Petes 25 making the count 16-14. Again Belleville worked the ball, in a final desperate effort, to the Petes' 25, but fumbled on the last play.

Peterboro made twelve first downs to Belleville's ten and the Petes tried nine forwards, completing four while the locals tried only three and completed one. The feature of the game was the fine holding and tackling of the Belleville line. In victory the Petes advanced to the C.O.S.A. finals.

The line-ups: Belleville Collegiate: Fullbacks, B. McBride, Thorne; halfbacks, S. McBride, Clare; quarter, Pigden; snap, Zufelt; insides, Stewart, Sharpe; middles, Cavanaugh, Mulholland; ends, Sword, Watson; subs, Hart, Hunter, Gardner, Goodwin, Warren, Cearly, Cronk and O'Connor. Peterboro C.I.: Fullbacks, Moldaver, Harle; halfbacks, Hamilton, Scriver, quarter, McPherson; snap, Marshal; insides, Turner, Johnson; middles, Duncan, Ainsley; ends, Smith, Taylor; subs, Armstrong, Gray, Freeman, Matthews Foster, Douglas and Hatton.

Referee: Dr. Worton, Peterboro; umpire, N. A. Beach, Albert College and headlinesman, J. Kirkwood, Peterboro.

Ottawa Roughriders Swamp Toronto Argos 11-0 in First Game for the Big Four Title

Score is 11-0 With Ottawa Striking Through Air and on Ground for Markers

SARNIA TAKES LEAD

Imperials Defeat Westmounts of Montreal 13-1 in Biggest Upset of Year

By JACK CALDER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Everything pointed today towards another historic Canadian senior football final as four teams sought the right to combat the champions of the west, Winnipeg's Blue Bombers, somewhere on the eastern front Dec. 9.

When the Blue Bombers hurtled to a 28-7 victory over the Bronks at Calgary Saturday, they removed all doubt about what team or what kind of team the west would send to strive for the Dominion title. Winnipeg, with a club apparently entirely eligible for the national final, won the Western Conference championship by 35-20 on the round after losing 13-7 at home to Calgary.

Until that brilliant comeback, there had been doubt about the west's representation, for a good part of the driving Calgary club was ineligible under the Canadian Rugby Union rule which require's a player to have been resident in Canada a year. There even had been talk of letting Winnipeg go east regardless of Saturday's result.

Round Tied in Minute

But the Bombers, almost exactly the team that lost to Toronto Argonauts in the 1938 Dominion final, settled all that through the flying feet of Frits Hanson and the accurate toe of Greg Kabat. They tied the round, in less than a minute despite the absence of such stars as Bill Boivin, Wayne Sheley and Bud Marquardt through injuries.

Whether they will meet the Argonauts again became extremely doubtful. Before a howling crowd of 12,000 at Ottawa, the Rough Riders downed the Argos 11-0 to take a long lead in the Inter-Provincial Union finals that end next Saturday at Toronto.

Sarnia Imperials, champion of the Ontario Union the last eight years, took long strides towards representing that league in the eastern final again by whipping Montreal Westmounts 13-1 at Sarnia in the first game of their total-points round. That result, almost as surprising as the way Winnipeg kicked the Bronks around, maintained the Imperials' record of no losses at home since 1933. They never have lost an O.R.F.U. senior game in Sarnia.

Representatives of these four units will meet next Sunday at Toronto to decide upon the locale of the eastern final Dec. 2. Announcing the meeting, President Ernie Hamilton of Big Four practically ruled out any possibility of adopting a suggestion, advanced some time ago in the west, that the western winners meet the champions of either eastern conference in a semi-final battle.

Riders Take to Air

The Riders took to the air for the touchdown that set the Argos back on their heels in the first quarter, Orville Burke passing 45 yards to Tommy Daley in the end zone. They fought for their other score along the ground and Tony Golab plunged 10 yards to get it in the last period, Tiny Herman converting.

With Bill Stukus pitching through the middle for 10 completed passes in 21 attempts, the Scullers struck frequently. But when the goal-posts loomed up they lacked power to finish.

An amazing Sarnia wingline blocked three Montreal kicks and turned two of them into touchdowns to set back the Westmounts who figured to have an edge along the front wall.

Red France fell on the ball behind the goal-line for the first touch and Joe Woodcock picked it up to run 22 yards for the second when the Sarnians crashed punt formation again the third.

Bernie Moros converted both times and added another point on a wide field goal attempt, while Ray Mullins got the Montreal point the same way. Any other time the Westmounts threatened the Sarnia forwards firmed, the outside wings broke through to break up plays and young Hank Galloway kicked the Oilers out of danger.

If the sport public of Belleville possessed somewhat of the courage of the Belleville Collegiate football squad perhaps sport in this city would be in a much better condition than is enjoyed today. Despite the fact we saw the B.C.I. interscholastic, football squad rubbed out of the season's picture there was one outstanding feature of the game —the courageous stand taken by Eddie Schrieder's "collegians" at Port Hope on Saturday when they were eliminated from the C.O.S.S.A. picture at the hands of the Peterboro students by a scant 16-14 reverse. Trailing eleven to nothing at one stage of the picture the hopeful kids from the local seat of knowledge staged a most sterling and heroic effort in the latter stages, not only to gain the admiration of unbiased fans present, but also that of their opponents. Facing a team which had the advantage of practical professional coaching and the fact the Petes enjoyed a full season of competition the locals were far from disgraced in defeat and will be heard from in the future.

There wasn't a dry eye in the B.C.I. dressing room at Trinity College after the game the kids really took their defeat hard. After viewing their courageous stand and strong comeback we could hardly blame them. After the game Referee Dr. Worton of Peterboro, stated that he "doubted if the better team had won." Football fans from Port Hope and Cobourg lined-up verbally behind Peterboro at the outset, but were strongly in favour of Belleville in the last half, being convinced the locals were the more courageous team but as Captain Ross Clare stated afterwards — "there is little consolation in pats on the back after losing such a tough game." Apparently the Petes knew thereof what they were doing when they suggested a sudden death game and refused to play in Belleville on a week day. Had the series been of the home and home nature there is no doubt as to outcome—the B.C.I. would have won. Incidentally in Harle the Petes have a speedy ball carrier, while Scriver and Ainsely really can get around, but none had better efforts to offer than was given by Ross Clare, Bill Pigden and Bill McBride, while the Belleville line deserves all the credit possible to be given.

Just how many players Coach Eddie Schrieder will lose through graduation next year is hard to determine as yet but doubtless Ross Clare will be among those missing. However, the majority of the B.C.I. squad will be available another year, which should prove encouraging to Coach Schrieder. Taking into consideration the fact that the "collegians" have not played competitive C.O.S.S.A. football for the past three years added to the lack of adequate grouping the stand taken by the locals on Saturday was all the more commendable.

Up at Cobourg Saturday Frank Cunningham's O.S.D. six-man squad ran into difficulties and lost 28 to 18 at the hands of the Cobourg Collegiate. The homesters struck rapidly and ran up 12 points in the first ten minutes, but after that Coach Cunningham's "deaf lads" came into their own and out-scored the home team, but could not haul down the large margin of difference. The O.S.D. face a ten point deficit in the return game.

Directly after the Air Force-Signal Corps Van Horne Memorial cup game at Kingston tonight, Eddie Thomas' Belleville Redmen will skate out for a heavy workout. At least two new faces will be with the red-clad Belleville squad late tonight, Prevost and Courneyea of Tweed both are seeking berths with the locals. Prevost played several games with the Thomas-led sextette last season and finished the year with Tweed in the Trent Valley loop. Courneyea comes to the locals highly recommended by Max Geraldi Tweed's veteran hockey mentor. Both are forwards. The acquisition of George Filion former Trenton puckster should materially strengthen the Redmen this year as Filion was always a good hockey player but is slightly lacking in condition at present.

Do you remember when Steve Donoghue, famous Irish jockey whose feat of winning the Derby three years in succession has never been equalled retired after 30 years of riding two years ago today. With Sir Harry Wernher's Brown Jack he won the Queen Alexandra Stakes six times in succession.

There seems to be no stopping the Toronto Maple Leafs this season, Dick Irwin's hopefuls not having lost a single game this N. H. L. season. In five starts the Leafs have won four and tied one, while in 310 minutes of hockey the opposition has scored only two goals on Turk Broda, who was supposed to be the weak sister on the Leafs' roster prior to the opening of the season. Over the week-end the Leafs ran in ten goals against Thompson of the Red Wings, three on Saturday and seven last night. Oshawa's Billy Taylor picked himself up two more points with assists last night.

SPORT SPICE — Remember big Red France, who played defence for the Point Edward hockey team against the Flyers in 1937—well, it was the same "Big Red" who scored Sarnia's first touchdown and sparked the Imperials to a 13-1 win over the Montreal Westmounts Saturday. A 12 point lead looks good, but remember the Imperials are a young team.....The steady and powerful Ottawa Rough Riders steam-rollered over the Toronto Argos for an 11-0 win and Winnipeg came back to rub Calgary out of the western picture.

HAS TREATED COLDS SAME WAY FOR 15 YEARS

A Strathroy, Ont., father writes . . .

"We have had Vicks VapoRub in our medicine cabinet for the past 15 years and it has the call whenever colds strike". There's only one reason for such loyalty—home-proved VapoRub relieves misery of colds.

PERSONALS

Mr. O. H. Ridley, corner Dunbar and Ridley Streets, is confined to his home through illness.

Mrs. Harold Bateman, who has been a patient in Kingston General Hospital, returned to her home here yesterday.

Mr. Fred Temple of the 48th Highlanders, Toronto, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Temple.

Girl Guides of the newly formed Company Seven held a church parade to Centre Street Mission, Thurlow, for eleven o'clock service yesterday morning. They were in charge of their captain, Audrey Licence, and lieutenant, Dorothy Osborne. The color party included Bernice Button, Joyce Watson and Hilda Mathews. During the service Helen Walker sang a hymn, with Joyce Fraser acting as accompanist. The theme of the service which was in charge of Rev. L. S. Wight, assisted by Mr. Bob Craig of Albert College, was Girl Guide work and Mr. Wight's sermon on this subject was most inspiring.

An announcement of interest to Belleville is the engagement of Miss Mary MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Walter MacDonald of Cobourg to Mr. Harry James Holland of Windsor, son of Mrs. Herbert H. Holland and the late Mr. Holland of Belleville; the wedding to take place in St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg, on Saturday, December 2nd.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Snell, 330 Charles Street, are quietly spending the day at home celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding.

WEDDINGS

HOGG—HENLEY

The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Henley, 298 Ann Street, was the scene of a pretty wedding, when their only daughter, Kathryn Merle, became the bride of Mr. Allan Hogg, Ottawa, son of Mrs. Margaret Hogg, and the late James A. Hogg, Merritt, B.C.

Rev. D. T. McClintock performed the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a travelling dress of blue velvet, with wine accessories and wore a corsage of roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her attendant was Mrs. J. Wright of Brighton and Mr. J. Wright was best man.

A reception was held following the ceremony, when the bride's mother received, wearing blue lace, with corsage of red roses. Refreshments were served by Miss Evelyn Jacks, Miss Jean Holland, Miss Jean Dickens and Miss Nora O'Callaghan.

WEESE—DERMOTT

St. Andrew's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding at three o'clock this afternoon when Verna Maude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dermott, became the bride of Mr. Lyle Dudley Weese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Weese of Carrying Place. Rev. W. J. Walker officiated.

Bronze chrysanthemums and ferns made a lovely background for the ceremony which took place in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the young couple.

The bride wore a charming gown of Elizabeth blue street length with bustle back Her hat was a smart snood model in the same shade as her frock and her accessories were in navy blue. The bride's bouquet was of Sweetheart roses.

Miss Helen Wilson as bridesmaid wore a frock of harvest wine with matching hat and carried Johanna Hill roses.

Mr. Harold Weese, Carrying Place, cousin of the groom, was groomsman.

A reception was held, following the ceremony, at the New Queens Hotel. Mrs. Dermott, mother of the bride, wore Chantilly lace in teal blue shade with navy accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. Weese, mother of the groom, was attired in wine crepe with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Out of town guests were present from Detroit, Toronto, Gravenhurst, Tichborne and Napanee

The ushers were Mr. W. H. Smith, Toronto; and Mr. Allan Weese, brother of the groom. Mr. Charles Kilgour played wedding music and during the signing of the register, Miss Dorothy Carr sang "Because".

HEMSLEY—SHARPE

A pretty wedding took place at Christ Church at eight o'clock on Saturday evening when Miss Marjorie Pauline Sharpe, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. E. F. Sharpe and the late Mrs. Sharpe, became the bride of Mr. Henry James Hemsley, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hemsley, Calgary, Alta. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. G. Wright.

Wedding music was played by Mr. George Maybee, organist of Christ Church.

The bride wore turquoise blue crepe with black accessories and corsage of lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Dorothy Warren was bridesmaid and was attired in Chinese gold with black accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses. Mr. Dick Holdershaw, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. Mr. and Mrs. Hemsley will reside in Belleville.

SINE—COTTON

Bonarlaw, Ont, Nov. 20—(Special)—A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon in St. Thomas' Church 8th Line of Rawdon, when Miss Marguerite Cotton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Cotton, was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Sine.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, rector of the church. Miss Mina Dracup sang I Love you truly" during the signing of the register and Mrs. W. G. Swayne played the Wedding March.

The fair bride was beautiful in a floor length blue velvet gown with blue hat to match. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and was well filled with relatives and friends.

A wedding dinner was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. W. Moore, Ridley Street, Belleville, attended by the immediate family.

AT THE CAPITOL

"NANCY DREW, DETECTIVE"

Bonita Granville, heroine of the new adventure series based upon the exploits of the heroine of the enormously popular Nancy Drew books by Carolyn Keene, "Nancy Drew, Detective" now playing at the Capitol Theatre with Bonita Granville in the title role and Frankie Thomas as Ted Nickerson, her favorite boy friend.

The plot of the first picture in the new series, devised by Kenneth Gamet, is a typical mixture of the exciting melodrama and adolescent humor that have made the Nancy Drew books so successful.

Nancy's first exploit as a motion picture heroine is the rescue from the hands of kidnappers of a wealthy old spinster who has disappeared the day after she announced a gift of $250,000 to Nancy's school. In solving the mysterious disappearance, young Miss Drew has the courageous and clever assistance of Ted.

The youngsters make use of carrier pigeons, an airplane, an old X-ray machine which Ted cleverly converts into a wireless sending set and Nancy herself even resorts to gunplay when she and Ted are in what looks like a mighty tough spot.

If Nancy's salvation had depended upon her gunplay, however, the result might have been tragic, for she shuts her eyes before turning the gun in the general direction of the thugs who have captured her and Ted as they were aiding the kidnapped old woman to escape from the kidnappers' hide-out. The police arrive in response to the signals sent out on the X-ray machine.

The cast headed by Bonita and Frankie include John Litel, James Stephenson, Frank Orth, Renie Riano, Helena Phillips Evans, Charles Trowbridge and Dick Purcell. William Clemens directed.

"Star Reporter"

Perhaps there is no more potent influence in the world today than that of the Press. Through the medium of newspapers, careers are made and broken.

A timely film illustrating this point is "Star Reporter."

It is the story of an idealistic young man who inherits a newspaper and determines to use this mighty weapon only for the public good. John Randolph, played by Warren Hull, promises himself that he will, through his paper, clean up crime in his city. In a vigorous hard-fought campaign, he succeeds in getting elected as District Attorney the father of the girl he loves.

Jubilant over the outcome of the election, Randolph and District Attorney Burnette set out on a campaign against crime. But when the D. A. backs down on his first case because a conviction means death to John's career, Randolph changes his paper's policy and almost succeeds in running Burnette out of office.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

Jean Arthur and James Stewart co-stars of Frank Capra's romantic comedy "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, Nov. 20 (Special)—Constable Frank Lozo a member of the Trenton Police Force returned home yesterday after spending three days in the bush back of Apsley deer hunting with a party of four hunters from Havelock and district. The party met with a great deal of success and brought back five beautiful animals. Another party comprising Wilfred Taylor (Trenton), William Langmuir, (Trenton), and Jack Thompson and Claire Ingram of Campbellford camped at Dixie Lake and bagged a full count, too. Chief Constable William Bain and two local merchants Mark Tripp and William McClung left this week for the north and are believed to be in the neighborhood of Bancroft endeavouring to get a supply of venison. This group is expected home at the end of the week.

Ducks Plentiful

Late yesterday a horde of ducks settled in the bay just south of the Canning Factory at the foot of Dufferin avenue. The birds apparently came in from the lake and came down in close to the north shore.

Frankford Pastor Speaks

Guest speaker at the opening meeting of the Grace United Church Men's Club last night was the Rev. J. P. Lane of Frankford. The out-of-town speaker was well received by a good turnout of the club's membership.

Jim Kerr Wins Wings

It has been announced that Trenton's Jimmy Kerr has won his wings at the Kingston Flying Club down at the Limestone City. Jimmy became a student at Kingston shortly after the outbreak of hostilities in Europe with the idea of entering the R.C.A.F. for a pilots course. Now that his flying diploma has been granted Jimmy will await a call to the service of Canada's air arm.

Aviation is only one of Jimmy's many vocations and besides being a swell boxer he has all the qualities of a smart hockey player having established himself as a defenceman on last lyear's champion Courier Advocate team. So the present finds Jimmy patiently waiting a summons to the colours to fight for his flag and country.

Rotary Hears Toronto Speaker

At the weekly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club in the Gilbert Hotel, members of the club heard Mr. Reg. Hopper secretary of the Crippled Children's Society describe the various kinds of child deformities that can be corrected by modern day treatment. Rotarian Jim Holmes announced the speaker and Rotarian Claire Northey moved a vote of thanks.

O. G. Alyea in Field Definitely

O. G. Alyea announced yesterday that he will definitely oppose Mayor H. R. Cory in the coming Mayoralty election to take place this December. Ex-Councillor Ross Burtt has stated that he is in the field for a council seat while A. A. Farrar has asked that he remain as a dark horse until nomination day.

Nervous and Sleepless

When you can't sleep it's from worry that poisons the nerves or anaemia which starves them. In either case digestion is poor, appetite fickle and the blood is lacking in vitamin B1 and the mineral substances from which nerve force is produced.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies these essential ingredients, in condensed and easily assimilated form, so as to help quickly to restore the blood and nerves to health and vigor.

Test this new Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, with vitamin B1 added, and see for yourself how soon you will be sleeping better, digesting your food more thoroughly, and enjoying full, healthful living.

You don't worry and toss sleeplessly at night when the blood and nerves are in healthy condition.

BAY OF QUINTE W. I.

T local Women's Institute held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Westfall, Trenton, on Wednesday last. There was a large attendance of members and some visitors present.

Reports were given from the Area Convention held in Belleville October 19th and 20th. The report of the first day was given by Mrs. Roy Westfall, Trenton, which was much appreciated by her hearers. The second day was reviewed by Mrs. Bruce Hogle and told of demonstrations given by the girls on their work of last year. Much time was spent in discussing the Red Cross work which is to be started at once.

Mrs. Frost, Mrs. Albert Jones, conveners for Front Road and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson and Mrs. Clayton Herman for 2nd and 3rd concession.

The program was in charge of Mrs. P. Rose, convener. A paper on Peace was given by Mrs. Casey Ketcheson. Education was taken by Mrs. Fred Carr and International Relations by Mrs. H. Thrasher.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Westfall for opening her home. God Save The King was sung and a social half hour spent in lunc' served by Mrs. Westfall and Committee.

QUINTE W. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Quinte W. I. was held at Mrs. P. MacFarlane's home, Shannonville on Tuesday Nov. 14 with an attendance of twenty one.

The president, Mrs. Connors, conducted a very beautiful and impressive memorial service in memory of our soldiers who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War.

Following this, a prayer was read by the president followed by two minutes reverent silence, after which all repeated the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The meeting was then opened by singing the Ode.

All accounts were presented and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary Mrs. G. Bradshaw.

A report of the two social evenings held for raising Red Cross funds was given. Mrs. H. Grills and Mrs. C. Mitchell were appointed to purchase yarn for Red Cross purposes.

Several letters of thanks were read by the secretary and sympathy was extended to Mrs. Snider who has been bereaved by the death of her sister.

Mrs. Roluf, peace convener, then had charge of the meeting and gave a splendid paper on "Peace—Alternative to war", urging us to keep our heart-fire burning and to keep ever in mind that if the spirit of humanity loses, all is lost. Each of us can volunteer at once in this contest for peace and good-will against force and hate by keeping our hearts free from hate and intolerance.

Mrs. Insley then favored with a lovely solo "Follow the Gleam."

Mrs. H. Brown, Belleville, prepared a very instructive paper on Peace that will come after the war and in Mrs. Brown's absence, was read by Mrs. Insley. This paper stressed that the labour to our hands, then is the creation of cells of Christian democracy within our homes so that something constructive may come out of this present war. We are proud of our citizenship in a truly democratic country and to be worthy of this we must make up our minds that in order to preserve it we must me prepared to give dearly for the maintenance of this democracy and not merely accept the benefits as our just due.

Mrs. A. Greatrix gave a very interesting report of three sessions of the Belleville Area Convention. The motto of this convention was "Friendliness."

We then had a solo by Mrs. Insley "Sweet Peace, The Gift of God's Love."

Thanks was extended to Mrs. Greatrix for her very splendid interesting report. The secretary was also asked to write Mrs. Chambers, thanking hed for boarding our two girls, while attending the training school at Stirling.

The roll call was very well responded to. The collection was $2.20.

The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem, followed by Grace, after which all were invited to the dining room where a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. MacFarlane and her conveners, and a social hour was spent. Tea was poured by Mrs. Connors and Mrs. Roluf.

Fountain Pen Presented To Mt. View Recruit

An interesting event took place on Remembrance Day in the Sunday School Rooms of Mountain View United Church, when an address and presentation was made to Pte. Erwin Shortts of (C) Company, Picton. The rooms were decorated with the Union Jack and Canadian flags. Also the Honour Roll of the Great War.

The new recruit, together with Geo. Neal, James Cretney, Alfred Poste, H. J. Parliament, veterans, were called to the front, where the following address was read by Alfred Poste.

Pte. Erwin Shortts:—

Dear Friend and Sunday School scholar. We your friends of Mountain View community wish to express our love and respect for you, before you leave our midst for fuller training. You have always been an honest, upright, and well behaved member of this place, and we trust you will follow the good example set before you in the home where you have been shown the way of truth and right living.

As a Sunday School scholar you were always well behaved and attentive to the word of God. And we were always pleased with your regular attendance. It was no surprise to hear you had joined the King's forces. And we trust you will always be a true soldier. In the days to come.

Dear young friend, we will remember you in our prayers, and we would ask you to not forget your friends in Mountain View where ever you are. Please accept this small gift, not for its value, but to show our love and good wishes to you before saying a final good bye to you. Signed in behalf of those present by Alfred Poste, Mrs. Clarke Spring, Mrs. George Neal, Mrs. B. Anderson, Seymour Hamilton.

A fountain pen was presented to Ernie by Seymour Hamilton and the response was beautifully made in a few words.

The oldest veteran present was H. J. Parliament, who served in 1866 during the Fenian Raid and fought in the battle of Ridgeway, still hale and hearty in his ninety-sixth year. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

REST BROKEN UP BY NIGHT RISING

Now. Mr. Dale Tells How Mosby's Tonic Relieved His Sluggish Kidneys — Had Backache and Was Worn Out Before He Found This New, Scientific Compound.

Mr. Albert Dale, of 386 Symington Ave., Toronto, Ont., is now adding his name to the long list of widely-known people who publicly praise and endorse MOSBY'S TONIC. This New, Scientific Medicine is now being introduced to the public daily in this city at Lattimer's Drug Store, your Tamblyn Dealer, 228 Front Street. Mr. Dale is a widely-known citizen, with many friends here, and it is with pride that we publish his Grateful Message about Mosby's Tonic, which follows:

MR. ALBERT DALE

Sluggish Kidneys Made His Back Sore and Achy

"For some time I had been a victim of sluggish kidney action and had sharp pains in my back regularly," said Mr. Dale. "My back was so sore and achy that I couldn't bend my body one way or another. My sleep was disturbed constantly by night rising and as a result of this I got so that I felt worn out from lack of rest. I was also suffering badly with a stomach gas condition.

"I was born and raised in Toronto and have a wide acquaintance so, of course, many of my friends know how I suffered during the past year. But now I want my friends to know how much Mosby's Tonic has done for me. I got this medicine less than 4 weeks ago, and now I have taken only two bottles and feel like a different person. I am relieved of those pains in my back and I can sleep so well at nights that when I get up in the mornings I am ready for a good day's work. Another thing, this medicine cleared out the gas bloating from my stomach and I don't suffer after meals like I did before. I am glad to give you my signed endorsement and recommend Mosby's Tonic to others who suffer like I did."

How 15 Herbs in Mosby's Tonic Can Help You

It is the Roots and Herbs in Mosby's Tonic which enable it to produce the Splendid Action described above by Mr. Dale. Herbs really help human Beings. They cleanse the bowels and clear old gas and bloat from stomach. They enliven the liver, clear away old bile and relieve biliousness, sick headache and yellowish "muddy" complexion. They invigorate the kidney activity and stop your night rising and backache. They act to relieve pain of rheumatic and neuritic trouble. MOSBY'S TONIC contains 15 herbs. But it does not even stop there. It contains Five Other Splendid Medicinal Agents. Local Drug Men say it is helping people all over the city.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The stock market scales tipped toward the rising side today and selected issues, led by steels, posted gains of fractions to more than a point.

Dealings were relatively slow, although brisker than in Saturday's sluggish session. Mild profit-taking near the fourth hour chipped down top marks in some cases.

Bonds improved and commodities and foreign securities markets maintained a steady front.

Stocks prominent in the advancing division most of the day — some eventually backed away — were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, U.S. Rubber, Goodyear, Cluett Peabody, Safeway tSores, Douglas Aircraft, Eastern Airlines, Great Northern, Southern Railway pfd., Anaconda, American Smelting and Omnibus Corp.

Slightly improved in the Canadian group were C.P.R. and Distillers. Dominion 4s moved evenly in the bond market.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Trading turned dull today on Toronto exchange. Golds had a mild flurry in early trading.

Malartic gold fields advanced to a new high at 87 and then dropped part of the 7-cent gain. Other juniors were strong, including Madsen, Uchi and Sladen. Stadacona was weak.

Base metal shares showed only narrow changes and small losses appeared in the western oil group for Calgary-Edmonton, Anglo-Canadian and Royalite.

Paper and food stocks ruled strong and the steel, utility and implement groups were irregularly lower. Massey-Harris pfd. declined a point to 59.

Top-Grade Eggs Ease; Butter Steady

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Top-grade egg prices continued on the downward course during Saturday's short session of the Toronto open produce market. Butter showed little change.

The undertone remained weak on the egg market as receipts increased slightly and demand was still slow. Buyers were cautious in making commitments, and they concentrated most of their attention on pullets and lower grade eggs. Another decline occurred in top grades, with prices on these grades closing out the week nominal.

Although buying interest was lacking, no definite weakness was evident on the butter market. Fresh supplies arrived in small volume and offerings generally were not heavy. Prices to the wholesale and retail trade maintained previous levels.

DRIVER INVOLVED IN TWO CRASHES

Kingston Motorist Pleads Guilty to Reckless Driving in Police Court and Fined

It never rains but it pours, especially when one is in trouble, and that's exactly the unfortunate predicament in which W. G. Jamieson, Kingston motorist, found himself today when he appeared in police court before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., charged with reckless driving. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Jamieson's automobile which the accused man was driving was involved in two separate motor accidents in Belleville following which Chief Kidd temporarily impounded the vehicle as unfit to traverse the King's Highway and then followed today's police court charge. Mr. Jamieson pleaded guilty as charged and was fined $10.00 and costs and agreed to make restitution in the matter of damages resulting from yesterday's crack-ups.

Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Jamieson failed to observe the stop street sign at the corner of Ann and Bridge Streets with the result his motor car collided with another automobile driven by Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, of this city. Mr. Jamieson admitted in open court today, that he did not see the stop street sign. Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard investigated and later took a report of the accident from Mr. Jamieson at the police station.

After making satisfactory arrangements Mr. Jamieson and two women passengers, started towards home and was proceeding southerly on Pinnacle Street, when he was again involved in a crash at the intersection of Pinnacle and Dundas Streets when his motor car was in collision with a truck driven by Joseph Wholen, 175 Moira Street. Both vehicles were attempting a lefthand turn at the time of the collision. Chief Kidd was nearby and investigated, but upon returning to the police station and learning the Jamieson car had been in an accident only 40 minutes before, Chief Kidd declared the car unfit to drive on the highway. The damage to Mrs. Ketcheson's car was stated to have been in the neighbourhood of $35.00. Fortunately no injuries was sustained in either crash.

Mayor Bone Refuses to Allow Fire Equipment to Leave City

His Worship Stated it Was Not Advisable to Jeopardize City Property

GIVES REASON

Mayor Bone flatly refused to permit some of the Belleville fire-fighting equipment to be taken out of the city when a request for fire protection was requested from the village of Foxboro yesterday. "I did not think it advisable to jeopardize city property and permit our present fire apparatus to leave the city," explained His Worship today.

"It must be remembered that the city council refused to purchase additional fire fighting equipment in order to bring our apparatus up to adequate strength. At present our fire department's equipment is at a very low ebb, we've only got one decent piece of equipment available, so I did not deem it advisable to send any part of our fire apparatus out of Belleville and leave the ratepayers' property unprotected in case of fire," added Mayor Bone as he sympathized with the Foxboro residents, however.

"Two years ago I tried to complete arrangements for fire protection for surrounding villages at a nominal cost, but failed to receive any satisfactory reply. No doubt the Belleville Fire Department would be glad to assist in such cases, but as things stand today we cannot afford to permit one piece of our fire-fighting equipment to leave the city as precautionary practice, that is not until the city council sees fit to replenish the present equipment and bring this city's fire department up to a proper standard," concluded Mayor Bone.

In the meantime a house in Foxboro was badly damaged by fire.

'Shucks, It's Nuthin' Says 13-Year-Old Boy When Complimented on His Skill in Shooting Large Deer

Vernon MacDonald, Wellington, Gets Great Thrill When Buck Falls After First Shot

HIS FIRST HUNT

Vernon MacDonald, thirteen-year-old schoolboy of Wellington, is the envy of all the kids in his class and in the neighborhood. For in the garage of his home hangs a handsome 200-lb. buck deer, brought down in the woods north of Buckshot Lake by the diminutive hunter, who, this year, experienced his first big hunting trip.

Beaming with pride, the youngster yesterday discounted the prowess of the "old fellows" in the woods. "Shucks, it's nuthin,' he grinned, "to shoot a deer if yuh know how to handle a gun."

"I went out in the runway with one of the big fellows and we laid in the bush for a long while. Then around a corner came the biggest deer I ever saw in my life.

"Gee, I was so excited, that deer must have heard me breathing. I wiggled around in the bush, and the fellow I was with told me to 'keep still.' He fired two shots at the animal, but he missed it by a mile. I kidded him about it, and he got kinda mad, and told me if I was so smart, I could shoot the next one."

"Anyway," young MacDonald continued, "we walked about a mile through the wood, and climbed through some brush and hid. It wasn't long before we saw a deer come running down a path. He came so close that I could have hit him with a stone."

"I nudged my big friend in the foot. 'How about it, it's my turn to shoot,' I said. He nodded his head and handed me the rifle. That deer looked as big as a house. I pointed the gun at him and pulled the trigger. My friend snickered as the deer continued to run, but he whistled when the buck staggered and fell to its knees and rolled over. I hit him all right."

"The big friend," corroborated MacDonald's story, and the young hunter now is busy relating to his classroom pals the thrill of a "back north hunting trip" and "how to bring down a deer."

LONSDALE CHILD SEVERELY BURNED

Two-year-old Helen Hunt, daughter of Mrs. Olive Hunt, Lonsdale, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital early yesterday morning suffering with severe burns incurred in an accident at her home. Dr. G. H. Stobie is in attendance. The little girl's condition was reported today to be good.

Merchants Pleased With the Volume of Saturday Business

Merchants of hte city reported today that Saturday's volume of business was among the largest of the Autumn season. Apparently already Christmas-minded, the buying public rescended upon counters of holiday merchandise in a purchasing splurge that augurs well for the approaching season.

Maintains High Standard

The Canadian Navy has maintained a high standard of educational and physical requirements. A good many of the recruits are from Prairie Provinces. High School graduate and University student alike heard their country's call and answered.

Some are specializing. Instance G. W. Taylor of Moosejaw, Sask.; O. H. Hodgess and J. E. Donaldson of Calgary, and R. J. McPherson of Edmonton. They will take up expert expert ginnery when they have learned seamanship.

A signal class holds flag drill on a promontory.

In workshops naval ratings do fine machine work, while across the road civilians are at forge, lathe and the welding machine.

In the warehouses are staples such as flour and sugar, utensils of every description, and uniform cloth. There are stocks of 81 naval flags. In fact there is everything from shingle nails to anchor chains, guns to coffee pots, engines to blankets.

Storerooms hold racks of torpedoes. There are mines, dull looking spheres with their deadly charges of explosive. And rows of gleaming barrels of big guns and the smaller pom poms.

And guarding the entrance to this storehouse of ships, men and munitions is a simple looking chain of empty oil drums. It supports a submarine cable that would spell disaster to any underwater raider attempting to penetrate the harbor.

LIVESTOCK

Medium good to good veals reached $10 with an odd top making $10.50. Mediums ranged from $9.50-$10 with common lights down to $7. Drinkers brought $5-$7 and grassers $4-$4.50 with the bulk going between $4.25-$4.50.

Cadets of the Air Defence corps admire the Distinguished Flying medal which was personally awarded to Sergeant William Willets in recognition of his gallantry in flying against the enemy. Sergeant Willets was a member of a bombing crew which was attacked by German planes. With the pilot killed, Willets took over the controls and landed the bomber and its crew safely.

116 ANNIVERSARY OF ST. ANDREW'S IS CELEBRATED

Rev. F. Scott MacKenzie of Presbyterian College, Montreal, is Special Speaker

SPEAKS ON MOSES

Generations Banded Together by Working Out Great Plan of God

"One hundred and sixteen years is a long period of time yet not too long in a comparative young country like Canada not so far removed from pioneer parents, who with undaunted courage carved out a wilderness into a happy, prosperous state", said Rev. Dr. F. Scott MacKenzie, Principal of Presbyterian College, Montreal, addressing capacity congregations at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the occasion being the 116th anniversary of the founding of the church in this community. Rev. W. J. Walker, pastor of the church, welcomed the distinguished visitor to the congregation. Flowers placed in the front of the church by Miss Irvine, in memory of her brother, George, for many years a devoted worker in the congregation added a beautiful touch to the occasion. The choir under the direction of Charles Kilgour delighted with a number of anthems. In the morning the anthem, "The Lord is My Light", was given with Miss Florence Barber, as soloist and a solo "I sought the Lord", was also given by this choir member. In the evening Mrs. F. J. Bradley was soloist in the anthem "Hear My Prayer".

Experience of All Noble People

Rev. Dr. MacKenzie in the evening spoke from the 34th chapter of Deuteronomy and the fourth verse "And the Lord said unto him, this is the land, which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac and unto Jacob saying, I will give unto thy seed I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither". The speaker stated, that was the experience of all great men in that they worked hard on some objective only to find at the end they could not enter the Promised Land in completing the work but had to lay down their tools for others to take up and complete the task. "Moses had lived for forty years leading his people through the wilderness and when in sight of the land he had set his heart upon he was spoken to by God, who told him, that he could see it but could not enter thither" said Dr. MacKenzie "It was a bitter experience for Moses and full of pathos but it was no means unusual. This is the universal experience of noble men and women. The actual achievements are far short of desire. They must leave the work unfulfilled."

Work Out Great Plan

The speaker told of each succeeding race taking up the work and the generations are banded together by working out the Great Plan of God. "We cannot consider the lives of these noble men and women failures", said the speaker. "No life in this respect is a failure that is devoted to noble purposes but I will say they are incomplete. Moses finished all the work he was required to do but it was not as much as he would have liked to have done but he worked to God's plan. All of us should remember our debts to those who have gone before." Turning this story to the present day, the speaker referred to the Anniversary being celebrated in the present church. One hundred and sixteen years ago this church was founded by pioneers, who came to carve out of the wilderness a home for their children with undaunted courage, strong faith and a clear vision and they have founded a country on a strong social structure. Their task was to lay a foundation on respect for the law, education and a devoutness to God and they did not forget that man does not live by bread alone.

Think of Future

"These pioneers were thinking of the future, when they formed this church", said the speaker "and with the hope that the children would be educated and brought up in such an atmosphere that they would carry on the good work. But we can ask the question are we doing it in the way of our forefathers today? We are very solicitous about the material things for our children but are we providing them with adequate equipment for life in a religious way. I have a great sympathy for the younger people of today, who are faced with problems far greater than those of our ancestors. I particularly regret the inroads that have been made on the scanctity of the Lord's Day. We are faced with a grave problem in this day and if I see a man, who is satisfied with his station in life I am looking at a man, small in stature. No life dedicated to God is a failure and every good life is glorified."

Dr. MacKenzie asked all to rededicate themselves to the Glory of God and work for His Kingdom on earth and the reward that will certainly follow for the faithful.

ROCK BLASTING ON CAMPBELL STREET

Muffled explosions in the vicinity of Campbell and Front Streets this morning caused Front Street pedestrians to raise inquiring eyebrows. Fears were allayed when told the explosions were caused by city workmen blasting rock to facilitate excavation operations now under way on Campbell Street.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. T. H. Robertson, 265 Bethune St., Peterborough, Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United Church officiating. Interment was made at Madoc Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN McKENZIE

(Madoc)

Madoc (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. John McKenzie took place from the family residence on Saturday afternoon to St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, where the pastor Rev. W. A. Hunter conducted the service. Mr. Hunter chose his text from 1st Thessalonians and part of the fourth chapter. Beautiful flowers, a token of love from many friends, banked the altar and casket.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Thomas Nicol, Fred Curry, Robert Bristol, Charles Whytock, Alex Robertson and George West. The flower bearer were Campbell Hunter; Don White, Arch Warren, Stanley Hawthorne, Douglas Blue, Grant Lewis; Everett Harrison and Ewart Carswell.

SMALL AMOUNT OF CASH TAKEN

Twisting a lock from off the main entrance door, robbers entered the premises of Pigden's garage and auto wreckers, Front St., and ransacked the office furniture before committing theft. Twenty-five cents in cash, a radiator core and a used connecting rod constituted the loot taken. The robbery was not discovered until employees arrived at the garage early today. Later Plainclothesman Constable Fred Issard investigated and reported that cash was undoubtedly the goal of the robbers in the first instance, but there only being 25c in the premises, the marauders made off with the valuable auto accessories.

PRISONER SHOOTS

Snell.

Noticing that Fleming kept his right hand in a coat pocket, Sergeant Last asked him "What's in your hand" and the youth whipped out a .32 calibre revolver and ordered "Stick 'em Up You ——."

Sergeant last struck at the gun, forcing it down, but the first bullet entered his leg. The second slug struck the floor, and then Fleming was quickly overpowered by the three officers.

Fleming at first said his name was James Ferguson and that he lived in Windsor, but admitted his identity when an operator's license with the name of Donald Fleming was found in his pocket.

Fails To Make Curve.

Deputy Chief Coates' auto was stolen from in front of his Windsor home about 9 p.m. Sunday. Fleming apparently drove into London, and was heading west again when he failed to negotiate the Glendale curve and smashed into the pole.

Riding with him at the time was Aircraftsman Ed. McIntyre, of Regina, now in training at the Royal Canadian Air Force school at St. Thomas. McIntyre said he was hitchhiking to St. Thomas and that Fleming picked him up just outside the city limits.

Fleming had removed the Deputy Fire Chief's red signal light from the front of the car, but the auto was still equipped with a large siren at the time of the accident.

Traffic Officer Moore said that his suspicions were aroused when he noted the siren on the wrecked car. Enquiry revealed that Fleming and his companion had gone to a garage on No. 2 Highway, and he was quickly located by Moore. Aircraftsman McIntyre was not held by the police.

Sergeant last was treated at Victoria Hospital and given serum injections. Then he returned to police headquarters, but later was removed to his home.

Believe Butcher Knife Used in Wounding

Brampton, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP) — Mrs. Milford Curry, 52, today was given a "fair chance for recovery" from knife wounds, while her husband was held in Peel County jail on a charge of wounding.

Mrs. Curry's wounds were allegedly suffered yesterday after a family argument. Police said a butcher knife was thrust into the woman's side. After hours of searching, police located a 16-inch knife and forwarded it to medico-legal experts in Toronto for examination.

WILL USE GRADERS ON SHOAL AT BEACH

Heavy graders will be employed in the immediate future in work on the Belleville Beachs where efforts will be made to remove the shoal at the east end of the project.

On a current visit to New York, Oliva and Elzire Dionne, parents of the world-famous quintuplets, went to see—of all things — the stage show, "Too Many Girls." After the show they visited showgirls backstage with their daughter, Pauline, six.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, Canadian minister of mines and Canada's representative at the Empire conference being held in London, is shown shaking hands with Sir Frank Bowater, lord mayor of London, who entertained the delegates at the Mansion House.

Robert Ford was recently elected president and William C. Riggs, vice president of the typographical union in Ontario. Both are Belleville boys, the former now living in Toronto and the latter in Windsor. Mr. Ford is a son of the late James Ford, former editor of the Intelligencer. Mr. Riggs was formerly employed at the Intelligencer before the Great War and after the war by the Daily Ontario. He is a son of Mr. Walter Riggs, Bridge Street West.

How to Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

BRITAIN WINNING SAYS WAR SEC'Y.

Leslie Hore-Belisha Expresses Confidence After Tour of the Front

With the British Expeditionary Force Somewhere in France, Nov. 20 (CP)—"Britain is comfortably winning this war," War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha declared on an inspection of the Western Front.

The War Secretary has been conferring with Viscount Gort, British Commander-in-Chief of forces in the field, General Maurice Gamelin, Commander in Chief of the Allied forces, and Premier Daladier of France.

"It is the type of war we do best—just digging in and sitting tight," he added. "It is the old boxing principle to keep a man at arms length and tire him out.

"I am greatly pleased with everything I have seen."

The War Secretary accompanied by Lord Gort today inspected more than 100 miles of a French sector neighboring that held by British troops.

After a sandwich lunch in his automobile, Mr. Hore-Belisha left for Paris, where he will confer again with Premier Daladier and General Gamelin.

On the inspection trip the War Secretary stopped in a village square where a number of French officers were presented to him, then went to a chateau on a nearby hill, where British and French General Staff officers gave him detailed explanations of the positions occupied by troops.

Village children brought him bunches of flowers.

The War Secretary studied with particular care bridges mined by the British Engineering Corps, several French observation posts, and a newly installed anti-tank defense of the latest model.

IN MEMORIAM

CRONKWRIGHT— In loving memory of Thos. Cronkwright, Trenton, Ont, who passed away, November 20, 1938.

"We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own;
Like ivy on the withered oak, when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away."

—Ever remembered by parents, brother and sisters. n20-1t

JOE WRIGHT, JR., KEEPS FIT WITH KRUSCHEN
Recommends "The Little Daily Dose" to Others

Here is what Joe Wright, Jr., Diamond Sculls winner and ex-Argo football star says about Kruschen Salts: "I realised the pitfalls of suddenly dropping out of active sport. I still take a fair amount of exercise but as a preventive against common ailments I depend a lot on my 'little daily dose' of Kruschen Salts every morning in a glass of water. I recommend it without hesitation."

KEEPS ME FEELING LIKE A MILLION DOLLARS

Kruschen contains several highly refined salts, each for a special purpose. Potassium Chloride, for example, for rheumatic symptoms, as a means of retarding formation of harmful biurates in the tissues. Kruschen helps prevent sluggishness, acid indigestion, clears out poisons and imparts that priceless feeling of fitness that makes you enjoy every minute of the day. 25c, 45c, 75c at drug stores.

Brilliant Goaling By Paul Bibeault Wins for Verdun

Quebec, Nov. 20—(CP)— Verdun Maple Leafs, aided by the brilliant goal-tending of young Paul Bibeault, trimmed Quebec Aces yesterday in a Quebec Senior Hockey League game. The loss was Aces second in a row.

Bibeault a native of Quebec and a product of the Verdun junior team which reached the Memorial Cup semi-finals last season, brought the capacity crowd to its feet time and again as he blocked close-in shots which were labelled for goals.

The youngster played shout hockey during the first two periods while his mates piled up a four-goal lead and only weakened in the third when Aces scored all their markers successively.

Sylvio Mantha Schools Team in Old Tactics

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP)— Sylvio Mantha, for a dozen years a star defenceman with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, apparently has schooled his Montreal Concordias in the same tactics of the Flying Frenchmen of old, with amazing results.

Not given much of a rating before the start of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, the Civics were in first place today, the only undefeated team in the circuit. Their 7-1 victory over Ottawa Senators here Saturday, coupled with Quebec's defeat by Verdun today left them one point ahead of the Aces.

Roger Gaudette scored three goals.

Police Blotter

Albert Joslin, 72 South George St., reported to police over the week end that his 14 foot sailing punt was missing from its harbor moorings. Mr. Joslin was unable to determine whether or not the craft had been stolen or merely drifted away.

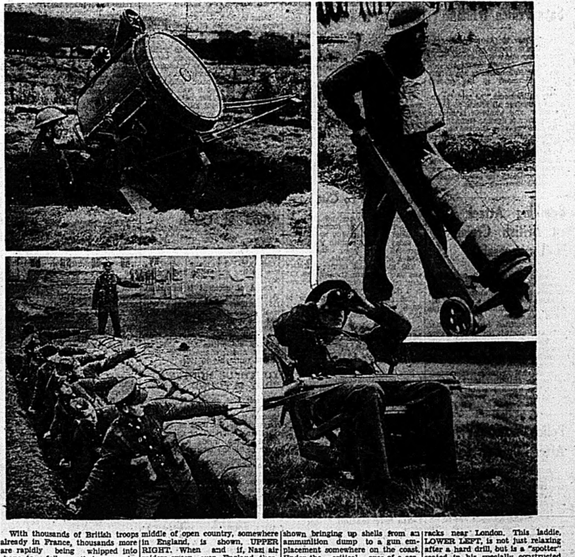
Four soldier boys in an automobile narrowly escaped driving into an excavation at the corner of Bridge and Front Sts., shortly before 5.00 p.m. last evening. City workmen were employed on the project at the time and lighted lanterns were clearly displayed. Five men were working in the excavation when the automobile filled with soldiers narrowly escaped driving into the dug-upstreet. The driving into the dug-up street. The ing one side of the barricade, police were told.

V. G. Clare, of this city, informed police he found a bag of potatoes lying at the intersection of John St., and Victoria Ave., on Saturday evening. "They'll be nice eating this winter if the owner doesn't claim them," Mr. Clare jovially suggested to police as he reported the incident.

Oshawa police reported the theft of a 1932 model Chevrolet sedan bearing licence plate numbers 1—N—667.

An increased number of inebriates fell into the hands of the law on Saturday night and after "cooling their heels in the local hoosegow", were permitted their liberty on Sunday to return and face charges of intoxication in today's police court.

BRITISH TROOPS RAPIDLY BECOMING EXPERTS IN ALL BRANCHES OF THE ARMY



With thousands of British troops already in France, thousands more are rapidly being whipped into shape to follow their comrades across the channel or to take up positions with home defence units. One of the projectors of a searchlight detachment, stationed in the middle of open country, somewhere in England, is shown, UPPER RIGHT. When and if, Nazi air raiders sweep over England, these powerful searchlights will illuminate the enemy planes for anti-aircraft guns to shoot down. An artilleryman, UPPER LEFT, is shown bringing up shells from an ammunition dump to a gun emplacement somewhere on the coast. Under the critical eyes of a sergeant, soldiers standing in a trench adopt the correct positions for throwing hand grenades, LOWER RIGHT, during training at a barracks near London. This laddie, LOWER LEFT, is not just relaxing after a hard drill, but is a "spotter" seated in his specially constructed chair, with his rifle across his knees and powerful binoculars up to his eyes, scanning the skies for signs of enemy aircraft.

Alex Constable Working in Basement of Dairy When Blast Occurs

IS BADLY BURNED

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP) — Burned by live steam when an underground tank in the basement of a dairy plant exploded yesterday, Alex. Constable was in hospital today in serious condition.

The blast threw Constable against a brick wall of the basement and left him with a fractured right leg and serious burns on his legs, face and back. The explosion shattered the tank, cut half a dozen steam pipe lines, broke up the cement floor of the basement and so damaged the cement foundation of the furnace that the boiler on it was tilted to one side. Steam filled the basement.

Constable was alone when the explosion occurred. Dairy officials were unable to explain the actual cause of the explosion but according to the manager it may have been due to lack of water in the underground tank.

Peter Falconer, employee of a service station next door, and Patrick McKenna ran into the cellar. They found Constable unconscious in the steam-filled room and carried him to the stairs.

Large chunks of the cement floor were found scattered about the scene.

How Would You Like to Farm In Germany?

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 20—(C.P.-Havas) — Formalities in seven acts must be carried out by German farmers before they can use meat from their own pigs, German newspapers reaching here revealed today.

1. The farmer must prove that the animal was fed and raised on his farm for at least three months.
2. He must apply in writing to the local mayor for a permit to kill the pig.
3. A slaughter-house inspector must then examine the pig.
4. If all is in order, the farmer must pay a slaughtering tax in advance.
5. After the animal is killed, the owner must send his permit back to the mayor.
6. An inspector will then appear and weigh the meat.
7. The farmer may now use the meat and fat from his pig, but must turn over to the authorities ration card coupons for meat and fat representing 90 per cent of the weight of the animal.

Hohenzollerns Solidly Behind Germany Says Prince Wilhelm

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP)—Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former Kaiser and a Nazi Storm Troop leader, told foreign correspondents today the Hohenzollerns are solidly behind Germany in the present struggle.

"My entire house," he said, "is absolutely against all efforts to injure Germany ,and whatever is against the Fuehrer is against Germany."

He said "we were shocked" at the supposed attempt on Adolf Hitler's life at Munich Nov. 8.

The prince reported that his eldest brother, the former crown prince was in Berlin today and that he was engaged daily in the administration of Hohenzollern properties.

Bombing Attack on British Cruiser is Unsuccessful

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Admiralty announced tonight German aircraft had "made an unsuccessful bombing attack" on a British destroyer in the southern part of the North Sea.

An unidentified airplane earlier drew anti-aircraft fire in flying over the outskirts of London, Essex and Southern Kent and German scouting activities extended to the north of Scotland.

No air raid warnings were sounded though anti-aircraft fire trailed the plane which reached the edge of the Capital.

Police Seek Driver After Cyclist Killed

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 20—(CP)—City and Provincial police are today investigating the death of Dominic Friyia, struck by a motorist here last night. The driver failed to report to police.

Friyia, riding a bicycle was on his way home from the Algoma Steel Plant where he has been employed for many years, was hit by the motor car which came up from behind.

Police said that the motor car must have been travelling very fast at the time because marks on the pavement showed a skid of 70 feet.

NAZIS BROADCAST AIMS IN WAR

Say They Will Expand German Borders to Limits of 'Historic Interests'

Berne, Nov. 20 (CP-Havas)—A Nazi broadcast heard here yesterday said Germany will expand its borders to the limits of its "historic interests" and will establish a new political system in Europe following its victory in the present war.

Among the war aims of the Reich were given as follows:

1. Germany will put an end to the injustices which Great Britain desires at any price to maintain.
2. Germany will establish the frontiers to which it is entitled by virtue of its historic interests.
3. Germany security will be definitely fixed in the north, south, east and west.
4. The Reich intends to establish a new Polish state "which shall not be an instrument in the hands of powers dreaming only of checkmating Germany's plans."
5. At the close of the war, from which Germany shall emerge victorious, the Reich will establish a new system for Europe.

"France and Britain declined the peace offers of King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina," the announcer said. "It is with an absolutely clean conscience that the Reich takes up the gage of defiance which has been hurled at it."

Carry Coffin Of Dead Leader On 10-Day March

Alicante, Spain. Nov. 20 (AP) — Falangists (Fascists) started a 10-day funeral march of 284 miles today, carrying the coffin of their dead leader, Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, on their shoulders.

The body of the founder of the Falange Espanola, who was executed by the Republicans three years ago will be taken to the El Escorial Monastery in the Guadarrama Mountains in the relay procession. The body was exhumed yesterday.

Primo de Rivera allied himself with General Francisco Franco when the Nationalist revolution began July 18, 1936. He was captured by the Republicans and put to death by a firing squad Nov. 20, 1936. He was the oldest son of Don Miguel Primo de Rivera, dictator of Spain for six years, who died in Paris in 1930.

Train Chases Wolf, Winds Him and Crew Kill Beast

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP)—The story of a wolf which regretfully learned its wind gave out before the steam of a locomotive engine, was told here today by Engineer Jimmy Gordon and Fireman Joe McColl.

The men chased the wolf almost to exhaustion with their train along the tracks of the Algoma Central Railway. They then hopped from the cab and killed the animal with engine tools.

The unlucky wolf ran in front of the train at the mouth of the Agawa Canyon. After it was winded it started to run up a snowbank but the two men brought the train to a halt and caught it.

RATHER DISCOURAGING.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 20 (AP)—For three days Kenneth Foeller labored in a parking lot, trying to start the motor of his elderly flivver. Late yesterday he succeeded. But the wiring was short circuited, and before firemen could do anything about it, the car was a total loss.

More Wood for Kaiser Bill to Cut

Doorn, The Netherlands, Nov. 20 (AP)—The staff of former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany was alarmed today when a sudden windstorm uprooted three large trees in the garden of Doorn Castle.

The 80-year-old former Kaiser was only 50 yards from where the trees fell and returned to the castle in a highly nervous state.

The storm caused damage to small Netherlands shipping yesterday. Seven seamen lost their lives.

MISTRIAL DEMANDED IN KUHN CASE DENIED BY COURT

New York, Nov. 20—(AP)— Peter L. F. Sabbatino, counsel for Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader demanded a mistrial today when Judge James Wallace excluded the public from Kuhn's trial and rebuked the lawyer for disputing the order. The motion was denied Kuhn is charged with grand larceny of Bund funds.

The order barring the public was understood to have resulted from the Judge's anoyance at repeated outbursts of laughter and tittering.

Charged With Spreading False Information

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP) — George Nicoloff, 28, who reported to police Saturday night that he had been held up and robbed of $100 while driving his bread wagon, was arrested later on a charge of spreading false information. Police said Nicoloff admitted he lost the money in a crap game.

MEN OF EIRE TRAINED FOR AERIAL WARFARE

Although she has no hand in the present war, Eire is busily looking to the state of her defences. Thoroughly modern is Eire, so much of the looking-to is concentrated upon the air arm of her national defences. Baldonnel field in Dublin is the site of the national flying training school where young Irishmen are taught to fly fighting planes. A Lewis gunner, UPPER LEFT, is shown sighting his gun from the cockpit of a Lysander plane, prior to a practice flight. Before taking off on a training flight, young pilots examine a map, BOTTOM, while the wing-gun of a Browning Gladiator is loaded, UPPER RIGHT.

NAZI DESTROYER TRAINS GUNS ON NORWEGIAN FREIGHTER

DESK OFFICER HEARS SCREAMS

Runs Out and Finds Woman Who Says Man Threatened Her With Knife

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Police on duty in Dundas St. East station early today were attracted by a woman's screams. Running out of the station they went to Parliament and Dundas Streets where they found Mrs. Rose Graziano, in a semi-hysterical condition.

She claimed a man seized her, forced her against a wall and put a knife against her back stating: "If you scream I'll kill you." She did scream and aroused the whole neighborhood.

Police cruisers working the division put the woman in the car and aided by her description arrested a man who had a hunting knife in his possession. He was charged with having an "offensive weapon."

Flying Officer Killed in Crash

Halifax, Nov. 20—(CP)— Flying Officer D. R. Anderson of Montreal was killed as a Royal Canadian Air Force plane which he was piloting crashed near here today.

Cause of accident is uncertain. Flying Officer Anderson, with No. 115 Auxiliary Squadron at Montreal before the start of the war, was the only occupant of the plane.

A court of inquiry will be held, military authorities said. Flying Officer Anderson graduated from McGill University in 1924.

YOUTHFUL HUNTER'S BODY IS FOUND

Detroit, Nov. 20—(AP)Gunfire in Michigan's deer hunting area claimed its four victim of the season today as the body of 19-year-old Harold Eldridge, of Capac, was found in the woods a few miles north of Shingleton in the Upper Peninsula.

The body was found by Emmett Anderson, hunting companion of Eldridge. Anderson informed police that the charge from a gun had struck Eldridge in the face. Eldridge's discharged gun was found near the body.

WILL RECRUIT 75 MORE MEN

London, Ont., Nov. 20—(CP)—Orders were received here today for the regimental depot of the R.C.R to recruit another 75 men between the ages of 19 and 35 years. The Royal Canadian Regiment is Canada's ranking infantry unit among the permanent forces.

WAR BRIEFS

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP)—Authorized German sources said today one crewman of a German warplane fired on yesterday while flying over the Netherlands had "returned seriously wounded after the plane took a circuitous route to its home base."

The Netherlands and German governments are seeking to clarify the incident, these sources declared.

Amsterdam, Nov. 20 (C.P.-Havas)—The British and German versions of the Simon Bolivar sinking Saturday were published side by side without comment today by the Dutch press.

Tientsin, Nov. 20 (AP)—The blockaded British concession, facing a growing coal shortage, will be without light, power and water within ten days, authorities said today, unless the Japanese permit supplies to enter.

The present flow of supplies, it was said, is confined to a limited ration for hospitals and bakeries.

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 20 (AP)—Passengers in three Netherlands liners have been ordered to disembark here, it was disclosed today, rather than risk the dangers of the mine-laden North Sea. The ships, the Oranje, the Jan Pieterszoon Coen and the Johan de Witt, carried approximately 1000 passengers bound for northern Europe. The vessels reached Portugal last week.

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP)— With Winter weather near, the housing problem in Warsaw—especially as it concerns Jews—has become a pressing consideration for the war-ravaged former Polish capital. Informed German sources said emergency housing had been provided for the Jewish population on certain streets, but they insisted there would be no Ghetto. The emergency measures resulted from the lack of apartment houses, it was said.

THREE BROTHERS DONATE BLOOD TO INJURED BROTHER

Quincy, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP) — With blood of his three big brothers coursing through his veins, Joseph Nicholas, 15, rallied today after an operation for removal of a kidney ruptured when he fell while climbing a fence. To strengthen him for the operation yesterday, brothers Francis, 22, Robert, 18, and Paul, 20, gave Joseph some of their blood.

THE LADY WAS SUCCESSFUL

Columbus, Mont., 20 (CP)—Mrs. Dewey Rhyner went hunting with her husband and three other men. The men came home empty handed but Mrs. Rhyner bagged a five-point buck weighing 211 pounds.

DR. A. McPHERSON PETERBORO, DIES

Resident for 40 Years and Noted as Soldier, Athlete and Physician

Peterboro, Ont., Nov. 20—(CP)—Dr. Angus W. McPherson, the man to whom Peterboro owes her immunity to diphtheria, died Sunday after an illness of some months. Noted soldier, athlete and physician Dr. McPherson was among the leaders of this district.

Dr. McPherson had been a resident of Peterboro for more than forty years. At the turn of the century he was teaching in the Collegiate Instituute. Then he entered the medical school of Toronto University and on graduating, after spending a year in the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital he began practice here.

In the field of public health he served for years as Medical Health Officer for the city and after the Great War as Medical Officer of the Board of Education. In the first Great War he served overseas with the Canadian Medical Corps. After the war he continued his interest in the militia and rose to the command of the Peterboro Rangers. As an athlete he made Dominion-wide fame in soccer, rugby and lacrosse.

His fighting spirit earned him the name of "fighting Mac." He was a member for years of the Ontario Hockey Association and at one time was its treasurer.

Born in Dutton 65 years ago, Dr. McPherson is survived by his wife, three sons and one daughter.

KINGSTON TROOPS ARE INSPECTED

1,000 Men Paid Surprise Visit by Major-General McNaughton

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 20—(CP)—One thousand men in khaki were inspected today as individuals by Canada's No. 1 soldier, Major General A. G. L. McNaughton, Commander of the 1st Canadian Division.

The visit today was almost a surprise one. Senior officers knew nothing about arrangements until late.

Kingston's contribution to the 1st Artillery Brigade was reviewed at Fort Frontenac while the 1st Divisional Signals and Battery Signallers attached to the 1st Division were inspected at the Vimy Parade Ground.

The inspection tour included an inspection of barracks at Fort Frontenac, Vimy Barracks and the Barriefield Concentration Camp. Major General A. G. L. McNaughton and his staff officers had lunch at the officers' mess at Vimy and later in the afternoon left by motor for Picton to inspect the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment mobilized there. A total of 468 men were on parade at Fort Frontenac Barracks.

CO-INVENTOR DIES

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (CP) — The death occurred Saturday of Isaac Fuld, co-inventor of the Ouiji Board—the fad that swept the continent and spread to Europe nearly twenty years ago.

Fuld, aged 74, developed the board with his brother, the late William Fuld. The name they selected was merely the French and German words "oui" and "ja" meaning "yes, yes."

While the Fuld brothers first produced the board in 1904, it did not become a sensation until 1920. Two years later interest subsided.

COSUME PUT IN MATCH BOX

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP)—Magistrate Elias Meyers asked a detective to prove today why he insited the costume of an entertainer at a girl show was too flimsy.

Painstakingly the detective folded the "costume" and squeezed it into a match box.

The Magistrate fined the show manager $12.50.

When Henrahan's case was called he looked up to the bench and saw the man who had helped him—Judge Oliver Youngs. Judge Youngs fined him $5.

GERMAN MINE-LAYING NEAR BRITISH SHORES DESCRIBED AS "MURDER"

London, Nov. 20 (CP)—The Daily Express, describing German mine-laying near British shores as "murder—bloody murder," said Sunday that "it will not be long before the navy will find a remedy to Hitlr's tactics."

"It isn't war at all, not even a new type of war," the Express said.

The Daily Telegraph said editorially that the mine which sank the Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar Saturday could only have been German, since the disaster occurred in waters which it is to Great Britain's interest to keep open to traffic.

"As might be confidently expected," the editorial said, "official Germany has been quick ti deny the responsibility for an act which even they could hardly attempt to justify . . .

FINDS FEW SIGNS OF STATE OF WAR IN CANADA

Aviator Editor of Associated Press Says Much of War Preparation is Hidden

New York, Nov. 20 (CP)—Just returned from a flying trip to Canada, Devon Francis, aviation editor of The Associated Press, writes that the physical evidences of the state of war existing between the Dominion and Germany are so meagre that a visitor is surprised to encounter soldiery.

In the story of his experiences written for The Associated Press Francis told the United States that "Canada is worried lest the United States look too much on the Dominion as a nation at war." Having found nothing to worry the visitor, he told his fellow Americans about it. His story, in part, follows:

Much of Canada's preparation for war, of course, is hidden.

Volunteer troops are in training but information on their numbers or disposition must be kept from the enemy.

Secrets Kept

Young men are learning to pilot combat planes, but the character and extent of their instruction must remain secret.

Canada does not fear invasion or bombing raids. No one so much as suggests that the locks of the little canal which courses through the heart of Ottawa, are in danger from enemy bombs.

But Canada does fear saboteurs—and Canada winter vactionland, is worried lest the United States look too much on the Dominion as a nation at war.

In both Ottawa and Montreal residents will tell a visitor, "Oh, a few safeguards, yes, against sabotage, but Europe is a long way off and it would be sad if our being at war prevented citizens of the United States from coming up, just as they do in peace time."

Air Service Ignores State of War

Air service into, and within Canada, like train service, ignores the state of war. Trans-Canada Air Lines, Government-operated, shuttles back and forth between the Pacific Coast and Moncton, eastern terminus, on regular schedule. Canadian Colonial Airways, with some planes of Canadian registry, wings between Montreal and New York several times a day.

A few soldiers patrol St. Hubert Airport at Montreal, coated against the late fall's 10-degree temperatures at night.

"I say," remarked a genial customs official with a touch of wistfulness as I validated my ticket for the return trip to New York by plane, "were you well treated here? I mean the war—we didn't give you too much trouble, now did we?"

I agreed.

"Then perhaps," he said. "you will say so when you get back to New York. The United States should know that."

It is war but it is not war.

I tried to draw a taxi driver into a conversation about the war.

"Oh, the war," he exclaimed, recognizing it. "I've been reading about it. Will you be in town for the rugby game Saturday?"

At a club in Montreal a man in his 40's musingly poured water into two fingers of Scotch.

"I suppose my two boys will enlist," he conceded. "This is war again. But I am not lying awake nights thinking about it."

It is at the airport training centres that the visitor is confronted with the real preparations for the conflict. In 914 Great Britain asked Canada for foot soldiers. Today it is not foot soldiers but aviators.

At one airdrome I found aircraftsmen, young men enlisted to learn to care for warplanes, sharing quarters built for only half their number. At the Bachelor Officers' Quarters two pilots shared a room normally reserved for one.

"We are only getting under way," explained the commanding officer. "But we shall go along fast now."

The goal is 25,000 fliers a year. Canada is the centre of the Empire air scheme. Contributing their man power will be the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. If the war in the air is to determine the course of the war in general, Britain is determined to achieve air superiority.

Judgment Reserved in Stone Throwing Case

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP)—Tragic sequel to a baseball practice on a field on Biggar Avenue last May 10, was the death the following day on the operating table at the General Hospital of 16-year-old Lawrence Bracchi, from a blood clot on the brain.

In court today the lad's brother and many playmates gathered to testify in the case of Donato Corsini, 19, a friend of the dead boy, who is charged with assaulting and occasioning grevious bodily harm.

After hearing evidence which showed that Donato had thrown a stone in the direction of young Bracchi, after a practice of St. Anthony's baseball team, Judge Ernest F. Laizer reserved judgment until later today.

DEATH DUE TO HEART ATTACK

Sudbury, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP)—Paul Klymnuik, 65, was found dead today beside a small creek which runs through the farm of John Rigler of Awrey townhhip, where he had been employed as a woodcutter. Death was due to a heart attack.

Retaliation Step Answer to German Sowing of Mines

British Decision Will Mean Concentration on Neutral Shipping Because Germany Has Practically No Ships at Sea

BLOCKADE TIGHTENED

Japanese Liner of 11,930 Tons Sinks Off East Coast of England—It is Believed No Lives Were Lost in This, the 13th Vessel to Go Down Since Weekend

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 21—(CP Cable)—Great Britain will retaliate against German "violation of international law" by seizing German exports on the High Seas, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The Prime Minister's statement came simultaneously with reports a vessel believed to be the Japanese liner Terukuni Maru had sunk off the east coast of England apparently after striking a mine.

The 11,930-ton Japanese vessel was the 13th vessel to go down since the weekend, either by German U-boat action or by striking uncharted mines which Britain charges the Germans placed in shipping lanes in contravention of international law.

Sinking of the Japanese liner brought today's losses to three. Previously the British minesweeper Mastiff, 490 tons, and the British steam trawler Sea Sweeper, 329 tons, sank after they struck mines near British shores.

Tightening Blockade

As a reprisal for Germany's indiscriminate mine-laying, Britain will tighten her economic blockade on the Reich by intercepting German exports in the same way the Royal Navy, together with French naval units, has cut off German imports.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Forecasting for armies! Forecasts of the weather, to be most effective, should contain weather information that can be used by those for whom it is intended. The quartermaster should know of expected fair or foul, warm or cold weather, adequately to provide food; clothing for the troops; the engineers are interested in weather that may affect the maintenance and repair of roads, bridges and other structures; ordnance officers must see that extra supplies of ammunition and arms are sent forward if snows or heavy rains are expected; and general headquarters will wish to know about the general weather situation in order to time offensives; while other detailed information is sent to gas and airplane units.

Armed French Liner Arrives in New York

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—A French liner, armed fore and aft, arrived from Europe Monday.

The liner was a day late because of storms.

She carried 161 passengers.

SWISS PROTEST AGAINST 'RAIN' OF GERMAN SHELLS

Berne, Nov. 21—(AP)—The Swiss government instructed its Ministers in Berlin to make "strong representations" at the Wilhelmstrasse against the rain of German anti-aircraft shells on Basel streets which injured three on Saturday and damaged much property.

Ontario Cities Reach Objective In Red Cross Drive

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP)—Other communities, some just starting their drives, were prompted in their contributions to the Red Cross Society today by the records of such Ontario centres as Waterloo, Kingston, Chatham and Simcoe.

Waterloo already has contributed three times its original objective to the $3,000,000 Red Cross budget while Kingston and Chatham have gone over their objectives. Simcoe, budgeting for a considerably larger sum than bigger municipalities, has submitted $46,000 and is after more.

Larger centres are slower to make returns but Toronto's total to date has approximated $450,000 and Montreal collectors reported yesterday that $540,025 had been contributed so far in Quebec Province.

Meanwhile the organization's work has gone ahead. Dr. Fred W. Routley has arrived in England to direct establishment of the overseas organization.

The society announced last night that $16,000 had been sent to the Nova Scotia Red Cross for providing hostel facilities for navy and merchant marine sailors in Halifax. Organizations there have not been able to cater adequately to the needs of the crews of scores of vessels stationed there, it was reported.

JAP ADVANCE CHECKED

6.16:08 a.m. (EST).

Chinese Government spokesmen reported today that the Japanese advance into extreme South China had been checked. The advance, aimed at cutting the Chinese supply routes from British Burma and French Indo-China, was stopped a few miles from its landing point on Tongking Bay, the Chinese said.

DISSENSION AMONG NAZIS OVER CONDUCT OF THE WAR

Reported Col.-Gen. Von Brauchitsch Sought to Resign from His Command

RESIGNATION REFUSED

New York, Nov. 21—(CP)—Dissension among the German Army High Command and Nazi Party leaders over conduct of the war has reached the point where Colonel-General Walther von Brauchitsch sought to resign, according to an Amsterdam copyrighted cable to the New York Herald Tribune today.

The dispatch came from Beach Conger, Herald Tribune foreign correspondent who left Berlin last weekend after one of his dispatches, critical of Germany's situation, caused the Reich Foreign Office to cut off his news sources.

Conger did not say where he heard that General von Brauchitsch offered his resignation but declared the resignation had been refused. In explanation of the situation he wrote:—

"The army men, after all, are practical gentlemen and are considering all possible contingencies, but the party officials seem to be sold on the idea of pressing forward to the announced destruction of the British Empire."

LIBERALS RETURN FOR SECOND TERM IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Premier A. A. Dysart Will Have 27 Members and Conservatives 21

STRONG OPPOSITION

Three Cabinet Ministers Go Down to Defeat in Monday's Voting

Saint John, N. B., Nov. 21—(CP)—Returned to office for a second term, Premier A. A. Dysart, and his Liberal administration were confronted today with an opposition more than four times as strong as they faced in the last session of the Provincial Legislature.

New Brunswick voters gave Mr. Dysart a satisfactory victory yesterday by electing 27 Liberal candidates to the Legislature. At the same time 21 Conservatives won seats in the 48-seat House, compared with five members of that party who were successful in the 1935 election.

The Premier and the opposition Leader, F. C. Squires, were returned in their constituencies but three of Mr. Dysart's Ministers went down to defeat.

TARIFF PROMISES TO DIVIDE PARTY

Subject Will be Strong Debating Point in 1940 Presidential Campaign

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—The tariff promises to climb back upon the fence dividing the two major parties in the United States in the 1940 presidential campaign and sit there among the important issues pretty much as it did for over a century before reciprocal trade agreements shoved it off. And, just as of old, not all Democrats will agree with the Democratic stand; some Republicans will back away from the Republican position.

A dispute in Congress will intervene. The authority by which State Secretary Cordell Hull has been making trade agreements, such as those with Canada and Great Britain, expires next year. If the policy is to continue and new agreements are to be made with more foreign nations, a bill extending those powers must be enacted.

Some Democrats have argued the best policy would be for the administration to allow this proposal to be set aside, along with taxes, until after the election, thereby helping to limit the field of dispute in the next campaign.

If this were done, the power to make new agreements would simply lapse. The agreements now in effect would/ continue. The issue could be raised in Congress again in 1941.

Wild Russian Boar Killed in Tennessee

Tellico Plains, Tenn., Nov. 21—(AP)—Heartened by the season's initial kill of a wild Russian boar with a steel-tipped arrow, 11 archers trekked through Cherokee National Forest today in quest of the elusive tuskers.

Roger Raymo, President of the Knoxville Archer's Club, drove an arrow into the heart of a 170-pound boar yesterday. He was barred from further hunting because of the bag limit of one.

Game Warden Earl Weese said Raymo's tusker was almost a "perfect speciman" of the wild boar brought to the forest in 1914 from the Ural Mountains.

Lack of Trained Officers Partly Delays Offensive Of Germany Experts Say

Paris, Nov. 21—(AP)—The French High Command's communique this morning said: "Nothing of importance to report during the night."

A 37-minute air raid alarm in northwestern France last night apparently resulted from a German scouting flight. Last night's War Ministry communique noted only "reduced activity on the front," including some patrol and artillery action.

(Observers in Luxembourg told of French shellfire between Perl and Apach. They said the Moselle and Sauer rivers were flooded, barring infantry action on that northern extreme of the front.)

French military experts said they believed a German offensive had been delayed partly because of a lack of trained officers in the German army.

The French General Staff now has information confirming that the German High Command had decided on a big offensive in the west, including a drive through the Netherlands and Belgium, between November 12 and November 14.

The reasons for postponing or cancelling the plans for this offensive are not known yet, but French military men believe the lack of trained officers played a big part in the decision.

German troops remain massed along the Reich frontier from the North Sea to Switzerland, ready to attack if the original plan is put into operation. This plan, according to reliable indications here, provided for an attack not only through Belgium and the Netherlands but also against French positions in Alsace and Lorraine, accompanied by attempts to cross the Rhine where it forms the Franco-German border.

No exact information is available for publication here as to the number of German divisions held ready to strike. It is learned, however, that, in addition to the divisions already set up, the Reich has a huge mass of soldiers not yet organized beyond the regiment stage. These troops are distributed in regional camps. They are being trained and apparently are to be formed into divisions when staff officers become available.

Need 17,000 Officers

Dispatches from Berlin reveal the Reich has relaxed the qualifications for the officers' corps and that differences between active and reserve officers have been diminished.

To make up the lack of training material in the officers' corps it is

GUARDS ASSIGNED BY ONTARIO GOV'T ON HYDRO PLANTS

Hepburn Considers Federal System "Entirely Inadequate and Ineffective"

ONLY WATCHMEN

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—Guards assigned by the Ontario Government patrolled plants of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission in the Niagara Falls area today, instead of guards installed by the Federal Government Nov. 1.

Premier Hepburn and Attorney-General Gordon A. Conant announced in a joint statement here last night that they considered the Federal system of guarding "entirely inadequate and ineffective" and that Provincial authorities have re-assumed responsibility for anti-sabotage protection at the Niagara points.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police took over responsibility for protection of the plants from the Ontario Government at the first of the month. Re-transfer of authority was all but completed last night with uniformed men of the Veterans' Guard, armed with shotguns and under direction of Prov-

127 SHIPS ENTER GERMAN HARBORS TO BE SEARCHED

Several Halted on High Seas for Search but Soon Released

MINOR ACTIVITY

Berlin, Nov. 21—(AP)—French artillery abruptly ended a 35-hour silence on the western front today with heavy shelling in the Perl sector, at the junction of the German, French and Luxembourg borders, the German news agency reported.

The agency said the rest of the 100-mile western front sector between the Moselle and the Rhine Rivers was quiet.

On the upper Rhine front, French searchlight batteries were active during the night at several points. The agency said there was heavier rifle and anti-tank fire here, and that floods had forced the French to clear out of some bunkers.

Earlier the agency reported German submarines since the beginning of the war had taken 127 merchantships into German harbors for search.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Nazi Germany appears to have adopted new tactics in the campaign against British sea communications. Since the British navy chased submarines to cover resort is had to mines, placed without the customary notice in the normal channels of merchant ships.

The weekend toll of ships sunk by mines will call for new and intensified mine-hunting and sweeping operations by the British navy but is scarcely likely to improve German relations with neutral countries.

When the war started German submarines attacked ships on the main trade routes around the British Isles with a boldness reminiscent of the early days of submarine action in the first Great War. As soon as the Royal Navy got busy and sank a few submarines, however, the Germans became more cautious.

Now the policy apparently calls for the larger submarines and whatever surface battleships are on the seas to range far out on the less frequented shipping lines where they can attack isolated ships, while intensified mine-laying is carried on around the British coasts.

The fogs that envelop British waters at this time of the year make conditions favorable for mine laying. It has not been ascertained yet whether the Germans are using submarines or surface ships for the work.

Recent German air activity over the Shetland Islands no doubt has some relation to the sea campaign. The Shetlands in themselves have no importance which would justify bombing raids. It is possible, however, the German aircraft were seeking information about British naval measures in the gap between the Shetlands and Sweden with a view to getting some of their surface raiders through to the open sea.

RUSSIAN FLEET NOW CRUISING FROM NEW BASES

Finland Warned Soviet Determined to Establish Strong Peace Over Finnish Gulf

HOLD GUN PRACTICE

Moscow, Nov. 21 (AP)—Russia disclosed today her Baltic fleet is holding manoeuvres from newly won bases in that area. At the same time she warned Finland that nothing "will ever break our decision to establish a strong peace all over the Finnish Gulf."

The warning was voiced by Admiral V. Tributz, Commander of the Baltic fleet, in an article in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the Communist Youth League.

Tributz declared the Soviet fleet now was in command of the Baltic with the acquisition of bases from Estonia and Latvia. He said the Baltic fleet, previously landlocked in the Gulf of Finland by winter ice, now could navigate throughout the year.

GERMANY ENTERS COUNTER CHARGES

Claim is Made Netherlands Had Violated Neutrality by Entering Germany

Berlin, Nov. 21—(AP)—Authorised sources said today that German officials met charges of violating Netherlands neutrality with counter charges of entry into German territory.

The Netherlands' Charge D'Affaires sought to talk over violations of Netherlands territory by German aircraft.

(A German plane, disabled by anti-aircraft fire, crashed in a Netherlands meadow yesterday. The pilot was killed. Netherlands aircraft also engaged German planes last Saturday and Sunday.)

German and Netherlands representatives agreed to continue investigations.

The German Foreign Office disclosed the German Minister in Berne, Otto Kocher, had expressed regrets to the Swiss Government that German planes had conducted a "pamphlet bombing" over Switzerland Friday.

COURT REDUCES AWARD BECAUSE OF WAR

London, Nov. 21—(CP)—Had there been no war, a court award of £1,500 (about $6,000) to Mrs. Grace Speller, whose husband was killed in a motor-car crash, might have been more. Justice Tucker ruled "I have to make allowance for the fact the expectation of life of a man of 32 in wartime is less than in normal times."

Red Cross Campaign Manager Urgently Appeals for Generous Donations to Patriotic Cause

While the response to the appeal of the Red Cross Society thus far has been fairly good, the objective of $8,000, still looms far in the distance, Campaign Manager Howard Clarke stated this morning.

A number of people have contributed donations amounting to hundreds of dollars but the majority of contributions received thus far have been in the vicinity of twenty-five and fifty cents.

According to official figures today, an amount slightly in excess of one thousand dollars is in the treasury, with a number of contributions as yet undetermined, in hand.

"We ask the general public to seriously consider the urgent need of the Red Cross at this momentous hour in the history of the Empire", Mr. Clarke said. "Within a short time Canadian lads will be in the trenches. They will be in the front lines of the Empire's Defences, and we cannot, must not, fail them in the trenches of the Home Front."

"Everyone must dig down and contribute if we are to bring the present struggle to a successful termination. We, in Canada, are safe from enemy bombers and other horrors of war. Enemy ships do not molest our shores, because of the silent efficiency of the navy. Enemy infantry cannot land and blow to destruction our homes, because the lads in khaki, thousands of them wearing the Maple Leaf of Canada, stand between them and our homes and loved ones."

"We all cannot go overseas to fight. But our services are as urgently needed in this struggle as are those of the youth and flower of Canadian manhood. Canada must and will, I am sure, hold up her end in the preservation of British ideals, liberty and freedom. And Belleville is part of Canada.

"Her sons will soon be in the van of the fighting. They will need every comfort, and only by sacrifice and effort on the part of every resident of this city, district, province, and country can these things be supplied.

"I appeal to everyone to earnestly consider the grave situation with which we are faced. The Red Cross needs your help and contributions just as the fighting forces of Canada need the Red Cross. I ask everyone to dig down and give when canvassers call at your homes."

ONE SUB VICTIM

136 Vessels With Gross Tonnage of 543,228 Lost Since War Started and Cost in Lives Has Been More than 2,000

London, Nov. 21—(CP)—Destruction of a British mine-sweeping trawler and a raiding German plane today was announced by British officals.

The Air Ministry said that the invading aircraft was shot down in an engagement with the Royal Air Force planes over the east coast.

The announcement came shortly after word that the Trawler Mastiff was lost off the east coast when it struck a mine. Invading warplanes, in another flight such as carried one to the edge of London yesterday, flew over Southeastern Kent to the chatter of machine-gun fire.

No Air Raid Warning

No air raid warnings were sounded in the populous channel county but street crowds in Kent towns heard the rattle of machine-guns and saw Royal Air Force fighting planes manoeuvring against their foe.

Thousands craned their necks yesterday to watch the first German plane approach London and some of them insisted, that the Swastika craft was damaged.

Identity of Youth Not Definitely Known

London, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Identity of the 19-year-old youth charged with attempted murder in the shooting early Monday of a London police officer has not yet been established definitely, Chief Constable Harry Down said today.

The youth carried a car operator's permit issued to Donald Fleming, Sault Ste. Marie and claimed that was his name. When first arrested, however, he said he was James Ferguson, of Windsor. In city court, he said his home is in San Diego, but later told police he hailed from Detroit.

Whipping out a .32 callibre revolver, he shot Sergeant Percy Last as he was being searched at headquarters following his arrest after he crashed a stolen car near London. The auto was owned by Deputy Fire Chief Hedley Coates of Windsor.

Sands Running Fast On U. S.-Japan Treaty

Washington, Nov. 21—(AP)—The sands are running fast on the Japanese-American commercial treaty, and it is reliably predicted that when the treaty expires Jan. 26, no new one will have been negotiated.

The way then will be open for congressional action on the resolutions by Senators Pittman (Dem.-Nevada) and Schwellenbach (Dem.-Washington) to impose an embargo on the shipment of raw material to Japan. There has been no indication whether a majority of the Senate and House of Representatives would favor this proposal.

Any move toward opening negotiations for a new commercial treaty, Washington officials say privately, will have to come from Tokyo. No preliminary talks on the subject have taken place in either capital.

It is freely granted here that the treaty was abrogated by State Secretary Cordell Hull not for commercial but for political reasons. The political reasons still exist, in the view of United States diplomats.

LIEUT.-COL. DAVIS CALLED TO OTTAWA

Has Been Supervising Medical Board in Military District No 1

London, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Lieut. Col. E. G. Davis, C.M.G., of London, who has supervised the Military Medical Board examining Canadian active service force troops in Military District No. 1, has been called to Ottawa to assume another post.

Col. Davis is reporting to the department of the Director General of Medical Services but the position which he will occupy was not announced here.

Col. Davis has a brilliant Great War record, and aided in setting up the Department of Pensions and National Health at the close of the war.

A number of other appointments in the district are announced.

Captain H. G. Clark, of Perth Regiment (machine gun) Stratford, has been appointed to the district staff as officer in charge of the C. A. S. F. personnel in hospital at Westminster Hospital.

Captain A. T. Brown of the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, Galt, has been appointed to district headquarters staff in the "G" or training branch here.

Appointment of two chaplains in this district is also confirmed.

Honorary Major the Rev. H. F. C. Cook, M.C., of Sarnia is appointed a Protestant chaplain of the C. A. S. F. and Honorary Major the Rev. T. J. M arthy, M.C., also of Sarnia, is appointed as Roman Catholic chaplain.

ROBBERS ENTER HOLGATE MOTORS

Robbers broke and entered the premises of the Holgate Motors showrooms, in the old Turnbull St. arena, last night and ransacked the office of the building. Desks and the cash register were all rifled and the contents strewn about, but no serious loss was reported. Cash was undoubtedly being sought as nothing was reported missing and no money had been left in the office. Entrance was effected through a window, police were informed when the break-in was discovered today.

Second Performance Draws Good Crowd

"You Can't Take it With You," the annual Collegiate dramatic production was repeated in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening and over four hundred attended the second performance. The presentation last evening was even better than that of the first night, although it seemed that Friday night's show could not be excelled.

With the same cast, and the Collegiate band in attendance, the thoroughly enjoyable comedy met with splendid response from an appreciative audience. The players and their director, Miss Joan Maraskas, earned the enthusiastic praise of the delighted spectators.

At the conclusion of the last act the director, Miss Maraskas, Mrs. Reed of Kingston who acted as adviser in the final stages of rehearsal and Miss N. P. Merry, head of the English Department at the Collegiate, were called to the platform and applauded by cast and audience.

Leavens Brothers Dismantle Rogers' Plane at Weslemkoon

Working in boats under the supervision of the Leavens Brothers, experienced air mechanics and flyers, workmen over the week-end removed the wreckage of the Ellsworth Rogers pontoon - equipped cabin monoplane, that crashed in Weslemkoon Lake, carrying the late Lieut. Col. R. J. E. Graham to his death, from the waters of the cove where it had been partially submerged since the tragedy.

The plane was entirely dismantled and placed on the shoreline for removal. A report of the condition of the plane will be forwarded to the Department of Civil Aviation and the Department of Transport, in compliance with government regulations.

Sally Rand Withdraws Claim to Title of Smart Business Woman

San Francisco, Nov. 21—(AP)—Helen Gould Beck, better known as Sally Rand, fan dancer has withdrawn all claim to the title of smart business woman.

She is just a broke working girl, who would rather not be bothered with figures, especially ones written in red.

She told a group of creditors in Bankruptcy Court yesterday that her finances were, frankly "a mess."

True, she took in $74,830 from various enterprises at the Golden Gate Exposition, sometimes vulgarly called skin shows, and many thousands more from night club performances at the same time in San Francisco.

But she didn't own them — she only got part of the take—and when everybody got through taking cuts and the current bills were met, the debts just seemed to pile up faster than the money came in.

So, with a wave of a well-manicured hand, she explained apologetically that she just didn't have any money at all with which to pay $64,631 in debts.

ORBEY ALYEA PLEADS GUILTY TO REDUCED CHARGE

Manslaughter Charge Reduced to 'Driving Car in Manner Dangerous to the Public'

CONFERENCE HELD

Following a conference of Mr. Justice McFarland and counsel, called after he had pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter, Orbey Alyea, 60-year-old Ameliasburg farmer, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of "driving a car in a manner dangerous to the public," at the jury sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario in Picton yesterday. Sentence was deferred until this afternoon.

Alyea was arraigned on the manslaughter charge at the opening of the court, but pleaded not guilty. Mr. Justice McFarland then adjourned court for a few minutes and called in counsel for conference. Following the consultation the reduced charge was preferred against Alyea.

The charge arose out of an accident on Highway No. 14 four miles south of Belleville in which Edward J. Simmons was instantly killed. According to evidence submitted at the preliminary hearing, Simmonds was struck by an automobile in front of his home while crossing the road. The car left the scene of the accident and was later found about a mile further south on the highway.

Evidence brought out at the hearing brought out the statement that the Alyea driven car was being driven without lights.

JOHN NOAKES IS RE-ELECTED

Due to war conditions the annual banquet and Ladies' Night held by the East Toronto Lodge No. 108 Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was postponed this year but the meeting of the lodge was held on Monday evening in the Pine Street Hall, where the election of officers for the year was held and this was followed by a social evening and a chicken dinner for the members. The attendance was quite large although the railway is busy at this time and the members enjoyed an hour of fellowship talking shop and plans for the betterment of their organization.

At the business meeting Jack Noakes, president of the lodge presided and calling for the election of officers, his name was proposed for re-election and there being no opposition, Mr. Noakes will again serve for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were vice-president E. Barr, secretary Richard Carruthers, treasurer Charles Funnell, Agent of Publication A. E. Berry, Organization Committee chairman A. E. Berry, Jack Tanner and Larry Amo, Grievance Committee chairman J. Noakes, secretary Joe Hunter, W. Arthurs, Legislative Representative Joe Hunter. A number of addresses were given by members prominent in the lodge and related to the work of the lodge in general. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Team-Work Stressed By Pete Beach At Y's Men Club

Stressing the importance of "cooperation" rather than that of "competition" in life's battles as well as in athletic contests, N. A. "Pete" Beach, physical director at Albert College, spoke to the Y's Men's Club on "team-work" last evening at the club's weekly luncheon held at the "Y".

"Too often the first impression that comes to one's mind on looking at this hyphenated word of team-work is the thought of a group getting together to compete against some other group, but if team-work would imply more cooperation and not so much competition, the real basic principle desired would undoubtedly result," suggested Mr. Beach in his opening remarks.

"In more recent years games have been tried in some schools and camps where no scores are kept or permitted to be referred to. Co-operation towards individual and team skill is emphasized rather than the question of defeat of an opponent.

"If we are to support and sponsor teams, as schools, associations and service clubs we should make sure that the emphasis is on cooperation and not on competition altogether.

"Turning to the larger international situations, that at present face us, their problems can largely be traced to an over-emphasis on competition—in many cases for raw materials, territorial rights and such life, but the supreme purpose behind all team-work must be cooperation if "the team" is to be "justified," concluded Mr. Beach.

The speaker was introduced, by President Harold Vaughan. During the evening Bobby Young, a member of the St. Michael's Rhythm Band, delighted the meeting with two saxaphone solos. Several prospective members were present as guests of the club following a membership drive, which was headed by a special committee.

Maj.-General McNaughton Pleased With Appearance of H. & P. E. Regt.

Commander - in - chief of Canada's First Div. Pays Inspection Visit to District Regiment Monday

COMPLIMENTS OFFICERS

Picton, Ont.—(Special) — With rifles held smartly at the "slope," heads turned sharply to the right, arms swinging, and in perfect step, nine hundred of Hastings and Prince Edward County's "finest" marched past the keen appraising eyes of Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, dynamic commander-in-chief of Canada's First Division, C.A.S.F. at the Exhibition Grounds here yesterday.

To the stirring notes of the regimental bugle band, civilian soldiers of the district, recruited from farm, office, factory and shop, lumber camp and industrial plant, behind the figure of their popular veteran commanding officer Lieut. Colonel Sherman Young, swung with a military precision and step that would have done justice to a battalion of seasoned veterans.

In battalion, platoon and column of route formation they swung past the saluting base, while the critical eyes of distinguished military officers of the general staff of Canada army viewed with approval, the soldierly manner and military bearing, marching exemplification of brief but serious training, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, one of the senior battalions of the First Division.

At the saluting base, while their commander - in - chief stood at attention, hand raised to cap-visor in salute, were Colonel A. Sanson, A.A. & Q.M.G.; Lieut. - Colonel Turner, G.S.O.I., First Canadian Division; Colonel Devey, AA. & Q. M.G., Colonel A. A. Smith, officer commanding the First Infantry Brigade, First Division; Captain H. W. Foster, Lord Strathcona Horse; and Captain R. K. C. Japson, the Governor-General's Foot Guards.

Addressing the battalion following the inspection, Major General McNaughton complimented them on their smart military appearance and evidence of strenuous training.

"I am very pleased, and impressed with the smartness of the battalion as a whole," he said. "The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment ranks high with the units of the First Divisions that I have inspected during my coast-to-coast tour."

The high quality of the rank and file and the sincerity with which they applied themselves to their training, made an impression on the divisional commander. He said: "I am particularly pleased with the deportment of the officers, and the arrangement and cleanliness of the barracks."

Following an inspection of the Armouries and other buildings in which troops are housed or billeted, General McNaughton and his staff were guests at a supper given at the regimental officers mess in "Rickarton Castle."

BRIDGE STREET Y.P.U.

Bridge Street Young Peoples' Union held their regular weekly meeting last evening in the Ladies' Parlours with a splendid performance.

A lively sing song opened the meeting led by Jack Dickens after which the remainder of the evening was in charge of Doris Williams leader of the Christian Missions group.

A short worship service was conducted by Edith Easton. The topic for the evening was from the study book "Moving Millions" and was based on India. A very appropriate cornet solo was given by Jack Zufelt, "Song of India." One interesting feature of this part of the meeting was "Time Marches On," reviewing the history of India from 1500 B.C. up to the present day. Readings in connection with this were given by Iladell Airhart, Betty Gilbert and Betty Trueman.

After the closing hymn all repeated the Mizpah benediction.

OBITUARY

REV. GEO. A. CHRISTIE, (Ottawa, Ont.)

Ottawa, Nov. 21 — Rev. George Alexander Christie, one of the early organizers of the Holiness Movement Church and editor for 25 years of the church paper, The Holiness Era, died on Saturday at his home, Stanley avenue, Rideau Park, Billings Bridge, following a lengthy illness. He was in his 67th year.

When his health failed four years ago, Mr. Christie retired from his work with the Holiness Movement Church. For the past 29 years he had lived in Ottawa. Many friends will learn of his death with deep regret.

Born at Marmora, Ont., he was a son of the late Joseph Christie and his wife, Margaret Groves, formerly of Madoc, Ont. He was educated in Ottawa and 44 years ago entered the ministry in the Holiness Movement Church.

Surviving are his widow, the former Carrie Legge; four sons, Thoburn Wesley, Grenfell Ernest and Wilfred Kenneth Christie, all at home, and George Archibald Christie, of Sudbury; five daughters, Misses Grace Margaret, Rae Evangeline, Olive Eunice Christie, all at home; Mrs. Lloyd Warren, of Ottawa and Miss Dorcas Faith Christie, of Brockville; three brothers, Robert Christie, of Carlsborg, Wash., D.C. Rev. W. C. Christie, of Hill, N.H. and Thomas Christie of Queenboro, Ont. and one sister, Miss Rachel Christie, of Madoc.

LATE MRS. EMILY COLLING

The funeral of Mrs. Emily Louise Colling, widow of William Colling, took place Monday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Ives, 14 Mount Pleasant Road, to Christ Church where the burial office of the Church of England was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. G. G. Wright. There was a large attendance of friends at the service.

Interment was made in the family plot in Belleville cemetery; the committal service was said by the Rev. G. G. Wright.

The bearers were Mr. F. G. Chamberlain, Mr. Harold D. Bateman, Mr. Frank McKeown, Mr. E. W. Cooley, Mr. W. G. Black and Mr. S. J. Fisher.

MRS. EZRA E. SMITH (Formerly of Tweed)

Arnprior, Ont., Nov. 21.—(Special)—The funeral was held from her residence, Daniel Street, Monday afternoon of Lulla Agnes Jones, wife of Ezra Smith, of Arnprior, whose death occurred Saturday after an illness of several months. Mrs. Smith, who was in her 51st year, was a former well-known resident of Tweed, but had resided here for the past 11 years.

Services were conducted at her late residence after which interment was made in Arnprior cemetery.

Mrs. Smith was born at Tweed, a daughter of the late Arthur Jones and Mrs. Jones. She was married at her parents' home in 1912, and with her husband came to Arnprior in 1928.

Left to mourn, besides her husband and her mother in Tweed, are two sons, Francis Smith, of Ottawa, and Stanley of Arnprior; and two daughters, Mrs. John Baker and Miss Ruth Smith, both of Arnprior; a brother, Arthur R. Jones, of Tweed, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Francis of Stirling, and Mrs. Bert Bate, of Windsor.

Before her illness she was active in the work of Grace-St. Andrew's United Church here and in the United Church at Tweed, and was a member of the W.M.S. of both congregations. She was also a member of the Eastern Star in both Tweed and Arnprior. She will be sadly missed by many friends both here and in the village of her birth.

DONALD GORDON (Madoc)

Madoc, (Special)—The funeral of Donald Gordon who was accidentally drowned at Big Dam last Wednesday evening took place from the home of his parents on Sunday afternoon to Trinity United Church. The pastor, Rev. A. Poulter conducted the service, during the service. Mrs. Hubbel of Wellington, sang a solo "What a Friend we Have in Jesus" and Mr. C. I. Ross also sang a solo "Sweet Bye-Bye". The church was filled with friends and neighbors who came to pay respect to a young life so suddenly taken. The flower bearers were boy friends of the deceased and the pall bearers were Sergt. Tom Ash, Corp. Tom Belcher, Privates Wilfrid Jowitt, Russel Carswell, K. Carswell and Reuben Ash. Interment took place in Lakeview Cemetery.

The Arrival of "Mr. Smith"

The page display in Saturday's issue announcing the arrival of "Mr. Smith" of Washington fame to Belleville attracted the attention of the distributors of the film, Columbia Pictures of Canada, Limited. The following letter has been received by The Ontario Intelligencer from the company's office in Toronto:

"Mr. Freeman of the McCarthy Theatre has sent us some copies of The Ontario Intelligencer for November 18th, and we note particularly Page three. We wish to commend and thank you for making up such a wonderful and attractive page of advertising.

"We are also grateful to the merchants who contributed their ads to that page. This spirit of co-operative advertising will no doubt redound to the benefit of all those participating.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pound Entertain Friends on Wedding Anniversary

Golden sunshine streaming through the windows, golden chrysanthemums and roses, the rooms tastefully decorated in yellow and white, created a unique setting for Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pound to receive a host of relatives and friends, on Monday Nov. 20 at their home near Cannifton, it being their golden Wedding Day.

At the noon hour about fifty of the near relatives and friends were guests at the anniversary dinner.

At the table with the bride and groom of fifty years, sat the Rev. Adam Armstrong, pastor of Cannifton United Church and Mrs. Armstrong, Miss Martha Hazard of Trenton and Mr. Frank Hazard of Plainfield, sister and brother of Mrs. Pound, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sprackett of Belleville, the latter a sister of Mr. Pound, Mrs. Sam Gunter of Trenton, aunt of Mrs. Pound, Mrs. John Hinchcliffe of Wallbridge, a life-long friend of the family, Mrs. Bernice Moore, a niece, and Mr. Mant Faul, a cousin of Mrs. Pound.

Present Gifts and Addresses

A short address was read by Mrs. Moore, and on behalf of the relatives, Mrs. Orval Lounsberry, Mrs. Ernie Wilson, and Mrs. Everett Hubble, presented gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Pound, each graciously expressing gratitude for the gifts and pleasure in having their friends with them.

Several men and women extended felicitations, all eulogizing the many fine qualities of the honoured couple.

During the afternoon, tea, and a delectable lunch were served to the many neighbours and friends who came from far and near to extend congratulations.

Members of W. M. S. Attend

Members of the Woman's Missionary Society came in a body, the President, Mrs. Chas. Mills, after extending greetings from the Society, called on Mrs. Harford Twiddy, who read an address (given below) and Mrs. Smith presented Mr. and Mrs. Pound with an electric lamp.

Regret was expressed many times during the day at the unavoidable absence of Mr. George S. Pound, B.A., Dr. Paed., son of Mr. and Mrs. Pound, who resides at Salvador, Sask.

Other sons, Frank and Harry, whose farms adjoin the homestead, and Roy, who lives in a part of the family residence, were present with their families, also the daughters, Miss Grace Pound, of Trenton, and Mrs. Clifford Greenley of Toronto, and Mrs. Greenley.

The beautiful gifts, cards and letters received bespoke of the high esteem in which the family are held in the hearts of their relatives, friends and the community.

Address of congratulations presented by Woman's Missionary Society:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Pound:—

We feel it a great honour to be privileged to meet on such a very special occasion your Golden Wedding Anniversary—and to extend to you the heartiest congratulations of the people of this community.

It is not on many that Nature has bestowed her richest blessings —a long, happily wedded life and a family, reared under the guidance of God's love to be a credit, a benefit and an honour to their parents, their country and God. These blessings have been yours.

Your religious life and influence has had a marked effect, not only on your children but those with whom you have been associated.

You have lived for those who love you,
For those who know you true
For the Heaven that smiles above you,
And awaits your spirits too.
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that you can do."

As a remembrance of this occasion, we ask you to accept this gift—

May this gift we to you give,
Make love and joy forever live,
And, carry messages so true
From those who love and honour you."

Signed.—Mrs. Chas. Mills, Mrs. Harford Twiddy, Mrs. A. Armstrong.

Neutrals Called Upon to Organize For Own Protection

London, Nov. 21 (CP Cable)—The Daily Sketch in an editorial entitled: "Murder at Sea," today said the time had arrived when the neutral powers should combine and organize for their own protection, and that the United States was clearly called upon to take the lead.

The Sketch said neither France nor Great Britain desired to drag other countries into the conflict, but that the loss or imperilling of lives and property of non-combatants and "the embroiling of innocent women and children of neutral nationality with fatal results", could not be passed over by British statesmen as a "simple and inevitable part of the arbitrament of war."

"Surely it is possible to form some new and more hopeful Hague tribunal which will have the capacity for instituting regulations which will be adhered to and enforcing their decisions?"

The Sketch thought America, which so often in the past had stood for the principles of the rights of man and the liberties of the people, "is clearly called upon to lead the world in such a problem."

"To ask her to do so," the paper added, "is not to call upon her to intervene in the European struggle but to assert that elemental human justice upon which the entire existence of mankind depends."

World's Largest Tree, Douglas Fir Was 417 Feet in Height

Mr. D. M. Moore, of North Vancouver, B. C., who has been visiting in Belleville and district with relatives and meeting old friends, showed the Ontario Intelligencer two pieces of the Douglas fir, as samples of this fine wood.

A giant Douglas fir was cut in 1895. The size of this tree established a record for all time and it is believed to have been the biggest fir in the world. George Carey, pioneer resident of the North Shore of Burrard Inlet, felled this forest monarch in Lynn Valley — in fact the tree had to be topped, because of its immense size, before it was dropped.

Measurements of this giant, as given by forestry officials were:—height 417 feet, 300 feet to the first limb, diameter 25 feet, circumference 77 feet at the butt. The tree was nine feet in diameter at the height of 207 feet and was believed to have been about 2000 years old. It is definitely established that this was a Douglas fir in spite of many statements crediting it to be Redwood. The bark was sixteen inches thick.

This tree was likely growing before the beginning of the Christian era, being even then a moderate sized tree. It had been growing before the fall of the Roman Republic and the rise and decay of the Empire of the Caesars. It was a stately tree in the troublous days of the invasions by migrant tribes in Europe. It was very old in the days of the Renaissance or new Learning of history.

It saw the coming of Captain George Vancouver to discover the shores on which it grew.

Forestry officials say that no other tree will surpass this, that only as botanical specimens will huge trees exist 1000 years hence, that no lumbering corporation could afford to let a tree grow to such an age. Forests of the future grown under superintendence, will be dense and will be harvested before decay sets in and growth slows up, forestry experts declare.

3rd Sidney

3rd. Sidney — The barometer of a Christian's spiritual life, is the zeal and enthusiasm shown for Missions, stated Rev. L. W. Scott at Aikens Church on Sunday morning, in a stirring appeal for the continuance of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund.

Some may say that Missionary work should be abandoned during war time, said Mr. Scott, but to accept that council and advice would injure and destroy the spirit of the Christian Church.

Christianity is a Missionary enterprise, stated Mr. Scott, as he quoted Christ's own words — "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel."

The spirit of communism he continued, invited persecution to its followers, who will suffer for their cause in propagating their views and church people having something finer and better to spread, should obey the command "Go," and preach.

The four motives, he believes, in the enterprise of Christian Missions are—Fear, fear of to-morrow without Christ; hope, duty and love, the most potent and powerful of them all. Through love good deeds are done.

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy soul and mind, and thy neighbor as thyself, were God's commandments.

Who is they neighbor, asked Rev. Scott, his answer being, anyone in need.

The closing thoughts in this heart-searching sermon was the poem — "Is it nothing to you, o ye Christians?"

Thomasburg

Thomasburg — The presentation of "The Royal Visit to Canada" a new series of colored motion picture photographs by Mr. Fred L. Roy of Peterborough drew an exceptionally large crowd to the Oddfellows Hall here on Thursday evening the 16th. The presentation being made under the auspices of Christ Church congregation.

Colour effects and sound accompaniment with Mr. Roy's own descriptive comments added greatly to the success of the photographs. The audience was thrilled anew as they watched the first British monarch ever to set foot on Canadian soil, with his beautiful Queen.

The audience was taken from Quebec to Montreal where a soul-stirring welcome again awaited them. Ottawa, the Capital of the Dominion was a riot of colour, as were the two previous cities, with magnificent decorations and the uniformed Scottish and Dragoons.

Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls repeat the welcome already extended to Their Majesties. At the Ambitious City, some of the finest close-up views of Queen Elizabeth were obtained. Mr. Roy standing only five feet from Her Majesty when securing them.

Rev. F. C. Beazer, Rector of Christ Church introduced Mr. Roy who stated that the French Canadians in Quebec are intensely loyal to Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth.

This was the fortieth time for Mr. Roy to show this set of pictures.

Knox Presbyterian Church, Fuller, was well filled on Thursday evening when the Young People of Foxboro Presbyterian Church presented their play, "The Road to the City." Each actor taking his or her part in a very capable manner. The plot of the play was very amusing and thrilling, presenting a powerful argument against the deceptive lure which the "Road to the City" gives to young people of the country.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Observed by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Snell

Quietly, unobtrusively, and without the noise and excitement of celebration, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Snell, highly respected residents of this city yesterday observed the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home at 330 Charles Street.

"We didn't want any fuss, nor did we want to have it published." Mr. Snell smiled good naturedly today when approached by a reporter, "but now that the 'cat is out of the bag' it is alright to tell you anything you want to know."

Mr. Snell, who was born in England and came to Canada when but a year old, has lived in Belleville for the past seventy-seven years. "Both my wife and myself are enjoying the best of health, in fact, we haven't felt so good in years."

The bride and groom of a half-century are alert and active and pursue the daily round of their endeavors with the same pleasurable anticipation that characterized them years ago. "I have a sort of job I do for a relative of mine", Mr. Snell said, " and that keeps me fairly busy. I do a lot of walking and feel better for it."

He laughed when asked if he would get married again, if Time turned back the clock. "Yes," he replied, "I surely would. I have never regretted that step."

Mr. and Mrs. Snell were married fifty years ago yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Dawe, who is now resident in Hamilton. They have lived all their lives in Belleville, which they think "is the finest place in Canada".

When but a youth of nineteen, Mr. Snell chose the railway as his life's work. He entered the employ of the Grand Trunk, and later became associated with the Canadian National Railway.

His early application and initiative in his job as a fireman soon earned him promotion and within a few years he was appointed engineer, a position he maintained until his retirement thirteen years ago after forty-six years of faithful and efficient service to the company.

A son, Mr. Wallace Snell, Belleville, and a daughter Mrs. J. Firman, Hamilton, offered their felicitations to their parents yesterday on the occasion of their Golden Wedding. Mrs. James Walmsley of this city is a sister of Mr. Snell.

Friends and neighbors congratulated the elderly couple yesterday on the happy occasion.

War Spirit in Germany Might Have Been Less if Allied Forces Had Marched on German Soil in 1918

Rev. Beauchamp Payne in Talk to Rotary Club Said Work Was Not Finished at That Time

PRAISES CHAMBERLAIN

Comparisons of wartime England in 1914 4an4d 1939, and a vivid word picture of the reactions and preparedness, both offensive and defensive, of the Mother Country previous to and during the present war, were given the Belleville Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon yesterday by the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church, and recently returned from a vacation in England.

Inured as they were, to the dark clouds of crises hanging over their heads, the eventual declaration of war, came somewhat as a surprise to the English people, the speaker said. "They thought it was another Hitler bluff, but they were wholly prepared," he said, "and realize more keenly the prophesy of Marshal Foch at the time of the armistice when he said the guns had ceased to fire—for twenty years at least."

The work was not finished in 1918, Mr. Payne declared. Politicians and others saw to it that an armistice was signed. "What should have happened is the Allied forces mach into Germany and give them a taste of their own medicine," he added.

Tribute to Chamberlain

He paid tribute to the statesmanship of Premier Neville Chamberlain. "He was freely criticized," he said, "and created a precedent when he flew to a foreign soil to seek peace. I will never cease to speak of him and the magnificent manner in which he averted war, and saved the day at a time when Britain was not ready for war."

Blackouts, civil defences, the balloon barrages, Air Raid Precaution and prevention of fire preparedness were fully described by the speaker.

The tactics of Germany have not had the desired effect, he said. "When the news of the Russo-German pact arrived, England refused to move from her attitude of calmness. "Germany will rue the day she chose Russia as her ally," he said. News of the Turkish alignment with the Allies, more than compensated for the reaction of the Nazi-Soviet pact, was his opinion.

"Thank God, the Empire has the men able to cope with the situation," he declared, quoting the speech of Lord Halifax, "We are in this war to maintain the quality of mercy in dealings of man in civilized states."

The speaker quoted an editorial from a recent edition of the London Times, "The difficulty in carrying on cheerfully is because the effect of the war thus far has been less terrifying than was expected. We must wait and not become tired of waiting." That explains the situation, he said.

Canada to Help

Canada does not require German bombers in her skies or to have the arena of war brought to her shores in order to have the full effect of the fact that the nation is at war, brought home to her, Mr. Payne said. "We must make our contribution and sacrifices, the same as those fine people in the Motherland."

There is absolutely nothing that can measure the calmness, solidarity and unity of purpose of the British nation in their efforts to guar the traditions of the Empire and the honor of the race, Mr. Payne concluded.

The speaker was fittingly introduced by John Deacon, while club appreciation was expressed by Rotarian Morley Duff. President Howard Clarke was in the chair with Leo Riggs and "Sandy" Burrows handling the musical part of he meeting in their usual tuneful manner. Included in the guest-list was Mr. Clarke Lapp, recently appointed advertising manager of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Jack Miner Has Busy Fall at Bird Sanctuary

Jack Miner is in his seventy-fifth year, yet each morning finds him up watching the early morning flight of ducks and geese coming into his haven of rest. Every week he catches hundreds of ducks and geese to band them in order to study their migration route to gain knowledge of their travels. To date he has caught well over two thousand ducks and over one thousand geese. He is far ahead of his usual schedule and if the success he is having now in catching them keeps up he will have a record fall.

Each band has his Post Office address, Kingsville, while the band also carries a select verse of scripture from the Bible which is Jack Miner's unique way of spreading the gospel. The Indians and Eskimos in the far north think that they are messages sent by God while the shooters in the United States call them "Jack Miner's missionary Geese."

From a conservation angle, Jack Miner is saving a breeding supply to go north. One writer says: "He protects, conserves, and is responsible for more bird life on the continent than one hundred game wardens because a Game Warden prosecutes a man after he has shot the bird while Jack Miner's system saves the bird from being shot." Jack Miner, commenting on this statement, said: "We have to have laws and men to enforce them regardless of my conservation system."

There is no question about the wild life of Canada being one of the greatest national assets the Dominion has from not only the bird life standpoint, but from the standpoint of an attraction for tourists.

FEARS DARKNESS OF MIDDLE AGES FOR OLD EUROPE

Canadian Landing in Blackout Asks if Man Can Survive These Conditions for Five Years of War

By GLADYS M. ARNOLD
Canadian Press Correspondent

Southampton, Nov. 21—(CP)—It may seem a little thing of no importance — but to me it expresses the whole of this new grim life in Europe — a shadowy figure who suddenly flashed a blue light in one's face and says "Paper, lady?" It's a newsie selling his papers in the dark.

Or under the red glow of a "shelter" lamp a legless veteran of the last war — with a box of jumping toys — little dancing dogs—and a faintly illuminated sign, "sole means of support." In the darkness half a dozen people stand about, just as they did three months or three years ago at Piccadilly Circus watching the same thing under the brilliantly-lighted signs of peace.

Laughter in the dark. Something brushes your shoulder. Ah, there, young soldiers with their girls. A laugh, a few words, a light giggle — and they are swallowed up again.

On the corner a brawl — quickly dispersed in the dark by two policemen. You know and feel it there rather than see it — somewhere in the obscurity before you is a darker patch — a few excited words — a snarl — the sound of scuffling — and suddenly it melts away like mist. When you reach the spot it is deserted.

What is this going to do to Europe? Cities which have been lighted now for nearly 100 years, — plunged back into the darkness of the middle ages. I read somewhere that the crime in the great European cities, in London, Vienna, Paris and Berlin, dropped to a small fraction once the streets were illuminated and the night driven back. Even the change from gas to electricity with its increased light brought further reduction in night crime — drove the apaches from Paris and turned Limehouse into a word of atmosphere for detective story writers.

Moon Helps a Bit

Feeling one's way back to the boat which was to carry me on to France, there seemed something of a mockery in the now rising moon, throwing a silvery ray here and there; picking up the white lines which mark the curbstones and crossings and turning the round bay into a glistening mirror upon which the shadows of crane and ship cut grotesque patterns.

The ship loomed up — its portholes blacked out, too — depression settled over me in the thought that we have only begun — it may go on for years. Can man live in the dark for five years? How he must welcome the rise of the sun these mornings? Think of that, you who live in Canada and forget to greet the sunrise because of its familiarity.

A shadow rose in front of me — a flashlight gleamed. A hearty voice which could only mean one thing — a blue-coated Bobby — said "Well, young lidy, w'ere's your pass? You c'arn't come into these 'are docks without one." It had a friendly confident ring and there was a big toothy grin above the light which dispelled my melancholy. I produced the pass and he nodded.

"That's right," he said, and then taking a squint upwards, he said slyly: "Pretty moon, tonight, aren't she — you shouldn't be all on your own like that now, should you, lidy?"

MOIRA W. A.

The Women's Auxiliary held a very successful supper and meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McInroy on Thursday evening Nov. 16th. A good crowd was present and partook of a delicious pot luck supper served cafeteria style.

After supper the President, Mrs. McInroy called the meeting. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Albert Clare. All joined in community singing. Mrs. Joe Williams gave a reading from "Lively Lines" by Mr. A. Burke. Master Donald McInroy favored with a guitar selection "Comin' Thru' the Rye." An interesting reading on "Bridge Builders" was given by Miss Betty Foster.

Mrs. Nelson Welsh favored with a pleasing solo "Evening Prayer" with guitar accompaniment. Another reading on "What to do" was given by Mrs. Angus Mumby. A quartette composed of Grace McInroy, Dorothy Thompson, Beverley Foster and Donald McInroy with Don accompanying on the guitar, was much enjoyed. A hymn and prayer by Mr. Blake Ketcheson closed the meeting. Proceeds amounted to $9.60.

"Grandfathers Are Like That,"

said Mr. Picobac

● "My grandfather could have bought one of the best tobacco farms in Essex County for a yoke of oxen", said Herb, hired man to the highest bidder. "And I might be growing my own prime Canadian Burley today. But he didn't have the oxen."

"Ah, yes", sighed Mr. Picobac. "Grandfathers are like that. But console yourself, Herb. You don't need a yoke of oxen to buy yourself a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke. Picobac is the pick of Canada's Burley crop and you can buy a seal-tight pouch of Picobac for fifteen cents."

"Best buy in the country", admitted Herb.

STIFF CRITICISM MARKS TRAINING FOR TANK TROOP

Observer Sees Many New Quirks of Soldiering in Advanced Camps of New "Cavalry" Overseas

By GUY E. RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in England, Nov. 18—(CP)—Alertness and quick judgment under tough conditions are main requisites of a light tank commander. On those two qualities largely depend his life and those of his two assistants.

At a mechanized cavalry school in this rolling countryside I saw a number of commanders undergoing tests for those attributes, taking their machines through unknown territory dotted with numerous imaginary dangers about which they had no warning.

With the lids of the cupolas down and their radio sets relaying their orders to their squadron leader for his criticism, they sought to cross a large field dotted with concealed enemies. They passed a machine gun nest, men with an anti-tank gun concealed in a wood, dodged a land-mine and sought to fight off an enemy tank that bore down on them from a second wood.

Told of Errors

An officer explained to us that the first commander made a mistake in using his .5 gun on any enemy machine gun. "He is in no danger from a machine gun," the officer said, "and he should have replied with his own .303 gun. That is his weapon against men. The .5 is for use against armor and using it against men is wasteful."

The second commander in the test fired smoke bombs from the little guns on the side of his tank when he approached the machine gun. Again the officer was critical. That, he said, was unnecessary and wasteful, because the commander might encounter a foe later against whom he should use smoke to cover his retreat or to conceal him in a "hull-down" position, that is, sitting tight.

The third one made the mistake of firing with his .303 against an anti-tank gun which is armored. He should have used his .5.

Almost all realized quickly when they were subjected to anti-tank fire their best course was to run from it, offering a narrower target than if they continued to present a broadside view.

One commander didn't fire at the machine gun nest. He ran his tank over it. That pleased the examining officer. It was economical.

Only one had trouble with the mine. He did not see it until he was almost on top of it. He yelled to his driver to turn hard right. The driver did and one caterpillar track broke, putting the tank out of action.

It was remarkable how completely the little smoke bombs concealed the machines when they were released and remarkable how difficult it was to spot a tank coming out of a wood.

The spectator was also struck with the impersonal atmosphere of the show. It was difficult to realize that men were in those machines. It was unreal, too, as if dinosaurs had suddenly trotted out of the woods.

NORTH REINDEER START NEW HERD

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 21—(CP)—With nine caribou captured in Northern Saskatchewan forming the nucleus of a new herd the United States Soil Conservation Service is attempting to rehabilitate this almost extinct species in the heart of a 2,000,000a-cre bog in Minnesota.

The fight to save the caribou on the western plains was begun by W. T. Cox, biologist for the Conservation Service who discovered in 1937 that only three cows were known to exist in the "big bog" where previously mighty herds had roamed. The climax of the experiment will be reached next year when all the imported beasts have been released from the 2,000-acre "acclimatizing" enclosure on the shore of Upper Red Lake.

Already one nature Canadian bull has been set loose with the three native cows and has been travelling closely with them, giving hope of offspring early next year.

In 1938, Cox appealed to the United States government for aid in the rehabilitation and was granted funds to purchase 10 animals from the Canadian Government provided he arrange for them himself.

Two months of trapping finally netted 10 caribou, eight of which were calves, one an adult bull and one a yearling bull, in the Canadian Montreal Lake area.

Transporting the animals from the wilderness proved arduous. Each had to be tied and carried on horseback. At intervals the caravan stopped to exercise the caribou and ward off weakness due to loss of blood circulation. At Prince Albert reached in June, the animals were individually crated and shipped by rail to Baudette, Minn., on Lake of the Woods. Shortly after arrival one of the calves died.

PARENTS DEFENDED

A psychiatrist in New York attacked what he calls fads in the field of child psychology. Parents who heard him applauded him, because he said parents are the most abused people of this generation. They are "cowed, frightened and awed by so-called specialists, meaningless terminology and unproven theories."

Dr. Leo Kanner, the speaker, declared that mothers have been told by lecturers, magazine writers and by every Tom, Dick and Harry, that, no matter what happens, they are to blame; they have been too strict or too lenient; they have kissed the child too much or not enough; they have not prepared him properly for the arrival of the new baby; they have not selected the proper toys, books or moving pictures; they—alas and alack—even have given him a piece of candy between meals.

Dr. Kanner assailed the bugaboos of heredity, inferiority, plan, and undisguised superstitions.

"Conflicting rules, precepts, obsessive demands by various schools, behaviour standards, behaviour interpretations and forecasts, grandmother's wisdom, radio admonitions, and a confusing vocabulary pelt down and close in on the contemporary mother and tend to sweep genuineness and naturalness out of the house," he declared.

He said a word for parents who should be listened to, they "need a considerable amount of unscaring" and "more than anything else rerouting to naturalness and common sense."

Good humor in the child or parents should be cultivated as it tends to relax tension.

If there ever was an age when people are bombarded with opinions and advice from a myriad of sources, it is this distracting period of world history. Mothers and fathers will welcome Dr. Kanner as a champion.

LIBRARY AT HYDE PARK, N. Y.

Six million letters and documents, personal and official papers of President Roosevelt are to be housed in a library, the cornerstone of which was laid on Sunday at Hyde Park, N. Y. The library will be completed by the spring of 1941 when it is expected that students and historians will have the opportunity to inspect and examine them.

The library is not far from the Roosevelt estate, and is set in a peaceful countryside, and is dedicated to the spirit of peace, the peace of the United States and soon, the President hopes, the peace of the whole world.

So in his lifetime, Mr. Roosevelt is making possible a study of documents of the last thirty years, since his election in 1910 as a senator.

This happens in a democracy where a man like the President is not afraid to reveal such documents.

Public men have not been all so open as the leader of the democratic United States. There are lands where no such papers would be made available.

NAZIS AS EMPIRE-MAKERS

Germany was not intended to be a colonizing nation for she made no use of her colonial empire in the way of developing it for the good of the various colonies. Some were at the close of the war mandated to Britain and she, the greatest of colonizing nations, allows them freedom to express their native and national talents and aspirations. They have developed vastly under the mandate and have not been exploited.

The Nazi is at work in Bohemia and Moravia and in Poland. He respects none of the hopes and aspirations of the peoples he has forced into the Reich. He tries to make Nazis out of Czechs, Moravians and Poles, who want liberty more than life and abhor being moulded into the Nazi form.

Britain has sought to understand her Dominions and Colonies. The United States is following in her steps in that respect, she did not exploit the Philippines and has been training the people to be true to the tenets of liberty.

Nazi Germany leans back to the ancient empires of the east for her ideal—force and domination. None of those old empires stood, for it was hated by the subject races, who wanted liberty and took it, when the short-lived empires fell apart.

GUARDIANS OF BRITAIN

In peacetime all nations had access to the information about the air currents and the probabilities of weather changes. But war interfered, for nations at war, which have been collecting and are still collecting this information, do not want their enemies to have it and so it is shut off from the world.

Hamilton Spectator, speaking of winter weather and the war, remarks that the Germans are laboring under a great handicap through their lack of knowledge of what weather is coming out of the west across England. Germany gets it afterwards but it is too late to profit by it then for by that time the weather has changed. The prevailing winds in that part of the world are from west to east. The British get it first and know with fair accuracy what the Germans are going to have in way of weather conditions.

With winter approaching the obstacle of lack of knowledge of weather conditions is even more serious for the Nazis who cannot tell what changes the weather will bring in the course of a few hours, when they send forth a flight of planes towards Britain. Mist, rain, wet winds now become special guardians of Britain.

We may gather out of history a policy no less wise than eternal, by the comparison and application of other men's forepast miseries with our own like errors and ill deservings. — Sir Walter Raleigh.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 21st., 1919.

The following interesting facts were contained in a lecture given by Col. Ponton, K. C., in the assembly room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church: Among other old documents Col. Ponton exhibited was a Patent of a Sidney Township farm, with the Great Seal, and signed by Isaac Brock, President, just a few weeks before he was killed at Queenston Heights. The first Patents in Sidney and Thurlow Townships are dated 1797; the first Patents of town lots in Belleville 1816; St. Thomas' Church, St. Andrew's Church and the Grammar School lands were granted about 100 years ago. Zwick's Island, known to all Indians as Battle Island at the mouth of the Saganaski River was owned by the Morris family, descendants of Mary Morris, who with her husband and Beverley Robinson, and many others, were condemned to death by the Americans as United Empire Loyalists, because they adhered to King George, his flag and his armies. The two oldest stone houses in Belleville are now, one on Dundas Street, near the residence of Mr. Alfred Gillen, and the other is on the bay shore near the School for The Deaf, and is owned by Col. Ponton. The historic first brick house in Canada was on Meyers' Hill here; it disappeared some years ago. Trenton in the early days was called "The Trent". Letters from Scotland were shown by Col. Ponton which were mailed before the use of envelopes in the year 1833. The postage via New York was 2s, 9d.

Winston Churchill and The 'Monstrous Apparition'

Mr. Churchill has a nice gift for vituperation. He says in the choicest English things most of us feel but cannot say half so effectively. And his radio speeches give the listener the impression that Mr. Churchill is rather enjoying the scrap and is not haunted by the faintest doubt concerning its outcome. The people like his assurance, his touches of humor, his blazing wrath, his frankness, withal his sporting modesty, and that is why the First Lord of the Admiralty is the wireless "find" of the war.

In Germany the reaction will be far, far different. Mr. Churchill, we suggest (and hope), gets under the skin of that "cluster" Hitler, Goering, Goebbels. Hitler will not enjoy hearing himself called a "cornered maniac". Hitler and Von Ribbentrop will fume at being dubbed "twin contortionists". The Nazis will grind their teeth when Mr. Churchill calls their machine a "seething mass of criminality and corruption", a "monstrous apparition". They will not relish his sneers at their "bestial" assaults on weak nations, nor his jibe that the British navy has been awaiting German attack at the Firth of Forth "for a week."

Hitler "and his Huns"—the useful word that Churchill resurrected from the last war—are upstarts in international affairs. They are suspicious that the Russian mystics have put it all over them. They suffer, it may be, from an inferiority complex, which would explain their bluff and bluster. They see in Mr. Churchill the exemplification of all they have come to detest: tradition, reputation, stability, decency. So they splutter in their vain indignation, and will take it out on the First Lord by sinking—via the German wireless—another British battleship.

To be able to hear clearly last Sunday afternoon and again at night Churchill's inspiring and entertaining address, was once more to realise that the five cents per week each radio owner pays to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is a piffling tax.—Ottawa Citizen.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

Treatment After Firststroke of Apoplexy

One of the difficult situations for the patient, his family, and his physician is when a patient regains consciousness after his firststroke of apoplexy. This is understandable because the patient, family, and physician all have the same question in mind, "Will there be another stroke and when will it occur?"

A second stroke may never occur and yet it may occur within a few days, or not perhaps for years.

What should be the attitude of all concerned after a stroke occurs?

While no one should close their eyes and thoughts entirely to the possibility of another stroke, the best way to prevent another stroke or delay it as long as possible is not to allow the patient to consider himself an invalid or a very sick individual. When it is considered safe for him to be up and around, he should get back into his regular routine of life gradually but rapidly, so that the "fear" of another stroke will not get so many chances to occupy his mind.

Dr. O. C. Perkins in New York State Journal of Medicine, says:

"When the patient regains consciousness and realizes that he has had a "stroke", anxiety begets fears and there is the element of worry to treat. These patients should not be kept in bed too long. The physician should take the patient into his confidence and explain what has happened." A tiny blood vessel is broken, rest will heal it, and that rest of mind and body, and eating small meals will prevent a rise in blood pressure and so prevent a stroke. He should be told that the improvement is likely to be rapid for three or four weeks, but may then progress slowly for a number of months. This will prevent him expecting too much in a short time.

Physical therapy —baths, massage, exercise—are not only helpful to the circulation but will raise the patient's morale or sense of well being. Light exercises should be taught him as this will strengthen the entire body and enable him to get about more.

"Do not allow him to become inactive. Insist that the patient is not an invalid; he is disabled, not sick."

No Treeless Canada!

An average of a million trees a week were planted in Great Britain last year. The Forestry Commission have more than a million acres under control with a staff definitely looking after it, says the Niagara Falls Review.

In the handling of our forest resources Canadians will be classed as fools by future generations. We cut and burn, and make practically no effort to replace. Nature, given half a chance, does pretty well, but there is the rub. We don't give nature a break. We, by carelessness or vicious intent, send fire through young and old forests and burn more than we use.

Canada will be compelled to take an advance step in forest protection and development. Otherwise we head for conditions in China—a land of floods, drouth and poverty. With China's example before us we have little excuse.—Canadian Lumberman.

He Was Too Good

——A woman in upper Park Avenue, a Western Union man told us yesterday, called messenger service during the rainstorm last Sunday night. She had arranged a bridge foursome and one of the guests had canceled. Cold, or something.

"Would you have a boy", this woman wanted to know, "who plays a decent hand at contract?"

She was willing to pay the boy the regular fee—60 cents an hour, and give free victuals. The manager politely told her he'd look around and see what he could do.

Finally, the manager remembered about one of the clerks in the downtown office. This lad, just graduated from messenger service, had won a Western Union bridge tournament. They hustled him into uniform and puttees and hurried him to the Park Avenue address.

He got there around 9 o'clock and played until midnight, partner to the lone invited guest, against the host and hostess. His partner cleaned up.

Around 1 o'clock in the morning the manager got another call from the woman in Park Avenue. She was extremely bitter.

"Next time we call for a messenger", she told the manager — quite sharply, too — we want a MESSENGER. ...No more Culbertsons or Simses. PLEASE. We were most embarrassed." N. Y. Times.

Fate of Church Linked With Survival of Freedom

From the Winnipeg Free Press

The speech made before the Winnipeg Canadian Club by the Rev. Dr. John W. Woodside, the Moderator of the United Church, laid admirable emphasis upon a principle which too often is forgotten in both thought and practice— the inter-relation of Christianity and freedom, and the dependence of the Church upon the maintenance of Liberty.

The value of the Christian faith, in all its many forms and sects, lies in the means it provides for the enriching and preservation of the personality and the soul of man. This is found through freedom, and if freedom goes, the future of Christianity and of the Church is bleak and hopeless. This is a topic not new by any means, but in the setting of today the exposition of it by a great churchman was both timely and impressive. Dr. Woodside proved himself the worthy leader of a great religious movement. He spoke not for the United Church but for Christians of every sect and denomination.

Canada, with her great democratic Allies, is today engaged in a struggle which involves the preservation of freedom as we know it. If that fight is lost, freedom is doomed; and just as surely doomed would be the Church itself. There is no place for the Church in a Nazified world. Its ideals would be killed as surely as there would rise in their place the hateful and valueless principles that today have taken hold on the German people.

Dr. Woodside made clear the duties of every citizen of a democratic and Christian state, and the manner of his doing it will clear up some of the doubts and perplexities which have afflicted Christians since the war broke out. For this Canada will be profoundly grateful. The service he has rendered us not small.

Hale Old Men

Fifteen in every sixteen white males of 50 years and over were gainfully employed in the last Federal census. Today these men of 50 would be old men by the California ham-and-egg standard. Of the men between 60 and 65 years four in every five worked for a living. Today these would be old men by the proposed Ohio pension standard. If the California proposition had not gone down to defeat, there is no telling to what level the old-age ceiling would have been lowered. We might have witnessed campaigns for old-age pensions for men of 40. It has been that kind of state of mind.

It is a state of mind, however, which would not have spread so rapidly if the old-age pension movement were concerned only with the interests of elderly Americans in quest of security. Even the crude California ham-and-eggs version cannot be dismissed as wholly a case of group pressure exercised for selfish purposes in an era which has come to look upon public largesse as an individual right.

All these elderly men and women in California who voted for ham-and-eggs no doubt thought of themselves first. But a good many of them must have persuaded themselves that they were not asking society for favors in the form of $30 every Thursday. They thought of themselves as doing society a favor. After all the beginning of it all was Townsendism.

The original patentee has disavowed the ham-and-eggs imitation but there is no reason to suppose that Townsend's main argument for his $200-a-month plan has altogether disappeared from people's minds. Townsend was not primarily interested in his aged people, but in the state of the nation. He wanted them to spend $200 a month to beat the depression and save the country.

Townsendism, in other words, derived straight from the new economic philosophies about earning and spending, about production and distribution. Men and women well below the pension age have subscribed to them, and in other neighborhoods than Los Angeles. The kernel of Townsendism was Purchasing Power.

Presumably the same purpose could be served by designating any part of the population to spend $200 a month and create purchasing power. It might, in theory, have been children's pensions or college pensions, provided the money went around and around; but obviously old-age pensions made more sense. Old-age security was a real problem in itself, though not in the dimensions which it got to assume. When four out of every five men between 60 and 65 years of age are normally at work, it is not a situation calling for pensions at the age of 50.

Basic Theory Rejected

But even this less questionable theory of old-age pensions as a means rather than an end, as a device for making jobs rather than as a real system of old-age security, is losing its force with the public. The elections in California and Ohio are very clear on this point. Old-age pensions in reasonable amounts for old persons of 65 and over will no doubt continue to make their way; their origin was long before the New Deal. But pensions for old people of 50 are obviously out. Pensions for people of 60 years will be closely scanned to see whether they are real old-age security or whether they are manipulationist economics. In this sense the voting in California and Ohio is less a pronouncement on old-age pensions than it is a rejection of economic philosophies expressing themselves in programs for old age, for youth and for all ages and everybody between.

Still another doctrine of the new economics has boosted the old-age penion movement. It is the doctrine of the overcrowded labor market, of a great permanent mass of unemployment, of technology and scientific management continually at work to abolish jobs. From this point of view old-age pensions seemed an obvious way of making jobs for younger men. Pensions are one flank of an attack on unemployment of which the other flank consists in raising the working age for young people.

This program has been challenged by economists of the older school, but at least one may say that it has considerably greater plausibility than the device of turning the nation's elderly men and women into Purchasing Power acceleration by way of old-age pensions. A longer period of schooling for the young people, an earlier retirement age for elderly workers, may be said to be in harmony with the long-term trends. Given our unquestioned progress in technology, it does not seem unreasonable that the middle body of the nation's workers should be able to support a growing margin of dependents on both flanks, youth and old age. — New York Times.

Lunacy in High Places

Somebody threw a brick through the Berlin window of Hitler's own photographer—who must be an extremely busy man—and no doubt this too will be blamed on the British Intelligence Service.

It is a reasonable assumption that the attempt to kill Hitler had its origin among the German people, and it is fair to assume it does indicate a degree of violent opposition to his regime which may have highly important effects on the progress of the war. The attempt of Berlin to convince the world that the bomb found its way into the official Nazi beer hall through a British plot perhaps shows realization of the internal weakness revealed by the incident.

German propaganda is crude and violent, and as often as not reacts to the advantage of the country selected for special treatment. The fantastic theory that the British sank the liner Athenia so that they might blame it on the Nazis aroused only laughter outside Germany. The coarse lie that the Germans had sunk the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal was shouted even after it was supposed to have been London told of dining on the ship after was supposed to have been lost. The lies about the attempt to kill Hitler will have no more success with people who think for themselves. Perhaps the controlled Germans are willing to believe the British Government carries on war by assassination, but nobody else in the world will take the charge seriously.

Hitler and his associates hysterically whipping up hatred of Britain do not give a picture of a strong, united, confident nation.— Ottawa Journal.

Planes and U-Boats

As the war over the North Sea goes on, the airplane may yet prove the submarine's deadliest enemy. Three successful attacks by planes on submarines have recently been reported by the British, and the French describe their sinking of another in a dispatch from Paris yesterday. These are only four in a lengthening list of U-boat losses, which Mr. Winston Churchill now estimates at front two to four a week. The chief menace of the submarine lies in its ability to conceal itself by submerging. It is only partially hidden from the cruising plane, which can see vertically and in depth as well as across a shimmering surface.

Even in the last war British planes destroyed four German U-boats. The "flying grate" was then a clumsy and fragile scouting craft. Today the range of the plane as well as its carrying capacity is immensely increased. Planes can cruise for as much as a thousand miles in systematic observation over great areas of water. They can carry an adequate supply of bombs in their racks. Once a submarine is sighted, either on the surface or submerged, it can be swiftly reached. The submarine is a thin-skinned antagonist unable to manoeuvre at more than 18 knots on the surface and slower still after it has dived and is running on its batteries. When a plane attacks an armored surface ship it is necessary to score a direct hit to inflict real damage. This is not the case with a submarine. Bombs, timed to explode at depth, are dropped in the same diamond pattern standardized by destroyers. Their concussion is shattering and often conclusive.

Since the war began, patrol planes have been actively spotting undersea raiders, convoying merchant ships, co-operating with destroyers and drawing the enemy into more distant waters. The patrol is evidently intensive. It seems to be bringing results.—New York Times.

Malpeque Oysters

Judge Arsenault, of Prince Edward Island, is author of the following sketch which tells the history of the famous Malpeque oyster fisheries:

The oyster industry in Prince Edward Island dates back to the early French occupation, he states. Malpeque was settled by Acadian immigrants from Acadia (Nova Scotia) in 1728. From tradition we learn that the Acadians found oysters so plentiful in Malpeque Bay that it not only constituted an important article of food, when food was scarce, but that they were spread by the cartload on the land as fertilizer. The oyster shell is mostly lime, which is largely used by farmers to sweeten sour land, and the flesh of the oyster contains iodine, which is also of value to the soil.

Naturally, oysters were not shipped in those days and it was not until about the middle of the 19th century that oysters began to be shipped to the Montreal and Quebec markets. Even then the shipments were in a negligible quantity, as the only means of transportation was by schooner and owing to the perishable nature of the articles very few barrels could be successfully marketed.

In the early 1860's, an Island merchant who had been in England and had learned of oyster cultivation in that country on his return secured a lease of an area of oyster-growing bottom and proceeded to cultivate it. There is no record of what success he had.

This area passed through other hands and is now owned by Hon. G. Shelton Sharp, former Minister of Roads, P.E.I., the well-known oyster grower.

A Paris Prize

In the early 80's, 40,000 barrels of oysters were being shipped from Prince Edward Island and at the Paris Exhibition in 1886 (I think) the Malpeque Island carried off the Gold Medal for the choicest flavored oyster exhibition.

Some years later, fishermen began to set their lobster traps in Malpeque Bay. The bait in those traps attracted the starfish from the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The starfish is a deadly enemy to the oyster and owing to the ravages of this destructive pest and to overfishing, the production of oysters in Malpeque Bay in 1912 had fallen to a few hundred barrels.

In that year the provincial Government sought to encourage oyster cultivation and opened up areas in Malpeque Bay for leasing. The lessees began to import small oysters from the United States to stock their beds. Whether owing to the introduction of an oyster disease or by reason that these imported oysters did not thrive in our waters, practically all the oysters in Malpeque Bay died. The cause of this disease has never been ascertained.

In 1929 the federal Government established a Biological Station on Malpeque Bay with Dr. R. W. H. Needler in charge. This Station has done a great deal of valuable work. It ascertained that oysters which had resisted the disease were immune to it and by breeding from such oysters Mr. Sharp has succeeded in stocking a large area with disease-immune oysters.

A visit to the Biological Station and to Mr. Sharp's oyster bed is quite interesting and well worth making. There you can see the process of oyster cultivation from the minute spat which are caught and gathered by means of egg crate cardboard filters dipped in a mixture of concrete, sand and lime and dried.

Twenty of these filters so treated are placed within a wire meshed bag. These are hung on the sides of floating rafts and catch the minute spat of the oyster as it floats around and before it becomes large enough to sink to the bottom.

In a few months' time these collectors are passed through a machine which breaks them up and separates the small oysters. These small oysters are then placed on floats and when they have attained a certain size they are planted on beds specially prepared.

In about four years from the time the spat has been gathered, the oyster has grown to a marketable size.

NUMBER OF ELK KILLED IN PARK

Task of Killing Buffalo in Same Park Will Start This Week

Wainwright, Alta., Nov. 21 —(CP)—From 700 to 800 elk have been killed during the past two weeks as the work of killing off the animals in the Wainwright National Buffalo park continues.

On Wednesday the task of killing some 3,000 buffalo gets under way. All animals in the big park 120 miles east of Edmonton are being killed on orders of the Dominion Government.

The name of Sam Purshell will go down in sport annals as the greatest buffalo hunter of all time. When the task of killing the 3,000 buffalo in Wainwright National Buffalo Park is completed, he will have shot a total of 21,000.

Purshell has been the Federal government ace sharpshooter at the Buffalo Park for the past 15 years and during that time has shot about 18,000, according to park superintendent A. G. Smith. He expects Purshell will add another 3,000 buffalo to his bag before the end of the year.

GREY ALERTNESS IN BUSY HARBORS OF SILENT SHIPS

Balloon - Guarded English Port With Its Major Population of Women and Children - Has Appeal Different from Peacetime

BUSINESS GOOD

This is one of series by Gladys M. Arnold, Canadian Press correspondent in Paris, describing the appearance of a great British seaport in wartime.

By GLADYS M. ARNOLD
Canadian Press Correspodent

Southampton, Nov. 21—(CP)—Canadians know this busy sea city which receives so many travellers first setting foot on the Old Land.

Its low skyline, twisted streets, and noisy popular quarters full of the smells of age, fish and chips and centuries of foreign commerce; its beautiful crumbling Bar Gate and slim-spired churches with sudden vistas of green park—an English welcome. (Bar Gate is a landmark of medieval walled Southampton).

That was Southampton. A different Southampton greets you today in wartime— a grim, sober, quiet, alert but steady Southampton which shocks realization into the eyes fresh from Canadian scenes. In the air above floating silver "sausages"—the "ears" of all British cities today, ready to give instant and insistent warning of approaching danger.

I left this great port three months ago. It was gay with the flags of many nations; gleaming white decks and red funnels; the German Bremen docked ahead, the Aurania to one side. The Berengaria about to sail, another great white sea queen on the skyline—off to the Orient.

Silently to Sea

Today everything is grey. Dark troopships line the quays, end to end. Their portholes are sealed up. Billows of canvas conceal the shouts of guns pointed skyward. The troopships slip out silently, one by one. Cargo boats are dull grey also, from funnel to waterline. The only touch of color is the flutter of Australian blue at a masthead.

On the wharves sandbags wall up windows and from sandbag igloos peep anti-aircraft guns. Everybody carries a small square box. They are strapped on backs, slung over shoulders or carried like parcels. The newsie has his stuffed in his bag with the papers. The women carry theirs in a basket along with the knitting, baby's bottle and groceries, the cyclists have theirs strapped behind the seat and many are to be seen the wheeling "prams." At four o'clock dozens of children are encountered, each with his box slung where he used to carry his school bag.

Mostly Women

Southampton is now a city of women, children and old people. The young men are in uniform. In not more than one shop in 10 are men to be found. Women behind the counters, bars, cash registers, and account books. There are some strange sights. Women moving the furniture with a baby-carriage. Even a chesterfield can be balanced and transported.

Bus conductors are old, white-haired and their uniforms are a little rusty and shapeless. Traffic signals at the corner have been painted over leaving only a tiny cross through which the light may shine. There are fewer private cars about and all of them have a comical, ghostly air with their white bumpers and running boards.

Business is good and the war has provided new advertising slogans in the papers. "Defend" (in large letters) "your feet with....shoes;" "Beware of strange brands of shoes, always buy....;" "Protect your teeth with....;" "Blackout" paper, 30 inches wide, sells in many stores. Gasmasks are a new line from drugstore to hardware shop. They come in all prices and fashions. There are those in fine "gold" cloth to be worn with evening dress at "eleven and six" ($53), and those for bicycles and motorcycles.

MAGNETIC MINES BEING USED BY GERMANY, EXPERTS THINK

Many Express Views This is Adolf Hitler's "Secret Weapon"

RESTS ON BOTTOM

By Fred Backhouse, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 21—(CP-Cable)—A theory that Germany is using a magnetic mine was being widely discussed today in naval circles and newspapers following the sinking of the liner Simon Bolivar and other vessels.

Expressed views of naval experts ranged from the blunt statement that this is Adolf Hitler's "secret weapon" of which he boasted two months ago, to the derisive comment that such a mine belongs to the realm of fantasy.

The consensus however is that such a weapon is possible but that the Admiralty is fully aware of all recent developments in mines and is working on ways to deal with them. If a magnetic mine exists, the view was held it will not be effective for long.

Speculation began when the captain of the Danish Steamship Canada, giving evidence at an inquiry at Copenhagen into the loss of his ship insisted she sank after an explosion caused by a magnetic mine. So far there is no official confirmation of his statement.

A number of naval writers said such a mine would rest on the sea bottom, out of reach of minesweepers, until the presence of the steel hull of a ship brought delicate mechanism into play and the mine was drawn up against the ship's bottom. No further details were offered.

Those who scoffed at the idea said the strength of a ship's magnetic field certainly is not great enough to attract a mine which is more than a few yards from the ship's hull.

FAMED BOAT DOCKS IN GEORGIAN BAY

Cutter That Sank Lusitania's Destroyer Will Winter in Canadian Waters

Midland, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Cutting as trim a figure as she did during her first Great War days as a North Sea raider for the United States Navy, the yacht Venetia slipped into winter quarters in Georgian Bay, Ont., recently as a pleasure craft, flying the Canadian ensign.

Credited with sinking the German U-Boat that sent the Lusitania to the bottom on May 7, 1915, the Venetia still carries the two gold-plated stars awarded her by the British Admiralty in recognition of her feat.

Capt. Scott Misener, Port Colborne, Ont., Sarnia Steamship Company executive, new owner of the former patrol boat is "mighty proud of the stars."

Capt. Misener has written the United States Department of State an account of the Venetia's 18 months of roving the submarine and mine-infested waters of the English Channel and the North Sea.

Although owner, Capt. Misener said he is unable to obtain the Venetian's log, now in possession of a Midland, Ont., resident who refuses to part with it.

Next June the Venetia will weigh anchor at her Lake Huron slip and cruise the Great Lakes, "purely as a pleasure craft," Capt. Misener said.

Launched in 1903, at Leith, Scotland, the 226-foot yacht became the property of the late John Spreckles wealthy Pacific coast sugar exporter, sailing west coast waters until 1917, when she was requisitioned by the United States government.

Armed with four-pound guns and carrying depth charges, the sleek-hulled Venetia roamed the North Sea, chalking up numerous rescues, protecting allied shipping, she accounted for at least two German U-boats.

After the war, the government rehabilitated the Venetia and returned her to Spreckles. After the latter's death, James Playfair, Toronto boat operator, purchased the yacht and brought her up from San Diego, Calif., via the Panama Canal, to the Great Lakes.

THE RUNAWAY

by

Kathleen Norris

The three with the maid followed somewhat tortuous but spacious passages, entered a large gloomy elevator; were carried up to an apartment filled with souvenirs of the singer's triumphs, and otherwise furnished with old-fashioned stuffy elegance. There were a great many flowers; there was a supper table by a coal fire, and much good hearty food, and plenty of beer.

Madame was sixty, but magnificently handsome still, with a clean sweet peasant face that was younger than that of many a woman half her age.

"In this opera aye sing my first time," she told Becky. "And Steef sents me flowers—white violets. Aye am so frightened, so big, aye am like big horse galloping out to footlights. But aye know Steef dare, croying for fear I big flop—"

She looked at him, and the doctor said to Becky. "She was so much of a flop that one of the finest managers in the country tied her up the next day for concert work for the rest of her singing career."

After a large blond young man in white took away the supper table, Madame gave Becky an immense leather portfolio filled with loose photographs, settled back in a deep cushioned chair, lighted a cigar and began to talk fluently to Stephen in German. Becky looked at the pictures, stopped and looked about her instead. The other two murmured vigorously for perhaps fifteen minutes. Then Stephen laughed, got to his feet, kissed his hostess on the forehead and brought Becky her coat.

"Well, did you like your first opera, Becky?" Stephen asked when they were in the car.

"I have never," Becky said solemnly from the rugs and the warm darkness, "I have never had such an evening in my life! I can't believe its me. When I go back to Salletts, I'll wonder if I ever sat in an opera box and saw Flammavilla come out in her long white dress!"

"You think you must go?" the doctor said, clearing his throat.

"Oh yes, I must go back. For so many reasons! I only had to have a full meal and a hot bath to know that I must go back," Becky said on a rueful laugh. "To gather up the dropped threads to clear up the situation with Gavin, once and for all. To manage, somehow, that he won't keep turning up in my life, humiliating me by borrowing money from the people I love."

"I see," the doctor said on a reluctant note. And for a moment or two neither spoke."

"You'll go with us to Florida?"

"O', yes! If you want me. I'm going to write mother that, for that's an address Gaven couldn't trace. Then after that we'll go home again. And you'll always know," Becky said steadily, "that somewhere out there in the West are a woman and a child whose lives you saved."

"Then there's no Europe this year, Becky?"

"Not this year, it's enough this year that you want me."

"Ah—that," the doctor said with a quick look. He thought perhaps that she was crying. After a moment he groped with his hand to find her hand, and she pulled the glove from it and slipped the warm fingers into his, and they rode so the rest of the way, without speaking.

x x x

From Florida Becky wrote Stephen that she missed him. He had gone down there with the family but had stayed only for a few days; Becky and Gibbs, who was once again his strong little Indian-brown self, finished the five weeks stay.

"Barbara's friend Laurence Moulton has come down," she wrote the doctor. "We all swim together in the morning, and even Gibbs does pretty well. My mother sent me a letter that made me cry; she is happier than she ought to be to have her bad penny turning up again. Gavin has been in town, is away now with Harry Grace, a guide, in the mountains, but returns every now and then. My old beau Joe Feratta has married a darling girl and they are going to have a baby."

"I have had almost enough sunshine," she wrote later, "and am thinking too much of a certain old white brick house near the Sound. Laurence has gone; he stayed only four days: We leave in three more, and it will be good to see you again! But there's a cloud. Gibbs and I ought to be starting West almost immediately."

"What do you think will happen when you get there, Becky?" he asked her on the night of their return.

"To Salletts? Oh, crying and kissing," she said, laughing, "and gossip. Mother telling me everything, and the boys and Dad and Sophy chipping in. And then everything going a little quieter...." She fell silent.

"You're a wise child to expect a reaction. You don't want to go back?" he asked with a keen look.

"I want to see my mother, but I hate the thought of the news of Gavin, whatever it is. It won't be good. I'll have to see him, to hear it all again, the reasons why he didn't keep this job or that, and that he's always loved me, and won't I give him another chance, be kind to him." Becky's face burned. "After all, I'm his wife," she said, looking away.

"That too?" he said now, knitting his forehead, looking into the fire.

"His attitude is always one of 'forget and forgive'," Becky went on with a desperate little laugh. "He'll say that he knows he's treated us badly, but that a lot of it he couldn't help. But it's no use listening to him, believing in him! He doesn't mean any of it. And now, now that I've been here, that I love this life so, that you've all given me a new—a new viewpoint, and new feeling about life—"

She stopped, her throat closing with tears, and came across the rug and took a low fat square cushion of red leather, close to his knee.

"I cannot go back!" she whispered. "There must be some way in which I can get free. I don't mean instantly; I'll be patient. But it sickens me to think of his kissing me again—now—now when I know—"

Again she broke off short, turning away from him, looking into the fire.

"What do you know?" the doctor asked her in a low tone.

"Know—but we didn't mean to tell anyone for months," Becky said, "that Laurence Moulton and I like each other."

It was very simply said, and the face she turned toward him was not a happy face. Immediately she began to explain.

"From the beginning he knew—he says he knew, that he—he cared for me. But Barbara had talked to me so much about him (she knew him in Paris and in Hawaii) that I never thought....I never dreamed...."

She left the sentence unfinished and started again.

"That very first night he was here, before Christmas, just after Barbara got home, he told me. They were all playing games, you remember? And he and I were in here alone. He told me then. But I didn't believe it," Becky said, her troubled eyes never leaving the doctor's serious face. "I didn't want to believe it. I thought I was finished forever with men. And there was Gavin, you know. For even if we'd been separated for months, as we had been, we were still man and wife. So I tried....

"I did try terribly to fight it. But it couldn't be fought. Two or three times, when Barbara was away, I went to his uncle's studio, and we talked. And then he came down to Florida and we had a few days together, and I said—I said that when—that if I honorably free myself from Gavin, and if my mother was happy about it, and if I had the custody of Gibbs, except perhaps if Gavin wanted to visit him, take him to movies or the circus or anything, later on—I said if all that happened," Becky finished on a long breath, "I'd come back and we could be married."

The doctor sat quite still, looking at her.

"I'm sorry," he said after a silence. "He seems—and if you and Barbara like him so much, he probably is—a nice fellow. But I'm sorry! I love you and I lose my little boy. I'm to be in Europe most of the summer, so that I'll be busy. But this has been a happy little interval for me, my dear. What does Barbara think of this plan?"

"Barbara knows nothing about it," Becky said in alarm. "Nobody will know anything about it. Not even mother, until I have settled everything with Gavin. It's not an engagement—it's not a promise; it's only 'if' and 'if' and 'if'. It's only that we discovered that we were thinking of nothing but each other, and that Laurence, who is about the most jealous man I ever knew, wanted something—something to go on. But if things go wrong at home..And anyway, it's only probable...."

"Jealous, is he, eh? Then what about Gibbs?"

"Oh, he—he concedes me Gibbs. He thinks Gibbs is grand."

"Jealousy can be a pretty serious thing in marriage Becky."

"I know it can! But when a woman loves a man very much," she said, "she keeps him too happy for jealousy. Meanwhile," Becky went on, "I'm hoping, I'm praying that Barbara will come to like Pedar or someone else."

Stephen Dinsmore was not listening; his eyes were far away. "I think I'm a little sorry," he presently said in a musing tone. Becky fixed her eyes upon him anxiously. "Sorry to lose you, Becky."

"It can't be for more than a year!" she told him eagerly. "Even if Gavin is manageable, even if it goes through quickly, it can't be for more than a year."

"No, and we can plan for that year. Yes", the man conceded, "I suppose you must go home. But you'll be back."

In her turn Becky was inattentive, her thoughts far away. "Will you tell me something?" she said suddenly. Her face, which had flushed hotly, turned pale. She fixed her eyes on his face. "Are you my father?" she asked.

INSTALMENT 24

Dr. Dinsmore looked at Becky steadily, his own color changing.

"Why—why do you ask me that?" he stammered.

"I know something about my own history," she said . "Do you?"

"Something," he answered slowly. "I didn't know that you knew anything. You told me in the hospital that you had been an adopted child. You know more than that?"

"What my mother told me before I was married. When she thought I might do something rash—something foolish. We've never talked of it since. And she didn't know much, not what my real mother's name was, nor anything about her."

"They were friends?"

"They saw each other only a few times. The last time was the day my mother died in a hospital. She gave me to—to my own mother, to the woman I've always called 'Mother'd"

"How old were you then, Becky?"

"Only a tiny baby. A few days old."

"And she died? I hoped she might have lived, after all."

"My mother saw her dead. I know how kind you are to everyone," Becky said, "but it isn't you. Not you alone. It's everyone in this house, your sister and the servants and the girls. They know there's some other reason for having me here, for making me a daughter of the family!"

"The girls and the servants know nothing, "Stephen Dinsmore said quickly. "Harriet knows, and the girls know you are the child of someone I once knew. I told Harriet that first day in the hospital when I heard your voice, when I saw you walking away, that you were found. I told her not to be shocked when she saw you; that—well, you weren't merely like your mother, Becky. You were Madeleine."

PRESENTATION

On Friday Nov. 10. a number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Cross, 8th concession Tyendinaga to honor Ernest Reed who has enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and is billeted at Picton.

The evening was spent in cards and dancing and at 11.30 the crowd was called to order and Ernie was presented with a purse of money on behalf of his friends and the following address was read—

Dear Ernie,—

We, your friends, have gathered here tonight to show how much we appreciate the step you have taken for the protection of our homes and country. We have always found you a cheerful giver and a trusty friend.

So we ask you to accept this purse which we trust you will invest in a gift that you will always have to remember your friends of this community and sincerely hope that good luck and God's richest blessings be with you on all your journeys.

Signed on behalf,—John Cross, John McLean, Elmer Cross.

Ernie thanked his friends and all joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow", after which lunch was served.

GUARDS ASSIGNED

incial Police, on duty. Last of the 184 guards take up their positions today.

Nothing More Than Watchman

"The Federal setup consisted of nothing more than watchmen and there appeared to be an entire lack of discipline," Mr. Conant said. "They were not in uniform and were not armed with firearms."

The joint statement said that since the Federal authorities "apparently" did not share the view of the Province that protection of the Niagara power plants "is of the utmost importance in the interests of the province and of the nation," the transfer of authority was asked.

"Federal authorities set up a system of guarding which this government, on the advice of competent police and Hydro officials, regards as entirely inadequate," the statement added in part.

"Inasmuch as instructions from Ottawa were that these men were not to be armed with firearms there was no alternative but to resume the guarding by the Provincial Police in order that these properties may be fully protected."

Marked Contrast

Mr. Conant contended there was a marked contrast between the Federal system of guarding Niagara as compared with a system of Provincial guarding set up at the De Cew Falls plant, "which is outside the area Ottawa took over."

"At the De Cew plant there is a fine body of guards under an able sergeant of the Provincial Police," he said. "We feel the plant there is adequately protected under our system. It is our objective to set up the same system throughout the entire Niagara area."

A system of plant protection was devised by the Ontario Government and put into effect before the outbreak of war. Ontario asked Federal officials to take over the duties, a request which was granted following negotiations. Commissioner W. H. Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police later investigated the Federal system of anti-sabotage measures in the Niagara area which was followed by an investigation by Mr. Conant.

Advice is Given

The report added that less than a week after the R.C.M.P. took charge the Attorney-General was advised by John Dibblee, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Hydro-Electric Commission that the system of guarding was "entirely unsatisfactory."

Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, was consulted, and on Nov. 17 Mr. Conant sent a telegram to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, to the affect the Ontario Government was displeased with the Federal system of guarding. He urged Mr. Lapointe to arrange with the R.C.M.P. to relinquish the guarding to Provincial Police.

The next day, Commissioner Stringer completed with Commissioner S. T. Wood of the R.C.M.P. Arrangements for the Province to take over the guards' duties at eight a.m. yesterday.

Mr. Conant said that many of the veterans' guards served in the Provincial Police guards unit prior to Nov. 1 when the R.C.M.P. took over patrolling of the Niagara plants. Most of them continued to serve under Federal authority and were stripped of their uniforms and rifles and given short clubs, the Attorney General added.

Misses Evelyn Matthews and Ethel Crewson returned home Sunday evening after spending an enjoyable weekend at the home of Miss Bertha Goff in Gananoque.

W.C.T.U. Notes

The W.C.T.U. held a very special meeting in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday. Quiet music played by Mrs. Farnsworth and a call to worship by the President, Mrs. Moore. Mrs. Coulson conducted a devotional period using the 26th Psalm "God is our refuge". She stressed the necessity of spending some time each day in quiet meditation and prayer in order to gain strength for the struggles of the day. Her talk was followed by an appropriate duett "Have you been in the garden with Jesus" sung by Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Farnsworth.

Mrs. Farley and Miss Reeves gave the business reports and new members were welcomed. Mrs. Maguire requested volunteers from the various churches for devotionals. Hymn "Rouse ye Christian Workers" was sung and then the special speaker was announced in the person of the County President, Mrs. Farnsworth. She brought the following comments from the W.C.T.U. Convention held in Galt in October.

Gen. Haig when asked if the Allies would win in the Great War replied "The battle is the Lord's" So it is with our war against Alcohol. Frances Willard said "The greatest mission ever given to women is to lead the world against the use of alcohol". "The liquor question is too big for any political party but it is not too big for women". "It is the moral and spiritual bankruptcy of the modern age not the depression which is causing hopeless conditions." "Real recovery is the recovery of justice, truth, and righteousness and when a nation recognizes God and that it is accountable to Him, then it is on the road to recovery". "Sacrifice involves more than giving up. It means giving out, giving to." "When some one says: 'Whether we have five bars or fifty they'll have alcohol anyway'; we answer "we prefer the five bars to fifty." "How can you defeat an evil if it gives 8c profit out of 10c?"

The W.C.T.U. is an organization born of prayer. Some of its achievements are— "Willard Hall, Girl's summer camps, 3,800 leaflets given schools, 110 medals to 429 contesting children, 117 Bibles to prisons, and 138 visits regularly in five hospitals.

The W.M.S. which is daily holding up Christ to the world has not time to do what we are doing but we are one with them and they one with us and so God Bless our Cause.

"We were reminded of the last words of that noble Nurse Cavell: 'I must bear no hatred or bitterness in my heart not even against those who hold the guns". We would be noble in or war against Alcohol as she was noble in her attitude toward her enemies."

After singing the National Anthem Mrs. O'Flynn closed with prayer.

Mrs. Farley was convener of the lunch hour. Mrs. W. B. Deacon poured tea. Mrs. Gordon, Miss Maude Reeves and Mrs. Andy Sharpe assisted.

Red Cross Branch Ships Articles to Toronto Headquarters

Belleville branch of the Red Cross shipped in Saturday to the provincial headquarters, Toronto, a splendid assortment of articles upon which the women of the city have been busily working for some weeks. Included were thirty-two pneumonia jackets, the gift of St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. The list consists of 60 pairs of pyjamas, 20 1-2 dozen bandages, 13 pullovers, 10 1-2 doz. socks, 1 pair wristlets, 1 pair mittens.

NURSES TO WEAR SAME STYLE OF UNIFORMS AS IN LAST WAR

Recreation Uniform Will be Three-Piece Navy Blue Woollen Suit

WORN AT DANCES

Ottawa, Nov. 21—(CP)—It's the men who are changing their battle dress this war—the women will wear the same style of uniforms worn 25 years ago.

The soldiers have discarded their buttons, puttees and Sam Brown belts and even changed the cut of their trousers but the nurses have just shortened their skirts, tilted their hats at a jauntier angle and pushed their veils back further on their heads.

Veteran soldier-patients broke into war reminiscences when they viewed the blue-uniformed figures of the young nurses, who will tend the first overseas Canadian Division. Their service uniforms are in the same mid-blue cotton as last time, in two-piece style with six small shiny brass buttons on each side of the tight-fitting bodice and they still have the starched white collars and cuffs.

But the headgear will be more feminine. The severe white line of the stiff white organza veils across the brow will be relieved by soft waves or curls.

The strings of their white uniforms worn over the uniform pass through shoulder bands, marked with two "pip" to denote their rank of lieutenant, to tie at the back. The nursing supervisor has three "pips" on her shoulder for her rank is equivalent to a captain.

Cut Neat Pattern

On the streets in Toronto, where 46 nurses are in training at M.D. No. 2, they cut a neat pattern in their navy blue belted ulsters and their shallow soft-brimmed sports hats turned up at the back and down at the front. Their oxfords, gloves and stockings are brown in tone carrying out the army tradition. They will have large navy envelope-styled bags to carry enough foibles for an overnight trip, when their wardrobe is complete but most of their belongings will be packed in a trunk and a dunnage bag.

There will be a recreation uniform for the nurses too but it has not arrived yet. It will be a three-piece navy blue woollen suit worn with a sky blue blouse and a navy tie. This uniform is to be worn at all formal function including dances, teas and receptions, and always with the addition of the white veil.

PROTECT CHARLES

London (CP)—Said to be the finest equestrian statue in the world, the Whitehall memorial to Charles I is to be completely sandbagged, as in the last war.

FEARED WAR EFFECT

Brighton, England (CP)— Oliver Dalton, Brighton's wealthiest man, who made a fortune from bathing huts and slot machines, died here shortly after expressing a fear the war would bankrupt him.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Is Marriage the Only Aim of American Women?

Pearl Buck, who won the Nobel Prize for that Chinese classic, "The Good Earth", is not above telling fellow American women what she thinks of us. Miss Buck, as you know, was born in America, though she grew up in China, where her father was a missionary.

Miss Buck says the reason she criticizes American women is because she likes us so much. Her reasoning may recall Mother or Dad's plea, "this hurts me more than it does you," as the wriggling offspring squirms upon the parental knee under the uplifted slipper.

In midsummer magazine, she hauled us over the coals in a paper called "America's Gunpowder Women". And the dreadful part of the castigation was that so much of it was true.

In a recent article, Miss Buck goes in for a bigger and better trouncing, in which she says good feminine brains are going to waste in this country in trite amusements and dull gossip, when they should be used constructively for the good of the nation.

She thinks the American woman seems to have but a single aim in life— to marry and to stay at home idle. This is all well and good while her children are small and require constant looking after. But why anyone should suppose idleness could be enjoyed while the darling imps were growing up, engaged in endless mischief, will be a mystery to any mother who has grabbed them off window sills, fished them out of bath tubs and deprived them of the carving knife— all of which your columnist has done.

The tired mother is told that when the body slumps with fatigue then the mind is apt to be more active. Would that this were true of us all! It must be something that goes with genius and the ability to win a Nobel Prize, for, when the average woman's body is fatigued to the limit, constructive thought is out of the question.

Miss Buck thinks that the Chinese way of arranging marriages for girls is better than ours. Chinese parents consider it their duty to find a suitable husband for their daughter and they would shudder at the idea of allowing an inexperienced girl to throw herself at a man in the hope of getting a proposal.

American mothers who are more tender and rear their daughters more carefully than the Chinese, Miss Buck observes, subject their girls to much humility and bitter disappointment in the marriage mart.

We Americans may be more sentimental in making allowances for what we call love, and it would make a good many of us shudder to see our young people deprived of a voice in selecting their life partners.

Miss Buck scores a hundred when she thinks that all American women should receive an education which should prepare them adequately for life, and the ability to stand on their own feet as independent human beings, properly equipped by education and able to maintain themselves.

In previous articles, she has spoken with amazement at the amount of time women waste in profitless amusement — playing bridge all the afternoon and having no genuine interest in the tremendous problems of life going on about them.

Personally, the truth of this indictment was brought home to me in a five-hour railroad journey, lately. A woman had some sort of a puzzle, the container the size of an average marble filled with the most infinitesmial gadgets which had to be fitted together before the tiny case could be closed. Strange women begged the owner to let them try—it must have been terribly hard on the eyes. The train jiggled, the women dropped the gadgets searched for them, tried to put them back, and were perfectly happy with the toy.

A World War rages in Europe yet none of these ladies opened the papers or seemed interested in anything but fitting twenty-seven little nothings into a toy the size of a marble.

Is the Chinese way of marrying off girls better than ours?

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Many Types of Enema May Be Administered to Child

In winding up our discussion about enemas I think it would be well to speak for a while about the best kind of enema to use.

There are dozens of things that can be used as enemas but there are only about six which really have a place in the treatment of children.

The simple enema is used most, I suppose. It is made by taking water heated to 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and dissolving in it enough soap to make a lather. If your baby is under six months of age, don't administer an enema of more than ten ounces. If the child is a year old, he can tolerate up to 20 ounces. With older children, 20 to 40 ounces can be given. Care should be taken not to exceed these amounts otherwise there may be an over-extension of the bowel, which is harmful.

In very young infants an enema of glycerine is given. Its advantage lies in the fact that it works more quickly and is therefore of value in treating colic. For instance if a child is in pain after feeding, a glycerine enema will often relieve him at once. The mixture is in the proportion of a teaspoon of glycerine to an ounce of water at 100 degrees. About four ounces is enough to bring relief in most cases.

Another enema, known as the "1-2-3", is so called because it is composed of one part magnesium sulphate, 2 parts glycerine, and 3 parts water. This mixture has an irritating effect and is used to bring on a bowel movement after other enemas have failed. This enema should be reserved for older children; it has no place in the treatment of constipation of infants.

Another enema which has no place in the treatment of babies but which is sometimes employed in older children is the turpentine enema. It is only used in cases of severe distenion. Mostly it is confined to use on a child who has been ill for a long time with a high fever and whose bowels obstinately refuse to move. To administer it care must be taken not to have it too strong. Two teaspoonsful of the turpentine are added to the twenty ounces of simple enema— soap and water.

An oil enema is valuable when the patient has been constipated for some time and hard masses of faeces have formed in the rectum and lower bowel. The oil softens up these hard lumps so that they do not cause pain or injury to the rectum as they are passed. It consists of only two ounces of warm olive oil which is administered into the rectum. When it is in, the child should be induced to retain it in his bowel if he can, for about two hours so the oil can do its work. At the end of the two-hour period, a simple enema is administered. The oil enema doesn't always work because some children cannot retain the oil, and expel it after a few minutes. The oil enema accomplishes a great deal in older children, but it isn't likely to be necessary in young babies.

Nutrient enemas are given with a view to giving the child nourishment in this manner. The fluid that is most often used s a tenthat is most often used is a tenof corn syrup is dissolved in five ounces of water.

These nutrient enemas are more likely to be successful with adults than with children. This is mainly because children do not retain them as they should.

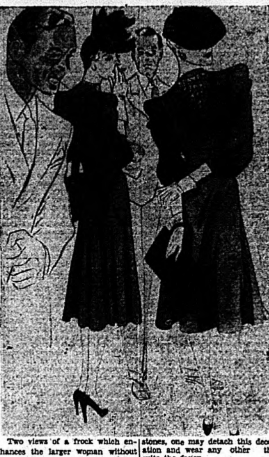
"WALK UPSTAIRS AND SAVE"

For Larger Women



Two views of a frock which enhances the larger woman without any give-away camouflage details are sketched here today. Just as pretty in a size 12 as a size 46, the frock sums up to a good basic designing, we would say. It is made in crepe, lovely in various colors fit for a fur coat, and although it is complete with a necklace bib of filligree set with amethyst colored stones, one may detach this decoration and wear any other that suits the fancy.

Easy sleeves, with fulness both at shoulders and elbows, are becoming, and the skirt, while looking full of back fullness, nevertheless has a slick fit. Lines are long, silhouette draped, but there are no fluttering capelets or surplice devices to cozen the large figure with patent disguise.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Problems

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What is meant by the "bride's side of the church" and the "groom's side?"

2—What are the duties of the sexton in connection with a formal wedding?

3—When one does not know the bride-to-be, to whom should the wedding gift be sent?

4—Is it polite to use engraved or printed cards of acknowledgement for wedding presents?

5—Is it always necessary to send out announcements of a wedding?

6—Does the bride wear her engagement ring during the ceremony?

7—When the double ring ceremony is used, who buys the groom's ring?

8—How do wedding presents differ from engagement presents?

Bride-to-be

1—The "bride's side of the church" is the left side, since her mother and father are the hosts of the occasion. The bridegroom's family and relatives and friends sit in the pews on the right of the aisle since the bridegroom's parents are the guests of honor of the occasion, and therefore sit at the right of the hosts.

2—The sexton makes arrangements to open the church, sees that everything is in order, is on hand when the floral decorations are being put in place, opens the church for the rehearsal, and has his assistants put out the awning and the carpets to the cars.

With the arrival of the ushers, he takes charge of their hats and coats, and places them so that he can quickly distribute them to the ushers after the ceremony.

3—The gift should be sent to the bride-to-be at her home, whether or not one knows her.

4—No. The thoughtfulness of a friend in sending a wedding present deserves the graciousness of a personal note of appreciation from the bride-to-be.

5—No. Engraved wedding announcements are simply an easy means of telling the news to those who have not been invited to the wedding.

7—When the double ring ceremony is used, the bride buys the bridegroom's ring.

8—Wedding presents are usually gifts for the new home, while engagement presents are usually gifts of a personal nature.

Uses Proxy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am to have a formal wedding very soon, and of course that means a wedding rehearsal. I have been told that it is incorrect for me to take part in the rehearsal. Is this information correct?

Grace

Yes, this is correct. The bride-to-be is present at the rehearsal, but she asks a friend to take her place, as a "proxy".

Thanks Required

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Should I thank a man when he helps me on with my coat, or when he pulls out my chair for me at table? Or should I just take these as a matter of course?

K.

Courtesies, no matter how small, should always be thanked for. For every consideration shown us by anyone anywhere we should say a gracious "Thank you".

AT THE CAPITOL

"Star Reporter"

A smashing story of a campaign against crime conducted by one man is "Star Reporter," now at the Capitol theatre. Thrilling action from start to finish, it concerns John Randolph's efforts to stamp out graft by using his newspaper to elect honest men to office.

When District Attorney Burnette, whom John elected, discovers that a murderer whom he is prosecuting is in reality John's father, he gives up the case, and John, innocent of Draper's identity, starts an action to have Burnette removed from office, even though he is in love with Barbara Burnette.

Then Draper escapes, and he implicates Barbara in a crime when they both come in the dead of night to steal Draper's confession from John's safe.

A thrilling climax ensues as John, finding out that Draper is his father, goes to face him alone, with Barbara's life and Burnette's honor depending on the outcome of the rendezvous.

Warren Hull is seen as John, and handles the difficult role with the finesse of a polished actor. Marsha Hunt, "the most photographed model in America," plays Barbara, and demonstrates that she is an excellent actress as well as a beautiful girl.

Morgan Wallace is the sinister Draper, and Clay Clement and Eddie Kane are his evil lieutenants. Virginia Howell scores in a brief role as Randolph's mother, torn between love for her son and loyalty to her friend Burnette, who is played with dignity by Wallis Clark. And for your added enjoyment

AT THE McCARTHY

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington"

Since attaining stardom in "Seventh Heaven," James Stewart has been paired with a long list of lovely Hollywood actresses in his many film successes. But, up till now, he has made love to each of them for only one picture. Frank Capra, however, has broken the rule in his production of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

In this romantic drama of political battle, Capra has given James Stewart once again his leading lady of the Academy Award winning "You Can't Take it With You," Jean Arthur. Capra feels that of all the romantic teams which have been half-Stewart, Simon and Stewart, Rogers and Stewart, Lombard and Stewart, Colbert and Stewart and all the rest, the team of Jean Arthur and James Stewart makes the best matched pair of the lot. In "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," the frank awkwardness of Stewart and the natural poise of Jean Arthur are given every opportunity to display their well watched appeals. For Stewart is cast as a young idealist, sent to Washington by a political machine to be a harmless cipher. Jean Arthur is cast as his secretary, worldly-wise and politically weary, who finds a fresh new interest in country life by working beside the young country boy. The two fight the good battle against political skulduggery in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and give a bright new meaning to the glorious tradition of democracy. An all-new edition of Screen Snapshots, your favorite movie stars at work and play, precedes "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" at each performance.

AT THE BELLE

"Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex."

A waspish woman with an angry downturn to the corners of her mouth sat on the throne of England and told Sir Francis Bacon she would have the head of Lord Essex, her lover, even though it might break her heart to take it.

A bundle of venom she seemed to be, with her harsh voice, nervous gestures and flaming red wig, which did not quite hide the suggestion of baldness beneath.

This was Bette Davis as a visitor might have seen her almost any day on the set of "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" playing the role of Elizabeth, Queen of Shakespeare's England, dressed in the finery of that bygone age, with tight bodice, voluminous skirt and elaborate jewels. A small but mighty person, a vixon schemer and a lonely woman. But every inch a queen. The film is now on the Belle screen.

In contrast to this, one should see Bette Davis at home.

"Home," she says, "is where I can be comfortable, wear slacks or shorts or anything else I wish, where privacy is possible and where I can work in my garden or lie in a swing or rearrange my furniture. The house I live in means nothing. (She had a dozen in the last few years). But my home is not my house. I can be at home in an apartment."

The house in which Bette has lived these recent months is quiet, but the principal occupant isn't. She has several dogs, many personal visitors, most of them not connected with motion pictures, and a capacity for keeping things buzzing wherever she is.

Let's drop in to see Bette at home. She is finishing her last scene on "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex." Her house is bursting with flowers, picked from her own gardens. The new books that Bette has had no time to read are piled on the library table.

Bette breezes into these sedate surroundings like a New England northeaster. The tempo of the whole establishment changes. She wants a dozen things at once and they are provided quietly, efficiently and at once. She wears some sort of head covering even in the house because her head has been shaved back two inches from her forehead for the Elizabethan wig which must look like a wig.

Asked her about her immediate future plans, Bette avoided a direct answer.

"Nearly everybody has written my plans for me," she laughed. "I couldn't possibly go to the places or do the things or marry the men that have been suggested. Anyway marriage December would make me a bigamist and I'm much too sensible to try that."

Gay, effervescent and cheerful Bette, even with her shaved head, gives little inkling of the power she displays as Queen Elizabeth when she damns Essex (Errol Flynn) to his death in the tower. She is not bitter and she entertains no delusion or royalty or grandeur in her own home. She is a little girl who knows she is tired and who thinks she will not want to work in a picture again for "ever so long" but who will almost certainly be back to work long before her scheduled vacation is up.

A BAD COLD HAS ALLIES

By McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE

Flocking to the banner of that "bad cold" comes hurrying a host of allies, not one of them welcome, pleasant or even safe to endure.

One warlike ally is sinusitis, just an overextended visit of your cold, long after it should have completed its course. Once known as "chronic catarrh", this inflammation of the sinus cavities about the head and face causes excruciating discomfort, reduces your efficiency, is a constant threat to health.

Do not endure this enemy to health and happiness. Consult a medical doctor, prevent sinusitis from taking a permanent seat in your system.

Be sure that vaccines, serums or any medication prescribed by the doctor is procured from a reputable druggist.

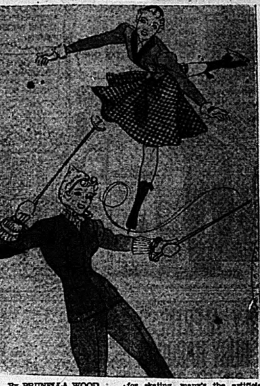
Snowbanks Dead Ahead



By PRUNELLA WOOD

NEVER MIND if your native haunt is habitually covered with palm trees instead of tamaracks, for Americans travel, and being a mermaid in Miami doesn't keep one from doubling as a snow queen at Sun Valley or Lake Placid. As for skating, many's the artificial pond frozen up by man-magic all over the warm weather resorts so that skating costumes are as promiscuous as housecoats these days. A word to the wise: Wear togs built for the sport, always, whether it be swimming, skating or skiing.

Silhouette Affliction

JANE BRYAN . . good posture and exercises keep her waistline trim.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN WE speak of the middle-aged figure, we visualize an ample upper waistline and a shelf below it. This bulge is not necessarily formed by adipose tissues; more often the condition is caused by poor posture and abdominal muscles that have lost tone. The woman who indulges to excess in the good things of the table and who hates exercise as a cat hates dogs is the one who gets that way long before her time. Such a silhouette is an affliction.

Watch out, my paper children, that the middle-aged figure doesn't catch up with you. Be active. Stand tall. Keep your head on the level, let your shoulders assume an easy pose. Above all things, don't permit the shoulders to fall forward so that the top portion of your back bulges.

Night and morning do this exercise to keep fit: Lie flat on the back in bed, hands under the buttocks. Lift the legs slowly until you are fairly standing on the back of your neck and your toes touch the head board. Lower the legs slowly. Nothing better for the prevention of hip spread. This exercise acts favorably upon the intestinal tract, stimulating blood streams, toning the inner tissues.

While the high hairdress didn't make good—only a few women took to it—it did lead to more restraint with ringlets and promoted the popularity of rolls. Rolls, we notice, are getting bigger and better.

A nifty idea is to arrange half a dozen of them in the back, set on the bias, an excellent mode for the woman whose neck has thickened. The swirl can be used, with ringlets at the side where it ends, the space on the other side filled in with close-set puffs.

Santa Claus is Coming to City, Royal Welcome Planned for Dec. 9

Rumor Current About City is That Mrs. Santa Claus and Many of Court Jesters Will Accompany Him

CHILDREN INVITED

Santa Claus will receive a right royal welcome in Belleville on Saturday, December 9th, judging from the response of the business men and women to the appeal for financial backing this morning. When Santa's volunteer assistants finish their visits today it is confidently expected that the total amount will permit a full realization of the plans for the largest and most colourful parade in this city for many a year.

Rumor has it that Santa Claus plans to bring with him a person who is not often heard of but who must have a great deal to do behind the scenes in merry Christmas land—Mrs. Santa Claus. It is alleged that it is she who mothers the Christmas fairies who will be seen in the royal entourage of the jolly old fellow with the long whiskers.

With the fairies will be seen many of the court jesters and other strange characters with huge heads who keep Santa's toy factory at the North Pole ringing with laughter the year around while the Christmas toys are being made.

A special invitation is being extended to the school children in town and country for miles around to come to Belleville for the big day, and it is hoped municipal councils, school trustees and teachers will help in making it possible for the children to be present. Rumor also says there may be prizes for the best children's fancy costumes. Complete details will appear in the Ontario Intelligencer shortly.

MISSISSIPPI STATE ENJOYS OIL BOOM

Yazoo City, Miss., Nov. 21—(AP) Mississippi—State with lowest per capita income of the United States—is in the happy throes of an oil boom.

An oil showing was found in Yazoo County Aug. 29, and the test was completed as a producing well a week later.

Oilmen flocked to the scene. The rush for leases and locations started. New money, estimated at more than $1,000,000, poured in.

Now, with an estimated 3,000,000 acres of land under lease, surveys under way in a dozen counties, four wells completed as commercial producers and seven other tests under drill, the upsurge is noted at every hand in the midstate sector.

VOLCANO QUITE ACTIVE

Rome, Nov. 21—(CP-Havas)—Increased activity of Mount Etna, famous Sicilian volcano, was reported here today but seismological experts minimized the danger of a real eruption.

The volcano began its latest activity two weeks ago.

THE PRESBYTERIAN Y.P. ASSOCIATION

Perhaps one of the most pleasant evenings of the Y.P.A. was spent at St. Andrew's church last evening.

Mr. Graham Diamond, Vice-President, presided as chairman for the evening.

Psalm 87 was read by Miss Jessie Cunningham, followed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Walker, then the minutes were read and passed, at which time the business discussion took place, during which a committee was selected to arrange for a dance to be held later.

The conveners then took charge. Miss Ruth O'Hara spoke on "Adolf Hitler." The speaker does not think that "Adolf Hitler can alone be blamed for this war, but the German people as well owing to their admiration for this man." After this a discussion took place on the above subject. The meeting closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer. Committee: Lenna Ewenson, Jean Muirhead, Ruth McLaren, Robert Kidd, James Browning, Robert Aman.

SETTLEMENT OUT OF COURT

London, Nov. 21 (CP)—Out of court settlement of $1,800 in the lawsuit of Mrs. Thos. Allison, London, against London Winery, was announced today. Mrs. Allison sued for injuries received when a winery truck hit her as she alighted from a street railway company bus in May, 1938.

Bata Refuses to Agree To Refrain From Hiring Foreign Labor in U. S.

Boston, Nov. 21 (AP)—Because Jan Bata, Czecho-Slovak shoe manufacturer refused to agree to refrain from hiring foreign labor, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has returned a deposit he paid on the Leominster Mills and "the whole deal is off," John J. Hagerty, New England R.F.C. manager, announced today.

Bata had intended to use the former woollen plant to manufacture slippers.

"We had been trying to get Bata to agree not to hire foreign labor, and when he would not do so I recommended to the R.F.C. Board to call off the deal," Hagerty said.

Former Madoc Boy Wireless Operator on Ill-Fated Freighter

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Lawson Blakely, of Lindsay, Ont., was aboard the ill-fated "Pensilva," British freighter sunk by a German mine yesterday, it was revealed today. Having served as wireless operator on several British ships for the past two years, Mr. Blakely was returning to Scotland on his last voyage in this capacity before sailing for Canada to enlist with the Royal Canadian Air Force in similar work.

Naturally concerned for his welfare, although reliably informed that all members of the crew had been saved, a cable was despatched to the Marconi Company in London early yesterday, a reply being received at 5 p.m. confirming the earlier report that Mr. Blakely, along with the other members of the crew, had been picked up by another freighter standing by.

Mr. Blakely was born in Madoc, being educated there and at Lindsay Collegiate, before taking up wireless work in Toronto where he obtained his papers two years ago, immediately sailing for Great Britain where he has been with the British Mercantile Marine since that time, having visited practically every country in the world.

His return is being awaited by his family in Lindsay, who spent several anxious hours yesterday.

Uncertainty of Fate Greatest Worry to Crew of City of Flint

Baltimore, Nov. 21—(AP)— To the uncertainty of the fate of crewmen on the captured United States freighter City of Flint was added long hours of wakefulness caused by the German crew tramping the deck in hobnailed boots, it was related in a letter received today by Robert Blacker from Carl Ellis, junior third mate on the City of Flint.

The letter, mailed in Bergen, Norway where the ship was released, declared:—

"The Germans were suspicious of everything. If I stood on the deck and stared at the horizon for any length of time on of them would come over with glasses and stare too. One of the first things they did was to take all our cameras and expose the films."

Ellis, who commanded one of the lifeboats that rescued survivors from the torpedoed British liner Athenia, and brought them to Halifax, N. S., said the crew was unable to ascertain where they were going and what would become of them.

The German crew, too, seemed unaware of what was actually going on, Ellis wrote.

DEPOT BATTALION FORMED AT PICTON

Will be Under Command of Maj. Naylor—to be Used as Base for Recruiting

Organization of a depot battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is now under way in Picton, Lieut. Colonel Sherman Young, officer commanding the regiment stated today.

The depot battalion will be under the command of Major Naylor, Madoc, while Captain Gordon Walmsley of Picton has been appointed adjutant. Captain Walmsley, Crown Attorney for the County of Prince Edward has been given leave of absence for the duration of the war. Mr. Wilfred Lane, local barrister, has been appointed acting Crown Attorney during Captain Walmsley's absence.

Used as a base for recruiting, the depot battalion will also function as a medium where volunteers will be given medical and physical examination prior to being transferred to a training battalion. Recruits will eventually be sent to the front as battle reinforcements for the battalions of the regiment in the line.

According to new regulations laid down by the Department of National Defence, youths below the age of 19 will not be sent overseas, Colonel Young said.

MARTIAL LAW IN CITY OF PRAGUE IS NOW ENDED

German Officials Announce "There is Complete Quiet in the City"

8 SCHOOLS CLOSED

Prague, Nov. 21—(AP)— Martial law in Prague and four other Bohemian districts ended today.

German officials announced "There is complete quiet in Prague, no incidents have been noted, and the Czech population is peacefully pursuing work."

However, officials discouraged relatives seeking to intervene on behalf of the 1,200 students who have been sent to concentration camps as a result of the disorders which led to the execution of 12 Czechs.

Such intervention, an official announcement said, would prove "purposeless".

A survey disclosed eight Czech Univeristies and Academies were closed on order of German authorities. Dormitories and offices of the closed Prague schools remained occupied by blackshirted members of the S.S. Elite Guard.

Artillery Used

The London Daily Herald in a dispatch from it Zagreb correspondent reported that 18 university students were executed summarily last week and that subsequent rioting was put down by use of artillery in Prague's streets.

The correspondent gave an unnamed foreign commercial attache as the source of his information, and told this story—

Resentment in Prague over the killing of a Czech student during Independence Day celebrations last week broke out into real fighting when University students pelted with books a Nazi professor who "insulted the Czech nation".

German agents surrounded the institution and were met with a volley of tiles, laboratory equipment and busts of Adolf Hitler.

Machine Guns Spurt

"It was magnificent but crazy," the attache was quoted as saying. "They tumbled down desks and cupboards onto their attackers and the machine-guns of the armored cars spurted into action.

"It took the steel-helmeted Nazis two hours to take the building. The students fought from floor to floor. About 300 were shot and injured before they were overpowered and the (Czech) flag was torn down.

"Eighteen more students were identified by the Nazi professors as ringleaders and were shot on the spot."

Demonstrations followed all over the city. Five Czech police chiefs who refused to act against their people were shot. The next day artillery was used to put down disorders in the streets.

RUMANIAN OIL MONOPOLY SOUGHT

London, Nov. 21—(CP)— Germany is seeking a monopoly on Rumanian oil, Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, told the House of Commons today, as part of a trade drive in the Balkans.

The House cheered Prime Minister Chamberlain, who made his first appearance since suffering an attack of gout.

Minesweepers No Longer Travel in Pairs to Remove 'Lurking Death'

Press Correspondent Reveals Method Whereby Mines Are Removed from Ship Channels

DANGEROUS WORK

(By Jean-Pierre Signy Havas Staff Writer).

Aboard a French Mine-Sweeper in the English Channel, Nov. 21—(CP-Havas)—The devices by which minesweepers root death-dealing explosives from their lurking places under the ocean surface were revealed to this correspondent today.

Vessels probing the waters no longer are forced to travel in pairs, linked by a heavy cable. Minesweeping has been modernized so that one boat with a 24-man crew can do what used to require two. All in all, it is much like deep-sea fishing—but a much more dangerous "sport."

As the first step two wooden, steel-lined fins are released from the stern, one falling to the starboard and the other to the port side of the boat. These, acting as outriggers, hold the drag in proper position. When the fins have submerged, they are followed by two torpedo-shaped floats weighing more than 600 pounds, which bob to the surface 150 or 200 yards apart. The area between them is the drag's field of action.

Pair of Strong Pincers

When the drag catches a mine, the float bobs as if a fish had struck the line. The mine's anchorage slides along the cable to a pair of strong pincers, which cut it in two, sending the explosive portion to the surface where it is then destroyed from a respectful distance.

By night the floats carry a light. The light disappears when the float is drawn under water and the man on watch knows he has a "bite." A searchlight then picks out the drifting mine. Often less than 20 minutes pass between the netting of a mine and its annihilation by a minesweeper of any type. Small vessels, perhaps converted trawlers or tugs, carry on the hunt day and night, neglecting their own security to eliminate the U-boat's "eggs," that may hatch at any moment into terrible destruction.

Former Crown Prince Denies All Rumors

Potsdam, Germany, Nov. 21—(AP)—Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm said today in a signed statement that "all members of the German Royal houses in so far as they are able to bear arms are at the Front."

The prince is confined to his bed with a heavy cold and fever.

"Neither I nor my brothers nor sons nor any member of the Hohenzollern House or any other German Royal House has been arrested or shot," the Prince said.

"Not a single one has been limited in his freedom in any manner. The folly of calumniators goes so far that they let Prince Max of Baden, who died ten years ago, live again as arrested. It ought to be sufficient to refer to the fact that all members of the German Royal Houses in so far as they are able to bear arms are at the Front."

FIREMEN RESCUE HOTELMAN'S SON

Damage to Royal Hotel in Orillia Estimated at $20,000

Orillia, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Firemen ran a ladder up to the roof of the $30,000 Royal Hotel on the main business thoroughfare today and rescued Frank Suter, 17, son of the manager. Thirty guests were forced to the street, leaving behind most of their personal belongings as the hotel was partly destroyed by fire.

Tenants of nearby apartment buildings left their suites while the entire town fire-fighting force concentrated on keeping the blaze, fanned by an east wind, from spreading. Loss was estimated at more than $20,000 for the hotel alone.

DEFENCE BONDS WILL BE SOLD TO BRITISHERS

Will be Purchasable in Units of Five Pounds at Par at 3 Per Cent.

London, Nov. 21—(CP-Cable)—The Treasury will issue tomorrow national savings certificates and defence bonds for sale to the public to help finance the war, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today.

The purchase price of the certificates will be 15 shillings ($3.33). They will have increased to 17 shillings six pence in five years and to 20 shillings six pence in 10 years.

The defence bonds will be purchaseable in units of £5 issued at par with interest at three per cent. They will be repayable in seven years from date of purchase at a premium of one pound per cent.

"The date has not yet arrived," the Chancellor declared, "to issue a loan on the open market."

Citizens to Contribute

The purpose of saving certificates o fdefence bonds was "to enable all citizens, even of small or very moderate mans, to make their contribution."

Individuals will be restricted to the purchase of 500 savings certificates because of their freedom from income tax. Interest on the defence bonds will be subject to income tax but an individual will be limited to £1,000 of the new bonds.

A treasury official, when asked how many saving certificates and defence bonds were expected to be sold, said there was no limit.

"We will sell just as many as we can," he added.

Britain started to use the savings of the people to finance the war in February, 1916. From then until November, 1918, the treasury sold £280,000,000 in saving certificates and continued the scheme during peace.

Study of German Equipment Leads Allied Authorities to Believe Enemy Never Expected War on West Front

London, Nov. 21 (CP)—Study of German equipment has convinced Allied military authorities that the German high command never expected to wage war in the west, the military correspondent of The Press Association reported today.

German tanks, according to these authorities, were resigned solely for the "blitzkrieg" in Poland and are adapted for an attack on the heavily fortified Maginot Line, he said. The German tanks were built for speed, and are not armored to stand up under fire either from stationary matteries on the Western Front or from the heavily-armored, heavily-gunned Allied tank.

The German General Staff, The Press Association correspondent said, apparently had relied on Adolf Hitler's diplomacy to avoid hostilities with the western powers and to limit fighting to Poland. The correspondent said it is extremely doubtful that Germany will be able to build more heavy tanks in large quantities.

Britain, he said, is daily increasing her production of a heavy tank reputed to be the most effective ever designed.

R.A.F. IN FRANCE ON PATROL FOR PARACHUTISTS

Rumors Persist Germans Landed on French Soil by Parachutes

With the Royal Air Force Somewhere in France, Nov. 21 (CP-Reuters)—Hundreds of square miles of scattered territory are being patrolled by Royal Air Force members because of persistent rumors that German parachutists have landed on French soil.

Not a single landing has been traced, so far, qualified sources say. But every rumor is checked.

The Security Police of the R.A.F., whose job it is, in co-operation with the French police, to track down these rumors, have dashed across country on many abortive journeys. One "flying squad" spent two days and nights patrolling a thick wood into which parachutists were reported to have descended. They returned covered with mud but without a single clue.

Another, sent post haste on motorcycles to an advanced position a few miles behind the Maginot Line, they thought for a moment they had made their first capture of the war. In a clearing to which they were directed they came upon four men actually in the act of struggling with an entanglement of silk in which a few moments before they had been sailing earthwards from a plane.

Around these man stood a group of French soldiers with revolvers drawn and bayonets fixed. The Security Police advanced to take the men prisoners.

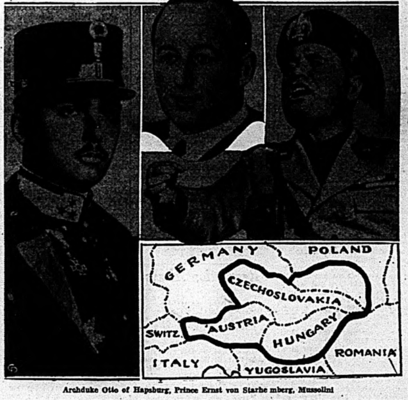
COMPANIES PAY WAGE ARREARS

New York, Nov. 21 — (AP) — Eleven major knitted garment manufacturers and sellers acknowledged in Federal Court today that they had violated the United States wage and hour law.

As a result, 10,000 home workers will receive approximately $250,000 in wage arrears.

The companies consented to the entry of a permanent injunction restraining them from any further violations of the law, either directly or by subterfuge.

AUSTRIAN - CZECH - POLISH CONFEDERATION RULED BY OTTO AND ITALY, IS PARIS PLAN



Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, Prince Ernst von Starhe mberg, Mussolini

Restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty as puppet of a Danubian confederation is regarded as a strong probability by French authorities, according to Paris reports. The confederation would include parts of Poland, all of former Czecho-Slovakia, Moravia, Austria and Hungary (see map). Theory back of the plan is that Germany is blocked in the west by apparent determination of Belgium to side with the Netherlands if the low country is invaded, thus allowing Allied aid to rush through Belgium to reinforce the Dutch. Hitler is regarded as blocked in the east by Russia, on the French border by the Maginot line and in the air by the Allies' growing aviation strength, reinforced by American planes.

This leaves the Reich only the Balkans as a path for expansion, and it is just there that the Allies believe Hitler is weakest because of the dissatisfied conquered population and Italy's antipathy to German domination of the Balkans. Mussolini, it is reported, has promised his benevolent neutrality and possibly military aid to the Allies, if they set up a Danubian union under Italian domination.

Paris observers say Otto of Hapsburg has been called from exile to the French capital to head the new government, and that Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, ex-strong man of Austria, has been charged by the French rulers with helping to form a provisional Austrian government in France, for the time being.

SEEKING BODIES AFTER VENEZUELAN HOLOCAUST

Searchers in boats are shown combing the ruins of the "city on stilts" that was built in the lake of oil near Lagunillas, Venezuela, by the workers that operated the great oil fields in the region. More than 100 are believed to have perished in the blaze that swept over the lake. First estimates of the dead were placed as high as 800.

Gunners Bombed by Flyers At Kingston Arena Putting Wingmen in Tie for Lead

Score 5-3 Win With Rally Coming Early in Third Frame

NEW UNIFORMS

'Toots' Day Former Wembley Lions Player, Adds Punch to Scoring Division

A successful air raid occurred over the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston last night when the winged "Flyers" from the R.C.A.F. swooped down on their military hockey opponents, the Royal Canadian "Signals", and bombed the latter's hockey citadel for five goals as the "Flyers" downed the Signals 5-3 in a George Van Horne Memorial cup series game to have the Holway-led "Airmen" draw into a three-way tie for the hockey loop leadership.

Battling at somewhat even terms for two periods the "Flyers" literally zoomed and swarmed over the "groundmen" in an early third-period attack, that netted them three goals in quick succession and resulted in assured victory despite a last-minute stand on the part of the "flag-wavers." The "Flyers" led 1-0 at the end of the initial session, but the Signals pressed hard to make the count all even at two-all when the middle stanza terminated, but it was with an early third period drive that the "Airmen" flew into victory's hangar and moved into a group leadership with the R.C.A. "Gunners", and Queens University at one win each and no losses credited.

The game saw much close checking and little open hockey as both teams were inclined to group and chase the elusive rubber throughout, and the strong defensive efforts of the defence ultimately kept the scoring at a low ebb.

Day Joins Flyers

"Toots" Day, former Wembley English player, scored the first goal for the Air Force when he rapped home McLeod's corner pass out in the initial period. Early in the middle session Agnew evened matters when he fired the rubber behind Gibson after Roberts had carried the length of the ice, while Smith put the Signals in the lead four minutes later as he worked the puck out from a corner and slipped the "boot heel" into the Flyers' cage. Undaunted the Airmen returned to the attack and were rewarded for their efforts when Legris and McNab combined nicely to again knot the count at two-all before the middle canto terminated.

After a rather cautious opening third period the Holway-led squad moved well to the fore with three rapid goals as Lafferty whipped home Day's well-timed pass and Baldwin took good care of Legris' corner work-out only to have McNab culminate a fine effort with some sensational stick-handling to beat McMahon on a solo effort and make the count 5-2 for the Air Force. On a subsequent scramble around the Gibson-protected Flyer net, Gleason banged home a loose rubber during a scramble to end the hostilities.

The only new player introduced by Manager F-O Stevenson, of the Air Force, aside from the team to have met the Oshawa Generals last week, was "Toots" Day, former Wembley, English player, a native of Ottawa, who added punch to the victors.

The Flyers meet Queens University on Friday night when the leadership of the Van Horne Memorial series will be at stake.

The line-ups— R.C.A.F.—goal — Gibson, defence — Cameron, Higgins, centre—Legris, wings —Baldwind, McNab, subs—Harrison, Lafferty, McLeod, Day, Dryer and Vinnicombe.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

EARL ROBERTSON

Earl Robertson

Last season National league sharpshooters scored more goals against the Americans with Earl Robertson in the nets than against any other team, but you'd have a hard job finding any one who thinks he's the worst puck-stopper in the loop. In fact he was chosen on the alternate Canadian Press all-star team! Earl is going into his third full season with Red Dutton's boisterous crew after breaking into the big time picture in an unusual way. Normie Smith, regular goal-keeper for Detroit Red Wings, was hurt in the Stanley cup finals of three seasons back, and Earl went into the nets as a sub—and scored shutouts over the Rangers in the last two games of the series as the Reds Wings took three of the five games played! He's listed in the books as being 28 and first saw the light of day at Bengough, Sask. Turned pro with the Victoria team in the Pacific Coast league 11 years ago and for years drifted around the minors —San Francisco, Tacoma Edmonton Windsor, Pittsburgh. Bigger than most goalies he is agile on his feet and puts on many an acrobatic display during games, something he's received many opportunities to do keeping rubber out of the Amerks' goal.

TOMORROW: Neil Colville, Rangers.

Basketball Inventor Slightly Improved

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 21 — (AP) —Dr. James Naismith, 78, Canadian inventor of basketball, rallied after a night in which friends feared for his life.

His physician termed his condition "somewhat improved" and not particularly critical early today. His illness had been termed critical after a cerebral haemorrhage last night.

He is Professor Emeritus of physical education at the University of Kansas.

He devised basketball many years ago while an instructor at the Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. training school, now Springfield College.

Dr. Naismith is a native of Almonte, Ont., and graduate of McGill University, Montreal.

AS OTTAWA GAINED 11-POINT LEAD IN BIG FOUR PLAYOFFS

There's no dearth of action in these pictures, taken in Ottawa as the Rough Riders took an 11-point lead over Toronto Argonauts in the first of a two-game home-and-home, total-point series for the Big Four championship, won by the Toronto team for the past two years. At the TOP, Rick Perley, Ottawa outside wing, makes a great tackle to bring down big Red Storey, hard-running Argonaut back. In the LOWER picture, Tommy Daley, one of the many fleet-footed Ottawa backs, is away for a sizeable gain on an extension play. Sitting on the ground are Andy Tommy (50) and Earl Selkirk (61), after the latter had tackled Tommy, who had been carrying the ball, but who passed it to Daley before going down. The second game will be played in Toronto on Saturday.

OSHAWA JUNIORS WIN IN S. P. A.

Defeat Guelph Biltmores 6-3 With Sawyer and Judd McAtee Leading Parade

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—Oshawa Generals, Memorial Cup Champions last year, reeled off a 6-3 victory over Guelph Biltmores here Monday to move into the next round of the S.P.A. junior series.

Upper Canada College defeated Woodstock 9-1 in the junior B curtain raiser.

Oshawa scorers were Jud Mcatee, with two, Roy Sawyer with two, W. Wilson and Norm Mcatee with one each. Guelph scorers were Red Kelly, Vic. Gregg and Ferguson.

In the junior B game, the inexperienced Woodstock team was no match for Upper Canada College, coached by Joe Primeau, former N.H.L. star. The lone Woodstock counter was the final score of the game and came late in the third period on a solo rush by Douglas.

Bill Terry Wishing For Winning Hurler

Winter Haven, Fla., Nov. 21 (AP) —If Santa Claus has any special presents for Bill Terry, he hopes it will be a good winning pitcher.

Arriving here from a brief inspection of spring training quarters, the New York Giants' manager was outspoken about what he would like the whiskered gent to leave in his stocking.

"I just want another good pitcher and I don't care if he's a righthander or a lefthander as long as he wins," Terry confided.

He still has faith in pitcher Carl Hubbell, once voted the National League's most valuable player.

HOCKEY'S "GREAT MAN" RECEIVES AWARD

Receiving his medal as a member of the 1938-39 Stanley Cup champions is Eddie Shore, colorful and capable defence star of Boston Bruins, who is only playing in his team's home games this season, since assuming ownership and guidance of a minor league club. Eddie was not to have played at all until mid-December, but when the Bruins opened the schedule shakily and suffered the loss of one of their other defenders, he got into the first home game. The Bruins won. Frank Calder, president of the N.H. L., makes the presentation here.

A happy band of grid stars are Winnipeg Blue Bombers as they let out a victory cheer after defeating Calgary Bronks in the second game of the Western conference finals, to once more qualify to meet the best in the East in the annual battle for the Grey Cup and Dominion supremacy. After losing the first game of the total-point series, 13-7, on their home grounds, the Bombers came back to score a smashing 28-7 win right in Calgary, to take the round and the Western title 35-20.

EXPERTS PLACE SIX IMPERIALS ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Westies, Balmy Beach and Peterborough Have Two Each

WELL BALANCED

Curly Krug Former Woodstock and Queens Star Chose for Quarter

By JACK CALDER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)— Sarnia Imperials, already grasping one handle of their ninth consecutive Ontario Rugby Football Union senior championship, were recognized today in the election of six players to the league's 1939 all-star team.

Thirteen coaches and sports writers in the four O.R.F.U. cities, who selected the team for The Canadian Press, allotted half the places to the Imperials and two each to Montreal Westmounts, Toronto Balmy Beach and Peterborough. The vote was "weighted" so that equal voting strength prevailed in all cities.

Here is the team:

Flying wing—Joe Woodcock, Sarnia; half—Bernie Moroz, Sarnia; half — Eddie Thompson, Balmy Beach; half (secondary defence)— Johnny Ferraro, Westmounts; quarterback—Curly Krug, Peterborough; snap—Henry Living, Sarnia; inside — Bob Reid, Balmy Beach; inside—Pat Butler, Sarnia; middle — Tommy Burns, Westmounts; middle — Cliff Parsons, Sarnia; outside—Leo Deadley, Peterborough; outside — Ike Norris, Sarnia.

Tribute to Sarnia

It was a tribute to a Sarnia team which has not been so highly regarded as some previous Imperial machines, but which looked good enough to rank with the best in spilling the Westmounts 13-1 in the first game of finals at Sarnia last week.

The bulwarks of the surprising, veteran Oiler wingline were there together with the hard-tackling Norris, the high-scoring Moroz and the pile-driving Woodcock, representatives of the younger element in Art Massucci's rebuilt club.

Given the swift, sure-gaining running of Thompson and the passing and plunging of Ferraro, that team would give Krug something to work with for a change. The selectors realized that Curly, a former Woodstock junior star, got the very best out of Peterborough material that didn't win a game but made almost all of them close.

The team lacks only a great kicker and there really hasn't been one in the Union this year besides Hank Galloway of Sarnia, who missed the early games. But Thompson, who did all Balmy Beach's punting, could do that chore capably enough on this kind of squad.

Moroz Given High Rating

Moroz, who won the eastern scoring championship, was given 22 of a possible 25 votes for one halfback position and the other three for secondary half, while only one selector failed to put Thompson at one position or another and two missed Burns. The rest of the ballots were more evenly distributed, though Living and Ferraro were well up with 19 apiece.

Alex Fleming, who made the mythical team in 1938, drew 11 votes to 16 for Butler and 18 for Reid. Bert Haigh, Balmy Beach's great pass-catching end, was two votes behind Norris and four behind Deadley.

Only Ferraro, Thompson, Reid and Burns were carryovers from last year's team. Hugh Stirling and Mike Clawson, only Sarnia representatives on the 1938 all-stars, have retired along with Ab Box, who made the quarterback post with Balmy Beach in the last campaign.

A Strong Line

Playing despite leg injuries, Living and Butler have helped the aging Parsons build up a strong protective system for the kicking of young Galloway and a charging line to block opposition kicks. That was the kind of play that paid off against the Westmounts Saturday.

Never the spectacular type of plunging lineman, Reid hasn't slipped a bit from the steady style that brought him into the lineup last year. The driving, quick-tempered Burns — the ace line-smasher of the conference—is as different from Reid as night from day yet they are equally desirable.

Deadley was a standout receiver in a Peterborough passing attack that sometimes shoved the adversary right back on its haunches. He and the tall, lithe-limbed Norris would be excellent insurance against end-run weakness.

Receiving plaudits for work well-done is Walter (Turk) Broda, ABOVE, goal-keeper for Toronto Maple Leafs, who in five games has let just two pucks get by him for goals and has posted three shutouts, to lead the National league. Last season he finished second to Frank Brimsek in blanking the opposition.

CALLING 'EM
Between the Lines
with
Ken J. Colling

New uniforms are usually accredited as an omen of bad luck in many sporting circles, but last night in Kingston this old established sport saying was cast into the rubbish and discard by "Toots" Holway's R. C. A. F. "Flyers," when they wore brilliant, and when we say brilliant we mean so much when it comes to colorings, but the fact remains the "Flyers" bombed down their ancient military sport rivals, the R. C. "Signals" to the hockey tune of 5-3 in the Van Horne Memorial series. Actually the Flyers' new unies are, for the greater part, a brilliant scarlet, trimmed with the double blue of the Air Force and their circular emblem, which can be discerned on the wings of all British fighting planes, just something different and really novel. Actually last night's game was far from productive of good hockey as both teams checked strongly, but the experience gained by the Flyers versus the Oshawa Generals last week doubtless proved the advantage.

There was little to choose from for two periods, but early in the last session the Flyers drove hard and flew high, with the result the Holway-led squad rapped home three quick goals in the final stanza and therein lies the entire tale of the game. Coach Holway accepted the efforts of the players who battled the Dominion champions last week, the Oshawa Generals, and only added to his force "Toots" Day, a native of Ottawa, who played for the Wembley Lions last winter. Day really gets around and proved a driving offensive force for the Flyers. Otherwise Manager Joe Stevenson was far from satisfied even in victory and ordered a practice for Wednesday before the Airmen meet Queen's University on Friday In victory the Flyers moved into a three-way tie for the Van Horne Memorial cup series leadership, along with the R. C. A. "Gunners" and Queens, all three having won a game in as many starts. Prior to last night's senior game, Queens junior beat Kingston's best to have "Flat" Walsh's students chalk up their second junior win.

Directly after the Van Horne game last night, Eddie Thomas' Belleville Redmen took to the ice for a practice. The Redmen do not play again in the Van Horne loop until they meet the "Signals" next Monday, but in the meantime the scarlet-clad Belleville squad is losing no time in an effort to get into the pre-season hockey picture at Kingston. Skipper Thomas added Bill Hastie, former Oshawa senior O H A star, to his roster last night, thus assuring the Redmen of additional scoring punch in future games. Skipper Thomas is seriously thinking of adding "Tabby" Gow, the fast-skating Kingston right winger to his team before another practice. In the meantime Prevost and Courneyea, two of Tweed's budding and youthful pucksters are working out with the Redmen in hopes of adding punch to the locals. A driving force continued with the Thomas-led squad as George Pillon, former Trenton lad, got in some much-needed practice. Pillon will doubtless elevate the defensive efforts of the Redmen and we can't see a Van Horne play-off this year without the Belleville sextette being well in the picture.

The mail brings along an anonymous letter from a "Prince Edward Fan" condemning our report on last week's Redmen-Gunners' Van Horne Memorial cup game. The writer suggests we just "can't take it," which may or may not be true depending entirely on "what we have to take." However, when the Prince Edward Fan says "the fans all know Eddie Thomas will never have a winning team," he possesses a poor memory or maybe a limited knowledge of the game. For his information we might remind our anonymous letter writer that Eddie Thomas' Belleville Redmen of 1937 brought the only O.H.A. championship to Belleville in the history of the game in this city. Actually whether or not there was a score in Kingston by the Gunners in the matter of question, we were not in a position to see, but unbiased Kingston fans and the entire Belleville team were convinced there had been an unavoidable error, as the puck doubtless struck the goal post.

Do you remember when Georges Vezina, great goalkeeper of Montreal Canadiens, took his position in the net for the last time fourteen years ago tonight? Vezina went into the game with a temperature of 102 and retired at the end of the first period. He died March 28, the following spring.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—Henry Armstrong is 2-1 over Lou Ambers in opening quotations . . . They fight Dec. 1 . . . St. Louis newspapers say Brooklyn Dodgers can have Joe Medwick if they're willing to break up their infield and part with Cooky Lavagetto and Pete Coscarart . . . One up and coming southern football school took a star halfback away from two other bidders merely by making him a Christmas present of an overcoat last July.

Except for a February title defence against Ben Brown in Miami, there is nothing in sight for Billy Conn, the light-heavyweight king. Texas Christian and Fordham have signed for a football game at the Polo Grounds in 1941.

Johnny Longden, Taber, Alta., jockey, finished the 175-day New York racing season with 96 winners to his credit, 39 behind Don Meade who led the pack with 133 firsts . . . Basil James was second with 134 and Ronnie Nash, Toronto apprentice, fourth with 85 . . . Longden was handicapped by a 10-day riding penalty.

Bob McCully, New Haven right winger in the International American Hockey League, scored on three out of four penalty shots last season and has banged home one out of one so far this season.

RED GLOW CAUSES MYSTERY

Matane, Que., Nov. 21 (CP)—Far out on the St. Lawrence River, a red glow which they thought might be a blazing ship was reported yesterday by Philippe Smeltzer and Rodolphe Otis.

Smeltzer and Otis said they saw the glow from this south shore town 200 miles below Quebec for about a half-hour early Sunday. It disappeared as suddenly as it lit up the sky, they said.

Inquiries at River Orts in this district brought no reports of missing craft.

Poor Old Gabby's Still On Hot Spot in Chicago

By Irving Vaughan, Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Mr. Hartnett Mr. Wrigley

Chicago, Nov. 21—For the time being Gabby Hartnett, the Cubs' boss, appears to have weathered the storm which, upon the closing of the city series with the White Sox, began to swirl about his throne.

His employer, P. K. Wrigley, has swallowed his disappointment over the fourth place finish and subsequent flop in combat with the Sox. Hartnett, instead of being bounced as was threatened, is to remain at least until after the 1940 race is under way.

Worst Yet to Come?

But will the season's opening bring another storm so violent that the recent unpleasantness will seem by comparison, only a mild breeze?

Gabby is already in as tough a spot as ever was occupied by any big league manager, but he should be consoled by one thought, which is that if he can fight his way out his future as a leader will be assured.

Wrigley owns the ball club, and what he chooses to say about it for publication is his own business. If he is only fifty per cent. sold on Hartnett as a manager, that also is his own business. But what will be the attitude of the players under Hartnett's command next season? Will they respect his authority? Or will they hold him in disregard and thus precipitate his finish?

The above mentioned internal condition might not arise, but the seed for it has been planted. There's still time for Gabby to rout out the objectionable seeds if he can find them. And there is still time for Wrigley to squelch possible internal rebellion by giving Hartnett a vote of confidence as well as a few ball players above a mill-run standard. The latter are not easily obtained over night.

Must Have Pennant

Hartnett will be expected to win a pennant. Barring extensive trading during the winter he will have to perform the feat with a weak hitting team, a team which is shy on steady pitching and has weak catching unless Hartnett himself can continue to carry the receiving load. He can do the catching well enough, but will have to supply some of the missing power from his own bat. He slumped off as a hitter last season and next season will be a year older. And he will have all those extra worries to carry, not to mention Dizzy Dean.

Hartnett already has some definite ideas about trades but can't be induced to uncover any of his secrets. He's reserving those for the annual meetings at Cincinnati early in December.

Montreal Canadiens In Tough Assignment

Boston, Nov. 21 (CP)—Undefeated in four games, Montreal Canadiens will try to extend their streak tonight in a National Hockey League game against the world champion Bruins in Boston.

It's a tough assignment for the Habitant Flyers for beating Boston at any time is a full night's work and beating them in their own lair ranks among major jobs. In addition the Bruins, after dropping their first two games, have scored two victories and a tie in their last three.

Canadiens have their eyes set on first place, however, and can gain this objective with a victory. A win tonight will place them in a tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, who like the Habitants, have not yet been beaten.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows were sitting on Shorty Judge's front steps watching Mary Watkins throwing bread crumbs out in the street to some pidgins, and some sparrows flew down and started to eat too and the pidgins left them do it without trying to shove them away or anything, proving all kinds of people can get along together if they only act reasonable, and Shorty Judge said, Talking about birds, we had a canary once, and the only time it ever sang was when we sat down in the dining room to eat, because it knew we liked music with our meels. How's that for intelligent? he said.

Well talking about birds and meel times, how about the parrit we used to have? Glasses Magee said. When we came down to breakfist this parrit always said, Good morning and right after supper it always said, Good night, and it never got them twisted, so that proves it knew what they meant. So speaking about intelligent, he said, and I said, Well what was intelligent about saying Good night right after supper, you didn't go to bed right after supper I hope.

No, but the parrit did, Glasses said.

Being a good answer, and Sam Cross said, Well while we're on the subject of birds and meels, my uncle had a ostritch.

Sam Cross being the most famous liar around, and Skinny Martin said, Aw, where could anybody keep a ostritch?

Out in the desert, where my uncle raised cactuses, Sam said And whenever it came time for this ostritch to eat it would stick its head in the sand and think it was invisible, so my uncle had to dig another hole and make a little tunnel to the ostritch's head and roll eggs and potatoes down, he said, and I said, Well good night even if any ostritch every really did that, you dont call that being intelligent, do you?

It was intelligent of my uncle, Sam Cross said.

Being the end of the subject on account of us fellows changing it in diskust.

TORONTO BOXER WINS TOUGH ONE

Spider Armstrong, Although Outweighed, Earns Decision Over Mannie De More

New York, Nov. 21 (CP)—Johnny (Spider) Armstrong of Toronto trounced Mannie De More of Pittsburgh in a gruelling eight-round bout here last night at the St. Nicholas Palace.

Armstrong weighed 125 1-2, De More 128.

De More was wild with his blows and Armstrong parried with a flurry of one-two punches that punished the Italian's face and body. In the fifth round the Canadian stung his opponent with a sharp left hook and followed with a right to the ribs that almost sent De More through the ropes.

De More staged a brave rally in the last two rounds but Armstrong bobbed and weaved, boxing his opponent carefully to win seven of the eight rounds.

Personal Triumph

Second player this season to score all his team's goals for a victory was Polly Drouin, ABOVE, centre on Canadiens' fastest set of forwards, who beat Dave Kerr in Rangers' goal twice, once in overtime, to give his team a 2-1 win in New York. Dis Desilets, of Chicago, had done the same thing earlier in the season.

Fritz Hanson, Western Canada's most famous grid star, is tackled in the open field by Calgary's Bob Cosgrave, on one of his many runs during the Winnipeg-Calgary final game, won by the Bombers, 28-7. Hanson played a sensational game, going over for two major scores and gaining 192 yards personally during the game.

High-stepping, ground-gaining Andy Bieber, one of the younger stars in the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' backfield, is stopped by two Calgary tacklers, after breaking free for one of the many big gains he made during the western final that saw last year's champions rally from a six-point deficit to defeat the Brinks, 35-20 on the round, and earn the Western crown for the third successive year.

Life in the air force in England wouldn't appear to be too arduous if this picture is any criterion. Tommy Farr, the Winless Welshman in all his fistic ventures on this side of the Atlantic, is seen here exercising greyhounds and at the same time himself, as he prepared for a fight in Dublin, which he took time out for recently. And which he not only won, but did so by a knockout!

A LUSTY LIGHT - HEAVYWEIGHT LEFT IS LANDED

Billy Conn sends one of his rapier lefts to the side of the head of Gus Lesnevich, during their fight a few days back for the North American branch of the world's light heavyweight championship. Conn successfully defended his claims to the crown by a 15-round decision.

Mud in Your Eye

By FRANK L. PARKE

He had, Jud Draper decided amiably, more things to be grateful for than any other young man in America. He was grateful to the hospital authorities for releasing him into the world on such a May morning. When the deep coat of mud which roofed the walk was all there was left of winter.

He was grateful, too, to the city fathers. For having foreseen the mud. And at the first sign of spring having stretched our rods of stout, wide boards to outwit it. He was grateful finally, to the doctor. For having taken some fourteen odd scraps of bone in a bag of twisted flesh and having made of them something a hundred and eighty pound of man could move about on. And for meeting any and all situations with the liberally and unclassifiably accented announcement that "We moost approshe this busyness of leewing with coo-rash, with deeg-neety an' with humore!"

Which was, Jud was beginning to believe, not a formula to be sneezed at. As he made the turn to Washington's statue he made out in his mind a list of items to be treated by the doctor's nostrums. First he would have to get that leg into serviceable shape. Then he would have to see what handsprings his office had taken in his absence.

And then he saw the girl.

He saw her and stopped. There wasn't much of her but what there was had lovely brown hair and a small, happy mouth. She was sitting on one of the benches watching what were pigeons or doves, or perhaps both. Jud didn't know. All he knew was that he couldn't stand there watching her forever. Much as he would have liked to.

He hurried on, and after he passed her, he knew something else. Knew it as surely as he knew that he was Jud Draper and that he had a bum leg. He knew that no matter how far he went or how many lifetimes he spent going there he would never see anyone half as lovely as she!

Which was, of course, ridiculous. You might, in the course of events, see a pretty girl, even an uncommonly pretty girl on a park bench. And you might, perhaps, decide that she'd be exceptionally swell company on a dance floor or around the festive bowl or on the afterdeck of a yacht. But a decision like that didn't throw dynamite into your heartbeat. It didn't make you want to pull up trees and push over buildings. And that was what Jud felt like doing. Game leg, cane and all.

He could, he knew, do the conventional thing. He could walk right up to the girl and mutter, "I beg your pardon, but didn't we meet at —" and he would garble the last word into an unrecognizable hash. To which, if Jud were any judge of women, the girl would say, "On your way, John Silver(on your way!"

And quite right, too. But that didn't butter any toast. And there would be no point in attempting to follow her, find out where she lived. The bum leg couldn't be depended on for that sort of effort. Suddenly he remembered the doctor and his counsel concerning "coo-rash, deeg-neety an' hu-more." He turned and went back towards the girl. This time he didn't stop and look at her. But apparently he didn't pay as much attention to his walking as he should have. For when he was just abreast of her, the heel of his cane slipped from the board and landed in a puddle, sending a fine spray of muddy water at the bench and at the girl.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, and covered her face with her hands. Instantly Jud's good knee was supporting him on the bench beside her and he was taking over the job of holding her head and tenderly demanding. "Where?"

The girl hesitated and then she said, "I think it's this one." And she pointed to her left eye.

Expertly Jud whipped a clean handkerchief from the pocket of his coat.

"Just a second," he promised her confidently, "and everything will be under control." But it took more than a second before Jud poked his handkerchief back into place and twisted into a more conventional position on the bench. She was lovlier than he had thought. "I'm glad," he told her, "I was worried. A thing like that," he informed her profoundly, "can be very serious."

The girl nodded. "I know," she agreed. "My grandmother caught a cinder in her eye on her first train trip. And sixty-four years later she died in bed."

When they had finished laughing, Jud said, "I'm Jud Draper."

"Not," the girl demanded, "Jud Draper of the U.S.A.?"

Jud bowed. "The very same," he told her simply.

The girl held out her hand. "I'm Carolyn Hughes."

"Haryuh, Carolyn?" said Jud.

"Haryuh, Jud?" said Carolyn.

"A little worried," he admitted. "I'd thought of mentioning lunch."

"And," Carolyn inquired, "something stands in the way?"

"Yes," he confessed. He reached for his stick and stood up. "A guilty conscience," he informed her. "I've got a hunch—no, that isn't right—I've got a conviction that you and I are going to see a lot more of each other. and don't want to start off on the wrong foot." He paused uneasily and then he blurted, "Carolyn, that wasn't any accident. I splashed that mud in your eye on purpose!"

Carolyn smiled and stood up. "I know," she told him and she linked her arm in his. "I know, Jud, but it missed me!"

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 21 —(CP) — Brantford liveweights, up 5 cents Monday, added another 10 today to record only price change on bacon-hog markets.

Liveweights Brantford $8.50, Chatham $8.35.

Dressedweights: Barrie $11.65, Brantford $11.40, Chatham $11.45, Hamilton $11.50 plus transportation, Hull $11.30, London $11.25 plus transportation, Stratford $11.25 plus transportation, Peterborough $11.25 plus transportation.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 21 — (AP) — Question marks continued to surround the Stock Market today and leading issues, after a feeble rallying gesture, settled down in narrowly irregular territory.

The ticker tape crawled throughout and, near the fourth hour, small fractional declines exceeded minor plus signs.

Bonds and commodities were moderately mixed and foreign securities markets no better than steady.

Stocks lacking rising vigor were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Goodyear, United Aircraft, Anaconda, American Can,., U.S. Gypsum, Sears Roebuck, Santa Fe and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Chipped fractionally lower in the Canadian group were Lake Shore, Distillers and Hiram Walker. Dominion 4s improved modestly in the bond market.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—Stocks on Toronto Exchange today continued their downward drift throughout the early session and the indices were off .20 to .50 by noon. Selling was fairly heavy in some of the cheaper issues and one or two of the higher-price listings. Stadacona, Homestead and International Petroleum were offered in volume at lower prices.

Acona weakened to 23, off 8c on a rumour that the company was proposing to put out a bond issue. Announcement that Homestead will increase its capital brought heavy offerings into the market and the price dropped 2 cents to 5 1-4.

Foods, Steels and Oils were the weakest industrial groups and Anglo-Canadian, Okalta and Home were soft spots in the Western Oil list.

Prisoner at Cobourg On Hunger Strike

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP) — S. A. H. Hoffman of Orono, arrested last Friday by Royal Canadian Mounted Police on a charge of breach of Canada Defence regulations, is still maintaining the hunger strike, which he started the day he was brought into jail.

Hoffman told the court in Bowmanville yesterday, when he was remanded for a week, that he had not eaten since last Friday. Hoffman, who is a farm hand is strong and heavy and for this reason the hunger strike is not worrying jail officials or the jail doctor, fo. the time at least .

"A big fellow like him can go on for a long time without eating. Maybe he'll eat when he goes hungry for a while. Anyway, we can't make him eat," said Fred Wight, Governor of the County jail at Cobourg.

The Jail Governor stated also that Hoffman, in refusing food, gives no reason for his action.

Egg Market Prices Steadier

Toronto, Nov. 21—The egg market presented a steadier tone at recently reduced prices here yesterday, but interest continued to lag in butter.

Although fresh receipts increased slightly, spot supplies were well cleared with improved demand for fresh eggs on the egg market. Buying, however, was only to cover daily requirements.

Buyers were bidding lower prices on the butter market, but no sales were recorded below previous levels. Trading remained on a light scale. Prints moved through retail channels at unchanged prices. Dealers quoted No. 1 grade churning cream from 28c to 30c, on truck country points.

Montreal Produce

Cheese: Ontario white, current receipt price, 16 3-16—16-9-16; Ontario colored, current receipt price, 16 1-4—16 5-8. Receipts: 1,098 boxes.

Eggs: Graded shipments in-used free cases, selling price, A-large, 40; A-medium, 32; A-pullets, 30; B-large, 26; C 20. Receipts, 1,288 cases, including 1,000 export.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—Dealings were fairly active and steady on good quality slaughter cattle but slow on common grades at mid-session on the Toronto Livestock market today. The calf division was weak while lambs and sheep held steady. No hog price was set. Cattle holdover from Monday was 1,400 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were: cattle 1,400; calves 810; hogs 1,230; sheep and lambs 790.

A few weighty steers traded at $6-$7.50 and butcher steers and heifers ranged from $5-$7.25. Butcher cows made $4-$5 and canners and cutters sold mostly at $3-$3.50. A few butcher bulls brought $5-$5.25 and bologna bulls made $4.10-$4.65. Fed calves sold from $7.50-$9 and stockers moved slowly at $5.25-$6.60.

Choice veal calves sold at $10-$10.50. Common vealers brought $8 and rough grassers traded at $4.50-$5.25.

Previous close on dressedweight hogs was $11.65-$11.75 and $8.65-$8.75 on off-trucks.

Lambs delivered by rail sold at $10 and at $9.75-$9.85 delivered by truck. Other grades made $7.50-$9.

Sheep held at $2.50-$5.50 cwt.

Montreal, Nov. 21—(CP)—Prices ruled steady to firm on Montreal Livestock Markets today, with cattle easing slightly, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Receipts: Cattle, 334; sheep and lambs, 269; hogs, 771; calves, 195.

Cattle offerings were mostly common to just plain quality cows and bulls with a few mediums bringing $4-$4.75 and common butchers $3.25-$3.75.

Although there were no tops in veals, one lot of medium good to good brought $10. Lights brought as little as $7, while drinkers ranged from $5-$7 and grassers from $4-$4.50.

Good ewes and wethers made $9.75-$10. Heavy lambs were cut $1 per hundredweight, while culls and bucks were cut $2. Sheep ranged from $3-$5.

Hogs held at $9 for bacons fed and watered with $9.25 off trucks, while selects drew $1 premium, with regular cuts on off grades. Sows made from $6-$6.50 and hogs sold on rail grade brought $12 hot weight.

MISSION CONCLUDED

London, Nov. 21—(CP)—A Turkish military mission concluded conferences with British authorities to-day and left for home.

(Previously it was indicated a mission planned to purchase British planes and war materials. The allies were reported to have granted Turkey $100,000,000 in credits for arms purchases. Great Britain and France have a mutual assistance agreement with turkey.)

ONE OF CREW

Another German raider yesterday flew over the Orkney Islands, British naval base north of Scotland, but it was also driven off by anti-aircraft guns.

The Admiralty announced Nazi air raiders had made "an unsuccessful bombing attack on a British destroyer in the southern part of the North Sea.

Officials said the Trawler Mastiff sank after striking a German mine.

Another Naval Vessel Sunk

Another British trawler was reported sunk by a submarine off the Irish Coast today. It was not disclosed whether this was a naval vessel.

(A Lisbon dispatch reported two British freighters had been attacked yesterday by German warships off the Spanish west coast.)

One man, leading seaman H. A. White, died as result of injuries received in the Mastiff sinking. Five were officially listed as missing and three were gravely wounded.

The missing were listed by the Admiralty as follows: Seaman William Clarke, Petty Officer Stoker Alexander Duncan, Leading Stoker Charles Elson, Seaman G. W. Horne and Leading Seamon W. D. Main.

Trawlers of the Mastiff's class normally carry crews of 30.

One of the Mastiff's crew was killed and five were missing, according to a preliminary casualty trawler was worth about $200,000.

The Mastiff, displacing 490 tons, was one of the newer additions to the British force of light vessels. It was laid down Jan. 27, 1937, and launched Feb. 17, 1938. It carried one four-inch gun and two smaller weapons.

The Mastiff may have been engaged in the search for German mines which had been blamed officially for the destruction of nine of the 10 merchant ships sunk over the weekend with 134 persons dead or missing.

Loss of the trawler came on the 21st anniversary of the German Fleet's surrender after the last war. The Fleet was interned at Scapa Flow, but was scuttled by its German crewmen June 21, 1919.

A Submarine Victim

Of four losses disclosed yesterday, only the 4,915-ton British vessel Arlington Court was listed as a submarine victim. Eleven of its crew were missing. Another was dead in the lifeboat from which The Netherlands steamship Algenib rescued 22 after the sinking off the Irish coast Thursday. The survivors were landed at Cork today.

Other losses disclosed yesterday were the British Pensilva, Torchbearer and Wigmore, all sunk by mines.

(There have been 136 vessels with gross tonnage of 543,228 lost in the war at sea. The cost in lives has been more than 2,000.)

Largest of the five neutral vessels sunk in the weekend of sea disasters was the 8,309-ton Simon Bolivar of The Netherlands. An officially-revised casualty list showed 85 persons missing or dead, superseding earlier estimates of 140. Sixty-six of the casualties were passengers.

Ineffective Surface Raiders

London naval writers interpreted the minings as the result of the comparative ineffectiveness of submarines and surface raiders. Some speculated whether magnetic mines had been introduced. Authorities in Berlin have denied German mines caused the shipping losses, heaviest in any week since the war began.

Existence of a new German surface raider was reported by Reuters News Agency. It said the 16,662-ton German liner Windhuk slipped out of Lobito Bay, Angola (Portuguese West Africa) on Friday, and quoted German residents there as saying the ship was starting a wartime career for which she was built in 1936. They were quoted as saying the liner carried full equipment for raiding, and was disguised to resemble a British ship.

Rationing to Start

With Great Britain and Germany aiming at each other's food and supplies, the Food Ministry announced rationing of butter and bacon to start in Britain some time after consumer registration is completed Thursday.

Morning newspapers devoted much editorial space to the German mine laying which The Daily Herald called "ruthless and discriminatory."

The Daily Express said that Brittain could, if she chose, retaliate with a terrible weapon.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, "has only to touch a bell on his desk at the Admiralty to have plans of the world's most terrible secret weapon brought out of their steel hiding place," the paper said. It did not elaborate on the remark.

The Daily Herald said that German's use of mines would completely justify extension of Allied contraband control to cover German exports as well as imports.

The Herald said that use of magnetic mines undoubtedly was the "secret weapon" Hitler threatened to bring into play against Britain.

Not Entirely Secret

"The secret was not entirely secret," the paper added. "Admiralty scientists have already been at work on ways and means of encountering it.

"It may be effective for a while, but not for very long. It is a ruthless and indiscriminatory weapon and cannot distinguish between warships and merchantmen, between belligerents and neutrals."

"That the Nazi Government is guilty of another atrocity is not open to question,' said The Times. "The outrage against humanity is distressingly visible at the hospitals in London and elsewhere in which survivors, largely women and children and all non-combatants, are being tended.

"Nazi propaganda, never hampered by considerations of consistency, will presumably take its usual course of hailing the destruction of British ships as a triumph of German naval skill and daring, while proclaiming that the mines that sank neutrals were personally laid by Mr. Churchill.

Dublin, Nov. 21 (CP)—Survivors of the 4,915-ton British freighter Arlington Court said today a U-boat, firing two torpedoes in quick succession, sank their ship without warning last Thursday, 200 miles off the Irish Coast.

Twenty-two crew members were landed by the Netherlands rescue ship Algenib. Nineteen of them were taken to hospital. Eleven members of the crew were missing and an officer was dead.

Claude Boothby, Second Officer of the Arlington Court, said he was chatting with the radio operator Thursday afternoon when an explosion rocked the vessel. The crew had time to lower the lifeboats and get into them. Ten minutes after the first blast the U-boat, which remained throughout at periscope depth, sent a second torpedo into the vessel. The ship sank 30 minutes later.

Boothby said the sea was heavy and he and his companions had to row all night to keep the lifeboat afloat. The Chief Engineer, H. Pearson, died of the cold on Sunday.

LIBERALS RETURN

Vote of Confidence

The Premier described the result as "a vote of confidence in the Government," and said that "although the majority has been reduced that fact will not hamper the Government from going forward with its progressive policies."

Mr. Squires said the vote showed "conclusively that the people at least appreciate our efforts, even if we did not catch their full support."

"Let us make another start from such a strong vantage point and it will not be long before ultimate victory will be ours," he said.

Conservatives gained 16 seats from the Liberals who elected 43 members in the 1935 election. Standing at dissolution of the 38th Legislature showed 39 Liberals, five Conservatives and four vacancies.

Both Leaders Win

Both leaders won handily in their constituencies. Mr. Dysart, with 6,473 votes, led his nearest Conservative opponent in Kent by 2,720 votes, while Mr. Squires, elected in Carleton, polled 934 votes more than the highest Liberal.

The defeated Cabinet Ministers were Attorney-General J. B. McNair, who lost out in York, and Hon. E. J. Henneberry, President of the Executive Council, and Dr. A. P. Paterson, Minister of Education, Federal and Municipal Relations, both of whom were defeated in Saint John City where the Liberals lost four seats.

So close was the voting in Albert County that returns there first showed one Liberal elected and a Liberal and Conservative tied for the second seat. A check up, however, gave the Conservative, Lewis Smith, a former Agriculture Minister, a three-vote margin.

127 SHIPS ENTER

Tonnage of the vessels searched, it was said, totalled 245,455. Because the ships or their cargoes were not subject to seizure under prize laws, they were discharged, DNB stated.

In addition, the report said, several hundred other merchantmen were halted on the High Seas for search, but released immediately.

The German command, meanwhile reported Nazi reconnaissance planes had "accomplished their tasks according to schedule" in flights over England and France "despite enemy defence."

Scouting Assignments

A communique, which noted only minor activity on the western front, said scouting assignments had been carried out over Scapa Flow, Scotland, Southern England and an area north of Paris.

The text of the communique:—

"In the west, minor scouting activity and weak artillery fire at some points on the front.

"The German Air Force continued reconnoitring activity against enemy states Nov. 20. In England, Scapa Flow, Scotland and Southern England, and in France an area north of Paris were reconnoitred despite enemy defence. The planes accomplished their tasks according to schedule."

LACK

said the Reichswehr needs 17,000 more officers.

On the front the quiet was disturbed in two areas last night, the regions south of Saarbruecken and north of Bitche. Patrol activity was marked in these two sectors and was accompanied by artillery fire on both sides .

In Alsace the further rise of the Rhine forced both the French and the Germans to take new precautions along the river banks.

Northern France experienced a two-hour air raid alarm today.

The alarm, given at 10.45 a.m., was ended by an "all clear" signal at 12.45 p.m.

Several Madoc Residents Fined for Non-Payment Of Their Radio Licences

Madoc, Nov. 21—(Special to the Ontario - Intelligencer) — Delinquents who have enjoyed the entertainment of their radios, but who neglected to purchase their current year's radio licence, found this practice rather costly in yesterday's County Police Court held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in this village. The names of nine persons were called in open court by an Inspector of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission charging the nine with the illegal operation of a radio-telegraph apparatus, contrary to the Dominion Transportation Department regulations.

Written pleas of guilty were given His Worship in each incident, all of which were accompanied by a one dollar fine, plus $2.75 costs. The radio Inspector assured the court that all the delinquents had procured their radio-telegraph licences prior to their acceptance of guilt.

Charged With False Pretenses

James J. Shirley, Bancroft, appeared on a charge of false pretenses and was given a year's suspended sentence upon the payment of the costs of the proceedings. "I am told that this man took orders for suits of clothes, accepted small down payments, but apparently and conveniently proceeded to forget delivery," retorted Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., who prosecuted.

Fined for Keeping Gaming House

Charged with keeping a common gaming house, Gerald Quinn, of Tweed, pleaded guilty and paid ten dollars and costs, the minimum fine under the law. Quinn, it was established in court, operated a pin machine in his place of business and was convicted as the result.

OBITUARY

LOTTIE MAUDE BONISTEEL

In the passing of Lottie Maude Bonisteel, wife of Mr. William W. Bonisteel of the Front of Sidney, the community has lost one of its most valued citizens.

Born in Sidney 54 years ago, she was a daughter of the late Samuel and Annie Horton Windsor.

The greater part of her career was spent in her home community, where she was highly respected and where she gave excellent service in every good cause and for the betterment of conditions in neighborhood life. Of pleasing personality, she won her way into the hearts and lives of those around her and her simplicity of character attracted a host of true friends.

In the midst of health, Mrs. Bonisteel was suddenly stricken with a heart attack and died very suddenly. In April 1937, she was married to Mr. William W. Bonisteel of the Front of Sidney and during this short period of residence here, her contribution to all worth while enterprises was of an outstanding order.

The sincere sympathy of the entire community is extended to the sorrowing husband in his hour of bereavement.

The funeral was held from the family residence. Rev. Mr. Mercer conducted the service. The bearers were: E. Curtis, C. Ketcheson, R. Ketcheson, S. Reid, C. Rush and A. Jones.

Interment was made in White's Cemetery.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, November 22
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

EVENTS MOVE rapidly toward ambitious goals on this day, judging by the benefic chain of planetary configurations. These promise conspicuous achievement in affiliation with large and important groups and organizations, where innovation, fresh methods and high ideals hold sway. The young and progressive may attain high place, possibly by means of quick intuitions or insight into live issues of public, financial or educational importance.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves under highly stimulated, expansive and liberal urges during the year, with many high ideals, noble purposes and ambitious objectives pushed to pleasant and powerful culminations. Public, group and idealistic issues seem involved, and there is a prospect of substantial co-operation from powerful interests.

A child born on this day may be brilliant and adaptable to many splendid achievements in life through its alertness, keen grasp and intuitions. It may have liberal, generous and humanitarian ideals, possibly lifting it to public service and popularity.

RUSSIAN FLEET

(Russia asked a naval base on the north coast of the Gulf of Finland, a strip of territory north of Leningrad and concessions in the Finnish Arctic. In return Russia offered Finland a larger section of Soviet Karelia.)

Holding Gunnery Practice

Admiral Tributz said Soviet ships now were making cruises from their new Baltic bases into the open sea for gunnery and target practice. The Russian Admiral expressed "the regret of Soviet Baltic sailors," that Finland refused the Russian offer. He added:

"In Finland we hear but the rattling of cars and the call of war with the U.S.S.R. . . The dark game of Finnish ruling circles favors incendiaries of war who aim to use Finland as a base for hostile plots.

"No obstacle will ever break our decision to establish a strong peace over the Finnish gulf to safeguard Soviet borders, the great city of Leningrad and friendly Baltic countries. The red bannered Baltic fleet is ready at any minute."

2 British Freighters Attacked By German Warships, Reported

Lisbon, Nov. 21—(AP)—The British liner Hilary wirelessed today that two British freighters had been attacked yesterday by German warships off Cape Finisterre on the West Coast of Spain. The message gave no further details.

(The German pocket battleships Admiral Scheer and Deutscnland have been reported to be at large. The Admiral Scheer was last reported off the east coast of South Africa.)

RETALIATION STEP

This will mean a concentration on neutral shipping because Germany has practically no ships at sea.

During the last war, Mr. Chamberlain recalled, exports of German origin or ownership were made subject to seizure on the High Seas as reprisal for submarine attacks on merchant shipping.

He said that the wholesale sinking of ships since the beginning of the week-end, many of them neutrals, was the result of German laying of mines in violation of The Hague Convention which the Reich signed.

Convention is Explained

Mr. Chamberlain made his statement in reply to private notice of a question by Major Clement Attlee, Labor opposition, as to whether the government proposed to take any action as a result of the laying of mines.

Explaining that if unanchored mines were used they must become harmless one hour at the most after those who laid them lost control over them. Mr. Chamberlain said that none of these provisions were observed by Germany in laying mines resulting in recent ship losses.

The sinking Japanese liner, which could be seen from the shore, carried a crew of 180 and 26 passengers one of them British. A lifeboat and other craft went to the rescue, and some survivors were brought to shore.

No Lives on Jap Ship Believed Lost

Offices of the ship's owners said they had received no word of casualties and believed no lives were lost.

One man was killed and five others were missing in the sinking of the Mastiff. The traweler exploded against one of the mines it was seeking to clear from the seas. The crew of the other minesweeper lost during the day was landed at a northern Ireland port.

German planes flew over Kent, the east coast and northern Scotland and the Orkneys. Royal Air Force pursuit craft brought down the German plane which approached the east coast, while the others were driven off.

The 5,065-ton German freighter, Rheingold, captured by British war vessels, was brought into a Scottish port. She was carrying a wheat cargo.

In announcing the government's intention of seizing German export, Mr. Chamberlain said:—

"The House will be aware that during the last three days upwards of 10 ships—six of which were neutrals—were sunk, with a very serious loss of life, by German mines.

"The Hague convention, to which Germany is a part and which she announced her intention of observing as recently as Sept. 17 last, provides that when anchored mines are used every possible precaution must be taken for the security of peaceful navigation.

"This is the very essence of the convention as a mine cannot discriminate between a warship and a merchant ship, or between belligerent and neutral.

"The convention particularly requires that the danger zone must be notified as soon as military exigencies permit.

"If unanchored mines are used, they must become harmless one hour at the most after those who laid them have lost control of them.

Provisions Not Observed by German Government

"None of these provisions have been observed by the German government in laying the mines which have occasioned the losses I have mentioned and this fresh outrage is the culmination of a series of violations of agreements to which Germany has set her hand.

"I need only recall the sinking of the Athenia, with a loss of 112 lives and the subsequent destruction of British, Allied and neutral vessels by mine, torpedo or gunfire.

"These attacks have been made often without warning and to an increasing extent with complete disregard of the rules laid down in the submarine protocol to which Germany subscribes, or the most elementary dictates of humanity.

Retaliation for Violations

"His Majesty's government are not prepared to allow these methods of conducting warfare to continue without retaliation.

"I may remind the House that in the last war, as a measure of justified reprisals for submarine attacks on merchant ships, the exports of German origin or ownership were made subject to seizure on the high seas.

"Many violations of International Law and the ruthless brutality of German methods have decided us to follow a similar course now, and an order in council will shortly be issued giving effect to this decision."

Cheers greeted the statement.

It was 1915 before the Allies decided to seize German exports in the first Great War as a reprisal against unrestricted submarine warfare.

Severe Blow at Germany

The British government believes Germany will be hit a severe blow by the confiscation of her exports. Germany's gold reserves are depleted and she has led a hand-to-mouth existence in so far as Foreign Exchange is concerned. Only by exporting can the Reich buy Rumanian oil, Swedish ore and other essential products of which she has depleted supplies.

The British government's decision to confiscate German exports will be aimed chiefly at the shipping of Holland and Belgium and to a lesser extent the Scandinavian countries. The neutral countries are almost sure to lodge protests but Britain feels she must take that risk.

German Reliance on Russia

It was impossible to estimate here the volume of Germany's seaborne exports since the war started but they are believed to be considerable.

One possible effect of this industrial blockade of Germany is to force her to rely more than ever on Russia. Sources close to the British government believe Germany at present is not receiving vast quantities of war essentials from Russia because the Soviets are not anxious to accelerate this trade beyond normal proportions and also because communications between the two countries are poor.

Machinery for enforcing the new blockade has not been set up and it could not be learned whether German exports would be confiscated or impounded until the end of the war.

Rabbit Only Casualty And This Taken as Present to Goering

New York, Nov. 21—(CP)— The small rabbit that British officials said was the sole casualty of a recent German raid on the Shetland Islands has been flown to Germany as a gift to Air Marshal Goering, according to a London special cable to the New York Herald Tribune today.

A member of the Royal Air Force dropped the prize and an explanatory note during a reconnaissance flight over the Reich, the dispatch said.

Four German planes loosed a dozen bombs in the vicinity of the Shetland Islands, off the Scottish coast, Nov. 13. While the Germans claimed two flying boats had been sunk and a warship damaged, British officials said a tiny rabbit was the only casualty.

TWO SEVERE QUAKES FELT

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—Fordham University announced that two "severe" earth shocks were recorded on the seismograph today, at an indicated distance from New York of about 8,000 miles.

The shocks were at 6:15:09 and 6:1608 a.m. (EST).

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)— A 21-year-old youth was held on a murder charge today after authorities said he confessed strangling an 80-year-old woman because she upbraided him for asking her for money.

A few hours after the body of Mrs. Henrietta Lohman was found in her Bronx apartment last night, a towel twisted around her neck, police arrested Lawrence Frise, whose mother had been reared by Mrs. Lohman.

German Bomber Flies Low Over Sutherlandshire

London, Nov. 21.—(CP)—A German bomber flew at low altitude today over Sutherlandshire in Northern Scotland.

The plane disappeared flying northward. Eye-witnesses reported they could clearly see German insignia on the lower side of the wings.

Air raids warnings were sounded in the Orkney Islands, off the northern tip of Scotland, and all-clear signal come after 40 minutes. The Scapa Flow naval base is in Orkneys. Three planes were reported over the Islands, but no bombs were dropped.

LIMITED LINGUALISM

London (CP)—The War Office has announced a "gratifying response" to an appeal for language specialists, but regrets many applicants' actual knowledge was confined to "a few phrases of love and abuse."

BODIES RECOVERED

Gunn, Alta., Nov. 21—(CP) — Bodies of Jack Adams, 17, and William Lodmell, 18, were recovered from Lac Ste. Anne today. The boys broke through the ice during a skating party Sunday. Gunn is 35 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck Did Not Make Contemplated Trip to Montreal

Montreal, Nov. 22 (CP)—A group of shivering admirers waited in vain at St. Hubert airport last night for Robert Taylor, film star, and his wife, actress Barbara Stanwyck.

Even an official announcement that the couple had cancelled their trip failed to dispel the crowd, which awaited for the New York plane, a half-hour overdue. But the Taylors didn't appear.

The couple, now in New York, were to have paid a three-day visit to Montreal.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Air, a food! Man breathes about 34 pounds of air daily, supplying the body with about two-thirds of its energy. The amount of air breathed in by anyone weighs about five times as much as his food. Air, then, is an extremely necessary commodity, and considerable study has been made to ascertain what is the best air. It was found that its temperature should be about 68 degrees, with humidity between 30 and 70 per cent. To be most invigorating, air should be moving, it is then considered fresh. If it should be necessary to cool it in summer, its temperature should not be much below that of outside air; if outside air is 95 degrees, then the cooled air should be about 80 degrees.

G. B. S. Wants Special Provisions For Vegetarians

London, Nov. 22 (CP Cable)—From his apartment a mere carrot's throw from rationing headquarters of the Ministry of Food, vegetarian George Bernard Shaw today penned an anxious letter to the press. He said:

"May we ask for an official assurance that when rationing begins special provision will be made for vegetarians? For some unexplained natural cause vegetarians are the most ferocious class we have and any under-feeding of them would produce a reduction in our national fighting spirit out of all proportion to their numbers."

'Every Day That Passes Finds Us Strong'—Story of Defence Work Told

GAMELIN CONFIDENT

By L. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 22 (CP Cable)—It is a war of endurance, with time on the side of the Allies, Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary for War, told the House of Commons when reporting on the general military situation today.

"Every day, that passes finds us strong," the War Minister declared. "On the economy of the enemy the passage of time has not the same effect. To win he would have to break through the Allied defences. An assault upon theso is awaited with confidence by the French Supreme Commander (General Gamelin).

"On our side we can afford to choose our opportunity. There is no dissension in our ranks. There are no conflicting councils. Our strategy is predetermined and so is the issue in this struggle."

Britain is sending thousands of men to France each week to reinforce the original British Expeditionary Force of 158,000 officers and men. Nearly 1,000,000 men are under intensive training in Britain.

CLIMAX QUARREL BY TWO DEATHS

Gunplay Follows Quarrel Over Alleged Theft of Four Dollars

Aberdeen, Wash., Nov. 22 (AP)—Two men were shot to death and a woman injured in gunplay and fire that climaxed a quarrel over $4.

Police Chief George Dean tells it this way:

William Gressner, mill worker, accused a son of his landlady, Mrs. Glenice Ostrich, of stealing $4. Mrs. Ostrich fled. Gessner opened fire. A bullet nicked her finger.

Frank Pergestrom, filling station operator, attempted to protect her. Gessner shot him.

Gessner then set fire to the Ostrict house with gasoline and was badly burned as the fluid exploded.

Joe Ostrich, 15, shot and fatally wounded Gessner, who confessed killing Fergestrom before he died.

France Joins Great Britain in Making German Exports Subject to Seizure at Sea

Paris, Nov. 22—(CP)— The waiting war on the western front settled back into routine, the French high command indicated today.

Its communique said: "nothing important to report during the night."

French General Staff said that German artillery began to boom yesterday in a sector of the Alsace front where such action has never before been noted.

Military analysts said this development may be highly significant, and may herald a determined offensive by the Nazis.

The General Staff has definite information that the long-awaited major Nazi land offensive was to have started between Nov. 12 and 14, with co-ordinated invasions of Belgium and the Netherlands and high-powered assaults on French positions in Alsace and Lorraine, accompanied by thrusts across the Rhine where it forms the Franco-German border.

PARTY STRENGTH MAY BE RAISED

Corrected Counts May Give Two Liberals, Reported Defeated, a Majority, in New Brunswick

Saint John, N.B., Nov. 22 (CP)—New Brunswick speculated today over the choice of successors in the Provincial cabinet to three ministers defeated in Monday's general election while the possibility arose that the victorious government's representation in the legislature might be increased by two.

J. B. Leger, Returning Officer in Restigouche County, indicated last night an official count next Monday of votes cast in Restigouche might give victory to two Liberal candidates reported defeated on the basis of unofficial returns election night.

According to Leger corrected returns gave majorities to Philibert LeBlanc and Samuel Moores, Restigouche Liberals, over Conservatives Henry Diotte and David Stewart.

Confirmation of the Returning Officer's corrected count next Monday would increase the re-elected government's following in the 48-seat legislature from 27 to 29 and leave the Conservatives with 19 seats.

Meanwhile the government leader, Premier A. A. Dysart, faced the task of naming successors to Attorney-General J. B. McNair, Hon. E. J. Henneberry, President of the Executive Council and Hon. A. P. Paterson, Minister of Education, Federal and Municipal Relations.

Alaska Native Travels 400 Miles After Being Wounded by a Bear

Seward, Alaska, Nov. 22—(AP)—His left arm shattered and his chest punctured, Alexis Ungyah, 57-year-old native, arrived yesterday with a tale of killing a brown bear in a hand-to-hand battle, with only a trap line.

The fight occurred two weeks ago seven miles from his cabinet, more than 400 miles west of here. Ungyah said the wilderness battle began after he shot the charging brute in the mouth. With the bear hugging, clawing and biting, the native succeeded in freeing his uninjured arm and slashing the animal to death.

News Chronicle Says 700,000 Troops Massed Near Olomouc

ITALY INTERESTED

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—The News-Chronicle today reported German preparations for an attack on Rumania through Hungary.

"Reliable reports from Prague state that over 700,000 German troops fully equipped for action are now massed in the protectorate near Olomouc and Moravska-Ostrava," the newspaper said. "It is firmly believed there that the Reich intends to launch an attack on Rumania through Hungary in the near future.

"Strong rumors in Budapest state that Italy has promised help to Hungary in case she should be attacked by Russia or the Reich. No official comment is available, but it is widely believed here that Hungary would not give the Germans permission to march through Hungarian territories."

JAPAN TO KEEP TROOPS IN CHINA FOR LONG TIME

Order Will Persist Until China Freed of Communist Menace

MAY HOLD PARLEY

Tokyo, Nov. 22—(AP)—Premier Nobuyuki Abe announced today Japan would keep troops in China until "China is entirely free from the Communist menace."

In a statement published by the Japanese Press, the Premier said the garrisons would operate under an anti-comintern pact which Japan would conclude shortly with a new government for China along the lines of the anti-comintern pact of Japan, Italy, Germany, Hungary and Spain, but separate from it.

The Japanese Government, he said, is trying to establish peaceful relations with the Soviet Union and after demarcation of the border between Japanese - protected Manchoukuo and Soviet-supported outer Mongolia another commission likely will be established to mark other borders.

Parisians Permitted To Dance Sunday

Paris, Nov. 22—(AP) — The French Government will relax its war measures and in the interest of tradition and marriage, permit Parisians to dance next Sunday for the first time since the war began.

They will celebrate the festival of the 1914 class of "Catherinettes," girls who have reached the age of 25 without marrying.

The fete of Saint Catherine every year is one of the most picturesque of Paris carnivals. On this day the "Catherinettes" don special bonnets and set out in search of husbands.

In the evening there are balls to which the "Catherinettes" invite their special candidates for matrimony. These dances, which will take place Sunday this year although the actual Saint's day is Saturday, must end by 11 p.m., the wartime closing hour.

CRERARIMPRESSED WITH MAGNITUDE OF BRITISH TASK

Romance of War Has Been 'Blacked Out' Says Canadian Minister in Radio Address

LITTLE EXCITEMENT

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—People of England and France are mobilizing "every atom of their strength" in the war against Germany, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Canadian Minister of Mines and Resources, declared in a broadcast to the Dominion today.

As a member of the party of Empire Ministers in London for discussions with the British government, Mr. Crerar just completed a tour of the war operations in England and France, including a visit to the front line.

Romance of war had been "blacked out" the Minister said, and people everywhere were grimly engaged in playing their part in the struggle, realizing that the war could not be fought and won entirely by military forces in the field.

Discussions with the Empire Minister had been most helpful, Mr. Crerar said, in revealing the complexity of the problem and providing suggestions for meeting it.

Quiet Resolution

"In Great Britain it is impossible not to be impressed with the spirit of quiet resolution one finds everywhere," he declared. "But there is little warlike excitement or the blaring of bands.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Suggestions the ships sunk off the east coast of England in the last few days were victims of magnetic mines give rise to speculation as to whether the terrible new weapon Adolf Hitler threatened to use against Great Britain is now in use.

Germany's intensified illegal mine-laying probably is designed to terrorize neutral shipping, rather than effect an actual reduction in the amount of goods reaching British ports by sending ships to the bottom. In this respect it may have the effect of inducing other neutral countries to adopt in practice the cash-and-carry principle embodied in the amended United States Neutrality Act.

American ships by law are prevented from carrying goods to the United Kingdom. If the Germans can frighten other neutral countries into keeping their merchant ships out of British waters Great Britain will have to rely entirely on British merchant shipping to carry the goods required by the civilian population and the war industries.

The fact that British authorities will not be caught unprepared for such tactics is evidenced by British shipbuilding activity. For months past British shipyards have been working at capacity and since the outbreak of war the ship-building industry has continued to speed up construction.

No country in the world is better prepared to meet such a threat than Great Britain because of its huge merchant fleet and its shipbuilding capacity. One of the measures which would probably be taken to repair any shortage caused by the withdrawl of neutral ships from the services entering British ports would be the renewal of British merchant ships operating in other parts of the world, in other words a more effective mobilization of the British merchant marine for service in and out of British ports.

MUNICH PLOTTER CONFESSES CRIME SAYS GESTAPO

George Elser Held for Bombing in Which Adolf Hitler Nearly Lost His Life

BRITONS CAPTURED

British Press Says Berlin Tells "a Fairy Story" and Story of Arrest "Fantastic"

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP) — The Gestapo announced today that a Munich plotter had confessed the Nov. 8 attempt on Adolf Hitler's life, and that two British operatives had been seized.

Heinrich Himmler, Chief of the Secret Police, said George Elser, 36-year-old resident of Munich, planted a time bomb in the Nazi beer cellar shrine there at the instigation of Otto Strasser, long-time Hitler foe, and with funds furnished by Great Britain.

He did not link the two captive Britons specifically with the blast, but accused them of organizing plots in Germany.

Himmler said that in trying to reach Switzerland, Elser was caught the night of the explosion, which killed eight persons and which Hitler escaped by 11 minutes.

GERMAN PLANE FLIES OVER BASEL

Only Yesterday Nazis Voiced Regrets for Violation of Frontier by Plane

Brne, Nov. 22—(CP—Havas) — Less than a day after Germany's regrets for border violations were conveyed to the Swiss Government, a German plane again crossed the frontier near Basel, the Swiss General Staff charged today.

A Swiss communique said that during considerable aerial activity plainly visible from Swiss territory yesterday, a German plane flew over Basel, coming from the direction of Alsace, and headed into Germany.

On Monday the German Minister in Berne, Otto Kocher, said plane violations were due to faulty radio direction-finding and bad weather.

All Sailings From Dutch Ports Cancelled

Amsterdam, Nov. 22—(AP)—Netherlands ship owners, on advice of their government, today cancelled all sailings from Dutch ports.

No explanation was given but the step followed announcement by Great Britain yesterday that German export cargoes on neutral vessels were subject to seizure on the high seas.

The ship owners met to consider the current hazards to shipping, including danger from mines.

The Holland-America liner Rotterdam left Rotterdam early today for New York before the ban was enforced. Doubt was expressed the Statendam would return from the United States until the situation is clarified.

Ten million tons of German exports were trans-shipped from Rotterdam and Amsterdam in the first nine months of 1939.

British Intercept Foe Ship Near Iceland

London, Nov. 22—(CP)—The Admiralty announced today that a German ship, the Bertha Fisser, had been intercepted by a British warship near Iceland.

A brief announcement said the German ship, the Bertha Fischer, ship and took to the boats, and that they later were picked up by a British warship.

The Bertha Fischer is a 4,110-ton freighter, built in 1919, belonging to the Emden firm of Fischer and Von Doornum.

'A dispatch from Reykjavik, Iceland, indicated the German freighter may have been shelled. The dispatch reported that a freighter "of uncertain identity" was shelled by a warship off the Iceland coast, and that it later was breaking up on the rocks. Wreckage drifting ashore carried the name "Bertha Fischer," the dispatch said, although the name "Ada" and the registry port of "Bergen" were painted on the vessel's side.)

Ship Holed Badly By the Explosion But Still Afloat

Latest Addition to Growing List of Sunken Ships is Trawler Delphine Sent to Bottom by German Sub—British Airplane Flies Into Balloon Barrage and Two Occupants Killed

London, Nov. 22—(CP)—The Italian Steamship Fianona, 6,660 tons, was reported today to have struck a mine off the southeast coast of England.

The ship was holed badly by the explosion, which occurred last night, it was said, but still was afloat today while tugs tried to pull her into port.

None of the crew of thirty-three was reported injured. It was not at once clear if the Fianona carried any passengers.

The damage to the Italian liner was announced just as observers in London foretold swift acceleration of the war at sea in view of Britain's new measures of retaliation for what Prime Minister Chamberlain described as the "ruthless brutality" of German attacks on merchant shipping.

HUNGARY EAGER FOR STRONG PEACE

Foreign Minister Says Country Will Not Enter "Neutral or Other Blocs"

Budapest, Nov. 22—(AP)— Nations of Southeastern Europe had Hungary's assurance today that she is eager for peaceful relations with her neighbors, although determined to protect her own interests and those of "Hungarian populations beyond her frontiers."

The assurance was delivered by Foreign Minister Count Stefan Csaky, who told Parliament last night Hungary was "not inclined to warlike adventures."

At the same time, however, Csaky declared Rumania's attitude toward Hungarian minorities in Transylvania "had not made too encouraging an impression on Hungarian public opinion."

Csaky said Hungary would enter no "neutral or other blocs" with countries against which she has claims, unless an effort first were made to ease the differences.

While avoiding direct mention of Hungary's claims to Transylvania, which she lost to Rumania after the last war, the Foreign Minister suggested Rumania should cooperate "in the formation of a modern world in the Danube."

"I regret sincerely," he said, "that certain governments are not disposed to understand the language of the times."

TOLEDO SCHOOLS CLOSED

Toledo, O., Nov. 22—(AP)—This was the last day of school until Jan. 2 for 45,000 Toledo children.

Financially embarrassed, the School Board closed classes for six weeks to save expenses, including $400,000 in 1,300 teachers' salaries.

3 German Fliers Rescued in Rubber Boat in North Sea and Taken Prisoner

London, Nov. 22 (C)—German air raiders bombed the Shetland Islands today and set fire to a Royal Air Force seaplane in two sharp thrusts.

An official communique said:

"A raid warning was sounded in the Shetlands this morning. An unsuccessful bombing raid was carried out by German bombers. The attack driven off bw anti-aircraft fire.

"The enemy then attacked with bombs a Royal Air Force seaplane lying at its moorings and set it on fire. We suffered no casualties."

The Air Ministry also announced the R.A.F. made "successful flights" Monday and Tuesday over Stuttgart, Frankfort, Hamburg and Bremen.

Anti-aircraft guns also roared in South Essex during the afternoon, but villagers said no planes were visible. An east coast anti-aircraft battery fired a dozen rounds at a German bomber flying out to sea. British planes followed the Nazi aircraft.

STAMPS TAKEN AFTER OFFICE IS ENTERED

Employing a glass cutter to remove a portion of the glass permitting them to reach inside and unlock the door, robbers broke and entered the office premises of the Quinte Feed Company, George St., and after looting the premises stole about $1.00 in stamps. Two small two-pound bags of flour are also believed to have been included in the loot. The office cash register and furniture was all ransacked, indicating to investigating police that money was undoubtedly the object of the intruders. This building was entered last week and the premises ransacked, at which time nothing was reported missing, however.

POLICE QUITE ACTIVE DURING THE NIGHT

Activities in and around city police circles were quite active during the past 24 hours, armed robberies and break-ins being reported. City authorities were also asked to assist in the possible recovery of a motor car reported stolen at Peterborough last night. The vehicle was equipped with Ontario licence plates number 91-V-94 at the time it was taken. Continued cold weather has resulted in increased numbers of transients seen seeking shelter at the police station each succeeding night. Seventeen cold and shivering transients were given shelter in Belleville last night.

Car Found Afire After Thieves Drain Gas Tank

Believed to have originated when persons unknown removed gasoline from the tank, fire did considerable damage to a car owned by John T. Kolver, Toronto, parked in the rear of the Zeller's store shortly after nine o'clock last night.

The tank-cap of the car was missing when firemen and police arrived, while beneath the rear end of the vehicle a gallon jug was discovered.

Four gallons of gasoline had been drained from the tank, Kolver stated. The blaze, which considerably damaged the paint on the car, was discovered by Lionel Westfall of this city. Police are of the opinion that the culprits received burns while committing the theft when they, it is believed, lighted matches in the vicinity.

Members of the Fire Department raced to the blaze following an alarm and reduced the flames before more serious damage was done to the automobile.

ORBEY ALYEA GIVEN MONTH

Driver's Licence Suspended for Life by Mr. Justice McFarland

Picton, Nov. 22—(Special)—One month in Picton gaol and suspension of his driver's licence for life, was the sentence meted out to Orbey Alyea by Justice McFarland in Supreme Court here yesterday. Alyea had pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a motor car in a manner dangerous to the public.

Alyea was originally charged with manslaughter but the charge was reduced to one of dangerous driving after a consultation had taken place between the presiding Justice, the Crown Attorney and the counsel for defense. Alyea pleaded not guilty to manslaugter but guilty to dangerous driving.

The charge was laid as a result of the death of Edward J. Simmons, who was fatally injured when struck by a car driven by Alyea on No. 14 highway. Simmons was crossing the highway at the time.

Candidates for Municipal Honors Obliged to Sign The Oath of Allegiance

Must Also Present Declaration That Taxes Are Paid on Property on Which They Qualify

NOMINATIONS FRIDAY

Candidates for municipal honors this year, whether aldermanic, mayoral, trusteeship on the Board of Education or commissionership on the Public Utilities Commission must sign an oath of allegiance to His Majesty King George VI, as well as presenting certificates of payment of taxes and declaration of qualification, City Clerk J. Wilfred Holmes stated this morning.

The oath of allegiance clause is in accord with new legislature passed which authorized the attachment of the clause to the Municipal Act.

The period of time for nominations for Mayor will be between the hours of 10 and 11 on the morning of Friday November 24th, with that for aldermen, trustees, and Public Utilities Commissioner being between the hours of twelve o'clock noon and one o'clock p. m. on the same date. Elections will take place on Monday December 4th.

Advance polls will be open for the convenience of railroad employees, and commercial travellers on Thursday, November 30th and Friday and Saturday, December 1st and 2nd.

According to the system in vogue for the election of school trustees in which four and five trustees are elected in alternate years, five members of the Board of Education, H. B. Fetterley, Lieut. Col. E. A. Geen, the Rev. A. B. Payne, Charles Hyde and F. R. Wotten, will relinquish their seats on the Board of Education and become eligible for re-election.

Ratepayers this year will be asked to vote on two questions relative to the suspension for municipal elections for a period of two years or for the duration of the war.

About 60 Recruits Needed to Fill Quota Of H. & P. E. Regt.

Following the "weeding out" of youths under nineteen years of age, who are not permitted to go overseas according to new Department of National Defence regulations, there are approximately sixty vacancies in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Lieut. Colonel Sherman Young, Officer Commanding the unit, stated yesterday. Recruiting to fill the vacancies has already started, he said.

Since the organization of the Hastings and Prince Edward Depot Battalion, Lieut. Jack Leavens, road-superintendent for Prince Edward County, has been called for service with that organization.

Routine X-ray examination of all enlisted men of the regiment designed to locate cases of pulmonary trouble such as incipient tuberculosis, has been started, it is reported.

Beauty of Canadian Rockies Shown on Screen at Albert College

Members of the Ladies' Guild of Albert College, some two hundred and fifty all told, were taken on a delightful illustrated tour of the Banff and Canadian Rockies region last night through the medium of pictures, and a highly informative commentary by the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, principal of the college.

The colorful scenes that are nationally famous, and all the beauty and majesty of Canada's finest scenic wonderland, were ably described by the speaker, and greatly enjoyed by his audience.

Outstanding features of the program included the masterful rendition of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" by Leo Riggs, and vocal solos by Mrs. (Dr.) G. H. Stoble and James Bankier.

F. WOODS HELD AFTER FRONT ST. STORE ENTERED

Police Charge Man With Breaking, Entering and Theft, After Probe

NO BAIL GIVEN

When John Shannon, Front St. grocer, returned to his place of business to check the premises before retiring shortly before 11.00 p.m. last night, he was surprised to find a man crouching inside the front door of the premises. The man suddenly leaped out of the darkness of the store, brushed Mr. Shannon aside and escaped into the street, where he was seen running up a nearby alleyway. Two R.C.A.F. Airmen gave chase and recovered some money the man is said to have dropped, as he successfully evaded his pursuers. When he first opened the door of his store, Mr. Shannon did not observe that the plate glass window in the door had been broken, allowing the marauder's entrance.

Later Constables Ellis and Arnott arrested one Floyd Woods, who resides in an apartment above Mr. Shannon's store on Front St. and Woods was held in custody and without bail pending further investigations after Mr. Shannon stated to police that Woods "resembled" the man who ran out of his store. Besides some $3.00 in cash abandoned in a nearby alleyway and recovered by R.C.A.F. Airmen, police revealed today they found goods in a mattress and allege Woods placed them there.

Some cigarettes are also said to have been stolen.

"I was out having a cup of tea in a nearby restaurant before going home. I always try my store door before leaving and after having the tea walked back to my store and tried the door. It was unlocked and as I opened the door suddenly a man sprang from behind the window display and rushed past me, before I realized anything was wrong," Mr. Shannon informed city police.

Subsequent police investigations revealed that a hole had been cut in the store window with a glass cutter and the portion cut pushed out permitting the intruder to reach in and unlock the door from the inside. Some goods were strewn around the floor indicating the person responsible worked in the dark. Woods was remanded without bail for breaking, entering and theft charge, Chief Kidd stated.

New Traffic Lights Will be Ready for Service in Few Days

The new traffic light system recently installed at the Front and Bridge Street intersections and Victoria and Front Street, will go into permanent operation within the next two or three days, O. H. Scott, of the Belleville Utilities Commission stated this morning.

Traffic lights which will take the form of flashing beacons, instead of the "stop and go" system used at the other corners, will be installed at the Victoria Avenue-Pinnacle Street and Pinnacle Street-East Bridge Street corners within the next two weeks.

Testing of the lights at Victoria Avenue and Front Street was successfully carried out this morning, but synchronization of the entire system will not take place until all cable work has been completed.

The new system, it is believed, will eliminate a lot of the "jay-walking" that took place while the old central system of traffic-control was in vogue. Pedestrians and motor vehicles alike will move with the "green light". This in turn, it is believed will also eliminate the possibility of accidents occurring at the various intersections.

OBITUARY

MARY M. CALDWELL
(Stirling)

Stirling, Nov. 22 (Special)—After an illness of two weeks duration there passed away at her Front Street residence, one of Stirling's oldest residents in the person of Mrs. Mary Matilda Caldwell, widow of the late Sylvester Caldwell, who predeceased her some forty-nine years ago.

Deceased, who was in eher ninety-first year was born in the town of Wellington, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Martin. She had been a resident of Stirling for well over sixty years moving to this village from Frankford, where she spent several early years of her life and received her academic training. In religion she was a faithful member of St. Paul's United Church and was active in the women's organizations as long as health permitted.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. D. Turner, Whitby, Ontario; Mrs. J. F. Powell, Vancouver, British Columbia, and Miss Della Caldwell, Stirling, Ontario. There are also eight grandchildren.

The funeral service will take place on Thursday, November 23rd., at 2.30 p.m. from St. Paul's United Church with service conducted by Rev. W. J. Scott of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, assisted by Rev. James E. Beckel of Rawdon United Church, Stirling. Interment will be made in the Stirling cemetery.

JAMES FEENEY
(Formerly of Tweed)

The death occurred at the residence of his son, Rev. J. F. Feeney, "The Rectory" of the Sacred Heart Church, Wolfe Island, Monday, of James Feeney in his 86th year.

Deceased had been around as usual Monday, passing away about 5 p.m. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Feeney and was born at Madoc. For the past four years he had lived with his son, Rev. J. F. Feeney, residing at Tweed prior to that, where he was held in high esteem by the community. He had been a lumberman for many years but had been retired nine years.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Rev. J. F. Feeney, Wolfe Island; four daughters, Rev. Sr. Brigid of St. Anthony's Hospital, Rock Island, Ill.; Mrs. Harold McCarney, Gananoque; Mrs. Desmond Gehan, Fort William; Mrs. Joseph Madden, Rock Island, Ill.; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Forstall, Marmora, and two brothers, John in British Columbia and Fred of Madoc.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning to the Sacred Heart Church, where requiem mass will be sung at 10 o'clock. Interment will be at St. Carthage Cemetery, Tweed.

LATE MRS. R. N. SAMPSON
(Lonsdale)

The funeral of the late Mary Gordon Sampson, wife of R. N. Sampson, was held on Monday afternoon, Nov. 20th, from her late residence Lonsdale.

The services were conducted by the Rev. C. T. Olmstead, Pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Belleville, of which the deceased was a member.

Mrs. Sampson was born at Brighton Ont., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Bruce Gordon. In her early life the family took up residence at Kingsford and since then she had resided in that neighborhood.

Her loss will be keenly felt in the community in which she lived. Her sterling qualities and Christian character made her a friend of all who knew her.

Left to mourn her passing besides her husband are two sons, Albert of Marysville and Milton of Napanee and three daughters Mrs. C. S. Pope, Toronto, Mrs. W. G. Anderson and Mrs. H. J. Andrews, Belleville.

Interment was made in Lonsdale Cemetery.

REV. A. B. PAYNE HEARD AT CLUB

Men's Club of Christ Church Hold Social Evening and Enjoy Address

With Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church, as the guest speaker of the evening the monthly meeting of the Men's Club of Christ Church was held in the church parish hall last evening with upwards of 150 members and visitors from many parts of the district welcoming Rev. Payne home after an extended visit and tour of the British Isles.

Rev. Mr. Payne spoke on the subject of the air defence and mobilization in England during the period of his visit. The speaker gave an educational word picture of the efforts of the British and their unquestionable spirit of loyalty whenever the Empire is threatened. Rev. G. G. Wright, rector at Chrish Church, introducted the speaker of the evening and also welcomed him back from his recent tour, while President Horace Wright of the Men's Club of Christ Church, thanked Rev. Mr. Payne for his exceedingly educational and enlightening discourse.

During the evening entertainment was provided by Harold Barrett, soloist, George Cornish, with humorous and entertaining readings and Willis Jackson with selections on the banjo, while Ray Lennox proved a capable accompanist and Bert Hanks acted as song leader for the community singing.

Following Rev. Payne's lecture refreshments were served and later a social evening was spent during which Harry Law won a basket of groceries in a drawing. There were many visitors from the surrounding district.

ARMED ROBBER ENTERS DUNDAS ST. SHELL STATION

Ernie Woodcock, Attendant, Forced Into Grease Pit at Point of Revolver

POLICE NOTIFIED

Brandishing a revolver, an armed robber held up Ernie Woodcock, gasoline service station attendant at the Shell Oil service station on East Dundas St., shortly before 4.30 a.m. this morning and rifled the cash register taking in the neighborhood of $10.00 and also an additional ten dollars from an office desk. The armed robber forced Mr. Woodcock into the grease pit adjoining the station office and threatened him if he tried to escape or give an alarm. Later the robber ran out of the building and easterly along Dundas St. where he entered a parked automobile, in which it is believed an accomplice was awaiting him. They sped off in an easterly direction.

Mr. Woodcock was returning from putting a motor car into storage, when he was met at the door by a man, who displayed a revolver and ordered Mr. Woodcock to "be quiet and get down into that grease pit before you get hurt". It was after Mr. Woodcock was in the grease pit that the robber rifled the office desk and cash register and secured in the neighborhood of $25.00.

After the robber had left the premises Mr. Woodcock immediately notified city police, Sergeant Booth and two constables hastening to the scene. The men were travelling in a grey colored motor car, Mr. Woodcock informed the authorities. Eastern Ontario police were immediately notified of the hold-up by Belleville police and this morning Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard and Mr. Woodcock went to Cobourg, where Chief Wm. Carey was holding two men, who were travelling in a grey colored motor car. Mr. Woodcock stated it might be difficult for him to identify the man, as he secluded his features well. "I think I would recognize his clothing, however", Mr. Woodcock told police today.

ALLAN DEMPSEY IN R.A.F. IN ENGLAND

Allan Dempsey, formerly of Edgewater Farms, Ameliasburg, is now a member of the Royal Air Force "somewhere in England" according to communications received by friends. Mr. Dempsey is taking courses in physical training and expects to become an instructor at the conclusion of his course.

According to the letter, he had several months experience packing apples with "Mr. Spencer W. Mount of Canterbury, the best apple grower in the United Kingdom." He saw the Queen and Royal Princesses on several occassions and has also become acquainted with several members of the staff of Canada House.

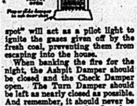
HEATING HINTS

by James Stewart

ALTHOUGH banking the fire is a very simple operation, many people have trouble with it. Let me explain the method that I have found the most satisfactory.

First (and only if it is necessary to make room for fresh coal), gently shake the fire until you see the first red glow in the ashpit. Then with a shovel or hoe pull the live coals toward the front of the furnace, so that the fire bed slopes downward towards the back. Shovel the fresh coal carefully into the hollow thus formed. And, as in refueling, be sure to leave an exposed spot of live coals right in front of the fire door. This "hot spot" will act as a pilot light to ignite the gases given off by the fresh coal, preventing them from escaping into the house.



When banking the fire for the night, the Ashpit Damper should be closed and the Check Damper open. The Turn Damper should be left as nearly closed as possible. And remember, it should never be necessary to leave the fire door open when the fire is banked. If you follow this procedure, your fire will stay in for the night and will deliver ample heat when you open the drafts in the morning. (4)

GASOLINE
THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

Nearly Seven Million Miles a Year

WITHOUT A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Each morning this telephone man climbs into his green truck and goes about his job of making telephones talk. Safety rides with him as he drives through city streets and over country highways.

Last year he, and other Bell Telephone men throughout Ontario and Quebec, drove 810 telephone cars and trucks more than 6,750,000 miles—the equivalent of 275 trips around the world—without a serious accident. There were a few scratched fenders to be sure . . . but over 700 regular Bell drivers received safe Driving Awards last year, and many of them have driven six or more consecutive years without an accident of any kind. Bell drivers have often been the means of saving life and helping the injured, for every one of the 810 vehicles carries a First Aid kit, and 95 per cent of all outside Plant workers are proficient First Aiders.

Safe, courteous, considerate driving is an important part of a telephone man's training. Safety, the duty of every good citizen to his community, is one of this Company's goals as it goes about its job of furnishing good telephone service at low cost to the user.

EVERY DOLLAR YOU GIVE

WILL HELP SAVE LIVES, RELIEVE SUFFERING

The RED CROSS needs your help—Now!

DURING THE LAST WAR, the Canadian Red Cross raised in Canada 9 millions of dollars for the benefit of Canadian soldiers. The Canadian Red Cross contributed an additional 6 million dollars to the British Red Cross to assist in its great work. The Canadian Red Cross also sent to the front 347,000 bales of goods conservatively valued at 20 million dollars. The total contributions of the Canadian Red Cross in the last war amounted to approximately 35 millions in cash and goods.

Now the Canadian Red Cross has again swung into action. Faced with definite tasks which had to be undertaken at once, the Canadian Red Cross has already pledged itself to carry out the following undertakings:

1. To build and equip a 300-bed hospital for Canadian soldiers at Taplow, England. This is to be called Canadian Red Cross Hospital Number One. The cost of this undertaking is conservatively estimated at . . $250,000
2. To purchase wool, cloth and all types of materials for the immediate needs of Red Cross branches throughout the Dominion. For this purpose, the Canadian Red Cross has already borrowed from Canadian banks and has expended, or appropriated for immediate expenditure $408,000
3. To furnish all branches of the Red Cross in Canada with the wool and other materials they need for the next eight months (conservatively estimated at $150,000 a month) $1,200,000
4. To carry on the normal work of the Red Cross in Canada, to maintain the Red Cross outpost hospitals and nursing stations, to carry on the work of the Red Cross in frontier districts. During the last two years the cost of this work was $2,293,000. For the coming year the Red Cross will endeavour to keep the cost of this effort down to $950,000

These Four Items Total $2,808,000

Canadians are being asked to contribute $3,000,000 in this drive, which will leave but a small margin to provide for unexpected emergencies, to assist the allied Red Cross Societies with goods and money, and for other needs which are almost sure to arise.

The need is urgent— dig in and Give

NATIONAL WAR DRIVE FOR $3,000,000

Every dollar you give will help. Dig in and give to this great humanitarian cause . . . NOW!

ANGLO-FRENCH UNITY

Britain and France have in the creation of the new supreme economic council accomplished what will drive towards the goal of Allied victory with a unity of purpose, never before set up between two states, and what is also seen as the possible basis of that international structure in Europe which may resolve into a union of states on a plan of federation to eliminate war and promote all the arts of peace and the spirit of brotherhood.

In the Great War Britain and France moved side by side, but preserved their individuality. Today while the individuality underlies the decisions, there is absolute unity. So now Hitler has to battle not Britain and France but rather Britain-France. This means elimination of possible overlapping and all those things which might detract from the full measure of success. This union is a bond which will endure to the end of hostilities and it is to be hoped will after the war be the centre towards which other nations which see some hope of a federation to make peace lasting will gravitate.

Hitler has been striking at this Anglo-French bond since the fated day when France and Britain went to war against force. He has been trying to separate the Powers of the west but his efforts are without avail. It is his destiny to have welded together these great nations who have no thought of antagonism for one another for as long as the future lasts. It may be his fate to be the unwilling anvil on which is to be welded forever the chains of despotism and also to be fashioned the greater era of peace which is to come when the sins and crimes of Naziism and Hitlerism are wiped away.

GERMANY'S ACTIONS

While "all is quiet on the western front" the Nazis are behaving with all the savagery, brutality and vengeance expected of them. The cruel mind and the arms that enforced the Nazis will on the poor Poles are doing the same in the scattering of mines along shipping routes in violation of international law, while they hesitate on land for reasons known to the German high command, perhaps as some say, for lack of sufficiently trained officers, perhaps for lack of equipment to face the Allies with whom they did not expect hostilities or perhaps through fear of trouble on the east front or within the Reich.

But on the seas where the Allied blockade reigns supreme, they are hurling their weapons in a demonic fury, indicative of their sense of frustration and ultimate defeat. What the world cannot understand is how the men at the head of Nazi affairs can act as they do, if they realize that they have lost any sympathy any nation ever felt for them, unless it be that they are acting in mad destructive rage and the motive of the sadist who loves to see men suffer. If they ever had a chance they are throwing it away in their madness. Of course they never could win, because they were blinded to the fact that there is a sense of human justice as well as divine justice dominating mankind, however far the race is from reaching the ideal of brotherhood.

The Nazis must have realized that the British would retaliate by seizure of German exports on the high seas, but in spite of this they went forward. As a consequence they will lose the ability to secure gold and raw materials which they greatly need. Their action runs true to the well-known German characteristics in the last war.

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," runs the ancient classical aphorism, as true today as it was thousands of years ago and as it will be to the end of time. Or putting the proverb in other words, these Nazi madmen destroy themselves in dashing themselves against the defences of adamant, which are the laws which govern life. Nazis have ignored those laws from the start and will do so until their doom is sealed.

KILTED REGIMENTS IN "BATTLE DRESS"

The new "battle dress" of the British army is to be worn by Canadians, even by the Scots regiments on active service. The kilt may be worn only on occasion.

The uniform, which has made the parade of a Scottish regiment something never to be forgotten, must yield to the demands of the practical. In recent manoeuvres of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, it was noted how the kilt does not protect against brambles, that its constant swishing causes leg burns. It has been brought to attention that the kilt did not provide protection in gas attacks in the Great War. So the familiar kilted dress of the Highland regiments passes, but it will remain for ceremonial occasions.

War in modern days has made many changes. Mounted troops have disappeared, though there are units known as Mounted Rifles and Hussars. These names remain as a symbol and an emblem but the Highlanders still have the consolation that they will return to kilts in peace time and for ceremonial occasions. In that respect they fare better than those other regiments, whose ancient characteristics remain only in their names. It is a far cry from the days of the "charge of the Light Brigade," Polish cavalry, famed throughout the world, found when facing the mechanization of modern war.

OUIJA'S INVENTOR DIES

Many persons remember the ouija board. Some of the "talking" boards are to be found in attics in Belleville homes, relics of the post-war days of the very early twenties. In the late war days there was a growth of spiritism or spiritualism in the consequence of the death of so many in the international struggle and the ouija board followed in the wake of this trend.

But this board was known long before. It had no such origin as an attempt to invade the super-natural. Isaac Fuld, its inventor, died this week at Baltimore. It was he who conceived the lettered and numbered board on which the familiar three-legged table was propelled by those who were playing .It was used by Isaac and his brother as far back as 1892, thirty years before it struck the wave of popularity.

'Ouija' is from the French word 'oui' and the German 'ja,' which mean 'yes' in English.

Millions of these boards were used on this continent and their vogue lasted for some time and then disappeared. It created big business for the brothers Isaac and William Fuld and caused many an exciting moment when the moving three-legged table would spell out something strange or silly. Some professed to be able to be guided by the spelling of the board, others took no more than mere fun out of it.

Historians give us the extraordinary events, and omit just what we want, the every-day life of each particular time and country. —Whately.

When the Kaiser Saw His Great Army Beaten

. . . I have just read a most interesting and opportune book. It is called Der Konig; it is written by Karl Rosner, and for those who (very sensibly) dislike reading books in German, there is an excellent French translation published, under the same German title, by the Librairie Plon.

Karl Rosner, during the first German war, was attached as representative of a Berlin newspaper to German headquarters. He was an observant man, and it fascinated him to watch the relations between the Emperor, Hindenburg and Ludendorff. Marshal Hindenburg would go downstairs when the Kaiser arrived; General Ludendorff would remain upstairs; the Emperor would be annoyed and frightened by the bad manners of his Quartermaster-General.

Herr Rosner detected a Hamlet drama beneath this curious triangle. He determined to describe it. And in Der Konig he has given a really astonishing description of the tragedy which ensued. As his exhibit of this long-drawn malady he has chosen the ten days of July, 1918, which, in fact decided the fortunes of the war. The Germans had thought fit to launch a great offensive in Champagne. This was to be one of the decisive battles of the world. It must be staged accordingly; it must be no ordinary offensive; it must be an Imperial battle, a Kaiserschlacht. The All Highest for this purpose was removed from Spa and brought in his train to Avesnes and then to a few kilometres from the front. He was induced to inform the troops that their Emperor was directing the operations in person. (He was not directing them; he was merely observing them from a safe distance.)

This terrific Hohenzollern climax is described by Herr Rosner in the minutest detail. The drama opens in the little station of Avesnes, where we find the station-master and the chief of the police pacing up and down the platform awaiting the arrival of the Imperial train. This slim green palace arrives punctually to the minute, and the Emperor is the first to descend. The whole platform thereafter is crowded by chamberlains, attaches, aide-de-camps and orderlies.

They enter the waiting motor cars and are driven to headquarters. The main lines of the impending battle are described to the Emperor by Ludendorff and Hindenburg. He is then bundled back into his train and sent off to the front. The train comes to rest some twelve miles behind the lines. They dine and play cards. At three in the morning they enter their cars and are driven to an observation post prepared for them on the hills above Menil. The Emperor, followed by his staff, climbs this gazebo in the dark.

At 4 a.m. the first bombardment begins. The Emperor is entranced. He stands there hour after hour until dawn creeps over Champagne and the sun rises behind him. The first messages begin to come in. The enemy have not been taken by surprise. The attack has been checked. The German troops are losing heavily. His staff stand around him watching the increasing anxiety upon his tired features. At one moment the Crown Prince arrives and there is much forced gaiety. But the messages continue to pour in, and they are not encouraging.

Finally the Allied counter-offensive is launched. "It is no longer a denial of victory; it is defeat. The Emperor climbs down from his platform and returns to his train. There, in his familiar quarters, are the old photographs of Windsor and Ischl, of Franz Josef and Edward VII. He feels himself abandoned and betrayed. He realizes for the first time that he has always been a figurehead. The levers of the machine have passed into other hands. Slowly the great train lumbers through the night back to Spa and exile. It is a dramatic story.

I hope that Rudolf Shicklgruber, alias Adolf Hitler, has read this most instructive book.—By Harold Nicolson, M.P., in the London Spectator.

Sinusitis Is an Acute or Chronic Head Cold

When a cold attacks the pharynx (back of nose and throat), it is called pharyngitis; if it extends farther back or down to the larynx (vocal cords), it is called laryngitis; if it gets into the bronchial tubes it is bronchitis, and if it gets into the very fine air tubes in the lungs, it is pneumonia.

The thought then is that while it is the same cold, the fact that as it gets deeper and deeper into the chest, it becomes a more and more serious condition, must be remembered.

Someone has likened this to spilling some water in the front vestibule of the home; the water runs down the hall to the dining room and then to the kitchen. It is on the same floor and on the same level.

However, as the water leaves the vestibule it may also run into the sitting room that runs off the hall. The sitting room of the home may be compared to the sinuses adjoining the nose and throat. The floor of the mouth, throat and nose—the mucous membrane—is the same as the floor or mucous membrane of the sinuses. The mucous membrane or lining of the sinuses is an out-punching of the lining of the nose and throat. These sinuses form a sounding box for the voice, so that if anything obstructs the air going into these sinuses, the mucous membrane or lining is irritated or disturbed, becomes thickened, and the voice becomes flat. The little cells of the lining of the sinuses manufacture an excess of liquid when irritated just as does any irritated surface- eye, intestine, nose. The thickening of this liquid is the mucous that drops down from sinus to back of throat.

Dr. J. Harley Harris, Memphis, in Mississippi Doctor, says:

"The symptoms of acute sinusitis (inflammation of the sinus) are those of an acute head cold, with tenderness over the sinus. The three cardinal or outstanding symptoms of chronic sinusitis are. (1) dropping or dripping of mucous into throat, (2) chronic inflammation of pharynx (back of throat), (3) chronic or frequent attacks of laryngitis".

The treatment consists of removing the cause—diseased teeth and tonsils, enlarged adenoids, badly bent septum (partition between nostrils). At one time oils were used to soften or shrink the lining of the sinuses, but today ordinary salt solutions—a half teaspoonful of table salt to a glass of warm water—put up into the nose with a dropper is more often used. Adrenalin (epinephrine) and ephedrine in "drops", sprays, or ointment are most effective in shrinking the lining membrane and allowing the air to ventilate the sinuses.

The Nazis Preserve Order by Terror

Otto Strasser, leader of an anti-Nazi organization in Paris, looks for a revolution in Germany next spring. General Sikorski, premier of Poland, and former President Benes, of Czechoslovakia, are planning the resuscitation of their countries in London. Dealing with Czech disorders, the London Times thinks it will be impossible for the Nazis to prevent an eventual insurrection, but points out that the time is not yet ripe for it; the "spirit of revolt", however, will grow stronger and stronger. That the German command is seriously perturbed over recent happenings in Prague is shown by the summoning to Berlin of Baron von Neurah, the "protector" of Bohemia-Moravia. The shooting of twelve students and the arrest of large numbers of Czechs will, it is expected, discourage any further demonstrations. Hundreds of Prague university students are reported to be "on their way to the Buchenwald concentration camp near Weimar."

This is the infamous place described in the official British White Paper as the "City of Sorrow." Whether a living death in the camp, under brutal Nazi surveillance, is to be preferred to the firing squad may be questioned. Prisoners arriving at Buchenwold are received at the railway station with a "hail of kicks and blows from fist and rifle butt," and are bluntly informed by the superintendent that they are "coming to hell." It is difficult to account for the sadistic instincts of the warders, except on the score of an official system of deliberately corrupting young Germans to fit them for their revolting "patriotic" duties, comparable with the tortures of the Dark Ages. It is stated in the sworn evidence that professional criminals are put in positions of authority in the camps and given the responsibility of maintaining discipline as seems good to them. The result is the most diabolical forms of punishment, from which the victims often die.

One eyewitness (himself a prisoner) gives the following description of life in this particular camp, while admitting that there are some "human beings" among the attendants in charge, but that they are strokes is the commonest form of strokes in the commonest form of punishment; but there are others of a worse type. The "sweat-box" is responsible for many deaths. Then, "for a slight offence" a prisoner is bound to a tree, facing it, and his arms tied in such a way that he embraces it closely. He is then made to work his way round in a continual circle, and if he does not move quickly enough to please his tormentors, he is kicked on the ankles. This is only a mild form of "tree" punishment, some of the practices being unspeakably cruel and "often ending fatally." By such methods the Nazis hope to keep all dissident elements under subjection. After reading the White Paper, the feeling is strong that it must be only a question of time till vengeance catches up with the evil perpetrators.—Hamilton Spectator.

All-Night Study Settled Hitler on Defence Plan

By LOUIS LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Nov.—(AP)—The fundamental idea underlying the construction of Germany's Westwall, or Siegfried Line, was that of diffusing rather than concentrating the far flung defence system of almost 375 miles which reaches from Switzerland past France, Belgium and Luxemburg to Holland.

Hitler is reported by his entourage to have become "sold" to this idea after receiving, through his secret service, a copy of a memorandum on the Maginot Line written by a disgruntled French general who criticized his country's fortification system in detail.

Hitler's subordinates say he sat throughout one night studying a translation of the French officer's observations. When they found him still at his desk at 7 a.m., he told them he had now made up his mind on the kind of system necessary for Germany.

In later talks with general staff officers he is said to have placed a china platter beside a ten pfennig piece and to have asked them: "Gentlemen, what is hardest to hit—the plate or the coin?" To which they obviously replied "the coin."

Small Units System

The Westwall is an intricate system of small units, subterraneously connected with each other but difficult to hit from the opposite side and from the air. The Maginot Line is a system of huge fortifications. The German general staff is of the opinion that, if once a breach were forced in the Maginot Line, the enemy troops could pour into the country.

In the case of the German Westwall, it is claimed that an immense number of shells would have to be wasted to hit the relatively small marks offered by the cupolas of pill boxes and armoured bunkers; and in the second place, the destruction of these miniature forts would make no real difference.

Another principle beside that of diffusion is that of criss-crossing the gun ranges of the various bunkers or other defence works. It is claimed that if the enemy should succeed in silencing and successfully shelling one bunker, the two adjacent bunkers could so completely cover this bunker that the enemy could not enter it.

Another principle is that of placing so many obstructions ahead of the fortifications proper that tanks and infantry would have a hard time approaching the bunkers or "panzerwerke."

Directly before the enemy frontier mines have been laid in profusion. Then follows a complicated system of barbed wire entanglements. It has meant the ruination of many a vineyard in the Rhine region and the putting out of practical use of many a piece of forest land. But military necessities overruled all other considerations.

These Tank Traps

Next comes an almost diabolical arrangement of concrete-and-steel obstructions which look like dragon's teeth irregularly sprung from the earth. It is claimed no tank can run over these.

In addition, on wooded hillsides over which the enemy might come—for instance, in the Forest of Palatinate—motorized saws cut off all timber for say 25 feet from the bottom of the hill upwards, so that the unsuspecting tank driver, should he succeed in getting over the hill may suddenly slide down 25 feet and turn a somersault.

Still another surprise is a series of steel ribs that look like the ribs of a ship, into which the unsuspecting tank or armored car is supposed to run and then turn turtle while from right and left the bunkers open fire on him.

Only after all these obstructions have been passed, can the direct attack on the bunkers, pill boxes and "panzerwerke" begin.

When this correspondent asked a general staff officer whether any one man had designed the system he replied laughingly, "My dear sir, in no single human breast does as much sadism repose as is manifested in this defence system."

Underground Life

Fact is that the troops have started on a large-scale underground life and are nowhere massed in the open. Only further inland—the Westwall extends back for about 35 miles in four zones, two for artillery and infantry, and two for anti-aircraft batteries — does one see larger units. They are the men who must at regular intervals relieve the soldiers in the subterranean fortifications.

One problem with which the German high command—and presumabely the French likewise—must face is that of determining what to do with small groups of men who are dependent on each other in an underground community, whose life at present is extremely monotonous, and in the event of an offensive is likely to be nerve-racking.

However great the improvement of these steel and concrete bunkers may be over the trenches of the First Great War, the fact remains that it is an abnormal life.

Former German Resident Tells Why He Likes Canada

In a letter to the Editor of the Montreal Star, Eital Isaac tells of some of his musings while on sentry duty "somewhere in Canada."

Sir—It is nice that you call me "A Happy Warrior" in my printed letter. When I read that, I thought: "It is true, I am happy. No longer am I always worrying because of my dead family and lost money and job and bad things that Nazis did, in Germany, to my parents and sister and me.

While I am a sentry, I am alone and think much. It is not a thinking of old things; they are past and must be so. I think of things that are now and of things that will come. It is contenting to be a soldier and to be doing something to stop Nazis from being such crazy thieves and killers. At night, when I watch the ships that pass and the lighted windows of the busy mills and power plants, I am happy that I am a Caadian, now, and have this duty. When we are in Europe and fighting Germans, there is a useful thing that I can do. I can tell many German soldiers about Canada; they will want not to fight; they will want to come to Canada and work and be Canadians like me.

Once, I had many German friends who were not Jews. Then they did not dare to be friends any more, because of the Nazis. The black S.S. Guards are the worst. They are young and Hitler-crazy. The S. A. Storm Troopers are pretty crazy, too; but they are older men and know that Jews are like Christians and often good people. Both S.S. and S.A. are like police and made ordinary Germans hate and break windows and hurt and rob and kill Jews. I know two S.S. who should die for the brutal injustices they did. At first, most Germans did not wish to rob and hurt the Jews whom they knew. They wanted to live, work, earn and be happy with their own families, and would let the Jews do so, too. But ordinary Germans do not much think of more than one thing at a time and they easily believe what they are told, even if it is lies. So many of them came to believe the Guards, who said bad things about Jews; and, even in the Thalgau of Austria, kindly German folk were like the Guards and hated and robbed and were very rough to Jews.

Of course, all Germans must believe and do as the Nazi S.S. and S.A. tell them; but, even before my father told me to run from Germany, there were many who were not at all contented. Older men who had earned positions and business did not like it that good pay and much power to boss should be with young black guards who did nothing but be Nazi and ask for money subscriptions. When they are fighting and they do not quickly win, the ordinary men who are not contented will become more discontented. Then I could tell them that it is lies that the Nazis tell about Americas. Perhaps I could put loud speakers near where German soldiers were; there would be long wires so that I could be where the Germans would not shoot when their officers did not like what the loud speakers said.

There is no cloth in Germany like my all-woollen kilt, and no German soldier has so much and such good food as mine. I would tell them that. I would tell them of the land that Canadian can be given, if he will be a good farmer on it. At first, they will not believe that; so I would tell it often. I would tell them of the big mills here, with labor unions, and of the high wages and of the little shops where workers buy anything they like, without having police permits. In Germany labor unions are not allowed any more, and wages are very low and strikers are shot, and all small shops have been closed by Hitler, so that the shop-keepers must work for little money in the factories.

There is much more that I would like to tell them, and they would, in hearing it, become more unhappy about Germany and want to be in Canada and be a Canadian and be happy and vote in the elections lige me and be able to do things without a policeman to tell them what to do. When they all felt like that, they would not want to fight, and the war would stop and we would win, and it would be cheaper and better to end the war that way than by trying to kill all the Germans. They would want not to be killed and would fight harder and the war would end soon.—Eital Isaac.

Belleville Poultry Association Peeved at the City Council

Dear Sir:

Ever since Noah's Ark days, there have been horse shows, cattle shows, dog shows, cat shows, bird shows, sheep shows, swine shows, flower shows and poultry shows, held in such places as market buildings, city halls, stores, office buildings, basements, schools, barns, sheds and on lawns.

Lovers of all these various animals and birds, have spent millions of dollars on importing new stock, for the betterment of the breed, on showing their stock, to prove their skill in breeding and conditioning. Feed merchants all over the world have been kept in business and made good living from the ambitious breeders.

Then on the other hand it goes back to the farmer who grows all the feed to feed this prize stock, which again runs into millions of dollars per year.

The farmers automatically spend much of this money in our cities and towns, and that is what keeps the world going round.

Some weeks ago the Belleville Poultry Association held a meeting, selected their officers, planned the poultry show and were counting the good that would come to all the local merchants in the bringing of outside residents to see the poultry show which for many miles people will travel in cars or ride bicycles, walk, thumb rides, ride on buckboards etc., to see the fancy of their heart, chickens in their fine plumage, fine health, their beautiful colors, some odd looking ones, some rare birds that one only sees at a show.

Record laying hens that lay that egg you like for breakfast, or with ham or bacon.

The Poultry committee approached Ald. Gushing, chairman of the Market Building and also Mr. H. Bateman who said they saw no reason why we could not have the market building as usual for the show.

Then after the association went to extension work preparing for the show, spending much time and money, by only a mircale one member overhead a conversation that sounded like we were not going to have the market building, and some three weeks after the application was filed, with this information the committee again approached the chairman Ald. Gushing, and it appears as if it was true that he backpeddled and was refusing to allow us to have the building and he said "yes." it is true that he had no backing from the rest of the council, none were in favor.

All this happened without our application ever being answered, it was just ignored until pressure was put on, then came a reply.

However, the show must go on and is going on, and so is an election coming on with "it's" usual changes.

Notice of the show later this week in this paper.

West Huntingdon Friends Honor Popular Members of Community

West Huntingdon—On Wednesday evening, Nov. 15, about 125 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Thomas McAvoy to spend a few social hours as many had spent before in the same place, and as a surprise in honor of his sister's approaching marriage to Mr. Joe Ryan. After the guests were assembled, Mr. Elmer Post was elected chairman. He also read an appropriate address.

Miss McAvoy was presented with a chest of silver and many numerous and useful gifts including a purse of $10.00.

Both Mabel and Joe made suitable replies and invited all to visit them in their future home. A reading was given by Miss Ella Moreland, "Little Mary's Essay on Husbands." The singing of "They are jolly good fellows" and refreshments were served. The remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse, music and dancing. All reported a very enjoyable evening.

Ivanhoe, Ont., Nov. 15, 1939
Miss Mabel McAvoy,
Dear Mabel:

It is with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow that we are gathered here tonight. We rejoice with you in your joy, but we realize that your approaching marriage means to us parting with one of our own girls and we cannot measure the loss it will be to our community. Your life with us has radiated unselfishness and cheer among those who have been playmates of childhood and companions of girlhood. This occasion should abound only with happiness for it has been truly said "O fortune, O happy day, Where a new home finds it place among the myriad homes of earth."

We are glad your new home will not be so far away but we can hope to meet you occasinally and keep unbroken the tie of friendship.

To you Joe, we may say that our loss will be your gain. We sincerely hope that success and prosperity will attend you both and that the coming years may be full of peace, happiness and new joy. As a token of the esteem in which you are held we ask you to accept these gifts.

Signed on behalf of your friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McAvoy, Mrs Philip McAvoy, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kennedy. (nee Helen Wright).

One of the most largely attended gatherings held here in some time took place on Friday evening when friends and neighbors gathered at Mr. Ambrose Wright's home to honour Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kennedy on the occasion of their recent marriage.

Mr. Arthur Wilson was chairman for the following program. Community singing led by Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Mr. Elmer Post; Song by the Misses Marion and Phyllis Hammond; Solo, Mrs. Fred Height; Piano solo, Miss Muriel Thompson; Solo, Miss Margie Haggerty; and reading, Mr. Philip Carr.

At the conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were given seats of honor and Miss Marjorie McInroy read the following address:

West Huntingdon, Nov. 17, 1939
Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kennedy:
Dear Helen and Gordon,—

One writer has aptly said there are three special occasions in the life of nearly every person when they are brought prominently before the public mind. The second of these important occasions has been reached by you folks when you embarked upon the matrimonial sea. We feel that it is impossible to allow this season of greetings and good will to pass without some expression of the love and respect we cherish for you.

So we have come tonight to express to you, Helen, the feelings that have deepened with the years as we have noted your spirit of service. Your influence has been felt in the social life of our community and in our church work. Your quiet, unassuming, but genial companionship have proven you a good neighbor, ready to help in any way. May we congratulate you in successfully winning for yourself a charming husband of many sterling qualities.

For both of you we wish many years of life replete with the richest and choicest gifts that Heaven can bestow, and we trust that when the years have faded and vanished in the brilliant sunshine of eternal things, that you may still be found in our Heavenly Father's service. May these gifts ever remind you of your associates at West Huntingdon.

Signed on behalf of your friends, Annie Cook, George Pitman, Irene Elliott, Marjorie McInroy.

The many and varied gifts were then unwrapped and Helen and Gordon voiced their appreciation of the kindness of their friends.

The singing of "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" closed this happy event.

St. Andrew's W. M. S.

Mrs. Don Haggerty entertained the W. M. S. of St. Andrews Church on Thursday. The members gathered in the forenoon and enjoyed dinner together, the proceeds of which were 5.00. Mrs. Harry Thompson presided over the program. Those assisting with the devotions were: Rev. W. H. Walker and Mrs. Don. Haggerty.

The 21 members present answered to the Roll Call by the word Charity. Readings were given by Mrs. Harper Rollins of Stirling and Mrs. J. C. Sills. Mrs. John Wallace conducted the Study Book service. In her usual fine voice Mrs. Rev. W. H. Walker gave a solo.

Many items of business followed and the meeting was closed with the usual Benediction.

Farmers Busy

The recent heavy frosts have written finis for at least a few days to the fall plowing; but there does not seem to be any holiday for the tillers of the soil. There are so many tasks to be performed at this season of the year. A number have already begun cutting their winter supply of wood. Company officials are busy erecting the snow fences and Christmas is just around the corner. The young cattle have been brought home from their summer homes and it can safely be said with the poet:

"All is safely gathered in E'er the winter storms begin."

Personals

Miss Olive McGowan spent Thursday evening with Miss Sarah Wilson.

Mrs. Sandy McCurdy attended the Hemsley-Sharpe wedding at Belleville on Saturday evening.

Miscellaneous Shower Honors Newlyweds

Mountain View—On Monday evening, about one hundred and fifty friends and neighbors met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lough for a miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lough a recent bride and groom. The neighborhoods of Ameliasburg, Mountain View and the Young People of Huffs Island as well as relatives of both the bride and groom were in attendance. A musical program was enjoyed with the different communities taking part.

Mrs. Arthur Corfield read the following address:

Mountain View,
and Ameliasburg,
Nov. 13th., 1939.
Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lough,
Dear Percy and Vera—

It is with great pleasure that we have gathered here tonight to welcome another bride to our community, and to wish you a happy and prosperous life among us, and to congratulate you on this the beginning of your united voyage of married life.

To you, Vera, although nearly a stranger to some of us, we extend our congratulations on your choice of a life partner and we welcome you to this gathering tonight. It is our earnest hope and sincere wish that God's richest blessings may fall upon your home.

You, Percy, have been with us since childhood and we have always found you to be a good sport and ready to assist in any way, whenever the occasion demanded. We may be sure that your hearty laugh and cheery smile will bring happiness to you both as the years go by.

We hope you will be taking up your new home in our midst. We are therefore asking you to accept these gifts not for their intrinsic value but the good wishes which accompany them from the Mountain View and Huffs Island neighborhood and St. Alban's Church of Roblin's Mills of which Percy has always been a faithful member.

Signed on behalf of the community, Hazel Minaker, Mrs. Arthur Corfield.

Mrs. F. File and Miss Hazel Minaker carried in a basket well laden with parcels. Mr. Ross Lough and Miss Helen Lough assisted in the unwrapping and placing of the gifts. The bride and groom thanked everyone for the lovely and useful gifts and invited everyone to visit them in their new home. All joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows". Lunch of fruit and candy was served. After lunch the younger crowd enjoyed dancing.

Mrs. Juby returned to Kingston on Sunday to spend the winter months with her son, Mr. Cecil Juby and family.

Mrs. McCutcheon and Miss Elizabeth Jordan called on Tuesday afternoon on Mrs. Clayton and Mrs. Clarke Sprung.

Mrs. William Blakely spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. George Fox of Burrs.

Mrs. John Black entertained the Past Matrons' Club on Tuesday afternoon. The afternoon was spent playing progressive euchre. The hostess served a lovely lunch.

The Vanity Sewing Circle held their meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Misses Miriam and Joan Keeble. Business was discussed for a few minutes and plans were made for the annual dance. The afternoon was spent in working on the project. At the close a dainty lunch was served.

Mrs. J. E. Sprague and Jean and Margaret of Big Island spent Wednesday with Mrs. Clarence Sprague.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Wanamaker were supper guests on Thursday night of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste.

Present Gift to Marmora Couple

Marmora—About fifty friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Henderson (nee Mrs. Sopho) on Friday evening to honor them in their recent marriage. The evening was spent in playing euchre, the prizes being won by Mrs. George Kerr and Mr. Henderson. At the conclusion of the card game Mrs. E. Rose and Mrs. A. Smith presented Mr. and Mrs. Henderson with a lovely mantel clock on behalf of their many friends.

The following address was read by Mrs. A. Eggleton.

To Mr. and Mrs. Henderson:

We, your friends take advantage of this happy occasion to express our appreciation of Mrs. Henderson's past kindnesses and to welcome Mr. Henderson to our circle.

We have always found Mrs. Henderson the best of friends, courageous and never too busy to lend a hand in time of need.

We are glad to have this opportunity to offer jointly our greetings to Mr. Henderson. We assure you that Mrs. Henderson's friends are our friends and we hope you will always find our town an agreeable place in which to live.

We ask you both to accept this clock as a token of our esteem and may all the hours it strikes for you, be happy hours indeed.

The bride and groom made fitting replies and thanked their friends for the beautiful gift.

The singing "For they are jolly good fellows" was heartily sung by the guests.

A lovely lunch was served before the gathering dispersed.

Mrs. G. W. Henderson was hostess at a reception at her home recently. About fifty guests were present and the evening was spent in cards, ten tables being in play. The winners were Mrs. Eugene Brady and Mr. Thomas Warren. A lovely lunch was served by the hostess.

Miss Annie Brownson of Eldorado visited her sister Mrs. Joseph O'Neill over the week end.

Mr. H. E. Fulton, B.A., principal of Marmora High School is confined to his home through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Henderson visited the latter's daughter, Mrs. Clarence Clarke, in Peterborough on Saturday.

Registration of Canadian Women To Begin in Madoc

Madoc—The November meeting of Madoc branch Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall Friday, Nov. 17. Due to the change of meeting the attendance was not as large as usual. Mrs. T. L. Nickle reported in detail the work and finances of the war emergency committee to date. The euchre, the proceeds of which is being used to buy yarn was quite a success and Institute members appreciate the efforts of those who helped in any way.

Mrs. Birdsall of Birdsall, Ont., assisted Mrs. Foulds of Hastings, explained fully voluntary registration of women for war work also the questionnaire. It is the hope of the provincial committee that every woman from 16 years to 65 years will register and an office will be opened for the purpose in a down town store. Mrs. F. Aylesworth was chosen leader for the local work. Miss Doris Broad gave a reading "A bit of England."

Mr. G. L. Thain, principal of the high school, as guest speaker, spoke on "Peace and the international situation." His address dealt mainly with the Nazi-Soviet pact. France's organization and explained the conditions politically and economically of each of the countries connected in this war condition. Words of appreciation were tendered Mr. Thain for his splendid address. It was moved by Mrs. Hill and seconded by Mrs. Lewis that the time of meetings be changed 3 p.m. to 2.30 p.m. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Mr. Murray Irwin of Peterboro spent Sunday at his home in Madoc.

Misses Ella and Marjory Fleming and Miss Helen Whytock of Peterboro spent the week end at their homes, Madoc.

RECEPTION

Mrs. Alan B. Sprague will receive with Mrs. F. W. Sprague at 307 Bridge Street East, on Friday afternoon, November 24, from four to six o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Adams attended the Haig-LeRêverend wedding at Campbellford on Monday.

Dr. Charles ("Bud") Galway, wife and family of McKenzie Island, Ontario, returned to the city last evening after a trip to New York City. They are the guests of Dr. Galway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh G. Galway, 28 Burton St.

St. Andrew's Church annual supper held last night in the church hall was attended by large numbers of the community. This event is eagerly awaited each year, the hospitality of the ladies of the church being famed throughout the city. The supper last evening sustained the reputation for excellent meals, and the ladies serving were most attentive to the wants of their guests. While awaiting their turn at supper the guests enjoyed organ music by Mr. Kilgour.

Belleville Chapter 435, Women of the Moose, assembled on Tuesday evening in the Moose Auditurium for the regular meeting. Mrs. J. Chapman was the presiding officer. Considerable business was discussed. Recorder Mary Doran read an interesting letter from Provincial Dean Mrs. Cecile MacDougall of Noranda, Que. Final arrangements were made as to plans for the Eastern Ontario Conference early in December Provincial Regent, Mrs. Alice McKelvie of Kitchener, will be the honorary guest and Peterboro Chapter has been invited to attend. A donation was made to the Red Cross Campaign drive. Sunshine prize donated by Mrs. G. Denyes was won by Mrs. C. St. Louis. Plans of Christmas activities were discussed and a Birthday party later in December.

WEDDINGS

WHITE—CRAVEN

The marriage was solemnized at St. Thomas' Church chapel at ten o'clock yesterday morning of Norma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Craven of Bath, and Mr. Harold White, Bath. Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne officiated.

The bride wore a grape wine crepe frock with matching hat and gold accessories, including a gold bracelet the gift of the groom.

Miss Margaret Bateman of Belleville was bridesmaid, and wore a navy suit with rose accessories. Mr. Bill Craven was groomsman.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold compact and to the groomsman a bill fold.

Mr. and Mrs. White left on a wedding trip to Toronto and surrounding points, the bride wearing a grape wine coat with black fur. Upon their return they will take up residence at Amherst Island.

RUTTAN—DEMPSEY

A quiet wedding took place at Holloway Street United Church parsonage, 44 Hillside Street, Tuesday evening, Nov. 21st., at six o'clock when Evelyn Marion, daughter of Mrs. Dempsey and the late Mr. Lorne Dempsey of Rednersville, became the bride of Mr. Ernest Milton Ruttan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ruttan of Rednersville.

The bride was becomingly attired in a street length frock of black crepe brocaded in hunter's green. The couple were unattended.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ruttan will reside in Rednersville.

IVANHOE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The members of the Ivanhoe Women's Institute met for their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Foster Wilson on Tuesday, November 14th. Mrs. C. Sills was in charge of the meeting in the absence of the President, Mrs. T. E. Fleming. Mrs. Sills thanked the members for the splendid cooperation in connection with the rally.

Mrs. W. Fitchett led in community singing. The secretary, Mrs. J. Clements gave a statement of finances. This meeting being held so near Remembrance Day, had an added significance, because members not only remembered those who died for freedom in the last war, but planned to work for those who have enlisted in this war. A good supply of yarn has been purchased for knitting socks. Miss Marjorie McInroy told of the school held at Madoc. Miss Georgia Pitman gave a demonstration on meat cooking, beef charts, and food selection. Score cards were distributed. Miss Neva Hagerman read a paper, "The life of Edith Cavell." An address was given by Mrs. John Wallace, telling of the work of Florence Nightingale, and the beginning of the Red Cross work.

Miss G. Adam read Kipling's poem "Lest We Forget." Mrs. Hasell gave current events. Mrs. Sills read a poem, "A November Landscape." Collection was taken, and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants. The assistants were Mrs. Andy McInroy, Mrs. Goldie McInroy and Mrs. C. Sills.

QUATERNION Y.P.U.

The Quaternion Y.P.U. held their weekly meeting at Front Road Church last night with 70 present. Miss M. Bonter had charge and Miss H. Brown was Secretary. After the business Miss Eva Smith conducted devotions, and gave the address on "Love to God and Man". Miss D. Litt's read the Scripture and Miss P. Bradshaw led in prayer. Miss M. Sykes then presided in study of the main topic of the evening, which was "Honesty". Mr. Douglas MacDonald, Mr. Norman Yarrow, Mr. Manley Mitchell, Miss Audrey Bradshaw, Miss June Buck, and Walter Armitage all gave short papers on different aspects of the subject, after which Miss Sykes gave a fine address on the whole subject. A lively discussion followed in which many took part. Some thought that the general public were honest. Some thought it dishonest for a merchant to put 50 cent ties that were not selling on sale for 75 cents. The running up of prices of goods, bought for the old price, before the new higher buying price had come. What was strict honesty in selling an automobile or a horse? Could a man be an honest grocer and stay in business? Was it right always to be honest with sick people who were very ill? Was it right to tell a lie to save life? Was it strictly honest for a girl to try to take away another girl's boy friend, if she thought she could? To this last question some girl (perhaps she was trying to justify her own conduct) answered "All is fair in love and war". No agreement was reached on any of these questions but the frank and lively discussion was thought provoking and heart searching.

A duet was sung by Misses Ruth McClelland and Betty Redfern with Miss Burke at the piano. It was a large crowd for Miss Helen Thompson, director of games, to handle but the good behaviour of the young people made her task a pleasant one. Dainty refreshments were served and the meeting closed in the usual way.

It was decided to ask Prof. Shaw to come once every four weeks to lead in the study of the doctrines of the church.

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. When it's the "pain cry" give Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

Equally effective for diarrhoea, upset stomach, simple croup, teething troubles and other minor ailments of babies.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Does "Escape" Bring Happiness

Dear Miss Fairfax

The first time my husband and I had been apart, after four years of successful marriage, was when I made a visit to my old home a short time ago.

While I am still true to my marriage, I am no longer true in heart or thought since I have met this other man. He is married but he is ready to take the necessary steps for a divorce as soon as I agree to take them—so you see we are both homebreakers.

I respect my husband but do not love him and hate to hurt him. However, I feel I would be doing him a favor in taking the step. What I want to know is what usually happens to marriages of this sort?

Thirty-Three

It would not be fair to say that marriages founded on broken homes are never happy. Sometimes we see them flourishing like the proverbial green bay tree. You have only to read the papers or look about you to see that these changing of partners and breaking up of homes do not, after the first flush or romance is over, insurance happiness for anyone. This is especially true where there are children, shifted from one home to another, bitterly resenting the arrangement.

It's safe to say that it's the exceptional man or woman who does not experience these second bloomings. As a certain wise Frenchman said "life is so daily". And any escape from the daily round is apt to look promising. But in the long run—well, just read the newspapers and look among your friends before deciding.

Absence Makes the Heart Grow Fonder

Dear Miss Fairfax

For the last three years I've been in love with certain girl. My occupation necessitates constant traveling, so I've been slow about speaking my piece. It doesn't seem exactly cricket to expect a lady to sit home alone while her husband tours the country looking for business.

Nor would I choose to make a barn-stormer of my wife. What chance is there for a poor traveling salesman desperately in love?

Traveling Salesman

To my way of thinking, the question is up to the lady. If she's willing to marry a man whom she doesn't see daily, it's up to her to decide. Sailors, soldiers, engineers, aviators must of necessity be away from home a good deal. Not being at all cynical, I will not insist that's the reason a number of these marriages are very happy.

Pity or Love?

Dear Miss Fairfax

Recently his ex-fiance has visited his family. She is now partly blind. She claims she still loves him and cannot forget . . . he claims he loves me and says that no one can come between us. But he pities this girl so deeply. Can this pity lead to revival of his love?

What can I do to help this girl? My first thought was to give him up, no matter how much I care. I'd hate to be selfish, but he says he has only pity for her.

Worried

As this young man tells you he is in love with you only, don't worry over his pity for his ex-fiancee, even though the adage has it that "pity is akin to love". A man would be hardly human if he didn't feel sorry for a girl who has this terrible affliction. As their engagement has been broken, I don't think you need worry.

Certain Types of Cards Distort Entire Meaning of Christmas

I shall never be able to understand why some people distort the meaning of Christmas by choosing to send cards that show atrocious taste. They go to buy their Christmas cards and are often offered an infinite variety of beautiful messages. But these they pass by and automatically their bad taste responds to the bad taste of a card that seems, to them, funny or cute.

They are so enchanted by these "Smart Aleck" cards that they order a generous supply, bent on sending them to all their friends and acquaintances. In the interim between the time they buy these cards and the time they are mailed, these people gloat to themselves about what a hit these cards will make with their friends.

Comes Christmas, and the friends open their Christmas cards. Most of them are in the happy, festive tone of "Merry Christmas". Some signify the sacred spirit of Christmas and then they open The Horror! No taste but bad taste. No sensitivity to the occasion. No discrimination. The card shows a pathetic lack of suitability, being more appropriate to the fooleries of April Fool or Hallowe'en.

"I speak by my card" is very old and very wise advice. Do you want your Christmas card to speak your fine, discriminating taste? Or do you insist that it be an outrage against decent taste, concrete evidence of your lack of discrimination?

Boys Wants to Be Set Right

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I am a boy, sixteen years of age, and I'm trying very hard to watch my manners. The other evening I was with some other boys in a restaurant. A girl whom they knew, and whom I didn't know, stopped for a minute at our table to speak with the boys at our table. They all rose and stood while she was there. I didn't rise, and one of the boys told me afterward that I should have risen. As a matter of fact, I had thought that a boy or man rose only if he knew the girl who stopped at a restaurant table. I thought that if I rose it would look as if I were wishing for an introduction. Will you please set me right about this?

George

Your friend was right about this, and I'm sure that he told you only for your own good. It takes a fine brand of friendship to say this sort of thing to a friend, for it's easier not to, as we all know.

When a girl or woman comes to your table in a restaurant, you should immediately rise, whether or not you know her, and remain standing while she is standing. Even if she suggests that you sit down, don't!

Turn to Entertain

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I belong to a club and every month one of the members entertains. My turn will be next month. I live in a small apartment and will not be able to entertain the club there, so I thought of having them all at a restaurant. Would it be all right to have a Mexican dinner at a Mexican restaurant and have little souvenirs?

C.

Your plan for your part is an excellent one. Mexican foods and Mexican decorations and accessories are enjoying such special popularity these days that your party will be right in fashion. The tables in the Mexican restaurant will undoubtedly be gay with Mexican pottery and glass, and the party will have a gala start with these. Then you can get such attractive and inexpensive favors.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Muscle-Building Protein Found in Gelatine

For many months now the papers have been full of items concerning gelatine. Billed as an energy food, some of the better known medical men, friends of mine, are enthusiastic supporters of it.

In general, the work done by gelatine is simple. It is composed of a number of different forms of protein. Now, protein is a muscle-builder, and the protein in the gelatine is stored in the muscle tissues in the form of extra energy.

Of course we are all interested in this side of the claims made by the gelatine's exponents. Athletes have publicly stated they have found themselves more fit for their contests through its use.

But there is another phase to the use of gelatine in which I am specially interested, for it has to do with the welfare of infants and small children. Experiments have been conducted and still are being conducted, to discover the value to babies of gelatine's concentrated proteins.

Of course, breast milk is the natural food for babies and it should be the food for the baby wherever possible. But at times natural food is not available and then it is up to physicians to provide the best possible substitute. Raw cow's milk hasn't always been found to be suitable for very young children, and so various feeding formulas have been worked out.

This is where gelatine comes in, and some very interesting experiments have been performed to show its value when added to milk to help form a low-tension curd.

I found the results of the experiments at the University of Maryland particularly interesting because one of the main claims made for gelatine as a result of the tests is that a group of babies who were given it in their milk suffered far less from upper respiratory infections— the common cold.

Any of you who have been following these columns for any length of time knows only too well that I regard the common cold, and infections that result from it, as about the greatest danger a baby faces. So anything that can be done to cut down the risk of getting this infection, or which will increase the child's ability to resist the infection, will certainly be a boon to humanity.

Another claim for gelatine, as a result of these experiments, is that, in the group, the number of cases of diarrhoea was also greatly reduced. I have often told what an enemy of babies diarrhoea is, how it weakens children, causes them to lose weight and how, if it is not checked, it destroys them.

Protein is a tissue-builder. As tissues in the body are burned up in the form of energy, they must be replaced, and so, to growing children, gelatine should present an available form of this tissue building material. If it is successful in providing grown-ups with energy, surely it would be even more valuable to children.

Pretty Refugee Marvels at Way Canadians Live

By MURIEL ADAMS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 22 —(CP)—Curly-headed Hedy Haas opened her eyes wide, sperad out her arms and was "amazed" when she first saw Canada a few months ago and she has been amazed every day since.

The dimpled five-foot Czechoslovakian arrived in Canada with her refugee father, a business man, in September. She is his interpreter for her English, learned in England where she studied a year and a half is very good and his is very poor.

For one thing, Hedy just can't get over the thousands of cans displayed in grocery stores and what is in them. "They're marvelous, the man is a genius who thought of canned foods," she enthused. Cans are practically unknown in Prague, her home, where cooks spend hours in the kitchen preparing food and then wonder until the last moment if it will be a success.

Everything is made so easy here, the dark-eyed girl marvelled. "Why I can pick up the telephone and ask for anything I want and it is brought to me."

At first Hedy couldn't quite understand how the women looked so smart and yet either were bringing up a family and looking after a household single-handed or going to an office every day. "Now I know how to do it," she said, admitting that she had learned a lot from watching her next-door neighbor.

A kitchen's possibilities were unknown to the little Czech when she came to Canada but now she can get dinner ready for her father in 15 minutes and finds it fun experimenting with different menus.

Misses Opera

But Hedy thinks it strange that there is no permanent theatre in Canada. "It amazes me to find that in cities so large as Montreal and Toronto one cannot go to a play or a concert or to the opera every night in the week."

And there are no "old" women in Canada. The middle-aged and older woman is so well-groomed, her face is smooth, her figure excellent and her hair so neatly kept. "In my country a woman shows her age so much more plainly," she said.

Hedy has been travelling around with her father a great deal on business trips through Ontario and Quebec. "I was struck by the railways, the streets cars and oh, the organization and mechanism of everything", she said. "Everything is so comfortable, even the street-car motorman has a foot rest and a little seat to sit on," she exclaimed.

And Hedy discovered Canadians can make up their minds. There is no "maybe" or "next week, perhaps", reply when you make inquiries. You are answered immediately, she found.

This Canada is such a comfortable place to live in, the people are charming and there is such a cheerfulness and lack of formality, she said. "Just call me Bill," the driver returning some cleaning told her the other day.

"Simply marvelous," Hedy remarked, "you can see why I am always amazed."

PLAINFIELD W. M. S.

The November meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Outwater with an attendance of 28. Mrs. Clarence Hall had charge of the devotional period giving the Scripture reading and lesson story. Mrs. McKenzie and Miss Annie Hamilton led in prayer. Roll call answered with verse of Scripture containing word "peace."

Mrs. Harry Harrison, group leader, took charge. A solo was given by Mrs. Ralph Wilder. Mrs. Harrison introduced the new study book and gave part of the first chapter, also a peace program assisted by Miss Olive Hall, Mrs. Frank Hodgen, Mrs. Fred Prindle and Mrs. Charlie Beatty. Solo by Mrs. Harry McCreary and prayer by Mrs. Harrison. Mrs. Prindle gave a reading on Christian Stewardship and Mrs. Elliott on Remembrance Day. Instrumental music was played by Miss Olive Hall and a reading by Mrs. Ed. Emerson.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie took charge of the election of officers for the coming year and closed the meeting with prayer. Collection $3.30.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Meets

Members of the Hospital Auxiliary held their regular meeting in the Nurses' residence yesterday afternoon, with a splendid attendance. Several new members joined the Auxiliary during the afternoon.

The meeting presided over by Mrs. G. H. Stobie was of a routine business nature Plans for the annual dance, and other means of augmenting the funds were discussed.

Fashion Flashes

ELECTED TO favor is the street length afternoon frock of crush-resistant velvet in black and jewel tones, made with a square yoke of lace twinkling here and there with tiny rhinestones.

It's time for those amusing compacts which always come along at the gift season. A group of compacts with working compass tops will appeal to the sportswoman. Beautiful old gilt watches, with the stem wider controlling the powder sifter is another smart novelty.

All set for a comfy evening harem pyjamas in soft midnight blue satin with top of medium blue satin.

You'll never know until you try one, how smart they are, those romantic, wide-skirted dinner dresses. A beauty has the bodice in black velvet made with long, tight sleeves and a very wide curved neckline. The very wide skirt is of stiff moire.

Stem Rust in Wheat Cut Down 70 Per Cent. by New Medicine

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Nov. 22—(AP)—Pills for sick plants are a new prospect for agriculture.

A medicine which in the laboratory cuts stem rust of wheat from 90 down to 20 per cent is reported in the plant journal, Phytopathology, by Helen Hart and J. Lewis Allison of University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Drugs to cure commercially important crop diseases have been sought many years with little success. Why plants do not respond like humans is an interesting scientific puzzle.

For one thing, plants have no circulatory system, other than a series of pipes carrying water up from roots to leaves. Another is ability of roots to exclude many substances. A third is the probability that a medical compound must break into its chemical parts before it can enter roots. Finally there is the problem of finding a chemical, which will not harm the plant.

This is what the St. Paul scientists appear to have accomplished. Rust is caused by a parasite, making it a disease comparable with human infections.

The medicine for it is Toluenesulfonylamide. It is not related to the war explosive suggested by the first half of the name, nor to Sulfanilamide, the human miracle drug, which is spelled almost like the last part. The compound is one of the early stages of Saccharine, the sugar 100 times sweeter than cane.

The St. Paul treatment suggests that plant doctors may be able to scatter pills on the ground. The drug was mixed in quartz sand and scattered on the soil of laboratory plants, where watering dissolved it into the ground.

There are many plants which suffer from rusts, and the report says that while it may not be easy, or even practicable, to devise economical treatment for field crops, there are good prospects for treating some of the ornamental plants of greenhouses and nurseries.

The report credits the tip for this plant medicine to German scientists. It seems less poisonous to plants than boric and picric acid, which have been tried on rusts. The new medicine slightly damages leaves, but they recover quickly.

British Aim to Eliminate Trade Hardships on Neutrals

London, Nov. 22—(CP)—As the export seizure reprisal was imposed on Germany the British Government today said that neutral traders would receive "the most sympathetic consideration possible" The new measure calls for seizure of all German exports on the high seas, regardless of whether they are in the neutral vessels or German.

A spokesman said the sole aim was to drive German products off the seas and thereby shut off Foreign Exchange to Germany. He added that "the Ministry of Economic Warfare is giving the deepest study to the problem of application of the new measure in a manner not to work hardship on neutrals".

(In Paris it was onnounced officially that France had decided to take blockade measures similar to those of Britain.)

Antwerp, Belgium, Nov. 22—(CP)—The Belgian Government, a foreign office spokesman said today, takes a serious view of Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement that neutral ships will be halted and searched for German exports.

Stopping of neutral ships would raise Belgium shipping rates and living costs and reduce Antwerp traffic, this official said. Shippers expressing concern over the announcement, said about one third of Belgium's shipping trade is in German goods.

Services of City Traffic Officer To be Retained to Curb Speeders

Mayor Bone Says Streets Being Made Into Speedways by Reckless Drivers

TOO LONG PARKING

In an effort to alleviate the increased traffic congestions along Front Street, and to curb the fast driving of motor vehicles in Belleville, Mayor Bone was in conference with Chief Kidd of the Police Department today regarding the curbing of such practices in Belleville. One of the first moves to come out of the conference was the announcement that the services of the Traffic Officer would be resumed immediately, Mayor Bone said.

"The parking conditions along Front Street, have become abominable of late. Drivers of motor vehicles will not park their vehicles according to city parking regulations and violations of these city ordinances are daily becoming dangerous to the careful driver", contended Mayor Bone as he personally made a survey of the manner in which motor cars were being parked along the main street.

"The drivers simply ignore our city parking laws, so we have decided the only method left is to have the police enforce the traffic regulations to the letter. There are, also too many complaints about speedsters using our streets for speedways and failing to observe stop street signs. Of course it has been the practice in years past to dispense with the services of a motorcycle patrol in the city after Nov. 1st., but apparently the only manner in which we can curb these continued violations is to have the mounted officer back on his detail with strict instructions to apprehend and charge all motorists who are found violating any traffic regulation," warned Mayor Bone after a lengthy conference with Chief Kidd today.

His Worship also revealed the fact that the new street traffic lights at the intersections of Bridge and Front Streets and Front Street and Victoria Ave., would be put into operation later this week. Flash signals indicating slow traffic will also be installed at the intersections of Victoria and Pinnacle and Bridge and Pinnacle Streets.

Corn-Laden Vessel Wedged on Rock

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov 22—(CP)—The Lake vessel Munroe C. Smith out of Chicago bound for this port is wedged on a rock bottom off Buffalo Harbor with her crew of 31 aboard. The vessel has a cargo of 228,300 bushels of corn. Tugs and the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter are standing by.

Efforts to release the vessel are proving fruitless and lightering operations may have to be commenced. Although not leaking the Harbor Master's office this afternoon expressed the belief the Munroe C. Smith cannot escape some damage due to buckling of plates.

FOE PLANE FALLS ON BELGIAN SOIL

Plane Falls Over Border After Combat With Allied Planes and Lands by Parachute

Brussels, Nov. 22—(CP—Havas)—A German plane crashed on Belgian soil today during an aerial fight involving German, French and British planes.

The German plane, damaged in the fight, managed to get over the border in the vicinity of Turnout. It was riddled with bullets and three of its four occupants evidently were killed.

The pilot landed by parachute and was captured. The plane crashed.

MOTHERS, BABIES ARE ENTERTAINED

The Cradle Roll department of the Sunday School of Tabernacle United Church, under the leadership of Mrs. S. L. Joss, entertained the mothers and babies yesterday afternoon. Associated with these was the Baby Band of the W M.S. under the direction of Mrs Cecil Lent. Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Alexander of the Primary and Beginners assisted and also Mrs. Cornell and Miss J. Smith leaders in the Mission Band work. Mrs. Joss and Mrs. Lent welcomed the mothers and children Mrs. Moore told them a fairy story, and Mrs. Duff sang two children's selections. Rev. D. T. McClintock welcomed all present, speaking of the fundamental place of the home in character and nation building, and how essential it was to give religion a central place in the formation of character. A dainty lunch was served. Mrs. McClintock poured tea. No judgment was passed regarding the prettiest baby, as that might have been dangerous. Anyway they were all very lovely.

Good View of Air Raids Advertised as Special Attraction of House

London, Ont., Nov. 22—(CP)—A London man received a letter from his sister in Scotland today and enclosed in it was an advertisement from a newspaper published in a town on the east coast of Scotland. It reads: "Comfortable rooms to let. Excellent view of air raids. Terms moderate."

REV. CROSSLEY HUNTER NOMINATED FOR MODERATOR

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 22—(CP)—Brantford Presbytery of the United Church, at a meeting yesterday in Burford United Church, unanimously nominated Rev. Dr. E. Crossley Hunter, minister of First United Church, Hamilton, for the office of Moderator of the General Council of the United Church for 1940.

W. F. COCKSHUTT, BRANTFORD, DIES

84-Year-Old Industrialist Conservative Member from 1904 to 1917

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 22—(CP)—A leading figure for many years in the political, social and industrial life of this district, William Foster Cockshutt died at his home here during the night. He was 84.

Conservative Member of Parliament for Brantford from 1904 to 1917, President of the Cockshutt Plough Company in 1885 and 1886, Mr. Cockshutt had widespread interests in public and private life.

Born in Brantford, a son of Ignatius Cockshutt, pioneer merchant and philanthropist, he started his business career in the produce house of Thomas Furness and Company in England.

He returned to Canada as a young man and became associated with his father, whose work he carried on after Ignatius Cockshutt's retirement.

He served on many important committees and was a member of the first Hydro-Electric Commission, appointed by the municipalities, to look into the development of Niagara power.

Upon the request of Sir Sam Hughes, Mr. Cockshutt raised the 125th Battalion for overseas service in the first Great War. He later placed the command in the hands of the late Col. M. E. B. Cutcliffe, accepting for himself the post of Honorary Colonel.

In 1906, Mr. Cockshutt was presented to King Edward VII and he represented Brantford at the funeral of the King in 1910. In 1924, he was presented to King George V and Queen Mary in London.

For nearly 40 years he was an active member of the Anglican Communion and throughout most of that period he was a delegate to the Huron Synod. He also attended Provincial and General Synods as a member of the Executive Committee.

He devoted much of his time to Boards of Trades and Chambers of Commerce in Brantford and Toronto. He was a member of the Council of the Toronto Board of Trade for more than 30 years.

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" Held Over

The manager of the McCarthy Theatre announced today that their current attraction, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is being held over beyond its original three-day schedule in Belleville. This is not at all surprising to this commentator.

While the picture has an American political setting, it appeals to all those who believe that democracy is soundly founded on the ideal that right will prevail, despite political shenanigans and other diverting influences.

James Stewart ably portrays the young Boy Ranger leader with the burning patriotism of youth who is suddenly projected into the United States Senate and runs counter to the political machine. Jean Arthur, with her unusually attractive screen voice, proves a sophisticated foil for Stewart's seriousness, and brings in the romantic angle which leaves the audience at the end with a good taste in the mouth.

In all, the picture is superbly screened and splendidly directed. The reproductions of the Senate Chamber interior are true in the finest detail. Those who have seen "Mr. Smith" declare "Frank Capra has done it again," which is high praise for any picture.

CHARLES L. HYDE NOT A CANDIDATE

Former Alderman and Member of Board of Education Reconsiders Decision to Run for Mayoralty

Mr. Charles Hyde, prominent Front Street plumbing executive and business man, will not contest the city mayoralty in the forthcoming municipal elections, he announced today.

Serious consideration of all angles and phases of the question resulted in the decision to refrain from entering the municipal arena in quest of the Chief Magistracy of the city.

Numerous requests from friends and supporters a few days ago to the effect, that he enter his name as a candidate for the highest municipal office the city can bestow caused Mr. Hyde to reconsider a former decision, that he would not contest the mayoralty, but upon reconsideration and in view of business conditions and other circumstances, he decided to forego for this year at least, the opportunity to offer himself as a candidate.

Peterborough Raises $25,000 for Red Cross, $10,000 Above Objective

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 22—(CP)—Attaining 166 per cent of its $15,000 objective Peterborough has responded with approximately $25,0000 to the first appeal of the Canadian Red Cross it was announced here today with the closing of the campaign last night, the actual amount subscribed was $24,294, with prospective returns that are expected to swell the sum to $25,000.

DEPICT KUHN AS SHIPBOARD ROMEO

Letter Read in Court from Bund Leader to Mrs. Camp Causes Titters

New York, Nov. 22—(AP)—Fritz Kuhn, Fuehrer of the German-American Bund, blushed scarlet today when the prosecution depicted him as a shipboard romeo and read a letter he wrote to his "heaven sent" woman friend, Mrs. Florence Camp.

Spectators tittered, while Kuhn's cheeks reddened and his eyes blazed with anger, as Prosecutor Herman McCarthy read the letter at the Bund leader's trial on larceny charges.

"Florence," it said, "I am terrible in love with you. I beg you to become my beloved wife. I will always be real true to you and will love you forever—can't be without you any more because I realize heaven did send you and. I never will forget that. Signed Fritz."

Kuhn, who already has a wife, had denied just a few seconds earlier that he proposed marriage to Mrs. Camp during an ocean cruise on the Steamship Westernland.

"Mrs. Camp was too much a lady to listen to proposals of marriage within four days on board," he said.

McCarthy then produced the note, which brought a protest from Kuhn that it was "all in fun."

"It was done the night of a ship party," Kuhn said. "Everybody does that sort of thing."

"Did you ever have a love affair with Mrs. Camp?" Judge James Wallace asked.

"No, I did not," Kuhn answered. "Mrs. Camp is very much a lady. I am still on very friendly terms with her"

Belleville Club Holds Social Evening

Officials of the Belleville Club inaugurated the series of winter social functions last night in the clubrooms where a large number of members, their wives and guests enjoyed novel entertainment, music and dancing.

The ever-popular "Bingo" with succulent hams as the prizes attracted the attention of the guests during the early part of the evening, with dancing culminating an event that for sheer enjoyment augurs well for the success of similar functions to come.

Delicious refreshments were served during the evening.

CRERARIMPRESSED

"The romance of war has been pretty well blacked out, and that, perhaps, is a good thing. Parades take second place to utility and efficiency."

Apart from the "magnificent spirit of the people" Mr. Crerar said the thing that impressed him was the magnitude of the task the British people had set for themselves.

"The people have not made the mistake of thinking this war can be fought and won by the armed forces alone. They have determined that every atom of their strength, military, financial and economic shall be mobilized for victory."

Powerful War Machine

Britain had transformed itself almost overnight from a peaceful nation to a powerful war machine, not because of dictation "by a despot from a castle" but because of the voluntary determination of a democratic people.

In France Mr. Crerar said he found the same quiet determination and the same complete mobilization in which all do their bit.

Strength of the Maginot Line had not been exaggerated. Built at a tremendous cost and with great vision and foresight by the French people, it stood a virtually impassable barrier to the invader.

In France there was "no wild enthusiasm—no military swashbuckling" but a grim determination that recurring German threats to European peace must be ended forever.

Attempt to Make Touch for Dollar Has Serious Results

Toronto, Nov. 22—(CP)—An attempt to make a touch for a dollar had serious results today.

Vincent Mignacco, 27, who tried to float the loan, was in a hospital with stiletto wounds that left him near death. A friend, Mike Pesce, 52, who tried to stop the fight that ensued when Mignacco was turned down, was nursing a slash on the wrist that required six stitches to close. He also was under arrest as a material witness.

Frank Trigardi, who drove Mignacco to a doctor's office and then to a hospital, was also held as a material witness.

Two more men were being hunted in connection with the fight, which occurred Monday night but was not reported to police until late yesterday.

Mignacco first was knifed in the chest by the unwilling lender. He was taken to a doctor, patched up after explaining the wound was accidental, and returned to the scene of battle. In the second fight he was stabbed in the abdomen and his condition today was described as "only fair."

LONDON PRESS AGREED REPRISAL NOW NECESSARY

Decision to Seize German Exports is Welcomed—Only Language Nazis Understand

SERIOUS FOR GERMANY

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—"Reprisal is the only language the Nazis understand", the Times said today as the press welcomed the government's decision to seize German exports.

The Daily Herald said "The economic consequences to Germany of even partial stoppage of her export trade will be very serious, for it will make even more difficult her attempts to obtain raw material in spite of the blockade".

"Already there are signs that by Spring she will be running really short of oil, iron ore and other essential metals—to say nothing of fats, cotton and wool. Her continental 'back doors' are open; but she is finding it harder and harder to pay for things imported through them.

One of her means of payment has been through exporting coal, machinery and chemicals overseas through Italy, Spain and Portugal, to South America and the Far East. For these goods she has been getting foreign currency with which to buy imports from Scandinavia, Russia, the Balkans and Italy. The blockade will deprive her of these resources".

The Times said: "Public opinion, like the House of Commons will heartily endorse the British Government's decision to take immediately more drastic measures against German sea-borne trade, in retaliation for the extension of piracy on the part of the German government. Reprisal is the only language the Nazis understand.

"It is purely a wrecking form of piracy, to which the British and French navies will without doubt before long be able to put a stop."

Will Inconvenience Neutrals

"The blockade and counter-blockade will inevitably cause much hardship to neutral countries", the News Chronicle said. "But our method, unlike that of the Nazis, will involve no loss of neutral ships, no sacrifice of lives, no frightfulness. Neutrals will suffer inconvenience at our hands, but that is the price they must pay—and should pay gladly—for removal from the world of the Nazi pestilence."

According to the Financial News, "the lack of Foreign Exchange makes Germany a bad buyer".

"So long as the sea routes to this country remain open to traffic trade from the Oslo states—the Scandinavian countries, Holland and Belgium—will inevitably trend towards the Allies", the financial organ added.

Short of Commodities

"Germany is short of all commodities that the Oslo States produce—iron ore, timber, bacon and dairy produce. If indiscriminate submarine warfare were sufficiently intensified to render the North Sea impracticable for shipping, the Oslo States would have no outlet but Germany for their products. In those circumstances Germany could make her own terms for payment.

"If mine laying were to continue to be as effective as during the last week, it would represent a real threat to British food supplies. hia, the Balkans and Italy. The States become virtually dependent upon Germany for a market, the effectiveness of the blockade would be seriously weakened."

Eskimos at Barrow Said Short of Food

Barrow, Alaska, Nov. 22 (AP)—Eskimos of this farthest north outpost had no juicy walrus meat nor even an abundance of the usually-plentiful whale or seal meat in their ice cellars today as they prepared for a bleak Thanksgiving Day of prayer and feasting on freshly-killed polar bear.

Up here, where turkey is unknown, the Eskimos ask nothing better for a holiday feast than walrus meat. But hunger has come to many of the native families and more than half of the Eskimos' dogs have died of starvation or have been killed.

Summer and fall weather (strong offshore winds drove the ice from the northern beach in early July, and it didn't return 'till mid-October) had robbed the Eskimos of their hunting on the ice for walrus.

Even the reindeer supply has dwindled to less than half what it was three years ago. Numerous wolf packs rival the natives in the food quest by killing off 20 to 30 reindeer on almost nightly raids.

NORWEGIAN FREIGHTER OFF SHOAL

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 22—(AP)—The Norwegian steamer Trajan headed down the St. Lawrence River today after being held fast on shoals below Ogdensburg for two weeks.

A portion of the freighter's cargo of 53,100 bushels of soy beans was lightered before the Trajan was freed yesterday. The vessel is en route to Copenhagen, Denmark, from Chicago.

Post Master Advises Early Mailing of Parcels to Britain

Official censorship's far reaching effects will this year touch the general public, at least that part which sends Christmas presents to friends and relatives in the British Isles.

For with the elimination of publication of all boat sailings to the Mother Country, senders of gifts will have to mail their parcels and take a chance on them reaching their destination in time for the Yuletide festivities, according to information given out by the Belleville Post Office today.

And in view of this situation, potential senders of Christmas parcels are urged to mail their gifts at the earliest possible moment in order to ensure delivery before Santa Claus makes his famous down-chimney descent.

The Post Office also issues another word of timely warning. Due to heavy congestion of seasonal mail at the various United States Customs points along the border, the public should mail all parcels and letters addressed to the U.S.A. not later than the second week in December.

Two special bags, consigned to Customs Offices at Buffalo and Detroit will leave the local Post Office daily, while mail destined for the Eastern States and other American points will reach the U. S. Customs through the ordinary Post Office channels.

Residents of the city are urged to mail all Christmas parcels early. "This year, various congestions that ordinarily do not take place, will ensue," Postmaster J. V. C. Trualsch stated this morning, "and in order to ensure delivery and avoid possible disappointments, people should send their gifts at the earliest possible moment."

New Facilities to Relieve Congestion

New facilities for the handling of mail destined for the northern part of the county have alleviated congestion in the main office. A "U" shaped series of racks on which hang bags for the twenty-seven points served now takes the place of the former box-racks.

Rural-carriers supplying the immediate districts will likewise be given the benefit of a new distributing method within the next few days. In the east side of the basement of the Post Office, space has been partitioned off in which all mail for the rural sections will be sorted and bagged.

A new metal shoot carries the mail from the main floor of the office to the new basement distributing centre where carriers sort and arrange their mails for their own convenience. The new arrangement will alleviate to a great extent the congestion that occurs on the main floor during the Christmas holiday season, besides furnishing much needed extra room for the regular staff during the seasonal rush.

SYSTEM DESIGNED TO STOP DELAYS

British to Examine U. S. Cargoes Before Shipment to Assist That Country in Trade

Washington, Nov. 22 — (AP)—Great Britain's plan to expedite United States exports to neutral countries may aid her in checking any flow of American goods to Germany.

The arrangement announced yesterday by the British Embassy provides for issuance of certificates to exporters showing that consignments are "unobjectionable" to the British. The certificates, called "navicerts," will be issued by British consulates beginning Dec. 1.

The system amounts to a pre-examination of cargo, and is designed to prevent delays involved when British contraband patrols search vessels. It will operate on American shipments to ten neutral countries—Belgium, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden.

One authority predicted that the British Government would maintain a central control over the system in London. He declared that the British probably would keep an up-to-the-minute compilation of goods covered by the navicerts.

If American shipments to any neutral should increase substantially above normal, he explained. British authorities might assume that the neutral was permitting their transshipment to Germany and might decline to certify further shipments.

The British sea blockade virtually prevents trade directly with Germany, and the new system thus might be effective in curtailing American shipments reaching that nation by way of neutrals. Exporters generally were expected to accept the British program as a sort of insurance against the stoppage of their goods by British warships.

Strasser Accuses Himmler Of Planning Munich Bombing

Exiled Nazi Charges Gestapo Chief Planted the Bomb Himself

TO STIR UP HATE

By Georges Riolet
Havas Staff Writer

Paris, Nov. 22.—(CP-Havas)—Otto Strasser, exiled Nazi opponent of Adolf Hitler who was officially accused of organizing the Munich bombing, today accused Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler of planting the bomb himself.

"The Munich attempt on the Fuehrer's life was organized by Himmler", Strasser told this correspondent today. "I have just received formal proof through a member of the party who is deeply devoted to me. The whole project was planned by Himmler himself. He told Hess (Rudolph Hess, Hitler's deputy in the party) that he needed an attempted assassination in order to unleash a 'campaign of hate' against Great Britain and also to have a pretext for dealing with internal enemies, especially members of the Black Front".

The Black Front is Strasser's organization which broke from the Nazi party in 1934 after the blood purge, in which Gregor Strasser, his brother, was murdered. Both Strassers were among the founders of the Nazi party.

"Hess agreed, on condition that there be no victims", Strasser said. "Himmler insisted, saying there had to be victims, or else no one would believe it to be a real attempt.

"The two men finally agreed that there should be victims, but no one of importance. Everything then went according to pre-arranged schedule.

"The Buergerbraukeller (the Beer Hall in which the bombing occurred) was insured with a Swiss Company on the afternoon of Nov. eighth.

"Before the so-called 'author' of the attempt was known, on Nov. 10, the German government asked for my extradition at Berne as 'inspirer of the attempt'.

"The name George Elser is completely unknown to me. He never belonged to the Black Front"

(Elser is the man whose arrest in connection with plot was announced yesterday. Strasser was in Switzerland at the time of the explosion, but left for France later because, he said, he had learned his life was in danger.)

PLANE DESIGNER NOW IN HOLLAND

Wilhelm Messerschmidt Has Fled Germany According to Press Story

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—The Daily Sketch reported today that Wilhelm Messerschmidt, designer of the Reich's most famous combat plane, has fled Germany and is living in the Netherlands.

"For a long time Messerschmidt has been a disgruntled man", the writer said. "He considers he had no fair deal from the Nazis, who some time ago demanded that all his patents should be assigned to the state.

"He also lost prestige at the beginning of the war, when it was discovered his planes once the world's fastest, had been surpassed by the British and French."

CRERAR TO LEAVE LONDON IN DEC.

Each Dominion Minister Now Conducting Individual Conference With Britain

(By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 22 (CP Cable)—Hon. T. A. Crerar, Canadian Minister of Mines and Resources, probably will leave for Canada early in December at the conclusion of the Empire war discussions here.

The discussions among representatives of the Dominions and Britain have concluded and each Dominion is now conducting individual negotiations with Britain.

For the most part the Canadian negotiations relate to shipping, purchases of food and munitions in Canada, and finance.

The biggest single problem involved in the Anglo-Canadian negotiations in finance, necessitated by Britain's need to accumulate dollars for the purchase of Canadian products.

Montreal Canadiens Tie Leafs For Leadership of the N. H. L. By Defeating Boston Bruins

Toe Blake and Robinson Were Scorers in Two-to-One Victory

CONACHER SCORES

Team Consigned to Cellar by Experts Simply Flying Under Lepine

Boston, Nov. 22 (CP)—There is a feeling around the National Hockey League today that the experts have been fooled again by the unpredictable Montreal Canadiens.

Rated as of championship calibre a year ago, Canadiens barely managed to squeeze into the playoffs and were eliminated in the first round of the post-season series. Consigned to a cellar berth this season, the Habitants are perched on top in a tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Only Canadiens have the answer to the reason for this transformation, but from their showing so far it looks as though coach Pit Lepine has instilled in them some of the greatness of the Howie Morenz era during which they won the cognomen of the Flying Frenchmen.

Habitants Flying

For Canadiens were flying as they beat the champion Bruins here 2-1 last night for their fifth straight game without a loss. And it was their ability to come back as quickly as they went forward that brought them victory over Boston.

Art Ross' men definitely had the better of the play as their 30 shots on goal against 14 by Canadiens will attest, but they were so harassed by Montreal back-checking that only rarely did they get through for point-blank shots on little Claude Bourque.

Conacher Scores

Roy Conacher, the league's leading goal-getter last season, sent the Bruins into a first period lead on a play with Mel Hill, but Toe Blake, who topped all point scorers last season, evened the count in the second period after taking a pass from Doug Young.

Two newcomers to Canadiens, Earl Robinson and Marty Barry, combined on the winning goal which came in the ninth minute of the final period. Robinson banged in a hard shot at Frankie Brimsek and then drove home the rebound.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

NEIL COLVILLE
RANGERS

Neil Colville

For fans who see just a few N.H.L. games one of the easiest players to tell on the ice (without benefit of program) is Neil Colville of the Rangers. Neil sports a fine head of silver and black hair that usually is moving at a rapid rate from one end of the ice to the other. A grad of the Edmonton Athletic club, he centres the line that has brother Mac at right wing and Alex Shibicky at left, successors to the immortal Cooks-Boucher combination, which was fading as this trio was rising. Neil is a smooth, fast skater with an accurate shot—one of the best three or four centres in the league. Dangerous on the attack and then whizz!—and he's back keeping players and pucks away from his own goal. One of the many players with the Rangers produced by Lester Patrick's annual "puck school" conducted each fall at Winnipeg. Played with Brooklyn Crescents, later Philadelphia Ramblers and is now in his fourth year with the parent club. Each year has seen an improvement on the one before and last year he registered 18 goals, 19 assists and was second to Syl Apps in the annual all-star voting. All told he had 45 goals, 56 assists and only 56 minutes in penalties to his credit at the start of the present campaign.

Roy Conacher, Boston, saved Bruins from a shutout with first period goal.

GREATEST PLAYER ARGUMENT BRINGS SHORE IN PICTURE

Art Ross Says Defenceman Greatest Player of All Time

IRVIN JOINS IN

Says Apps Goes by Players Faster Than Taylor or Morenz

By JACK CALDER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Nov. 22—(CP)—Swooping Sylvanus Apps may not be the greatest player in hockey history but everyone's agreed he's good enough to start an argument on that point.

The swift-skating centre of Toronto Maple Leafs, who simultaneously is a magnificent individualist and a sterling team player, has been so torrid this National League season that managers are debating whether he's better than Cyclone Taylor, Howie Morenz and Eddie Shore—to mention a few.

Jack Adams, manager of Detroit Red Wings, started it all after Apps led the Leafs to two overwhelming victories over the Wings last weekend. He called Syl "the best player who ever had skates on" and "a greater hockey player than Howie Morenz ever was."

No Reason to Change Mind

Lester Patrick of New York Rangers shot back that several years ago he had picked Cyclone Taylor, the former Ottawa Valley and Pacific coast star, and had had no reason to change his mind since then about the greatest of all time.

Dick Irvin, who played against both Taylor and Morenz, contended that Apps "goes by the players of today faster than Taylor or Morenz ever went by me."

But manager Art Ross of the world champion Boston Bruins hadn't been heard from. Art Ross is always heard from.

"Shore, in my opinion, was the greatest hockey player of all time" he submitted on behalf of his colorful defenceman, who is closing his career.

Irvin, perhaps in better position to judge than anyone, wouldn't express an opinion on whether Apps was the greatest player in history.

"You're going to miss the point altogether if you go off on that tack," he told a questioner.

Goes by Faster

"The point is this: Syl Apps goes by the players of today faster than Taylor and Morenz went by me. That isn't the whole argument but it's something.

"As for comparing Apps directly with Taylor, that's almost impossible because conditions are so different. In Taylor's day there were seven men to a side and that made an entirely different sort of game."

These things Irvin said for Apps:

(1) He hasn't reached his peak yet and may cause even more conjecture when he does; (2) He is a better playmaker than Taylor and Morenz, who weren't passers at all to Irvin's way of thinking; (3) He is the most graceful player on record; (4) He is more greatly admired by his contemporaries than any player ever was.

RED RAIDERS RALLY

Valleyfield, Que., Nov. 22—(CP)—Sherbrooke Red Raiders came from behind last night to defeat Valleyfield Braves 5-3 and gain a first place tie with St. Hyacinthe in the Provincial Senior Hockey League.

A pair of goals each by Jack Forsey and Guidoo Roy sent last year's champions down to defeat. Red Ryan tallied the other Sherbrooke counter while Tony Demers, with two goals, and Joe Levine with one were the Valleyfield scorers.

MAX KIMINSKY UP WITH LEADERS

Goaless Wonder but Has Ten Assists for Season so Far

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 22—(CP)—Max Kaminsky, Springfield's goalless wonder, was forced to share the scoring leadership in the International-American League today with Butch McDonald and Conny Brown of Indianapolis Capitals.

Kaminsky, in the van since the season opened, was credited with no goals and 10 assists for a total of 10 points in league statistics made public here.

McDonald scored a goal and assist in Sunday's game against Cleveland Barons to give him 10 points—two goals and eight assists—while Brown recorded an assist to put him into the three-way first-place tie with four goals and six assists.

OVERCOME 2-GOAL DEFICIT

Verdun, Que., Nov. 22—(CP)—Verdun Bulldogs overcame a two-goal deficit last night to tie Lachine Rapides 2-2 in a Provincial Senior Hockey League game. It was Verdun's fourth straight game without a defeat.

Conrad Bourcier and Ernest LaForce scored Verdun's goals after Conny Tudin and Jimmy Terriault had built up a 2-0 lead for the Rapides.

His name has been in the Canadian sports news for a decade now, but perhaps soon he'll only be heard about in a political sense, so here he is on the sports page, where he is not quite through yet. It's Dave Sprague, over the course of his gridiron career, one of the best line-smashers ever developed in Canada. He played first with some mighty Hamilton Tiger teams before moving to Ottawa, where he hopes to finish up as a member of another Dominion championship team this year, before running for an aldermanic seat in the Ottawa council in a few weeks.

Seen as they left St. Peter and St. Paul's church in San Francisco after their wedding, are Mr. and Mrs. Joe DiMaggio, she a former stage and screen actress, and he, of course, baseball's No. 1 player. Anything approaching a quiet, or even an ordinary ceremony, was out of the question at the wedding, as baseball fans by thousands stormed the church and milled around outside.

HAMILTON TO BE STRONG TEAM IN SENIOR O. H. A.

Assertion True Despite Fact Tigers Have Only Won One in Four Played

GALT SWAMPED

Port Colborne Scores 8-1 Victory Over Moose to Advance in Group

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Dominions, new entry in the senior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association this season, have won but one game in four played but it's a good bet they'll be strong contenders in the playoffs come the end of winter. They've got the fighting finish that makes champions.

All the Dominions need now is a formula on how to play hockey in the first two periods as they do in the third and final one. They just can't get started, it seems, until late in the game.

Their rally came too late again in St. Catharines last night and they lost 3-2, after scoring both goals in the third period. Last Friday they were edged 5-4 by Toronto Goodyears and scored all their goals in a fighting third-period finish.

Galt Submerged

Over at Port Colborne last night, the hometown Sailors went on a scoring spree to submerge the winless Galt Moose Club 8-1. It was Galt's fourth straight loss and the Sailor victory gave them a first-place tie with Toronto Goodyears and St. Catharines.

Earl Laroche and Doug Runions picked up five scoring points each in the Port Colborne win and went into a tie with Hugh Barlow and Johnny Conick of Hamilton for the scoring leadership of the major amateur league. Each has seven points in the four games plaled.

An outstanding defence bulwark in the Sailor victory was Bas Bastien, goalkeeper formerly of North Bay's junior Trappers. He performed sensationally throughout and the only shot to beat him came from the stick of clever Carl Liscombe on a pretty combination play with Keith Cooper, a Brantford native.

St. Kitts Take Early Lead

At St. Catharines, the Saints scored all their goals before the scarlet Tigers stalked. Rudy Pilous shot the first counter in the opening period and Barlow added the other with less than three minutes of play remaining. Dominions continued their desperate rally and kept the Saints hemmed in their own end of the rink but Ran Forder, who goaled in England the past several seasons, held them at bay.

In tonight's only game, Goodyears will attempt to go into undisputed possession of first place when they tackle Niagara Falls in Toronto.

Take 16-Year-Old For Grad Cagers

Edmonton, Nov. 22—(CP)—When Percy Page gets through rebuilding his Edmonton Grads basketball team, there's a chance one of the newcomers on it will be Margaret Colville, 16-year-old sister of Neil and Mac Colville of New York Rangers National Hockey League Club.

Margaret is the youngest of the 10 players being tried out for the four vacant spots on the eight-player roster of the Underwood International trophy holders. The others are Kay MacRitchie and Winnie Gallen, who played as spares with Grads during the fall, Betty Bawden, Flo Plante, Frances Gordon, Rena Fraser, Victoria Ewasiuk, Dorothy Allan and Hilda Hughes.

Brothers Neil and Mac may be able to claim a bit of the credit if their kid sister makes the team. Last summer they bought her a ball and in the backyard of their home they built a hoop standard so she could get lots of shooting practice.

Backyard hoops are not new to Grad players. Similar ones brought very good results to Noel MacDonald, former captain who retired this fall, and Joan Williamson, veteran who is expected to succeed Noel as centre.

The possibilities of increased interest in basketball and patronage perhaps renewed and enthusiasm in the cage game seems practically an assured fact before another Ontario Basketball Association rolls around in Belleville. Recently at a meeting of the Board of Education an R.C.A.F. request for the use of the boys' gymnasium at the Belleville Collegiate was granted by the Board, the Air Force stating their Sports Club desired to utilize the Collegiate gymnasium two evenings a week for basketball practice. We understand there are several good hoopsters at the Airport, all of whom are anxious to "pot a few" before Christmas at least. Enroute to Oshawa with the Airmen last week we mentioned the fact that Secretary Joe Shortt, at the Y.M.C.A. here, was contemplating the organization of a house basketball loop at the "Y" soon. Immediately F-O Joe Stevenson, who was a basketball player of note when in Windsor and at the R.M.C., from where he graduated, asked "Would the Belleville "Y" officials accept a couple of Airmen teams into their house league?" Today Secretary Joe Shortt answered that question when he announced that an opening meeting of all basketball players in Belleville and district would be held at the Y.M.C.A. this evening.

Mr. Shortt feels that with such players as Art Cole, Al Wickerson, Owen Aikins, Gord Edwards, Jack Dickens, Herb Burley, Ab Faulkner, to say nothing of those players who graduated from last year's junior squad, all available, Belleville could easily muster two good cage teams and with a couple from the R.C.A.F. and possibly another from Albert College, to say nothing of maybe Trenton, a good house basketball league could be organized. Players interested, however, should avail themselves of tonight's open meeting to discuss the question at the "Y." Actually the idea in mind is to operate a pre-season house cage loop of four to six teams from which ten or twelve players would subsequently be selected for O.B.A. provincial competition. Besides F-O Stevenson, who is a hoopster of accepted qualities, there are several other cagers at the R.C.A.F. base, including Casey Young, who was a real scoring threat with Western University seniors last season.

Incidentally Tom Masscaro, star basketball player with the Windsor Alumni team of some years ago, is a resident of Belleville now, being the manager of the Capitol Theatre. Mr. Masscaro personally assured us he would gladly assist coaching a Belleville basketball team whenever possible. Actually what has been needed in this city for some years is a good basketball coach to teach the locals the finer points and tricks of the trade. A good coach, plus a grouping, that would provide new faces, might see the cage game gain in public favour. There are Kingston basketball mentors who are seeking a Belleville entry into their group, but locally the boys feel a group, that might include Peterboro', Oshawa and Cobourg would prove more profitable and interesting to both the players and patrons in this city. At any rate all of these questions will be thoroughly discussed tonight at the "Y"—seats free so step up.

After last Saturday night's Toronto at Detroit N.H.L. game, Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings, openly stated that Syl Apps is "the best player who ever pulled on a pair of skates." Immediately the grey-thatched Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers, took issue with Adams' hockey contention. Patrick admitted, however, that the Toronto Leafian centre undoubtedly is "the greatest in hockey today," but Patrick holds that Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, the former Ottawa and Vancouver star, is the all-time ranking hockey player. "I named Taylor as the best in hockey several years ago and have seen nothing to change my mind since," held patrick. However, to have Patrick admit Apps is the No. 1 player of the day is something of [illegible] and a great feather in his hockey chapeau.

Do you remember when: Balmy Beach, champions of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, scored an 8-0 decision over Hamilton Tigers, Big Four champions, for the Eastern Canada title at Toronto nine years ago today. Balmy Beach later defeated Regina Rough Riders 11-6 for the Canadian championship.

After passing out congratulations to the Peterborough "collegians", for winning over the B.C.I. gridders at Port Hope on Saturday, the Liftlock City scribe had the following comment to make regarding the Belleville side of the picture. In part he says—"

"Can't slip down too far in this column without tossing a big bouquet to the boys of Bella Villa. These lads aren't supported by their school—which specializes in inter-form rugby of the six-man variety. They raise the necessary dough on dances or whatnot, and had only one other club in their group this season. Yet they extended the Petes till the latter lads were almost back on their heels in the second half. A big black-haired boy named Clare carried the main burden for the Quinte crew and is one swell gridder in all departments. He was nearly crying coming off at the finish in disappointment. It would be most unjust to say he was a one-man team, as the other Belleville gallants did their share, but he was tops."

SPORT SPICE — Detroit Jack Adams really started something when he named Apps as hockey's greatest, but then that question was always a serious bone of contention whenever brought up in puck circles...The undefeated Canadiens beat Boston 2-1 last night and are now tied with the Maple Leafs for the N.H.L. leadership... After all it does seem a little more life justification to see the two Canadian clubs leading the pro puck parade. ....Mike Jacobs says "no championship fights are ever fixed," but he did not say anything about "build-ups," we observe. .... There's a movement on foot to reorganize the California hockey league.....After a successful battle to regain his health, Bill DeLancey, former Cardinal catcher of 1934, will try a comeback after years in Arizona.

Defenceman Goes to Bruins

Montreal, Nov. 22—(CP)—George Brown, who announced his retirement from hockey last spring after several seasons with Montreal Canadiens and New Haven Eagles, left here last night for Boston where he said he expected to join the Bruins as a defenceman.

Brown said he decided to come out of retirement when Art Ross, Boston manager, got in touch with him earlier this week.

The quality is the same high standard that made this brand such an outstanding favorite. But the package is more compact to fit the pocket handily; and what is even more important, firmer packing keeps the full rich flavor and natural freshness of the tobacco much longer. Try a ten cent package of DAILY MAIL Cigarette Tobacco and you'll readily understand why it is "The Fastest Way to Smoking Pleasure".

The Stars Say

For Thursday, November 23
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A LIVELY day, on which the personal, domestic, social or affectional obligations are paramount over more sordid and ambitious engagements, is forecast. There may be much stirring-about and excitement in connection with the happy routines, but there is a possibility of some deceits, treachery or some other malicious manifestation, possibly in relation to employers or elders. Shun rash impulsive or extravagant indulgences.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which the personal pleasures of living seem to overshadow the workaday. Much social, domestic, affectional or artistic liveliness is indicated, despite some duplicity, malevolence or crafty opposition. With proper restraint, much happiness and success are possible.

A child born on this day may be talented in unusual ways, perhaps in art, music, drama or in the social graces. It may have elements in its nature to invite malicious or deep-seated opposition that will be hazardous to its success.

"Madeleine!" Becky's eyes filled, yet she was smiling. "Was that her name? You loved her? You are my father! From the beginning I think I loved you that way. Was that it?"

"No," he said. "I'm not your father. I wish—God knows how I wish I were! I loved her, Becky, from the time I wasn't much more than a little boy. I idolized her. She was like you, but slighter, a slender little woman. Her color was exactly yours. And everyone who saw her loved her, I think. But she didn't love me. I was a little younger—two years, three years, something like that. And so many older men wanted her!

"And then I had a chance to do her a service, Becky, and I failed her. Her asking me came absolutely without warning, and she'd hurt me, she'd hurt my pride! I said no, and she went away, and I never saw her again.

"But it was about you, her unborn baby, that she'd spoken to me, so I knew you were somewhere in the world, if you hadn't died. And I knew she was gone, for she sent me a little note to say goodbye. I tried to trace it; there was no tracing it. It had been sent by some hand she could trust. It had been mailed in St. Louis, but it hadn't been written in St. Louis. I went there, I searched. It was no use. Babies and mothers and babies and mothers, and clue after clue failing. She had covered her tracks too well.

"So you slipped through my hands. But I took a vow that if ever I could help Madeleine's child every penny I had should be hers. And time brought you straight to me."

Becky sat perfectly still, her tearful eyes fixed on his. "Now I'll tell you my side," she said. "What mother told me."

Ashes fell in the fireplace and the room grew chill. But still the two voices murmured on and on in the silences of the old house in the depth of a winter night. It was after midnight when he sent her, tired and white, upstairs to bed. At the foot of the stairs he said:

"If I were your father, Becky, I think I should tell you to wait—wait a long time before trusting yourself to any man again!"

She did not answer. But he saw the stricken look in her tear-wet eyes; saw the slow weary drag of her feet as she turned and went upstairs.

"And when do you go, Becky?" Duane Fox asked in the voice of one who knows the answer.

"Tomorrow night. We drive into town at about nine, and are on the train at midnight. Then I'll put Gibbs right to bed. We're in Chicago at ten tomorrow night and make close connections with the Overland. And home on Friday!"

"You like the prospect," Laurence said glommily. "My God, if I were leaving you for six or seven weeks I couldn't sing about it!"

"I wasn't singing," Becky said, laughing. "Larry, if you could see your face! I believe this poor little nitwit is jealous."

"You know it!" Laurence said, kissing her.

"Yes; I'm glad to go home and say that I'm sorry I've given them so much trouble," Becky presently said in a more serious mood. "And I'm glad to get the other thing started. I don't feel that I belong there any more. When I come away again I want it to be all cleared up and closed behind me. And the sooner the better!"

"God, I wish you didn't have to do it. They may pull that interlocutory year on you!" Laurence muttered.

"Oh, they will!" said Becky. "That's California law. I know, because I—"

"It isn't Nevada law," Laurence interrupted in a low voice.

"No! but why should I go to Nevada? It's expensive, and it would be lonely, and it would distress mother terribly. If I have to do that," Becky said, "I'll come back here and make this spring trip with Doctor Dinsmore and Mrs. Lee, and then go back to California in the fall."

"And what would that accomplish?" asked the older man.

They were having tea in the studio on a wild February afternoon of wind and sleet. The afternoon was spent; Laurence had finished the sketch in pastel he had been doing of Becky's head, and they had gathered around the stove whose iron sides glowed red.

Duane Fox was a stout man with a rosy face and silvered hair. His gray eyes were covered with strong-lensed glasses; when he smiled he showed handsome white teeth. He wore loose wide slacks of well-worn corduroy streaked and spotted with odds and ends of paint, and a ticking smock faded and equally paint-spattered but stiffly ironed and recently washed. Laurence as always was picturesque. His fair loose hair was tumbled, a smooch of vermilion chalk lay across one cheek, his old white silk shirt and sleeveless sweater, his disreputable blue cloth slacks were all informal, and yet he looked his best somehow, comfortable and right in his own setting.

"Well, it would accomplish this," Becky said in answer to Duane's question; "it would mean that for once in my life I did something deliberately, didn't run away from one thing to plunge blindly into another. Doctor Dinsmore has been an angel of goodness to me. He loves Gibbs, he's taken a tremendous fancy to him, and I think he loves me. He wants—he really wants the fun of showing me London and Paris. He's taking Carrie-Sis—she'll run Gibbs—and we'd be gone until September. That doesn't seem too much to give him! Then I want to be with mother for a while. She loves Gibbs too."

"What is this, a marriage or a farewell tour for Gibbs?" Larry demanded. Becky laughed again, unalarmed.

"Why not do this," said Duane, thinking it out. "Becky goes West and gets a Reno divorce. Then you come back, join the Dinsmore family here, make your plans to go abroad and get quietly married to Larry right away. You go to Europe, have your trip, and when you come back announce your marriage. Then a certain fat old fool gives you a check for, say, three thousand, and you and Larry are off by way of Panama to California for a honeymoon! Your being married will keep Iago here quiet; you can have a few weeks in California, leave the small boy there with your mother, and come back here to paint great masterpieces in this very room."

"Ah, you're awfully kind!" Becky said, more touched by his thoughtfulness than convinced of the wisdom of the course he outlined. "That—that would...." she began, feeling her way. "Wouldn't that make you worse than ever?" she asked Laurence with a little helpless laugh.

"I'm much more civilized than you think I am," Laurence told her, rubbing his cheek against hers. "I want my wife. I grudge every moment that we'll be separated. But when the old boy here makes a plan as reasonable as that, and goes to the trouble of having the Lodge all done over for you and me—"

"You're not doing that?" Becky interrupted, turning toward Duane. She was familiar with the snowy exterior appearance of the Lodge, a small tenant house that had been spared when a great fire had swept away the old Colonial house to which the studio-barn had belonged.

"It's not very interesting," Duane said. "Four rooms downstairs, two rooms upstairs. But since we're only renting, it doesn't seem worth while to knock down walls and build porches. Someday we'll go further down the Island, and find a place big enough for us all."

"I don't think I'd want to leave Gibbs very long with mother," Becky said, anxious to make that clear in the very beginning of planning. "There's his father, you see, who might make things unpleasant."

"It would only be if you two decided to run over to Paris for a few months. Paris is no place for children," Duane said.

AT THE BELLE

"Here I Am A Stranger"

A daringly significant story of modern life that's out of the beaten path, with Richard Greene on the threshold of his greatest opportunity in his first starring role and a great supporting cast—such is 20th Century-Fox's new drama coming next to the Belle Theatre, "Here I Am A Stranger," with Richard Dix, and Brenda Joyce featured in a cast including Roland Young, Gladys George and others.

Adapted under the supervision of Darryl F. Zanuck from the novel read by millions, this film is destined to start a new motion picture cycle and is itself one of the most dramatic pictures of the day. It boasts a theme intense in emotional appeal and deals daringly with modern questions in a modern way.

With absorbing realism, "Here I Am A Stranger," tells the story of a boy who reaches the threshold of manhood to find himself suddenly a stranger in the world he has grown up into. Bewildered by the conflict between his superficial world of wealth and sham and a new world of things that are real, he is torn and hurt by life, until he meets a girl as new to love as he is himself.

This is the role portrayed by Greene, a major opportunity given the young star as Zanuck's answer to the 250,000 fan letters received by the studio requesting that Greene be starred.

"Pack Up Your Troubles"

The cockeyed world will laugh its head off at "Pack Up Your Troubles," the gay 20th Century-Fox comedy which brings Jane Withers to the Belle Theatre in the companion laugh hit with three new friends, those roisterous Ritzes.

Jane promises to delight you and thrill you too as the bravest little Ma'amselle in all France' And, as for the Ritzes, they're bringing a whole kit bag and kiboodle full of new Ritz-tricks, because they're in the army now and being the Ritzes of course they tell the general how to run it!

Jane has two exciting new impersonations — George M. Cohan, singing "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and Eva Tanguay singing "I Don't Care!" Jane also sings "Who'll Buy My Flowers," a song by Sidney Clare and Jule Styne.

Lovely Lynn Bari, as a spy, heads the imposing cast. Joseph Schildkraut is seen as Jane's long-lost father. Stanley Fields plays "Angel Face," the hard-boiled Sergeant, under whose supervision the Ritzes play nursemaid to a herd of army mules.

New Bette Davis Film

Bette Davis, Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland are featured in "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," new technicolor film now at the Belle Theatre. The Belle News of the Day and funny color cartoon precede the feature attraction.

AT THE CAPITOL

Gene Autry

Gene Autry is one Hollywood star who wishes there were a 60-week year and a 30-hour day, so that he might find time for even a brief vacation.

The popular Republic singing cowboy, whose latest starring vehicle, "Rhythm of the Saddle," featuring Smiley Burnette, Pert Kelton and Peggy Moran is the next attraction at the Capitol Theatre and is very scrupulous about attending the desires of his fandom.

When not at Republic Studios shooting a picture, Gene probably is at his office in Hollywood signing the multitudinous requests for his autograph and personally answering his "thousands-of-letters-a-week" fan mail.

Again when Gene leaves Hollywood it is usually with a full schedule of personal appearances lined up. Gene has appeared at all top-flight vaudeville houses in the country. Currently he is considering offers to appear at either Loew's State or the Roxy in New York City. He already has appeared at the Palace in Chicago, and the Paramount in Los Angeles, cream of the vaudeville houses in their respective territories.

Recording songs takes up additional time. His records outsell even Bing Crosby's and recording company officials couldn't have too much of Gene's time. Gene also writes many of his own songs, and these require concentration even from the versatile singing cowboy. Guest artist radio programs also seek the presence of Autry. Charlie McCarthy has been successfully cowed by the Autry guitar and guns, and Rudy Vallee has twice had Gene on his program. All in all, it's a schedule heavy enough for two singing cowboys, but there is only one Gene Autry it seems and on the same programme

"Here For a Day"

Featured in the cast of screen favorites are Anita Louise, Dick Foran, Charley Grapewin, Berton Churchill and Emma Dunn. Spectacular stadium scenes were filmed exclusively for the picture at Pasadena Rose Bowl by athlete stars of the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The story concerns itself with the efforts of a sports hero of thirty years ago to avert the disaster which threatens a strong-headed college favorite of today. Grapewin has the powerful role of the former star. Foran, who was once a member of the Princeton University eleven, shares romantic honors with lovely Anita Louise. Berton Churchill is seen as the sportsmad Wall Street broker, and Emma Dunn is the mother.

Harold Buchman wrote the screenplay from a popular magazine story by Matt Taylor, and Ken Goldsmith was the associate producer. Harold Young did the direction and John W. Boyle was photographer on the picture.

SURPRISED BY MOSBY'S TONIC

Mrs Broadbent Had Years of Suffering Due to Sour Upset Stomach and Sluggish Kidneys; Now Relates How This New, Scientific Medicine Relieved Her and Says She Feels "Like New!"

Hundreds of people throughout This Section are coming forward with their Grateful Statements, praising and endorsing Mosby's

MRS. JOHN BROADBENT

Tonic. This Splendid New Medicine is now being introduced to the public daily here in Belleville at Lattimer's Drug Store, your Tamblyn Dealer, 228 Front St. Just a few days ago, the following Sincere Testimonial was received from Mrs. John Broadbent, of 1534 Lillian St., Windsor, Ont.:

Could Hardly Breathe Due to Stomach Gas

"The first thing I want to say in this statement is that it is the truth, in each and every respect, and I will gladly verify it to anybody," said Mrs. Broadbent. "I had gotten into a real suffering condition with a sour, upset stomach. It made me sick to think of eating, and if I did try to eat I would simply be IN DISTRESS for hours afterward. Another thing, my kidneys were so sluggish that I had severe pains in my back and knees and legs. My rest was repeatedly broken up at night, due to this sluggish condition of my kidneys.

"I felt like I couldn't stand the suffering much longer, and the worst thing was that it looked like nothing could help me, as I tried medicine upon medicine but got no better. Finally I found Mosby's Tonic, and I am simply SURPRISED at what it has done for me. Why, after a FEW DOSES I could see a big change. I kept on with it and now eat my meals with a relish and no gas distress afterward. It invigorated my sluggish kidneys and relieved those back pains and I can sleep fine at nights. In short, I feel like a NEW PERSON, and I want to say to others who suffer as I did, 'This is the medicine for you. I KNOW'!"

Acts on Bowels, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys

MOSBY'S TONIC contains 20 Ingredients, including 15 Roots and Herbs. It acts on the bowels, stomach, liver, kidneys. Makes weak, worn out people feel different all over. The price of this New, Scientific Compound is reasonable, due to the immense volume in which it sells. So don't hesitate. Get Mosby's Tonic — TODAY!

MOSBY'S TONIC is sold here in Belleville at Lattimer's Drug Store, your Tamblyn Dealer, 228 Front St.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 22—(AP)—Buying was a matter of mixed sentiment in today's stock market and while a number of favorites held in the black many leaders slipped backward. Most changes were fractional. Evening-up operations in preparation for tomorrow's holiday were about all that took place.

Uncertain most of the day were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania Railroad, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Western Union, International Harvester and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Depressed fractionally among Canadian issues were Lake Shore, Dome and C.P.R. Distillers registered a small gain. Dominion 4s showed little variation in the bond market.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 22 (C)—Toronto Exchange registered a moderate decline today. In early afternoon trade prices developed a firmer tone and scattered gains began to creep into the list. Action centred in the junior golds with Naybob trading heavily up 4 cents to 20.

Steel and utility stocks were weak and some losses showed. Dominion Bridge, Eastern Steel, Standard Steel, and Nnited Steel were soft spots. Senior oils and liquors were moderately heavy.

Nickel, Sherritt and Pend Oreille were lower base metal issues and of the western oils, prices were down 3 to 5 cents for Okalta,, Home and Calgary-Edmonton.

Stadacona dropped to 18 cents on the new that a capital organization was proposed and it later recovered the loss, holding round 23 at early afternoon.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Nov. 22—(CP)—Cattle and grass calves held steady on Montreal Livestock Markets today while veals and hogs strengthened slightly, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Receipts: cattle, 21; sheep and lambs, 162; hogs, 218; calves, 41;

Veal calves steadied at $7 for common lights with better quality ones making $10.50, with tops at $11.

Hogs firmed at $9 for bacons fed and watered and $9.25-$9-35 off trucks. Selects drew $1 premium, regular cuts being made on off grades. Sows ranged from $6-$6.50, while hogs, sold on rail grade, brought $12 hot weight.

There were not enough cattle offered to make a market. There was a good inquiry for lambs and prices held unchanged.

Three Top Grades In Eggs Improve

Toronto, Nov. 22 — The better tone evident Monday continued into yesterday's session of the Toronto egg market and the three top grades firmed in the graded section. Butter remained dull, with many members of the trade attending the Ontario Creamerymen's Convention held in this city.

Amount of cheese shipped out of Montreal and Quebec to the United Kingdom last week was reported at 38,278 boxes. Shipments for the current season to date totalled 890,505 boxes, as compared with 788,093 boxes in the like period of 1938, an increase of 102,412 boxes, or in the neighborhood of 8.6 million pounds.

Fresh receipts arrived in sufficient volume to satisfy the improved demand on the egg market. Grades A-large, A-medium and A-pullet firmed 1 cent per dozen in the graded section, while B's rose a cent in the retail division.

Prices sagged as trading was still dull on the butter market. Most points were endeavoring to obtain 28 1-2c for top-grade Ontario creamery solids, but a few small sales were recorded at 1-4c below this figure.

Montreal Produce.

GERMANS LEFT 'COOLING THEIR HEELS'

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 22 — (CP—Havas)—For the past month some 30 German technicians seeking to develop Soviet industry in furtherance of the Russo-German trade pact have been waiting at the Metropole Hotel in Moscow for permission to enter Russian factories, an informed Moscow source disclosed here today.

U. S. Markets to Close On Thanksgiving Day

New York, Nov. 22 — (AP)— Thanksgiving Day, a week earlier than the traditional last Thursday in November, will be widely observed tomorrow by the principal financial and commodity exchanges of the United States.

The New York Stock and Curb Exchanges, Banks and Commodity Futures Markets will close. The Grain Market in Chicago and various livestock markets will suspend trading.

Only one state with important markets, Minnesota, will stick to tradition. In that state Minneapolis and Duluth Grain Exchanges will be opened tomorrow.

Canadian and other foreign markets will operate as usual.

MUNICH PLOTTER

Accomplices Arrested

Elser did not confess until Nov. 14, he said. Several accomplices were arrested, but the information was kept secret until last night to expedite other seizures. Himmler appealed for further information regarding Elser or former associates.

He did not mention the government's offer of rewards totalling 900,000 ($360,000) for arrest of the Munich plotters and authorities declined to comment on it. Eight Nazis were killed in the Munich blast.

Himmler said a "Captain Stevens" and a "Mr. Best" of the British Intelligence were captured Nov. 9 while attempting to enter Germany from Venloo, the Netherlands.

Britons Duped is Claim

He said the Britons had been duped by German agents posing as disgruntled officers. He said that in attempts to organize plots against the Reich, they supplied wireless equipment with which the Germans kept up deceptive communications until yesterday.

(In London, the Foreign Office denied any agent of the British Government had "any knowledge" of a German "described as having placed a bomb in the Munich cellar."

(The Foreign Office said there was "no connection" between the bombing and "the kidnapping of two British subjects on the German-Dutch frontier.")

The Gestapo report said of the Britons: "Contradictory claims whether they were captured while still in Holland or when in Germany are at present being examined."

(Varying reports at the time of the Venloo incident agreed that after a shooting affray, several persons were carried across the Netherlands border into Germany. The Netherlands Government was reported as intending to ask that Germany investigate.)

Broke With Hitler in 1930

(Strasser, accused of organizing the Munich plot, broke with Hitler in 1930, before the Nazi rose to power. He last was reported in Paris, where the Paris Soir quoted him Monday as saying he fled Zurich, Switzerland, four hours ahead of a German extradition request.

(A one-time Nazi lieutenant, Strasser left Germany after being deprived of citizenship in 1934, the same year his brother Gregor was killed in the "blood purge." He heads the "Black Front," opposing Hitler's regime, and has operated from various countries.)

Elser, credited by the Gestapo with actually building the bomb "in a manner unique in criminal history," was said to have started machinations in September and October, 1938, and to have begun putting his plans together in August, 1939.

First, said Himmler, he built a six-day time clock into a pillar of the beer cellar and, seven days before the annual Nazi celebration there, the explosive was planted.

Left For Switzerland

On Nov. 2 and 3, he tried to place the bomb in the bursting chamber, said the Gestapo Chief, but succeeded during the night of Nov. 4-5. Then he left for Switzerland, but returned to Munich Nov. 7 to make sure all was in order and to deaden the sound of the ticking clock.

On the morning of Nov. 8, he left by way of Ulm, but was arrested that night when the border was closed as a result of the bomb explosion.

The Gestapo communique charged that the British Intelligence Headquarters for western Europe was located at the Hague, Netherlands Capital .

Britain, it said, "sought to establish contact with what were surmised to be revolutionary organizations" in Germany, having been led to believe from German emigres' stories that "opposition existed in the state, party and army with the aim of causing revolution in the Reich."

Officers in the security service of the elite guards established contact with the Britons, the statement said, and "in the belief that they actually were dealing with revolutionary German officers, representatives of the British Intelligence Service revealed their aims and plans."

Story Called Fantastic

London, Nov. 22—(CP-Cable)— London newspapers today featured the arrest by the German Secret Police of two British agents. The Daily Express in its headlines called the German story of the arrest "fantastic" and said "Berlin tells a fairy tale."

The Daily Telegraph said it is an "amazing story," pointing out that the arrest of an obscure German workman for the Munich bombing plot and his alleged confession recalls how the Nazis made a scapegoat of a halfwit in the Reichstag fire plot of 1933.

The Foreign Office formally declared that neither the British Government nor any of its agents had any knowledge of the German charged with placing a bomb in the Munich beer cellar.

In its statement the Foreign Office pointed out that the German arrested, Georg Elser, was held for several days before he "confessed" and said: "The public will be able to draw their own conclusions from his long examination by German police."

There was "no connection," the Foreign Office said, between the Munich bombing and the "kidnapping of two British subjects on the German frontier."

SHIP HOLED BADLY

To Seize all Exports

Stirred by the sinking of fifteen ships, including five neutrals, in the last five days, the Admiralty moved to intensify the blockade against Germany by seizing all German exports on the high seas.

The blockade hitherto has been directed only against German imports.

The new measure, to which Britain resorted in the second year of the last war, is aimed at throttling sources of foreign exchange with which to buy war materials.

Explaining the order, which Mr. Chamberlain announced to a cheering House of Commons yesterday, a Government spokesman said German exports in neutral ships go through the Suez Canal in large quantities.

He added that Germany had consigned large shipments of machinery and other products to South American nations to "be transformed into local production and the proceeds sold in the United States for dollars."

Illegal Laying of Mines

Mr. Chamberlain's announcement described the measure as "justified reprisal" for "many violations of International law" by Germany, including, he said, the illegal laying of mines to which British authorities attribute most of the sinkings off the east coast of England.

Latest addition to the growing list of sunken ships was the 250-ton British merchant trawler Delphine, reported last night to have been sent to the bottom by a German submarine. The crew was believed safe. The latest neutral craft to be sunk was the 11,950-ton Japanese liner Terukuni Maru which struck a mine.

German reconnaissance planes have made several flights over the British Isles in the past two days. One bomber, a big Dornier-17, was shot down by Royal Airforce craft yesterday. It landed in the ocean near Deal.

Anti-aircraft batteries on the east coast sprang into action at 7 p.m. yesterday for the second time in the day as British pursuit ships went aloft to intercept enemy planes.

No Bombs Dropped

No bombs were dropped, and the all clear signal was sounded after 75 minutes.

A British civil aircraft, meanwhile, inadvertently flew into London's balloon barrage, crashing to the ground. Its two occupants were killed.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, War Secretary, issued an order restricting residence in the Orkney and Shetland Islands, which have been raided several times by German planes, to persons holding special permits. The order, effective Dec. 21, also requires those desiring to visit the islands to obtain permits.

Press Praises Decision

The press unanimously approved the decision to seize German exports.

"All praise is due the government for its decision to reply firmly and promptly to Hitler's new and diabolical war on neutral shipping," said the Daily Herald. "This is a just and proper retort to Hitler.

"Those who treat neutral ships as objects of attack cannot hope to use the neutral flag as a shield for their own trade. Britain's action in stopping Nazi exports will be perfectly legal and perfectly humane. Not single life will be lost and not a single neutral trade will be penalized without compensation."

The Daily Telegraph said: "It was not only our right but our duty to take measures of retaliation against such brutal warfare.

"Germany's neighbors know very well the desperation to which our blockade is driving her. The blatant boast that neutral shipping is being sunk to frighten neutral countries will not console Holland and Italy and Yugoslavia and Japan for the murder of their citizens and the loss of their vessels. Our complete blockade of German exports may not be welcome to some of Germany's neighbors, but none of them can be surprised. There is ample precedent for it and more than ample justification."

Germany to Counter

Berlin, Nov. 22—(AP)— Great Britain's plan to seize German exports is certain to call forth German counter measures, authorized sources asserted today. They declined, however, to disclose the form these might take.

Germany, it was said, awaits with interest the reaction of neutral countries to the new British program.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement in the House of Commons yesterday was described as "a clumsy attempt to give the cloak of morality to a new form of piracy whereby neutral shipping will be endangered and vital neutral interests hit."

JAPAN TO KEEP

In discussing the United States-Japan trade treaty which the United States has served notice will be terminated Jan. 26, 1940, Abe said: "It would be fortunate for both America and Japan if their relations were adjusted before abrogation. However, it cannot be helped if the treaty expires before readjustment. Measures for coping with such a situation are being studied in the various quarters concerned."

The British and Japanese Governments were said to be considering the best means of regulating their relations.

Toshio Shiratori, former Ambassador to Italy, declared that if the war should spread into a world conflict "too many Japanese remember the bitter lesson of the Washington Conference to feel inclined to fight again for Great Britain and America."

Position of Inferiority

(Many Japanese feel that in the Washington Conference of 1921-22 their country was compelled to accept a position of naval inferiority to Britain and the United States.)

Shiratori, who was recalled after his attempts to forte a military alliance among Italy, Germany and Japan failed, praised Germany and Italy in an interview. He said that Japanese relations with those powers were still close despite the Russian-German agreement.

"If the United States enters the war it will be a world war in a literal sense," he asserted, "because then it would be extremely difficult for Japan to remain neutral.

"The totalitarian nations work to establish a new order throughout the world. Japan is doing its job in the Orient. Germany and Italy are doing theirs in Europe.

Shiratori said Germany was assisting a move for Russian-Japanese understanding by acting as a go-between in their negotiations. A movement within Japan for a non-aggression pact with Russia is growing, he said.

PICTON DOCTOR HAS NEW POST

Dr. Gerald Allison Appointed M.O.H. for Military District No. 3

Picton, Nov. 22—(Special)—Dr. Gerald Allison was in town this week from Barriefield camp and it was learned that he has been promoted to be Medical Officer of Health for Military District No. 3. For the past few weeks he has been Medical Officer of Health at Barriefield camp and previous to that was M.O.H. of the town of Picton. Lt.-Col. Allison was a member of the medical board of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment until that work was completed here. He is a veteran of the Great War.

County Council will meet later this week to deal with the appointment of a road superintendent for the county. This has been made necessary by the fact that Lieut. Jack Leavens, the superintendent, has been called for service with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Leave of absence will be granted. Lieut. Leavens is well known in baseball circles having been a member of Picton's nine for some years.

Wilfred Lane has been appointed acting Crown Attorney to succeed Major Gordon Walmsley, who will be adjutant to Major E. T. Nayler of Madoc in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Depot Battalion. There is no recruiting as yet.

Post 78 of the Canadian Legion held the first of a series of bingo games Tuesday night in the Legion Hall. There was a good crowd present and many fine prizes were offered. Proceeds are for Christmas cheer and for Red Cross work.

R. M. Motherwell, head of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, was guest speaker Tuesday evening at the Tennyson Club. The event was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Calnan. Prof. Motherwell spoke on "Exploring Space." Associate hostesses were Mrs. A. E. Calnan and Mrs. J. B. Creeggan.

Thirty members of Prince Edward Lodge, No. 18, A. F. and A. M. journeyed to Clayton, N.Y., Tuesday night and enjoyed a fraternal visit with the Masonic Lodge there.

Mrs. Harry Carter entertained at a shower on Monday evening in honor of Miss Joy Culmer, whose marriage takes place soon. Many lovely gifts were carried in by Mary Sargent, Edith Bowerman and Mrs. Kenneth Henry. A social time was spent.

Cafeteria Society Brand New Type Of Night Life

New York, Nov. 22—(AP)—Gotham got a glimpse last night of a brand new type of night life—cafeteria society — at the opening of "the world's first and only" self-service night club.

It combined the best features of an automat and a jitterbug rendezvous.

Richard M. Decker, a veteran of thirty years in the restaurant business, calls his place the Fiesta Danceteria. It's located at Broadway and 42nd Street.

There wasn't a pair of tails or a tuxedo to be seen, and the strongest drink served was beer. But everybody had a good time for 60 cents.

That was the cover charge which covered everything, provided you weren't too hungry and your thirst just ordinary.

For that sum the first nighter got his choice of hors d'oeuvres from a Smorgasbord layout that rivalled any of the city's Swedish restaurants. Beer was extra, at 10 cents a glass, but there was soda pop and milk for those who preferred it.

A white-jacketed bus-boy carried your tray to a table from which you had a ring-side view of the dance floor where Broadway jitterbugs put on an entertaining show.

6 GERMAN PLANES

The government announced that three German fliers who piloted a reconnaissance plane to the eastern outskirts of London Monday had been rescued from a rubber boat in the North Sea and taken prisoner. Two were said to be badly wounded. Previously it had been simply that the craft had been driven out to sea. Yesterday a German plane was shot down over the east coast.

Nazi Communique

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP)—Continued reconnaissance flights by Nazi planes over France and Great Britain were reported by the German high command today in a communique which noted comparative quiet on the Western Front.

"The air force on Nov. 21 again reconnoitered over English territory as far as Scapa Flow," the communique said. "Scouting over French territory extended into southern France.

"Numerous pursuit planes were on watch as on preceding days for protection of the German western border. They did not contact any enemy aircraft. Anti-aircraft artillery in the air defence zone in the west had no occasion for activity."

French Shot Down Nazi Planes

(A French communique reported last night that two German planes were shot down in flames during the day behind their own lines while another Nazi flier was downed in French territory. A British report said one German plane was brought down yesterday on the English coast.)

WAITING WAR ON

For some reason the drive was postponed —probably, French military quarters believe, because of a shortage of trained officers in the German Army.

Joins Great Britain

France joined Great Britain in making German exports subject to seizure at sea.

The French Government's decision, paralleling that announced yesterday by Prime Minister Chamberlain, is in reprisal for the unrestricted German sea warfare of the past week.

Henceforth the Anglo-French naval patrol will not have as its aim the seizure only of contraband bound for German ports, but will also stop exports leaving Germany for neutral ports in neutral ships.

An announcement confirmed yesterday's score in the air. Three German planes were shot down by the French, while British aircraft sent a German scouting machine down in flames into the North Sea.

Air Raid Warnings

Air raid warnings were sounded again this morning through Northwest France.

The alarm, begun at 10:25 a.m., was ended at 11:45 a.m. without incident. The same area experienced an air raid alarm last night, lasting from 7:32 to 7:47 o'clock.

German artillery fire was particularly lively yesterday in the Blies sector, where 105 mm. field pieces are increasingly replacing the smaller 77 mm. gun as the basic armament of German infantry divisions.

Fire was centred on French advance posts, and brought an immediate return barrage by French artillery against the enemy's gun emplacements, as well as a sharp bombardment of German troop positions.

In the Wissenbourg region, east of the Vosges, artillery fire was noticeably lighter. Increase of exchanges along the portion of the Alsace front which is marked by the Wissembourg gap and the edge of the Bien Forest had led military observers to wonder whether the Germans had some movement afoot there.

GIRL STRENGTHENED

TO BE strong and full of vitality, your children must have good appetites and get the full nourishment from the food they eat. A famous doctor's prescription, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, restores a healthy appetite and helps the stomach digest nourishing food that builds up and invigorates the body. Mrs. Teresa Wade of 64B Oak St., Toronto, Ont., says: "My daughter, Catherine, didn't eat much and was nervous, underweight and weak. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helped to strengthen her, she ate better and was relieved of that weakened condition, and she gained weight too." Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from your druggist today.

WAR

Manpower is still a decisive factor in this war, Mr. Hore-Belisha said, because whereas Germany has to defend 200 miles of frontier, Britain and France must envisage the possibility of aggression by Germany along 800 miles from the North Sea to the Alps.

The War Minister, who returned earlier this week from an extended tour of the British and French sectors of the Western Front, summed up his impressions in one sentence:

"Everywhere there is activity, everywhere there is mud."

He described the construction of defence works along the British sector and the preparations for any eventuality along the 800-mile defensive line.

"We had 158,300 men in France when I last spoke to this House," he said. "Since then some thousands each week have followed them.

Polish Army Reinstated

"By interposing a delay of several weeks the Poles facilitated concentration of the French army and during this time the British army was also assembling in its positions. It would be a mistake to suppose that the resistance then offered by the Poles was the last stand to be made by valiant action in these hostilities. Already at this moment the Polish army is being resuscitated on friendly soil and the cause which they are so resolute to vindicate attracts like a magnet their countrymen from all parts of the world."

Referring to the thousands of men who have followed the original expeditionary force of 158,000 men, Mr. Hore-Belisha added: "By spring of next year they will have been reinforced by no inconsiderable armaments. So will it continue until the cause is won."

Territorial Army's Assistance

"We could not have completed our formations in France without the assistance of the Territorial Army whose peacetime training has adequately justified the generous sacrifice of leisure it entailed.

"Territorial units reached France at a very much earlier stage and in greater numbers than in 1914. Nearly 1,000,000 men are under intensive training in Great Britain. Existing defences of Great Britain from aggression by sea, land and air and the barrier set up by the British unity with France, has given Britain 'five years' cover to our preparations,' " he added.

"Fortress War"

The sector of the front at present allotted to the British army has been provided in advance with field works "and the task which fell to our soldiers on arrival was to add and improve upon these," he said.

"This is a fortress war. Everywhere there is activity and everywhere there is mud. An organization of almost inconceivably great dimensions has been established, a world within a world."

The War Secretary announced that replacement bases have been established in France for the British army, that new locomotives will be sent from Great Britain and that permanent railway lines will be laid out.

"But it is still a question of vehicles, vehicles and more vehicles," he said. "We have already sent to France over 1,000 tons of spare parts and accessories."

Home Defences

Concerning home defences, he said:

"Our anti-aircraft coast defences remain continually manned by personnel whose conditions of service in many cases are as hard and more lonely than those in France and whose duty is as important. We have taken, besides the militia classes called up, over 85,000 voluntary recruits since the war began."

He went on to pay tribute to the women's auxiliaries and added, "Those in munition factories are doing equally valuable work, for on them depends the speed with which additional contingents can participate in the war theatre.

"It is a war of endurance, a quality for which the British people is renowned."

HOLLAND MAKES REPRESENTATION ON EXPORTS

No Protest Made On British Action On Nazi Exports

British Diplomatic Circles Say Only Certain Arguments Are Presented in Netherlands' Representations

NO BELGIAN ACTION

Suspension of Sailing Schedules Adopted Only on Account of Menace of Mines, Not on Account of British Reprisal, It is Explained at Amsterdam

London, Nov. 23—(CP)—Representations from the Netherlands Government concerning the British decision to confiscate German exports were delivered to the Foreign Office today, according to diplomatic circles.

They did not take the form of a "protest," but advanced certain arguments against the decision, the same circles said. Such action had been expected, and a protest would not have provoked surprise.

The Belgian Government is expected to take no action here until the publication of the British order-in-council giving details of the application of the decision.

Suspension of Shipping

Amsterdam, Nov. 23—(CP Havas)—Dutch shipowners today sought a way out of the shipping crisis that threatens to immobilize the Netherlands' seaborne trade.

The government's advice to shipping companies to suspend departures until the menace of mines disappears was accepted by all lines. But this suspension cannot continue for long, since merchant shipping is vital to Dutch economy.

[illegible] explained this morning that the suspension of schedules advised by the government was the result exclusively of the mine menace. The British reprisal measure against the Reich, the seizure of all German exports, had nothing to do with the move, it was stated authoritatively.

Temperatures at Little America! Seventy-eight degrees below zero was the extreme cold experienced by Admiral Byrd July 21 and 22, 1934, while at the Bolling Advance Base. The thermograph registered 83 below but the reading of the alcohol minimum thermometer of 78 below was deemed more reliable. At Little America, about 100 miles north of the Bolling Advance Base, records of temperature are available for two winters, 1929 and 1934. In 1929 July was the coldest month with an average of 45 8 degrees below and an absolute lowest of 72 below. the only comment being, "A disagreeable day". In 1934, August was the coldest month, with an average of 38.6 below and an absolute lowest of 71 degrees below zero.

Metalsphere Bears Message for Churchill

London, Nov. 23—(CP Cable)—A metalsphere believed to have been part of a unit in laying a German minefield was washed up on the British coast near the area where sinkings of neutral vessels have taken place, it was disclosed today.

The German origin was indicated by the legend roughly scrawled with white paint: "If I make a good journey then Churchill will meet with a great loss."

A photograph of the object and a report of its discovery was shown by Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, to Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons, providing a distraction for the front benches.

ISSUE IS CLEAR SAYS KING GEORGE AT PROROGATION

New Session of British Parliament Will Open Next Tuesday and Adjourn for Christmas

DOMINIONS PRAISED

Secret Session in New Parliament Likely to Discuss Supply and Munitions

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 23—(CP Cable)—Tribute to the war effort of the Dominions was paid today in the speech from the throne read at prorogation of Parliament.

The exigencies of war necessitated all colorful ceremonies traditionally attached to prorogation being abandoned. The King did not attend in person and the speech was read by the Lord Chancellor, [illegible]unt Caldecote.

The new session of Parliament will start next Tuesday and there will be an adjournment over Christmas for two weeks or more.

"The issue is clear," the speech from the throne said of the war the Empire is waging against Germany. "With united will, my peoples here and overseas have dedicated themselves to the struggle. The spontaneous decision of my Dominions to participate in the conflict and the invaluable help which they are giving, and are about to give, to the common cause have been of the greatest encouragement to me.

"With the aid of our faithful French and Polish allies, we cannot doubt that our cause will prevail."

To Include Secret Session

The new session of Parliament probably will include a secret sitting of Parliament, the first since the last war. It was intimated [illegible] day that the government will agree to the Labor party's plea for a secret sitting to discuss supply and munitions.

GERMAN PLANE FALLS IN BELGIUM FRENCH REPORT

Early Communique Says Eight Planes Brought Down by Allied Aviators

PLANE OVER PARIS

Daladier Announces Formation of Inner Cabinet to Intensify Warfare

Paris, Nov. 23 — (CP-Havas)—Five German pursuit planes were shot down in French territory yesterday and a German Reconnaissance plane fell in Belgian territory after being attacked by French chasers, this morning's official war communique announced.

The communique's announcement of six German planes destroyed came from unofficial reports during the night and placed the German losses to the Allied air forces on the western front at eight planes.

The communique revealed the loss of one French pursuit craft. The communique follows: "The night was fairly calm on the front. There was artillery fire at various points.

"During the day of Nov. 22 five German pursuit planes were brought down on our territory. In addition a German Reconnaissance plane, attacked by our pursuit aircraft above gravelines, fell in Belgian territory. We lost one pursuit plane."

CANADA SEARCHES FOR LEVEL FIELDS TO MAKE AIRPORTS

Between 50 and 100 Airports Suitable for Training Must be Found Quickly

SPOTS SURVEYED

Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP)—Practically any broad expanse of level ground in Canada is likely to become a busy airport to train the youth of the Empire to fly for the Air Force. Practised eyes of transport department engineers are appraising the country from the air, from the highways and the water in the search for new flying fields.

With thousands of young flyers to receive advanced training in Canada under the Empire air training project, between 50 and 100 airports suitable for training must be found quickly, so the job has been turned over to the Civil Aviation Branch of the transport department it was learned today.

Provincial governments have been quick to co-operate in the still hunt for airport locations. Provincial surveyors and roads department engineers have placed their maps and knowledge of the topography of their province at the disposal of the Dominion government engineers.. RUMANIAN GOV'T HEADED BY ARGETOIANU RESIGNS

Resignation Follows Refusal to Grant Increase in Exchange Rate of German Mark

TANK CARS REFUSED

Bucharest, Nov. 23 (AP)—The Rumanian government headed by Premier Constantine Argetoianu resigned today. The government was formed Sept. 21.

Argetoianu was named Premier a week after the assassination of Premier Carinescu by members of the outlawed Fascist iron guard. His appointment ended an interim military rule with General George Argesanu as Premier.

The resignation followed closely upon Rumania's refusal to grant an increase of nearly 50 per cent in the exchange rate of the German mark—a blow at German hopes for greater trade with this country.

A German economic mission, having failed to get the rate raised from 41.5 Rumanian lei to 60 lei for each mark, left for Berlin by air last night.

Would Raise Purchasing Power

(Such a change would have raised the mark's purchasing power in Rumania from 30.3 cents to 43.8 cents.)

Rumania also declined to furnish tank cars which Germany would need in buying Rumanian petroleum, but did agree to lift an embargo on the export of oil-bearing seeds to Germany.

Premier Argetoianu handed the cabinet's resignation to King Carol, who asked him to attempt to form a new government.

Carol was expected to call a meeting of the Crow Council to consider the crisis and any emergency steps to be taken. Informed persons said that German pressure caused a cabinet split, some members wanting to yield to demands of the Reich while others held out.

Large Sum is Still Needed To Reach Red Cross Objective In Campaign in Belleville

Canvassers in Belleville for the Canadian Red Cross War Fund have been working hard and the close of the campaign is drawing near. So far the total donations fall far short of the $8,000 objective which has been set for the city. This means that much has yet to be done.

Some cities have gone beyond their objective and it would be too unfortunate if Belleville were to fail to reach the goal set before it by those who know the situation and the needs of the Red Cross so that it may be able to carry out the responsibilities which are being placed and will be placed upon this organization as hostilities continue.

Everyone knows the history and the work of the Red Cross as one of the greatest humanitarian agencies in history in alleviating human suffering and distress and offering comfort in time of war or in time of disaster when there is crying need for aid. Today the call is for funds to aid the Red Cross work in behalf of the soldiers. What that work meant in the last war is known to every returned man.

Loyal support of the organization's efforts should be the ideal of everyone and there should be generous support to the fund. Every citizen should have a share in making the work of the order most effective in this trying time of our history.

One Belleville donor considers the work of the Red Cross so important that he has pledged $50 a month for ten months. This fact should indicate how important this organization is in the success of Canada's war effort.

The call of the enlisted men who come from homes here and from all over Canada should rally support to the campaign so that donations in the last days of the drive for the fund may see the total reached or far surpassed. If our soldiers are willing to sacrifice their lives for their country, then surely those on the Home Front can give even if it means giving up of something that is considered a necessity. Only by some sacrifice on the part of all of us can this war be won. One way is the support of the Red Cross, by generous contributions — and that does not mean 25-cent pieces from those who can give dollars.

'First Table' of Dual Thanksgiving Celebrated in 25 U. S. States Today

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Families in 25 states sat down today at the "first table" of the United States dual Thanksgiving, joining in President Roosevelt's expressed hope that the world soon will be at peace.

The "second table" will not be served until next Thursday, in states whose Governors declined to follow the President's decision to advance the holiday a week.

Despite the confusion over the date, there was unanimity in echoing Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation:

"Let us give thanks to the Ruler of the universe . . for the hope that lives within us of the coming of the day when peace and the productive activities of peace shall reign on every continent."

As usual, Mr. Roosevelt will carve a big turkey tonight at the Warm Springs, Ga., Infantile Paralysis Foundation.

Seven patients, chosen by lot, will sit at the same table with the President while he piles their plates with turkey and all the other trimmings of a holiday dinner.

It's just another Thursday in Plymouth, Mass., where the first Thanksgiving was held. Residents of Plymouth will celebrate next week, along with the whole of New England.

Three States—Colorado, Texas and Mississippi—got around the argument over dates by assigning two Thanksgiving days. Mayors of several cities did the same thing. Mayor C. D. White of Atlantic City, N.J., in proclaiming two holidays, said:

"Tomorrow shall be celebrated by the city as 'Franksgiving', in honor of our President, and next Thursday shall be celebrated as Thanksgiving."

The financial community generally recognized the holiday with the New York Stock Exchange, the Chicago Grain Exchange and most other leading markets closed. Exceptions were the markets in Minnesota—Duluth and Minneapolis Grain Exchanges.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

(By The Canadian Press)

Nov. 23, 1914—British defeated Turks at Shat-el-Arab at the head of the Persian Gulf but a British column in German East Africa was forced to retire from a superior force in an attack on a railroad centre. German submarine U-18 rammed and sunk off Scottish coast.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

As the war at sea enters a new and grimmer phase signs indicating a Nazi intention to invade Holland reappear.

One af the latest is the German charge that the British Intelligence Service, blamed for the Munich beer hall explosion which nearly took Adolf Hitler's life, maintains headquarters at The Hague.

This charge may well be one of the steps in a trumped-up indictment against Holland designed to justify a German march to the sea through Dutch territory. However grotesque it may appear to non-Germans it is just the thing to inflame the passions of Hitler's devotees within the Reich against Holland.

Holland yesterday took the extraordinary step of ordering all Dutch ships to remain in port in an effort to avoid entanglements. The step followed and possibly was due to the British decision to stop German exports in retaliation for the indiscriminate mining of North Sea waters.

Holland and Belgium are the only neutral outlets for German export trade open in the west. As Holland's sea-borne traffic is much greater than that of Belgium the British decision is likely to embarrass Dutch shipping interests by forcing them to abandon neutral traffic.

If, in the face of the British ban on the transport of goods from Germany in neutral vessels the Dutch are under pressure from Germany to resist the British policy, Holland is figuratively as well as literally between the devil and the deep sea.

HON. C. D. HOWE DEFENDS ACTION OF WAR CABINET

Desire to Make Canada's Contribution as Complete and Effective as Possible

WORK WITH BRITAIN

Closest Consultation With British War Cabinet Maintained at All Times

Toronto, Nov. 23 —(CP)— The direction of Canada's war effort is being determined by the Federal Government "with the fullest possible information and with the desire to make Canada's contribution as complete and effective as possible," Transport Minister C. D. Howe says.

There will be many differences of opinion as to what Canada should do but the final responsibility rests on the Federal Government and, in making its decision, it is "in the closest consultation with the British War Cabinet," Mr. Howe said here last night. He added a warning that uninformed public opinion might bring pressure to bear on the Government for war policy changes which would be "as unwise as they would be unwelcome overseas."

EARTH TREMOR LAST 30 SECONDS

Many Cities in Missouri and Illinois Feel Shock This Morning

St. Louis, Nov. 23—(AP)— An earth shock which lasted an average of 30 seconds, but apparently did no major damage, was felt in many Missouri and Illinois cities this morning.

Rev. James MacElwaine, St. Louis University seismologist, said the centre apparently was 25 to 30 miles from St. Louis, either west or east.

One of the needles on the university seismograph was knocked off its hinges, so sharp was the shock.

Shocks were reported at Kansas City, Jefferson City, Ste. Genevieve Columbia, Festus and Hannibal, Mo., and at Belleville, Alton, Springfield and Chester Ill.

Mrs. Nora Colligan at Clayton, Mo., near St. Louis, said she was knocked out of bed by the tremor.

J. J. Auer, Wabash railroad passenger agent shaving at his Kansas City home, said the shocks lasted a minute and a half and described them as "terrifying."

Dr. R. J. Rinehart, Dean of the Kansas City Western Dental College, said his "whole house shook," and a 100-year old clock, which hadn't run for years, was started by the shock.

GERMANY BRINGS INTO PLAY MYSTERIOUS WAR TACTICS

Reported Floating Mines Dropped Into Thames Estuary by German Planes

MINES EXAMINED

By CHARLES NICHOLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nazi Germany brought into play new and mysterious war tactics today as she sought to blockade Great Britain's coast with the aid of floating explosives.

The Exchange Telegraph reported from London that German planes had dropped mines in the Thames Estuary, Britain's maritime doorstep, from low-flying planes. One source said these mines ere of the "magnetic" variety.

Coming on the heels of Sir John Simon's statement yesterday that Germany was employing magnetic mines—"a new abomination of German savagery"—the report set observers to speculating upon the nature of the weapon.

British Destroyer Beached With Loss Of Forty Lives

New Shipping Losses Added to Toll of War Which is Costing Great Britain $26,820,000 Per Day

RAIDER BROUGHT DOWN

Air Ministry Announces Successful Flights Made Over Stuttgart, Frankfort, Hamburg and Bremen

London, Nov. 23—(CP)— Evidence that German aircraft had dropped mines by parachute in the Thames estuary was probed today as six more British, French and neutral vessels were added to the heavy maritime losses of the past week.

The Exchange Telegraph agency said it had learned the mines were exceptionally light and contained very high explosive. One plane, the agency said, could sow a large number of the mines.

The Evening Standard gave an eyewitness description of a German seaplane flying 50 feet over the water and barely 400 yards from the shore.

"I saw something splash in the water as it went past," the eyewitness said.

Shipping Losses

The shipping losses disclosed today were:

The British steamship Darino, 1,351 tons, sunk by a submarine Sunday. Sixteen of the crew were believed missing. Eleven survivors landed on the east coast after spending three days in a submarine before being transferred to an Italian ship.

The 4,576-ton Greek freighter Elena R., sunk by a mine; 24 persons saved.

The British ship Geraldus, 2,494 tons, formerly named the Candleston Castle; 26 saved.

British trawler Sulby, 287 tons, sunk by a submarine off the Scottish coast; seven saved and five missing.

French fishing trawler Saint-Clair B-922 sunk by mine; 11 of 12 crew members feared lost.

French fishing trawler Bayles 11 sunk by submarine; 16 saved.

Mines Come Ashore

Geoffrey Shakespeare, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, told the House of Commons that 15 mines, all German, had come ashore on the east coast within the last fortnight.

Naval circles speculated on the possibility that German aircraft, in addition to laying mines, were acting as supply bases for submarines. One enemy seaplane was seen recently to alight on the sea off the east coast and remain for some time.

PRO-NAZI PAPER SEIZED.

Basel, Switzerland, Nov. 23 (AP)—Swiss anti-propaganda police today raided the offices of the Neue Basler Zeitung, a pro-Nazi newspaper which has a large circulation in Germany and almost none in Switzerland. Authorities said a number of documents were seized.

11 Men of Crew Of Fishing Trawler Are Feared Lost

Boulogne, France, Nov. 23—(AP)—Eleven of the 12 men of the crew of the French fishing trawler Saint-Clair B-922 were feared lost today when she struck a mine in the English Channel.

The engineer was found clinging to a piece of wreckage after several hours in the water and was brought to Boulogne by a British steamship.

FIRE LOSS FOR WEEK LOWER

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)—Fire losses in Canada for the week ended Nov. 18 were $164,050, according to the Monetary Times estimate, released today. This is lower than the $237,950 for the previous week and the $199,200 for the corresponding week a year ago.

SPEECH FROM THRONE

London, Nov. 23 (CP)—The text of the Speech from the Throne follows:

My Lords And Members Of The House Of Commons:

The shadow of war has once more fallen over Europe. Despite the efforts of my government to preserve peace, Germany, in violation of solemn undertakings, wantonly invaded Poland.

This new instance of German aggression and bad faith was a challenge which we could not have declined without dishonor to ourselves and without peril to the cause of freedom and the progress of mankind

We seek no material gain. Liberty and free institutions are our birthright which we, like our forefathers are resolved to preserve.

Members Of The House Of Commons:

I thank you for your ready acceptance of the heavy financial burdens rendered necessary in contribution towards meeting the severe expense of war. So prompt and ungrudging a response has deeply impressed the world and demonstrated the unflinching determination of my people to make every sacrifice necessary for victory.

My Lords And Members Of The House Of Commons:

The issue is clear. With united will, my peoples here and overseas have dedicated themselves to the struggle. The spontaneous decision of my Dominions to participate in the conflict and the invaluable help which they are giving, and are about to give, to the common cause have been of the greatest encouragement to me.

2 U-BOATS SUNK BY FRENCH SHIP

Germany's Sub Losses Estimated at 'More Than Twenty"

Paris, Nov. 23—(CP—Havas) — The two U-boats sunk by a single French torpedo boat in three days, as announced last night, brought Germany's submarine losses at the hands of the British and French Navies to "more than 20," it was stated in authoritative naval circles here today.

Since Germany was credited at the outbreak of war with about 60 U-boats, of which only 20 were capable of long-distance cruising, this total was regarded as extremely satisfactory.

The two undersea vessels accounted for by the French torpedo boat were definitely sunk, these sources said. The circumstances were such that the ordinary margin of doubt that usually accompanies attacks on U-boats was entirely absent.

VICTORY KIDDY KAR RETURNED HOME

The Kid Car owned by Ernest Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young, which was driven to victory in the Kinsmen Kid Car Derby here last fall and which has been on exhibition at Detroit and the World's Fair at New York has arrived in Belleville. The car was greatly admired at both places and the youngster was complimented on the fine construction and workmanship. It is expected Ernest will have a much faster car for next year's race if one is held by the Kinsmen.

TO PLACE CHEESE IN NEAR FUTURE

Cheese sent to Belleville for the Empire Cheese Exhibit to be held under the direction of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association on December 4th, 5th and 6th will be placed in the market building of the City Hall on Tuesday next according to James L. Irwin, Produce Grader of this district. Mr. Irwin stated there would be more cheese on exhibit this year than last although the number from outside the Dominion would not be as heavy due to war conditions. The Association is opening a temporary office in room 202, Chamber of Commerce building and by the first of the week any information respecting the exhibition can be obtained from this office. The market building will be entirely decorated in keeping with the occasion and the exhibit should be one of the best in the history of the association.

LOSES OPPORTUNITY OF SELLING PHOTO

Wednesday night at the Capitol Theatre was "Foto-Nite". The person selected at this unusual entertainment, Harold Crossley, 403 Bleecker avenue, was not at the theatre and therefore lost the opportunity of selling his photograph for $170.00.

The theatre manager called on Mr. Crossley this morning and presented him with a cheque for $1.00 for having signed a "Foto-Nite" registration card.

However, if Mr. Crossley had been at the theatre, he would have been offered $170.00 for his photo. This entertainment is a weekly attraction at the Capitol Theatre every Wednesday night.

MAN HELD UNDER BANKRUPTCY ACT

Charles A. Dean, 130 McDonald Ave., was arrested at his home by Sergeant Arthur Booth yesterday afternoon on a charge that he did make a false affidavit under the Canada Bankruptcy Act. Dean, whose jewellery business in the town of Trenton was closed by creditors and through the Canada Bankruptcy Act, today was arraigned before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, and remanded for trial.

The arrest was consummated after the complaint had been registered by officials of the Canada Bankruptcy Act, who sought the aid of police in effecting the arrest yesterday. Jewellery valued at $500 was said by police to have been found in Dean's home, which the authorities claim was removed from the accused man's former place of business in Trenton and which came under the Canada Bankruptcy Act. At the time of making declaration of bankruptcy Dean is charged with making false statements regarding his holdings.

Theft Case Against Pte Rogers Enlarged For One Week

Charged with breaking, entering and theft, Pte. Percy W. Rogers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's local Police Court, but in the absence of a defence lawyer, his case was enlarged for one week.

Vincent Cassibo, a native of Read and alleged accomplice of Rogers, appeared on the same charge, but was dismissed from custody after Robert McCulloch, local barrister, informed the court that his client was "undoubtedly a victim of bad associates." Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., concurred with Mr. McCulloch and His Worship agreed to the dismissal.

In the matter of Rogers, however, Mr. Donnan inferred he intended to prosecute the accused man to the utmost. "Have you a lawyer? This is a serious crime and I'm going to prosecute yo uto the utmost," promised the Crown Attorney as Rogers added he desired legal advice and the matter was enlarged until Rogers could procure counsel.

The pair were charged with breaking and entering the garage of Joseph Heffernan, Read, and stealing therefrom a blow torch, drill, steel tape and other tools and carpenter articles, the majority of which were recovered by Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien who investigated and preferred the charges.

Letter to the Editor

Endorses Film

Dear Mr. Editor: I covet a brief space in your valuable paper to say a word of appreciation concerning the excellent picture at the McCarthy Theatre this week, "Mr. Smith Goes To Washington".

I would urge all young people who are thinking of giving themselves to the sublime task of leadership in the political world not to miss this outstanding picture.

Yours sincerely, J. SEMPLE.

Sees Disparity In Prices of Wool And Knitting Yarn

Toronto, Nov. 23.—(CP)—"It is a difficult matter to reconcile the cost of yarn with the price of wool", said H. Brown, assistant to wool administrator R. Dick today when his attention was directed to the disparity between the price the farmer got for wool and the price the retailer gets for knitting wool.

Farmers receive an average of 23 to 26 cents a pound for raw wool in the rough, which would mean clean blood , wool at 45 cents a pound. Women who are knitting socks or sweaters for soldiers are paying as high as $1.65 a pound, sufficient for three pairs of socks. The contract price for soldiers' socks all pure wool and machine knitted, is understood to be about 35 cents a pair.

Mr. Brown stated that investigations were being made regarding prices and that any abnormal charge for wool should be brought to the attention of the wool administrator.

Only 348 Interned Out of 35,000 Enemy Aliens

London, Nov. 28.—(CP) –Home Secretary Sir John Anderson informed the House of Commons today that internment had been ordered for only 348 of the 35,000 "enemy aliens" brought up for examination before government tribunals since the war began.

A number of Germans and Austrians not interned have been subjected to certain restrictions, he explained. Working permits have not been denied them, however.

BARBER FOR SIXTY YEARS

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 23—(CP)—Walter Frazer, 90, who operated a barber shop in Brockville for 60 years and retired 12 years ago, died Wednesday night after a brief illness. He was a native of Omar, N. Y.

On November 7, he and his wife celebrated the 68th anniversary of their wedding. They were Brockville's oldest married couple.

Two daughters and three sons survive.

VIOLENT 'QUAKE SHAKES ANATOLIA

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 23—(AP)—Hundreds were feared today to have been killed and many villages destroyed by violent, intermittent earth shocks over a period of 24 hours throughout Anatolia, the western section of Turkey.

Six villages were reported levelled in East Anatolia. Deaths were high especially in Erzingan, on the eastern edge of Anatolia, one report said.

Icy weather increased the suffering among hundreds of homeless.

POLICE ARREST PTE. W. ROGERS

Provincial Police Allege Man Held is Ringleader of Recent Thefts Near Read

Provincial Police today believe they have broken up a ring of marauders, who have been pilfering and running rampant by night in the neighbourhood of Read, twenty-five miles north and east of this city, when Wellington Rogers, a private in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and former native of Read was arrested on charges of theft by Provincial Police. Two alleged accomplices, who are juveniles, were released after being questioned, however.

Rogers is charged with the theft of a blow torch, drill and bits and other tools and accessories the property of Joseph Heffernan, a neighbour. Practically all of the goods stolen were recovered today, Provincial Constables McBrien and Smith revealed after lodging Rogers in the county jail.

Provincial Police authorities believe they have solved the mystery of many robberies in that section of the county in the apprehension of Rogers and the questioning of his two juvenile accomplices. Intimations that several chicken robberies will also find conclusion in today's arrest.

NEW OFFICERS ARE INTRODUCED

William Anderson Elected President of Kiwanis Club for Ensuing Year

The new president of the Kiwanis Club, Bill Anderson, and his board of directors, Jim Barclay, Bruce Lattimer, Jack McVeigh, Herb Muir, Jack Trudeau, Ivan Scott, Ross Stiver, immediate past president Dr. "Dick" Flynn and secretary George Griffin were introduced to the members at the luncheon on Tuesday and Cliff Baragar, chairman of the Educational Committee, addressed the meeting relative to the challenge of the members to support their officers. The members were congratulated by the president in obtaining a one hundred per cent attendance on November 14th, Ivan Scott and "Sandy" Lummiss being especially thanked for going to Kingston to get in their attendance to make the quota.

The Welfare Committee was congratulated for the work done on three children from Coe Hill, their tonsils being removed in the hospital by Drs. Flynn, Cronk and Forrester. "It is co-operation like this that makes the Kiwanis Club a swell organization to belong to," said the secretary. The children were taken home by friends from Coe Hill after the operation. Cliff Baragar explained to the newer members of the club how the Kiwanis International was formed, the motto under which it works and the classification of the various groups that make up the membership.

The address was most instructive to the members and no doubt splendid co-operation will be given the new officers in the coming year. The installation of the new officers will take place early in January and the Kiwanis Queens will be present to enjoy their annual function.A fine program is being arranged. Jack McIntosh led the community singing and Leo B. Riggs presided at the piano.

Sally Rand Offered Job as 'House Mother'

Richmond, Va., Nov. 23—(AP)—The Greeks had a word for fan dancer Sally Rand today.

Authorities at the University of Richmond ruled that all fraternities must have house mothers so the local chapter of Kappa Sigma, aware of the dancer's recent money troubles, dispatched this telegram:

"Sorry to hear of your financial bust
But come on down and live with us.
We have to get a new house mother,
And we'd rather have you than any other."

FLYING OFFICER INJURES BACK

Struck by Truck While Crossing Street in Trenton

Trenton, Nov. 23—(Special)—J. D. Eric Troop, Flying Officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force, is lying in the Air Station hospital with an injured head and back, the result of being struck by a truck driven by Edward Davis, while walking across Queen Street at the corner of Dundas Street Tuesday night. It was dark when the accident occurred and it is believed that the driver of the truck failed to see the Air Force Officer before it was too late. The front of the delivery truck struck the pedestrian and hurled him to the side of the street. Dr. J. W. Farley was summoned quickly and the injured man was carried to his office where medical treatment was administered before the Air Force ambulance arrived to take him to the hospital at the Port. Dr. Farley reported the man suffered lacerations and a bump on the rear of the scalp, also several small bones fractured in his back. Trenton Police investigated and did not hold the driver. The truck is owned by the Allore Company of Trenton.

Sqr. Ldr. Baker Made Wing Commander

It was announced here yesterday that Squadron Leader W. E. Baker has been appointed Wing Commander in charge of the service equipment at the Royal Canadian Air Force Command at Toronto. Wing Commander Baker was stationed at the Trenton base for three years in a similar capacity but it was only recently that his rank was advanced. Being popular with the townspeople as well as with his comrades, the news of Wing Commander Baker's new appointment was warmly received by his many friends and associates in Trenton. His wife, Mrs. Baker, resides on the York Road just west of the town.

Basketball at High School

The Trenton High School basketball season is scheduled to open shortly after Christmas this year and although a number of the players are busily occupied with preparations for the coming commencement exercises the majority of them are wishing that basketball time was here already. Miss Townsend, the girls' physical instructor, is expected to coach the ladies teams this term.

Election Day Near

With election day but a few weeks away, three men have announced that they are in the field for the Chief Magistrate's position. They are Mayor H. R. Cory seeking re-election, O. G. Alyea and A. A. Farrar. While the contest for mayor is expected to be a hot one the race for council seats shouldn't be so highly contested as there are only two new candidates entering the field. Vic Ryan promises to run and Ross Burtt is the other new candidate going to the polls. Councillor Hugh O'Rourke is back again this year and it is understood that Kenneth Couch, Norman Bower, Roy Westfall and Henry LaFleur are standing. Councillor George Riley is a doubtful just at present.

Miss M. L. Bonter of Trenton motored to Kingston on Saturday to visit her sister, Miss M. A. Bonter at the Kingston General Hospital. She returned home Sunday.

Mr. J. Rathbun has returned home from the Kingston Hospital where he has been receiving treatment for his eys.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxie Waldorf of Trenton were in Kingston over the week-end.

Miss Barbara Callahan of Toronto was at Wooler with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Callahan last Saturday and Sunday. George Callahan and Paul McGovern both of Toronto, visited Wooler over the week-end.

Arthur Norrington of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at Picton spent the week-end with his wife and family in Trenton. son, Ernie, ofetaoinETAOINNNNN

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reid's son Ernie of Picton, was at home in Trenton over the week-end.

THEATRE SHOWING "I STOLE A MILLION" YIELDS $200.

Brockton, Mass., Nov. 23 (AP)—While the movie "I Stole a Million" was being shown at a theatre last night, a gunman held up the cashier and escaped with $200. Police, considering the coincidence noted hopefully that the co-feature was "On trial".

Greater Business Activity Influenced By War Industry

Toronto, Nov. 23—(CP) — Increased activity by the producers of munitions and war materials as Canada's effort in the current conflict gathers momentum should lead indirectly to greater general business activity, Prof. Gilbert Jackson, economist, today told the seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating.

The growth in the country's wage bill which accompanies the increase of working forces in war industries will in turn tend to stimulate all industries producing for civilian needs, he said.

"To speak of 'war-time prosperity' would be to make a contradiction in terms," he said, however, by way of warning. "For no country can truly be described as prosperous when thousands of its young men are living overseas on a less than civilian wage scale and thousands of its women depending on their separation allowances."

Prof. Jackson said "it would not be remarkable if, superficially, during this interval of transition the country were to seem prosperous."

He estimated that this "seeming prosperity" would appear some time in 1940 and said it seemed a fair inference that Canadian industry would be able to absorb another 300,000 wage-earners then.

Accused Kidnapper Shoots Self in Head

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 23—(AP)—Trapped in a tear gas-filled hotel room, an accused kidnapper shot himself in the head and died early today after a gun battle with a detective.

Floyd C. Wadden, 30, Davenport, Ia., auto salesman, told police chief Charles McKnaught the man, still unidentified, abducted him in Davenport Tuesday morning.

Papers in the dead man's pockets indicated he was registered with the Iowa employment service at Marshalltown, Ia., as A.L. Morford, a butcher.

Wadden said he slipped away after the kidnapper took a sixth floor room at the hotel late yesterday and called police. Detective F. L. Thompson called the man to the door. The man fired, striking the detective's pistol. Thompson fired back, hitting him in the hand. All the time he kept talking to the kidnapper, trying to get him to surrender.

Thompson ordered tear gas spurted into the room . A minute later the officers heard a shot. They found the man lying on the floor critically wounded. He died in a hospital shortly after midnight.

Disappearance of Girl Probed as Youth Held

Peterborough, Nov. 23.—Police are holding Ross Kimble, 19-year-old North Monaghan Township farm laborer, while they continue investigation of the unusual circumstances surrounding the disappearance of a 16-year-old girl on Hallowe'en and her apprehension in Campbellford Wednesday afternoon. The girl, a ward of a Guelph institution, was found working in a beauty parlor.

According to police who brought her to the local Children's Shelter, the girl swallowed a number of tablets just as she was being taken from her room. They rushed her to a physician's office, where the doctor worked over her for some time with a stomach pump before her condition was returned to normal.

The girl apparently had the pills on her dressing table and took them when officers allowed her to go to her room to get her clothes. She was examined again when she reached Peterborough and was pronounced normal.

Although the girl has been working in Campbellford for a week, police say she spent a fortnight sleeping in a barn at Kimble's employer's farm. The farmer, it is stated, knew nothing about the girl's presence.

When the girl failed to return to her foster-parents' home after going to a masquerade party, police were notified.

About all they could learn came from Kimble. He told officers that he had been driving with the girl, but had let her out of a car near her home in the early morning of Nov. 1. At that time she was still wearing a gipsy costume.

W. G. WESTON IS ACCLAIMED AS BRITISH M. P.

Toronto Man Succeeds J. R. Remer, Retired for Macclesfield

SERVED IN C.E.F.

Chester, England, Nov. 23—(CP-Cable)—W. Garfield Weston of Toronto today was returned by acclamation to the House of Commons as Conservative member for Macclesfield.

His election unopposed, to succeed J. R. Remer, Conservative, who retired, was made possible by the political truce among the various parties for the duration of the war. Under this plan vacancies are filled by the party previously holding the seat.

Last summer, enclosed by the oak pannelling of his big music room, an active young man paused in his energetic harmonica accompaniment of a lusty barber shop chorus. And for a while the quiet rustle of the Thames at the end of the long avenue of trees on his Marlow, Buckinghamshire estate could be heard.

Fresh Pep from Dominions

"This is what the Old Country needs—some good, fresh pep from the Dominions," he laughed, and then seriously: "I'm a great believer, you know, in bringing the Empire closer together. That's the only way we'll have real understanding and prosperity."

Once more he sounded the key and once more the usual dignified stillness of the Thames-side echoed with deep Canadian voices singing a popular ballad.

It was Garfield Weston's final salute to his Canadian guests—the Toronto Argonaut eight, brought to England at his expense to race at the Henley Royal Regatta and also, as he put it, "to help bring about that closer understanding I'm always talking about."

Also huddled around the harmonica-playing host was a smattering of Australian oarsmen and watching the performance was a more starchy group of Englishmen who, nevertheless, seemed to be enjoying the show. The group was made up of the Canadian industrialist's affluent neighbors and a trio of sedate Henley stewards.

"It's not a usual sight to see a landlord in this expensive part of the country playing a mouth-organ especially when the house is full of television sets, player pianos and gramaphones and especially when the landlord is actively interested in a bakery and food supply business which has 38 plants in Britain alone and which employs 32,000 workers in Canada, Britain and the United States."

But Englishmen have grown accustomed to their Canadian neighbor and his hearty Canadian ways. In fact they like it.

Now Garfield Weston at 41 has carried his Dominion "pep" injections a step farther by entering the Mother of Parliaments representing the Macclesfield division, heretofore most staid of Tory strongholds. And his predecessor, J. R. Remer, retired through ill-health after 21 years, predicts that the dynamic Canadian "is destined to take up a great position in the councils of State."

Asked why he was taking on an extra worry like politics Weston declared: "When you have a large family you have to do something about it." He has eight children ranging down from 16.

Served as Sapper in C.E.F.

A sapper in the Canadian Expeditionary Force at 18 he told his constituents his bitter disappointment at "the peace we have lost" and how proud he was of Canada's response to the commonwealth war effort. He also told them he wants a share in solving the problems of the next peace and hopes to contribute, as a business man, to the question of unemployment and business stability which are bound to rise after the war.

Weston, who only invaded the British business field a few years ago, has already had a share in helping unemployment by establishing plants in the "distressed areas." In this scheme he has had the close collaboration of Viscount Nuffield, a frequent visitor at his Marlow home.

Burr's

Burr's, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Brason's sale on Thursday was well attended.

Rev. Lorne C. Burr and Dr. Sarles called on Mr. Geo. Fox on Thursday.

Mr. Howard Fox spent the weekend with his father and called again on Monday evening. He was helping Mr. Robert Stanton to saw wood on Monday afternoon.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Abram and Mrs. Harold Baker, Belleville, called to see the latter's father, Mr. G. Fox, who is ill. Mrs. Baker remained until Sunday.

On Sunday morning Mr. Norman Fox accompanied by Mrs. Geo. Fox went to Prince Edward County Hospital and brought home his wife and twin daughters, Carolyn Joyce and Gwendolyn Louise.

Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Pair, Picton, called to see Mr. George Fox on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Earl Wood, Victoria, Misses Hazel and Verna Keene, Sidney, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vancott, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards, called on Mr. G. Fox, Mrs. Norman Fox and twins on Sunday.

On Thursday evening a large crowd assembled at the L.O.L. Hall, Allisonville, on Thursday evening and presented Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lough (nee Vera Hubbs) with a miscellaneous shower. During the evening the following addresses were read:

"Vera and Percy:

"It is a blessed privilege of the friends and neighbors to be able to share each other's joys and rejoice in each other's good fortune as well as to help each other out in the darker moments of life; and it is to express in some measure this kindly interest in your welfare and desire for your life's happiness that we are gathered here as your friends and neighbors tonight.

"As Longfellow puts it:

"'O fortunate, O happy day,
When a new household finds its place,
Among the myriad homes of earth,
Like a new star just spring to birth;
And rolled on its harmonious way
Into the boundless realms of space.'

"And if, as he further says, in your new home:

"'The light of love shines over all,
The love that says not mine and and thine
But ours—for ours is thine and mine.'

"Then are you building your fortune on a solid foundation which will not fail in times of stress.

"We wish to let these gifts which we now present you—act as silent messengers each one bearing with it assurance of our high esteem and our earnest wishes for a happy useful married life.

"Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors — Clifford Hough, Donald Parks, Burton Osterout."

"Dear Vera and Percy: We, your friends of the M.B.B. Comrades would like to thank you for your willing help and pleasant associations in club work.

"We also want to wish you much happiness on your road of married life. We hope that you, Vera and Percy, will be able to be with us often and share our fellowship.

"May you have life's richest blessings always. As a token of our esteem, we present this gift as an ever reminder of your friends at Allisonville.

"Signed on behalf of the M.B.B. Comrades—Beth Davis, Carol Burr, Helen Campbell."

The M.B.B. Comrades presented Mrs. Lough with a beautiful lace table cloth. Percy and Vera made replies to both addresses thanking them for their kindness and for their lovely gifts and invited them to visit them in their new home. The hall was filled with friends from Melville, Mountain View, Burr's, Bowerman's, Crofton, Mount Pleasant, Belleville and Wellington and the gifts were numerous and useful. After the gifts had been admired a delicious lunch was served by the ladies after which dancing was indulged in until the wee sma' hours.

A WORD ABOUT

The Settlement of your estate

Write for our booklet about our services.

Settlement of your estate will take place some day but only you can make certain that your plans for your wife and family and others will be completed in the way you wish.

Estate settlement now includes many new duties and regulations to be observed; new problems are continually arising in the work. It is a heavy responsibility and an individual acting as executor needs to learn many lessons. Loss of time and extra expense result, also, should his death occur the settlement is greatly hampered.

Investigate the advantages and benefits to your beneficiaries if this Trust Company settles your estate. Our economical methods, experience and knowledge of the work will carry through your plans at a minimum of expense; our work is not interrupted by death.

SEEING SANTA

So Santa Claus has decided to come to Belleville and parade down the principal streets in broad daylight!

Not so long ago children might hear Santa on that famed "Night Before Christmas," but as to seeing him! That was fraught with calamity. For it was rumored that if the youngsters saw Santa Claus he might not leave any presents on the tree.

Perhaps that was a subterfuge of parents to get the children off to bed early on Christmas Eve, but not one of us dared to try and sort out fact from fancy.

Now times have changed, but he is the same old Santa Claus with his long white whiskers and big tummy, even though he does make bold to show himself when the sun is high in the heavens.

Rightly, the people of Belleville have decided that since he is good enough to make this city a point of pause, they are going to prepare a real welcome. They are going to meet Santa Claus and his wife (now when did he take to himself a Mrs. Santa Claus?) in royal parade and give him the warmest welcome that this good old city, and this good old section of Ontario, ever gave him anytime. They want every youngster from far and near to be present on December 9th to cheer the mischievous old saint on in his task of spreading good cheer and gifts this coming December 25th.

In these times the spirit of Santa Claus is needed as never before, so let us who used to be children add our voices to the welcome.

HUMOR AND COMMON SENSE

Britishers have air raid cellars and dugouts to go to but if air raiders show up they like to walk out to see the battle. Of course no major event in the air has taken place and it is unlikely in, the event of such there would be so much watching of the skies by civilians. Now there is a Scot in a small town on the east coast of his country who has comfortable rooms to rent and he believes in advertising, so he inserts an "ad" in his town paper pointing out the "excellent view of air raids" which may be had from this place.

Such very human, common sense characteristic of the British people is something that sees them through all sorts of trying situations and it is probably one of the many things which Nazi psychology will never be able to fathom. But it seems so natural to those of British blood.

It is this calmness, this practical sense which bulwarks Britain.

MAGNA CHARTA IN LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

Magna Charta, the document which sealed British liberties, is to have a place opposite the Declaration of Independence and the American Constitution next week in the library of Congress at Washington. The librarian of Congress has called Magna Charta the root of the tree of civil liberties. These three documents, he declares, are the guarantee of man's freedom in a day of totalitarianism.

The copy to be displayed in the Congressional library is that which has been on view at the New York World's Fair.

One of the reasons why it is still in the United States is that the British Government considered it so important that it decided against returning it during German submarine warfare. The British Government will permit the display of the document for the benefit of the people of the United States for the duration of the war.

The Magna Charta, the most famous of documents, will be delivered to the library by the British Ambassador, Lord Lothian, next Tuesday.

In these days more than ever democratic peoples treasure such documents which are the foundations of freedom. Magna Charta has been the strength of the British Constitution and in its influence upon the course of British history has helped to change the course of nations When the Barons forced King John to sign at Runnymede in 1215, they dared to do what has been one of the greatest factors of progress in all history. Its influence will go down the ages to the end of time when dictatorships are long since forgotten. It is the great gift of the British people to the world.

DICTATORS' HEIRS

If a nation goes totalitaian it has to go the full length of the way. Even the dictator cannot live forever, there are possibilities as even Hitler saw when he declared at Danzig that he had chosen Marshal Hermann Goering as his successor in the event of anything happening to him.

Now Dictator Stalin has decided to have an "heir", Alexis Zhdanov, Communist party secretary for Leningrad. Stalin has for long been reported in poor health and Zhdanov is a husky, burly, anti-foreign, rough and ready man approaching middle age, who is reported to have been favorable to the Berlin-Moscow rapprochement.

Stalin wears none of the pomp of power in his dress, as he uses the plain uniform and he seems to breathe the very air of the Europe-Asia boundary. News stories indicate that Zhdanov is a strong character.

Hitler and Stalin are preparing for the perpetuation of the dictatorship, something which has not worked out well in other times, for dictators dictate not only to the entire country but to everyone in it, even to the men who may succeed or try to succeed. It was so in the days of ancient history and through the Middle Ages. Dictators sap the individuality of others because they must themselves be all-powerful individualists.

The Nazi No. 2 of Germany is an entirely different type from Herr Adolf Hitler Nazi No. 1. He is a bon viveur, a lover of pomp and show, and possessor of numberless uniforms, while Hitler is austere, wears a plain uniform, dwells little in the world and more in the realm of visions and dreams, and possesses an unstable mind, which baffles his counsellors and leaves them puzzled as to what step he may undertake next.

BRITISH COMMENT SUFFICIENT

British people pay little attention to the charge of the Gestapo chief that British secret service financed the explosion plot in Munich. The British Foreign Office declared that neither the British Government nor any agent of the Government had any knowledge of the German charged with the placing of the bomb in the beer cellar, and denied that the kidnapping of two British subjects on the German-Dutch frontier had anything to do with the incident of the explosion.

The Gestapo, it must be pointed out, is believed by some to have devised the plot itself for the sake of propaganda. Himmler, head of the secret police, has claimed the George Elser, charged with the placing of the bomb has confessed. This reference to confession sounds familiar as the same word was given out in alleged Russian purges where men accused of plots "confessed".

The British Government's brief comment, "the public will be able to draw their own conclusions from his (Elser's) long examination by the German police," it is the best possible answer to the Himmler charges.

Birth Marks and Their Treatment

A great amount of interest was aroused when the Drs. Kelly of Baltimore removed a birth mark from one of the Dionne quintuplets by the use of radium.

There has been so much discussion about birth marks as to whether or not they can be removed, that a late classification of these marks and their treatment should be helpful to patients and physicians.

In the Journal of Pediatrics (children's diseases), Dr. F. Young gives a summary of the kinds and the treatment of birth marks, together with the most successful method of treatment in each case.

"There are three main types, namely the capillary or port wine stain, the strawberry growth, and the tumor or lump containing blood. Treatment should be given according to the type of tumor, its location, and size. The simple reddish stains about the back of the head neck and forehead disappear of themselves and no treatment is needed. The treatment of the large port wine mark is unsatisfying and at best radium or snow substitutes a white scar for the red mark. The removal of the small port wine marks by surgery offers the best results."

"Strawberry growths on the body and limbs and on the face when small and suitably located, should be removed by surgery.

When the growth is large and involves the facial features, surface radiation, electric-dessication (drying it up by electricity or carbon dioxide snow) are effective.

The large bloodfilled growths are best injected with the solutions commonly used to destroy hemorrhoids or piles."

I believe the above information which classifies birth marks and growths and outlines best treatment for each class should help physician and patient to come to a decision on what is best to do in any particular case—leave the mark alone or use the particular method of treatment outlined above.

This should bring comfort and happiness to many and in the cases where treatment is likely to be a failure, will avoid much disappointment and expense.

Does Advertising Protect Your Job?

A long time ago there was no advertising. Every man with something to sell had to tell people about his products personally and individually. Of course, this was not a great handicap in those days, for no one had much to sell.

Then advertising developed and by creating a larger demand made possible large scale manufacturing. New products were made, and advertising did the job of making them known quickly. New industries sprang up almost overnight. And now advertising is doing the job of keeping them going.

Without advertising it would be impossible to keep large factories operating, giving employment to millions of men and women, at good wages and under splendid conditions, unheard of in the old days, making goods for more millions of consumers.

Advertising is the voice of industry and the voice of labor. It tells us how to live happier lives and how to make our money go farther.—Owen Sound Sun Times.

Fascinating Letter From Somewhere in Scotland

Margaret Currie writing in the Montreal Star tells of an interesting letter received by a friend of hers telling of life for non-combatants in a country under war conditions.

A friend who had just received this long and intimate letter from a cousin in Scotland was rash enough to allow me to read it, whereupon I promptly grabbed it so that you might all have a chance to know exactly what conditions are like in that little island with its big spirit. The writer modestly says "this is all about trivialities, so don't be disappointed at its lack of news," not realizing that this "trivial" talk is just what we're all longing to hear.

"You ask me to tell you what all this has meant to us here. I am afraid I cannot, but I shall try. It has come on us gradually; for the last year at least we have not really been at peace and have been vigorously preparing both materially and mentally for the war which has gradually seemed inescapable. We passionately want peace but we realize there are worse things than war, that the refusing of war would be one of them, and our determination to put an end to an intolerable state of things has very surely grown as our temper has risen, till now, while there is deep sadness everywhere there is also a kind of relief. The tension of the last year has been very terrible, while we still hoped for peace, yet trained our men and women, dug our shelters and made our preparations for the gathering storm. There is a completely different spirit now to what there was a year ago, we are solid now and are ready. During the year we have all had our instructions, not only the 'services'—how to make rooms gas-proof, how to deal with fires, with incendiary bombs, etc., with wounds and casualties. Instructions about having a week's food supply in the house, about evacuation—we at least know what to do, and the 'morale', as it is called, of the nation, as well as the physical standard (the doctors were surprised by the A1 physique of the men called up) is all that could be wished at the beginning of such a struggle. We are counting the cost and as our minister said we must get used to the idea of sacrifice, the idea of suffering, the idea of sorrow and there is no slightest sign of anything but determination to see it through. There has not been any grumbling, even at the almost overwhelming taxation. And, besides unanimity and determination and a kind of relief after the long tension there is, in spite of anxiety and sadness, an almost irresponsible kind of cheerfulness which makes jokes about everything.

Daily Life.

"I wonder if I can remember some of the changes in our daily life. I wonder if you can picture the immense upheaval caused by mobilization, the black-out, and evacuation of big cities and crowded areas. Here already jobs are being done by old men where we had young ones—(e.g., our postman was in a ship which was making for home, damaged, in the North Sea and was unsuccessfully attacked, an ancient takes his place)—Then we all have to carry our gas masks everywhere (though it is now allowed to go without it if you are within five minutes of it) they are a fearful nuisance, especially in a crowded tram or bus where everyone bumps into everyone else, or when one is loaded with parcels, for they are quite a weight especially if in a tin container. I sometimes carry mine slung on my back (most people do this) and sometimes for a change I carry it in a bag in my hand. Transport is now a difficulty owing to curtailment of train service and to rigid petrol rationing—though I am glad to say the railways have at last issued a timetable so we at least know now what we can do.

"It is impossible to read in the trains with the peep of blue light, though some of the long-distance ones are trying to have some "control switch" so as to allow enough light for reading which can be immediately all turned off. The covered-in stations are such caverns of darkness that unless you are careful you may sit down on someone when you take your place in the train. Open country stations have their names obliterated in case of guiding the enemy. Every compartment has a notice: (If an air raid occurs while you are in this train—do not attempt to leave the train if it stops away from a station unless requested to do so by the guard. You are safer where you are. Pull the blinds down both by day and night as a protection against flying glass. If room is available lie down on the floor).

"Of course, fun is made of this last instruction — a sound one all the same. (In church, too, we are instructed to lie down under the seats and as far as possible cover ourselves with the cushions, as protection against splinters).

"I am glad food rationing is coming so soon. It is quite a debatable point whether one should eat plenty and of good things while we still have a chance or whether we should begin to accustom ourselves to doing without. Personally I am rather in favor of beginning gradually to tighten one's belt before the pinch comes, I know one can accustom one's tummy to habitual quantities.

"The black-out affects us all, everywhere. We may not show even a chink of light after a certain hour (sunset) specified in the papers each evening. This order is very strict, and it makes getting about very difficult and dangerous in spite of wearing white armlets, luminous buttons, etc. I saw the order was coming and I had to make about 60 yards of black A. R. P. material (which I had trouble in getting as there was such a rush for it) into curtains. The result was that my eyes gave out and I got a fright. However, I just managed to get into the city to the oculist before the evacuation which began the next day and held up all the traffic, and was relieved to find it was just the result of strain sewing the black cloth, and it passed off.

The Evacuees.

"The evacuation of children, many mothers, inmates of hospitals and blind and helpless people has made a tremendous upheaval all over the country as all had to be billeted and there is hardly a house I suppose in the reception areas, mansions, farms, cottages—that has not refugees in it. Can you imagine the adjustments and the difficulties! Three or four hundred came to our wee village. The school here, as in other villages, has to work in 'shifts' so each child only has a few hours there each day. We have taken two of the younger children, not sisters. They are nice children and very obedient and good but of course it means a lot of work, especially as they are at school such a short time each day—this reminds me it is time I went and bathed Jessie Smith—aged 7½. She got a bath every fortnight at home—but oftener here. Their ignorance of the country is interesting and sometimes amusing. They do not know the commonest things, nor their names, one had neither seen nor heard of a calf before, and things they find such as shells or fir-cones are treasure-troves. Last month they were 'brambling' fairly often and now whenever the word 'brambles' comes into a fairy story, etc., Jessie rubs her tummy and makes greedy noises with her mouth. It means something to her now. I had them up the glen the other day gathering nuts to their great delight, they had no idea the nuts for 'hallowe'en' come off trees.

Air Raids.

"There have been a good many raids and attempted raids on the east side of Scotland in the last week as you may have heard, though so far I don't think there has been an authentic enemy plane over the west, though, occasional 'standby' warnings. We had a letter from a friend describing the raid over Edinburgh. A German bomber streaked past her window quite low, and the shrapnel was found in the area and at the back of her hours. There were repeated alarms, warnings. Finally her maid (who never left her wash-tub during the raid) remarked: 'He'll have to stop this. I can't get on with my work for drawing the curtains.'

"As you will have gathered we are staying in the country where there seems work to do among evacuees ond for the Red Cross, of which I am on the local committee, I can no longer do the hours of hard physical work of the last war I am afraid. So those who don't help by being in towns should stay out of them.

Emergency Appendix

"My niece had to have an emergency operation recently. The doctor was here at 6:30 and she, her mother and I were on the road to the city at 7:15. It was a nightmare drive (fortunately the petrol ration did not begin till the following week). We raced the first part in the gathering dusk, not so bad at first as all the way there were painted white lines on the road and white paint on stone walls, posts, odd large stones by the road, etc., but as we got into the outskirts of the town it was awful. We had no headlights of course, just a dim peep to keep people from running into us, and no gleam of light from any buildings or anything, just at cross-roads out of the blackness a tiny 2 inch cross of red or green light coming from you didn't know where. And all the time Betty groaning 'are we nearly there?' Then she thought she was going to be sick and all I had was my gas-mask container, so I held it with one hand, hugged my gas-mask with the other and peered out to try to see where we might be, for the man driving suddenly announced: 'I don't know where we are.' I knew we were in the right direction then dimly made out a darker mass which looked to me like docks so I told him to drive down beside them and go on till we came to a bridge. The trouble was to know when you did come to a bridge but we saw a dim ghost-like tram car going at right-angles to us so we knew there must be one there and so got across the river. Then I had to direct the man the whole way and though I knew the way better than the 'palm of my hand' I had the utmost difficulty. I had to count and name to myself the black gaps which were across streets, and finally among the terraces just to say 'turn slightly to the right' or 'keep well to the left as there is a monument we have to get round' etc. We could hardly see enough to keep on the road and not run on the pavement, I have never had such a drive, but it ended at last as we got to the nursing home where the surgeon and anaesthetist were waiting and they operated within 20 minutes. It was a longer and trickier operation than the usual one but she got on all right.

"Talking of our difficult drive in the black-out reminds me of one of the practices for ambulance driving and first aid. The ambulance was to pick up a case of haemorrhage but lost the way in the dark and when they got there very late found only a notice 'Bled to death and gone home'!

"And on the subject of notices, I heard the other day of an Edinburgh man who got so fed up with all the priority notices on cars—O.H.M.S., A.R.P., Red Cross, fire services, etc., that he had a notice printed for his own car 'Man going to his work.'

"I am afraid this is not much of a letter, all about nothing, though we are in the middle of such big events, but I shall just send it and it may give you some idea of how the war has, so far, affected us personally. I think rationing will not begin till mid-November, but we do not know at all what our allowances will be.

"One appreciates what one's 'daily bread' means and how thankful one should be for it after seeing a convoy such as passed out to sea the other day. We see a bit of the main channel from the house. Early in the day came war ships, including airplane carrier, going up, destroyers and bombers flying very low searched the water and towards dusk, with a destroyer still scouring round, a large convoy of heavily-loaded freighters quite small mostly passed down the channel into the darkness and danger ahead of them. It makes one think."

Neutrals' Safeguards Through Sea Warfare

Nowadays, beyond the three-mile territorial waters, the seas in peace are free and open to all. But when world powers clash, upon parts or the whole of the vast waters, neutrals discover that their three-mile rights require vindication and that their trade may be hampered.

Age-old custom, the mere assumptions and agreements of maritime treaties, approved judgments delivered in national prize courts—particularly the pronouncements of Sir William Scott, later Lord Stowell, in English prize courts—are reflected in the Declaration of Paris, 1856, and the later Geneva and Hague Conventions. Of the Hague Conventions the 13th (1907) deals especially with neutrality....

Perhaps, today, one would be justified in saying that such international naval law as is agreed by this country to be valid is that which obtained in 1907, supplemented by such parts of the Declaration as do not contradict the 1907 position. But the law of contraband is now modified by changed practice of search and the rules of evidence on which Allied prize courts of 1914-18 acted.

Into a neutral's waters a belligerent warship—a vessel commanded by a fully-commissioned officer, wearing the flag of an admiralty and empowered to attack, search and make prize— may enter. If allowed, it may use the services of a local pilot. There the warship may repair to "minimum seaworthiness" (the neutral deciding the extent) and may, if permitted provision to peace capacity and take on fuel to reach her own nearest port; but it is forbidden to munition or complete crew.

The visitor may remain only 24 hours in the harbor. Should she find there an enemy warship or merchantmen, the newcomer must delay the same regulation space after the foe's departure.

A belligerent may not go in to gain intelligence, should not carry in a prize, nor in any way use the anchorage for hostility. She may only defend herself if the neutral will not protect her. Two, or even three warships of the same Power may enter a neutral harbor at the same time. But the same neutral may not twice in three months be asked to fuel a particular warship. (From this Germany definitely dissents.)

A submarine is expected only to penetrate a neutral harbor on the surface and flying its admiralty flag.

Should any warship overstay, the penalty is interment. No nationality welcomes armed visitors. Who will not sympathize with the past refusal of Norway, Sweden and Spain to allow the use of their waters to submarines, or fail to appreciate why, during the last war, the Dutch closed their ports to all warships not threatened by stress of sea?

The mere passage of neutral waters by a warship in chase or flight is not necessarily serious. In neutral waters enemy traders cannot be made prize; they may take refuge therein, but not change their structure, arm and go forth to prey; nor, as a result of pretended sale or hire, can they alter their flags.

Armed Merchantmen

A belligerent merchantman, armed for defence, is not a warship, and cannot be interned for overstaying in a neutral port. Till the seventeenth century merchantmen were commonly armed, and the right of merchantmen to resist capture has never been denied. When, in the last war, German submarines, torpedoing mercantile craft at sight, left crews to sing or drift in boats—a barbarity tantamount to drowning prisoners—neutrals did not demur to taking from British vessels armed for defence any customary and needed imports, or refuse to load them with cargoes that otherwise would have rotted on the quays.

The right of a neutral to trade in wartime across the seas is not disputed. But the belligerent has (1) the privilege of denying access to an enemy port or ports under trade blockade, and (2) right to visit and search neutral ships, other than warships, for contraband of war.

Blockade in the wide strategical sense is the penning of enemy warships in their bases as a means of securing command of a given sea or seas; blockade in the trade sense may be either another aspect of the strategical operation or the simple closing of a specific port or coast. Trade blockade, in any event, does not properly exist [illegible] place, beginning and duration are officially proclaimed. Neutral ships are allowed grace to clear; and thereafter, no ship may seek [illegible] break in or out on pain of confiscation of itself and cargo.

Neutrals are justified in insisting that a proclaimed blockade shall be real, and not fictitious; yet, when in doubt, they may [illegible] hopefully pry on the investing squadron, inquire and expect to [illegible] scatheless away. A ship that breaks a blockade outwards can[illegible] if pursuit has been relinquished [illegible] confiscated later.

What is Contraband?

Contraband ("contrabands,' Spanish smuggling") is a bothersome term signifying, roughly, goods that one does not wish conveyed to a foe.

Grotius, though he never used the word, classified things as (1) only (2) never, (3) sometimes useful for war. Arms and ammunition are obviously of the first category; food, clothing and money for military use are in the third. Belligerents customarily issue schedules of "absolute" and "conditional" contraband, and neutral subjects, if they wish, have the right to sell contraband to either belligerent.

A neutral merchant ship requested by signal to submit to visit and search must obey. Till this century, the English and orthodox custom was to send aboard an officer to inspect the ship's papers, examine cargo and judge whether, prima facie, the ship contained goods listed by the Government as contraband, decide whether any articles of the "absolute" class were destined for enemy territory, or, in the "conditional" group, to the enemy government. The fact that the ship had touched at a port out of her normal course did not help her; the whole "continuous voyage was held in view.

Presumption settled, a prize master was put aboard, if necessary with a crew, and the vessel was sent into a British or Colonial port to be delivered to the Admiralty marshal or Customs officer.

Proceedings in a prize court of Admiralty followed, appeal to the Privy Council being allowed.

The cargo, if adjudged "absolute" contraband, was confiscated; if "conditional" it was similarly confiscated or dealt with by preemption, i.e., purchased at market price plus 10 per cent. (A treaty, 1794, with the U.S.A. shows methods of valuation.) The vessel was only confiscated if she had resisted, or her papers were not in order, or she herself were contraband.

The Declaration of London made a table of (1) absolute (2) conditional and (3) never contraband goods—a list which while placing armaments and munitions in the "absolute" group and food in the second, among other anomalies set rubber, raw cotton, metallic ores and many chemicals in the 'never' contraband class. It allowed as doctrine that, although "absolute" contraband was confiscated when consigned either by direct or indirect voyage to an enemy or his agent in a neutral country, "conditional" contraband was such only if on direct voyage for enemy government use. It foolishly and, against weight, of precedent, excepted from visit and search neutrals under convoy of their government warships....

"Rationing" Neutrals

The basis on which we eventually proceeded has been called "rationing of neutrals," a process in which we were assisted by voluntary organizations of merchants in neutral countries, the chief being the Netherlands Overseas Trust.

By Edward B. Powley, late R. N. in The Daily Telegraph and Morning Post.

South Africa Takes Precautions Against Attack by Sea Raider

Cape Town, Nov. 23—(CP Cable)—Precautions against attack by an enemy sea raider have been taken throughout the Union of South Africa.

Precautions include a complete black-out of all lighthouses, suspension of wireless communication between ships, a watch on all telegrams containing information of ship movements and closing of all harbors to the public. Persons entering harbors on lawful business require permits.

(Reports from Swakopmund, Southwest Africa said Monday night that the 16,662-ton German liner Windhoek, which escaped from internment at the Portugese West African port or Lobito, had been fitted as a raider and had disguised itself as a British ship.

(Earlier a German armed raider was reported the attacker of the British steamship Africa Shell, sunk within Portugese territorial waters off Zabora in the Mozambique channel.)

St. Andrew's Guild, Stirling, Hosts to Roslin Y. P. S.

Stirling—On Monday evening the members and officers of St. Andrew's Young People's guild were hosts to the members of Roslin Presbyterian Young People's Society at a pleasant social evening held in St. Andrew's Church. Acting on behalf of the President of the Stirling Group Mr. Arthur Duncan presided as chairman and the program opened with a brief devotional period. Rev. W. H. V. Walker, minister of the Stirling Church, presented the Scripture lesson and led in prayer. The social part of the program opened with the singing of O Canada and a group of old favorite songs with Art Duncan and Mrs. W. H. Williams leading. An interesting reading by Mrs. A. Hammand was a worthy contribution to the program and much enjoyed. The efforts of Shirley Montgomery, talented juvenile elocutionist, were also very much appreciated. Little Shirley displays unusual talent in her interpretations of carefully selected numbers. A vocal trio by three members of St. Andrew's Mission Band, Jean MacIntosh and the Fox sisters was another feature of the well balanced program. A laughable superiority contest with President Roy Juby and President Don Foot resulted in an equal decision on the part of the judges.

The next musical selection was a musical dialogue offered by Art Duncan and the two executive committees opposed each other in a "Quiz Contest of Brain twisters with the honors going to the visitors. The final number on the program was a thought-provoking "Hidden Hero" Contest directed by Miss Gena Spry.

The entire group was then systematically arranged in pairs for luncheon with the boys and gentlemen acting as waiters to the ladies. An expression of gratitude for the fine programme was extended to the committee in charge, Roy Juby, A. Duncan and Miss Gena Spry, President Don Foot, for the Roslin group, voiced the hearty appreciation of the visitors for the pleasant evening and extended the hosts an invitation to visit Roslin in the near future. The meeting then closed with the singing of Auld Lange Syne and the National Anthem.

Successful Dance Held

A successful dance held under the auspices of St. James Club was held in the Stirling Community Service Building on Monday night, Nov. 20th. Excellent music was provided by the Top Hatters Orchestra with Curley Gibson and dance lovers from all parts of the district attending. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fitzpatrick of Trenton were the winners of the novelty dance and many complimentary remarks were extended to the committee in charge of the arangements.

New Mission Opens

Rev. and Mrs. J. G. McElhoes assisted by Rev. E. C. Goffin of Four Square Gospel Church have secured the premises formerly occupied by B. W. Bishop's jewelry store and are in the midst of conducting a series of evangelistic meetings each Sunday and several days throughout the week. Open air services are also being held on the corners of the business section of the town several times during the week.

Mrs. J. F. Powell who spent a few weeks visiting her home in Stirling received word while enroute to her home in Vancouver of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Mary Caldwell, and returned to Stirling from Windsor. Friends will be sorry to learn that the aged Mrs. Caldwell passed away on Tuesday after two weeks illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fitzpatrick of Trenton were in Stirling on Monday evening and attended the dance held by St. James Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Bennett, Joan and Roy of Frankford were Sunday guests at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett, Ridge Road.

Mrs. J. J. Wilson and Mr. Lorne, who for the past few weeks have resided in the Fargey house on Gore St. have moved to the Henry St. property formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Armstrong.

Pte. Reg. Clarke of R.C.A.F., Trenton Airport, spent the week end visiting his home in Stirling and friends in Peterborough.

Friends of Mrs. W. N. Duncan of Toronto will be sorry to learn that she is seriously ill in Toronto General Hospital.

Talented students of Stirling High School who have been selected to take part in the Commencement Entertainment have completed their rehearsals and the program promises to eclipse former achievements. The proceeds of the event will go to aid in Red Cross work.

Rev. Gordon Lapp Guest Speaker at R. E. C. Meeting

Bonarlaw, Ont., Nov. 23. — Rev. Gordon Lapp, a former Premier of the Older Boys' Parliament of Ontario, was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Religious Education Council of Centre Hastings which was held at Thomasburg United Church on Wednesday of last week, afternoon and evening session.

Mr. Lapp, who was the provincial representative, led a round-table conference in the afternoon and delivered a splendid inspirational address at the evening session. Both sessions were well attended, and were presided oved by Mr. W. J. Johnston.

The secretary's report was given by Mr. J. E. Bateman. The following officers for the ensuing term were elected and impressively installed by Rev. W. A. Hunter of Madoc, viz.: President, W. J. Johnston; vice-presidents, Messrs. Clayton Rutter, Percy Holland, Freeman Howes and Carl Clancy; secretary treasurer, J. F. Bateman; assistant secretary, J. F. Baker; department superintendents: Children, Mrs. (Rev.) W. L. Morrison; girls' work, Miss Bessie McMullen; boys' work, Fred Elgie; young people's, Harry Love; adult, Miss Ida McCaw; home department, Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne; temperance, Mrs. W. Holland; missionary, Miss Frances Harris; leadership training, Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher.

The Thomasburg choir sang the beautiful anthem, "He Leadeth Me".

An invitation to hold the next convention at Queensboro United Church was extended by Mr. Holland and gratefully accepted.

SALEM W.M.S.

The November meeting of Salem W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Robinson with a good attendance. The meeting was in charge of the President, Mrs. L. McLaren.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Cole. Business was discussed. At next meeting mite boxes are to be brought and roll call is to be answered with a short verse on Christmas. The theme was "Our Response to God's Missionary Purposes." Mrs. D. Smith, group leader, conducted a very interesting program. Readings were given by Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Clifford Hagerman, Miss Robinson, Mrs. E. Hanna, Mrs. L. McLaren. A pleasing duet was given by Mrs. Robinson and Miss Bernice Robinson. Rev. W. Sterling closed the meeting with prayer.

RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Finkle, 71 N. Front Street, will be at home to their relatives and friends to celebrate the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary on Monday, November 27.

Mr. and Mrs. James Haggerty, Church Street, left this morning for Toronto, where Mr. Haggerty will attend a meeting of the executive of the Ontario Municipal Association.

Mrs. Hubert Bedore, Gananoque, is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Black.

Mr. James L. Irwin, Dominion Produce Grader, is in Brockville, today attending the Eastern Ontario Cheesemakers' Convention.

Miss G. E. Nightingale, Mrs. W. J. Campbell, Mrs. R. S. Hart and Mrs. J. W. Pearce of Belleville, Ontario, explored the famous Endless Caverns at New Market, Va., U.S.A., while on a motor trip through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

Many friends of Mrs. Robert Gibson, 24 Hillcrest Avenue, called at her home yesterday to congratulate her on the occasion of her ninety-second birthday. Mrs. Gibson has been enjoying fairly good health and takes keen interest in community affairs. Possessed of a keen memory she recalls many interesting facts of the Belleville of decades ago. The good wishes of a host of friends are extended to Mrs. Gibson on her anniversary.

Last night Mr. Charles Bowra, Oshawa, entertained the staff of his Oshawa and Belleville stores at a duck dinner and dance at Bewdley Hotel, Rice Lake. About thirty guests were present and thoroughly enjoyed the evening's program. Mr. Clifford Rice, Cornwall, expressed the appreciation of those present to Mr. Bowra, who made a fitting reply.

WEDDINGS

RYAN—McAVOY

On Saturday morning, November 18th, at eight o'clock, a very pretty wedding took place at the church of St. James, The Minor, in Stirling, when Sarah Mabel, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Owen McAvoy of Ivanhoe, became the bride of Joseph Raymond, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan of Halloway.

The Nuptial Mass and wedding ceremony were celebrated by Rev. Father LeSage in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The Mass was served by Master Milford McCauley of Frankford, nephew of the bride.

The bride, who entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March, was attired in French blue crepe with silver trimmings and navy blue accessories. She carried a white prayer book.

The bridesmaid was Miss Madelene Ryan, sister of the groom. She wore wine colored velvet with matching accessories.

Mr. Samuel McAvoy, brother of the bride of Frankford, was groomsman.

Miss Eileen Jordan and Miss Betty McNab of Trenton, rendered solos during Mass.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to the Queen's Hotel, Belleville, for their wedding breakfast. After a wedding trip to Ottawa and eastern points, Mr. and Mrs. Ryan will reside at Glen Miller, where the groom is engaged as lock master on Trent Canal. They carry with them the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy married life.

Delegate Reports on Home and School Club Conference in Kingston

The regular meeting of the King George Home and School Association was held Wednesday evening, November 15, in the auditorium with the Vice President Mrs. R. G. Coulter presiding.

The meeting opened by singing "O Canada", after which the Vice President, welcomed the members and guests.

Pupils of Grade 8 provided musical entertainment. A cornet solo by Ronald Moorman accompanied by Miss D. Boyle; piano solo by June Wardle; a vocal duet by Olive Smith and Helen Arnott, June Wardle accompanying and a short play "Red Riding Hood" was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Wells gave an excellent report on the recent conference held at Kingston. The President of the Federaton and the other speakers stressed the importance of parent education, the necessity for a happy home life to ensure the child's welfare, and the need for self control and discipline to be taught to the pre school child. Through proper home education their lives will be happier and on entering school life they will better understand the need for co-operation and loyalty to their teachers, their friends and to the school.

The guest speaker of the evening, Miss Robbins, of the Children's Aid Society, was then introduced by Mrs. W. Harrison. Her subject was "The Underprivileged Child". The splendid work of the Society was outlined by Miss Robbins. When every effort has failed to keep a family together, after a case has been investigated, the child is then placed in a foster home, where a better idea of home life is understood and where individual attention can be given. To protect, to care for and to control the child, to improve the home life of children and if necessary secure foster homes for them. To co-operate with other agencies and if advisable take legal action are the aims of this organization. Much of the work depends on voluntary contributions, again the need for parent education and happy home life for children is evident to ensure their growing up to be good citizens.

On behalf of the Association Miss Boyle thanked Miss Robbins for her splendid address. The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem and refreshments were served. Miss Wedden won the attendance award.

Successful Bazaar Arranged by Belleville Chapter, No. 55, O.E.S.

Beautifully arranged booths decorated in flower-like colours and finished in original designs offered countless attractive wares yesterday afternoon to the many guests who attended the annual bazaar arranged by members of the Belleville Chapter, No. 56, Order of the Eastern Star.

The interesting affair was attended by large crowds throughout the afternoon. Those in charge, Mrs. Flossie Smith, convener, and Mrs. Maude Elliott, A.M., co-convener, the various committees and individuals who worked so zealously in its preparation are to be congratulated for the splendid success attained.

The guests were cordially welcomed by Mrs. L. Law, Worthy Matron and Mrs. Ada McDonald, wife of the Worthy Patron. The first booth to attract the attention of the visitors was the apron booth in which lovely and useful aprons were offered for sale. The booth was decorated in blue and yellow with clusters of tiny blossoms adding to the dainty effect. Mrs. Essie Nayler, P.D.D.G.M., was convener of this booth, Mrs. Rhoda Sager, co-convener and those assisting were Mrs. Annie Scott, Mrs. Emily Duncan, Mrs. Pearl Westover, Mrs. Mable Darrah and Mrs. Mary McLean. Green and white with festoons of butterfly bows decorated the home cooking booth in which delicacies of all kinds were sold, under the convenership of Mrs. Hazel Baragar, convener, with Mrs. Elsie Harrison as co-convener, and Mrs. Jessie Wessels, Mrs. Sarah Bowyer, Mrs. Myrtle Tufts, Mrs. Edna Morden, Mrs. Annie Adams, and Mrs. M. Stevenson assisting.

The novelty booth was cleverly arranged in tones of mauve, with gold chain effect, surmounted by the star points. This was in charge of Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, P.W.M., convener, Mrs. Olga McDonald, co-convener, and Mrs. Myrtle Vivian, Mrs. Signe Orne, Mrs. May Black, Mrs. Mildred Douglas and Mrs. Margaret Oliphant.

A massive pipe from which balloon bubbles issued to ornament the booth announced the sale of candies, in charge of Mrs. Thelma Liddle, P.W.M., convener; Mrs. Edna Wannacott, co-convener, assisted by Mrs. Nellie Brown, Mrs. Mary Newman, Mrs. Mae Snare, Mrs. Florence Moon, Mrs. Edna Murphy and Mrs. Muriel Smith. Tones of brown, yellow and rust were effectively used as the colour scheme for the mystery booth whose offerings disguised under miniature stars proved very amusing to the purchaser. Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, was convener, Mrs. Florence Varley, co-convener, and Mrs. Kathleen Adams, Mrs. Helen Buchanan, Mrs. Ada McMullen, Mrs. Emma Dowsett and Mrs. Ada Rose assisted. Christmas colours of red and white suggested that gift time would soon be here, and the fancy work booth had many suggestions for Christmas shopping with its beautiful handiwork. Mrs. Ethel Adams, P.W.M. was convener, Mrs. Stella Hogle, co-convener, Mrs. Susie Bateman, Mrs. Frances Nunn, Mrs. Edna McLean, Mrs. Louisa Lennox, Mrs. Mary Johnstone and Mrs. Ella McDonald assisted. The drawing for the negligee exhibited at the booth was won by Mrs. Forbes McLean of Toronto.

The grocery contest was in charge of Mrs. Grace McEwan, P.W.M., convener, Mrs. Elizabeth Holst, co-convener, assisted by Mrs. Evelyn Warren, Mrs. Meta Griffin and Mrs. Nora McDonald. The handsome prizes were won by Mrs. Rhoda Hallam, Mrs. Minnis and Mrs. Marion Arnott. The business girls draw of which Miss Irene Hallam, P.W.M., was convener and Miss Mary Carmichael, co-convener, was won by Mrs. Grace Badger. The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. Margaret Green, convener, Mrs. Luella Wallace and Mrs. Grace Badger.

The ladies were greatly assisted in their arrangement by a committee of men of which Mr. Clinton McDonald, W.P., was convener, assisted by Messrs. Clifford Baragar, Harry Sager, P.W.P., and Arthur Nayler, P.W.P.

Mrs. Lola Wilkin, as convener and Mrs. Ada Thompson, co-convener were in charge of the advertising and distribution of tickets.

At the tea hour the guests were entertained in the Upper Hall which a clever decorating committee had transformed into a most inviting tea room. Lattice work in shades of rose, enhanced by rose blooms, here and there, made a charming background. The centre table was a picture with its bouquet of baby 'mums and tall ivory tapers. Softly shaded lights enhanced the hospitable air of the room. The guests were served at small tables. Mrs. Beatrice Embury, convener of the tea room, and those who poured tea Mrs. Susie Chesher, Mrs. Elizabeth Reid, Mrs. Aletha Cornish and Mrs. Mary Lewis, were all Past Worthy Matrons of the Chapter. Mrs. Clara Williamson and Miss Isabel Orne were in charge of replenishing the tea table and the tea assistants were Mrs. Violet Doig, Mrs. Margaret Hallam, Mrs. Margaret Kells, Mrs. Susan Sherry, Mrs. May Stortts, Mrs. Marion Arnott, Mrs. Margaret Shaw and Miss May Tulk.

Mrs. Bella Mills, convener and Mrs. Sarah Morgan, Mrs. Pauline Wesley, Mrs. Thurza Green, Mrs. Ila Clapp, Mrs. Anna McGie and Mrs. Rhoda Hallam, very ably looked after the supplies for the tea room.

WASN'T CONVINCED
Till she tested five flours

Mrs. Cyril Hughes discovered for herself which gave best results

The stories Mrs. Hughes had read of the great success other women were having with Robin Hood Flour sounded good to her. And success in baking means a lot to Mrs. Hughes, because she is hostess of Pahquana Lodge, Shanty Bay, Ontario. The meals there have always been a special attraction for visitors and Mrs. Hughes does the baking herself. But, to make the meals still better if possible, she was ready to try the Robin Hood Flour other women were telling about. So she decided to test it in comparison with other flours. She picked out her best recipe for bread and baked five batches, using a different flour each time but making no other change.

Robin Hood gave 15 extra buns with one cup less flour

Now when mixing the dough, Mrs. Hughes found it took only 6 cups of Robin Hood, whereas it took 7 cups of another kind and even more of the other three flours. But that isn't all! Her recipe when Robin Hood flour was used made the regular number of loaves and fifteen buns extra! Then to her delight the bread was so much better in flavour, whiter and smoother in texture, that the guests were enthusiastic about it. Today, Mrs. Hughes uses Robin Hood Flour for all her baking. If you will test Robin Hood Flour alongside the brand you are now using, I am confident that you, too, will get such a pleasant surprise that you will want to keep on baking with this extraordinary flour.

Sincerely,
Evangeline

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Our Prayer This Christmas, "Peace on Earth"

"Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men". At this Christmas-time, as never before, in our hearts and on our lips will be this sacred benediction. A prayer that includes all races and all creeds, a prayer to eliminate the sorrows of today's world.

I know many people who have chosen Christmas cards this year with these thought-compelling words on them. And many other people have planned to write this prayer for peace on plain white cards, these hand-written cards to be their form of Christmas greetings to their friends and acquaintances.

It's an inspired and magnanimous idea. Perhaps you and you and you would like to plan to add your words to the chorus of prayers.

Remember the words of the great Emerson: "Every thought which piety throws into the world, alters the world."

Preparing for Graduation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am soon to be graduated from High School and to "top" it all, am salutatorian of the class.

1— When being congratulated, should one merely say, "Thank you?" How should one congratulate members of one's class?

2—How should one thank the donors of gifts? When received by mail, what sort of letter should be written?

3—When congratulation cards are sent, how should one thank the senders?

4—What would be a suitable topic for a salutatory address? In our school it is the custom to speak on some current problem.

Graduate-to-be

1—When you are congratulated on your graduation, I think it is nice to add a little something to the "Thank you". For instance, "Thank you. That is very kind of you" or "Thank you. It makes me very proud to have you say such nice things about my graduation".

2—When the guest at your graduation brings a gift, you thank her or him for it with your most appreciative words. There usually isn't time, at a graduation, to open gifts . . . . so you'll have to let your spoken words say your appreciation until you have time afterward to write the note of thanks that must be written.

To those who bring gifts, and to those who send them, your note of thanks might read something like this:

Dear Mary,

You wonderful friend . . . always so thoughtful, always so generous, always with the perfect inspiration to give me the perfect gift. I've yearned so long for a white evening bag . . . . and you seem to have read my thoughts. It's a beauty, Mary, the handsomest one I've seen. It's a perfect size, a beautiful design, and "goes with everything". All of which makes it a masterpiece of a gift. Thank you for your goodness to me, and for this new loveliness that has come into my life.

We must see each other soon . . . we've so much to talk about.

Affectionately yours

3— You should write a little note of thanks for each congratulatory card or note that is sent to you.

4—If the members of your graduating class are girls, you might chose one of many topics so interesting and so tremendously important to girls and women at the present time. If you wished to do a really serious piece of work, you might discuss the questions of recent legislation or of proposed legislation having to do with the problems of children and women. At the moment, newspapers and magazine are full of the reports and suggestions of these legislative measures. Or you might urge your classmates to inform themselves as to what is going on in the world today; how history, important and significant history, is being made at the present moment in our country, and in foreign countries. The word "responsibility" is a big word, and it's a tremendously important word to young people especially today . . . so I suggest that you bring this into the wording of the topic you choose.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Clothes Don't Make the Man

The morning's mail brings a letter from a girl much perturbed over the fact that her white-collar fiance has taken to overalls.

It seems the young man was a bookkeeper. The firm which employed him, not doing very well, reduced his salary. The young man always had a turn for mechanics and he took up a gasoline station with automobile repair work on the side. And the girl suffers "horrible humiliation" when her friends see him in greasy overalls.

"I love Bob to distraction; still I'm uncertain whether I'd be doing wisely by marrying a man whose job causes me embarrassment".

Whether she'd be doing wisely for Bob unless she become less of a snob and see that he did the sensible thing in taking a job which is bringing him "twice the amount he made as a bookkeeper and is likely to prove very profitable."

The young lady is high hat. She would prefer to have a husband sweating over columns of figures at scant pay for the questionable prestige of keeping him in the white-collar class with the uncertainty of unemployment as well. In these days of strain and stress, she forgets that white collars gall necks.

Instead of rejoicing that her fiance is able to take up a business for which he has natural aptitude, which brings in more money and promises success in the future, she's worried for fear her friends may see him in greasy overalls, ministering to an ailing car.

It's the man rather than the job these days and not all of successful headliners began with white-collar jobs. Henry Ford didn't have a college education, and whether he wore a white collar in the beginning of his career or not, I can't say. But the Wright Brothers, working 'round their modest repair bicycle shop on a side street, didn't wear white collars. And they were the apostles of pioneer aviation.

The greatest of our presidents wore no white collar when he was splitting rails, or teaching himself good English by the light of pine logs thrown on the open fire of the Lincoln cabin. Nor did the first of the Vanderbilts wear a white collar when he rowed his boat from Staten Island to New York, selling those vegetables which he raised and cultivated with his own hands.

Nor did the first of the coon-skinning Astors go in for this haberdashery when he launched a career which has given us one of the finest libraries in the world.

Only last week, I visited the Children's Department of the Astor Library, and as I looked about the book-lined shelves, the child-size tables and chairs, the pictures and maps to inspire youngsters with ambition, I thought of the hideous fate of children in Europe and blessed that first old pelt-skinning Astor who made these things possible for the United States.

I'm afraid you won't like my advice, my dear girl, which is to step down off your stilts and stop being a snob, or else leave that young man for some girl of the type which appreciates ambition, thrift and ingenuity.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Common Cold Presents Serious Threat to Children

We are now well into the time of year when that scourge of winter the common cold, is upon us. It is a threat to all of us, but to the young child, to the baby, it is much more serious than that; it is a menace to his life and to his health.

Winter is just setting in, and in the next few months thousands of children on this continent will either succumb directly from the effects of the colds they contract, or they will be left so weakened as to be an easy prey to some other disease.

The common cold is one of the few diseases science has never been able to conquer. So, if the cold cannot be cured, then the sensible thing is to avoid getting it. In the case of the baby, he is helpless, and it is therefore up to the parents, to see that he is protected from all sources of infection. One thing you can be sure of, you mothers, if your baby develops a cold, it is because he has been exposed to someone who has the ailment. That is the only way he can get it.

We used to make excuses for ourselves when a baby got a cold. He had slept in a draught, we said, or he had gotten wet, or something like that. Well, if science hasn't devised a cure for cold, it has at least exploded that theory. Where there is a cold, there has been contact with infection. So the fewer people handle or come close to your baby, the better; this is a pretty safe rule to follow.

If you were to corner a group of grown-ups and query them to find out what they minded most about the common colds they have gone through, we would get quite a few different answers. They would no doubt complain about the stuffed noses, the heavy heads, the running eyes. Some would rave about the time lost from work, about the sleep lost because of the racking cough. Now, if by some power, we could endow a group of babies and children with adult intelligence and questioned them about their sufferings from colds, we would hear a far more serious and tragic tale. They would tell us of mastoids, of ear infections, we would hear much of pneumonia, and of doleful loss of life. This is because the common cold an adult suffers and the disease he passes on to a small child are altogether different, in effect at least. In the adult, the common cold is a nuisance, but rarely a threat to life. In the baby, the common cold is a serious thing, often causing him to lose his health or his life.

The reason for this difference is quite apparent. The newborn child has little or no resistance when it comes to resisting infection. With you adults it is different; for years you have been battling the cold germ, you have become toughened and resistant to the germ that causes the cold. But your baby is different, every bacteria is new to him; his tiny body hasn't learned to fight the bacteria even if it had the strength to do it. So it is that the germs he comes in contact with do him severe damage. Frequently, by the time the body learns to fight the bug, it is too late to save the child's life.

Let me say a word about breast-fed babies versus bottle-fed children. A child who is fed at the breast of its mother has a far greater chance of avoiding colds. And even if he gets a cold, his resistance is much greater, he comes through the cold in much better condition.

TEA FACTS

Canadian Red Cross workers who put in long hours on the recent campaign revived their flagging energies with tea each afternoon.

Up to the head goes fur, now that cold weather is here. A charming little hat has three huge pompoms of silver fox on a black velvet disc, and American Beauty red velvet streamers down the back. A matching muff is a velvet cylinder large, with circling bands of silver fox.

Time out for novelties. On her coat label one girl wears a closed rose of fine rhinestones. Press a little catch and the petals open up to reveal a tiny watch in the rose's heart.

INSTALMENT 25

"Oh, this is such fun, planning!" Becky laughed. "A year ago I was working in Rheingolder's, and now—opera, and Florida, and a drawing room to California! Doctor Dinsmore brought the tickets home last night—"

"And what does he think of this idea?," said Duane Fox.

"My going West?"

"Well, and marrying Larry?"

"Oh, I only hinted. I said 'if' and 'if' and 'if.' I said I wanted to be free. But I didn't say anything definite about Larry simply because I'm not free. Not yet. You see, Doctor Dinsmore doesn't know Larry. He's met him—you remember, Larry? That night when you and I were talking by the fire and the others were playing games. But then he only thought of him as a man Barbara liked."

Duane Fox chuckled. "He'll have to come to know you better, Larry" he said.

"You said it," Larry agreed on a quiet little laugh of his own.

Becky felt her skin prick for a second on an inexplicable feeling of discomfort. She could not see Larry's face, for she was seated on the arm of his wide chair, but she could look at the other man. Something about him frightened her for just a fraction of time; she remembered it afterward and wondered about it.

Duane Fox was about Dr. Stephen's age, but he seemed older, and thought, because of a certain careless disorder in dress. Where Stephen was erect, business like, frowning in concentration upon some problem, Duane was lax and indifferent or contemptuous, interested supremely and primarily in himself, and secondarily in art as he saw it.

As a portrait painter he had had a certain vogue many years earlier, had made large sums of money rapidly and easily. He had studied in Paris. For years he had collected bronze and copper trifles, filled his walls with not quite good pictures bought for almost nothing at sales in Brittany and Flanders. In conversation he was racy, amusing, often vulgar and sometimes shocking, but his was a personality that carried off with good grace what might have been offensive in another type of man.

Of women he had nothing good to say, although his frank and rambling recollections testified to the fact that there had been many in his life. A beautiful English model, an Austrian woman doctor, a Russian dancer, countless affectionate little Parisiennes.

Becky couldn't help liking even if she didn't admire him. From the moment of Larry's introduction, when Duane, who was suffering from a serious eye trouble, had peered at her with his heavily glassed eyes, she knew he had put her in a class quite apart from the rest of the sex.

He showed her and Larry in a hundred practical and generous ways that he was delighted with the prospect of the introduction of a new niece, and even of a small noisy boy, into the family. With the rehabilitation of the lodge in mind, he had seen painters and plasterers immediately after Lary's confidences regarding Becky, and on the evening before this very day, he had had a long talk with Larry as to the actual details of the affair.

"We'll go way down past Good Ground and the Moriches," Duane had said; "we'll find some old place that'll seem more like a home to her. I can turn in a few bonds and launch you, and if I were you I'd persuade her to make it Paris for six months or a year, and leave the child in the West. Better for him, and better for her trying to make a go of it with a kid and an old codger like me in the picture. Then, say in the fall, or maybe next spring, come back and we'll house-hunt. Meanwhile I'll hibernate here, listening to the radio and getting too fat, and having my little chuckle to myself in the dark!"

Becky thought of Stephen now when some faint intonation in Duane Fox's laugh made her wince deep within her soul. Stephen, the finest product that American soil after three hundred years could boast, cultured, travelled, brilliant, loving everything that was good in letters, music, life; Stephen whose line had given eminent men to statesmanship, to science, to social service of every description, would never like Duane. She knew that. Duane was the cynical, lazy, clever, irresponsible type:

"Stephen's as dear as a father," she said to herself. "Dearer. I'll never fail him."

"Now what are you thinking about?" Larry demanded. Becky came out of a dream with a start.

"Thinking that I must go!" Becky said. She went to lay her hand on the olderman's full big hand as it rested on the arm of his winged chair. "Don't get up," she said. "And good-bye. You've been awfully good, for a woman hater, to Larry and me! I'll not see you again until I've gotten things straightened out at home. But I'll come back!"

"And we'll put a secret marriage over on them, Becky," Laurence said as he and she emerged into the last cool light of the February afternoon. They had decided to walk the three miles to Dinsmore'.

"But, Larry, you wouldn't want me to get a divorce one minute and be married the next?"

"Why not?"

"Well, it's just too—too sudden. Too rash, too unadivsed, too sudden. I've been too precipitate all my life. Give me time to—to get my breath, to try to realize all that's happened!"

"You certainly don't think you're going to get much time to breathe, running around Europe with the Lees?"

"Europe!" she said in a dream.

"Becky, play fair with me," he pleaded. "I'm in love with you. I'm counting the days until we can be married. Don't let this old boy Dinsmore throw a monkey wrench into the works.

"I think it's perhaps a fortunate thing that someone slows us up a little, Larry!" They had reached the Dinsmore doorway now. Becky, breathless and rosy and exhilarated by the rapid walking, stood on the step above Larry and framed his handsome dissatisfied face in her two gloved hands. "Barbara doesn't know anything about this," she said. "Doctor Dinsmore agreed with me that it would be much simpler to let any explanation, at least as far as I'm concerned, wait until I come back. You'll be seeing less and less of her, and she'll be seeing more and more of other men—"

"You mean you haven't told her!" He was outrgaed.

"I mean I haven't had a chance. She's hardly ever home, you know. You see her almost as much as I do."

"I don't see her at all," he said darkly. "I think you might have told her. It leaves me in a deuce of a situation to have you go away and leave me here holding the bag!"

"Larry," Becky laughed, her fresh cold cheek against his, "whenever I see Barbara she wants to talk of you, ask me if I've seen you. It'd be utterly impossible suddenly to burst out with 'Oh, I like him too. As a matter of fact, when I get my divorce, he and I are going to be married!"

Larry was not proof against the fresh cold kiss with which she finished speaking. He caught her to him, and for a moment they clung together, breathless and laughing.

"God, don't I see you again?"

"I've been thinking how we might manage it. If you could be at home in the studio tomorrow at about four I'd stop in. For just about two minutes though!"

"I'd be anywhere!" She loved in this fiercely devoted mood. Her power over the tall lean casual man she had met so short a time before was a continual marvel to her.

The next day, driving into town with Becky, Dr. Dinsmore said, "You're pretty sure you love Moulton, Becky?"

She laughed, with the little sound in the laugh that only women who laugh and know themselves loved ever reach. "Pretty sure!"

"He makes a fair income?"

"His uncle is going to help us at first. We'll all be together in a perfect bohemian mix-up!" Becky explained, shyly eager. "The idea is that Larry and I spend a little time in Paris, just as a sort of honeymoon, and then come back and find some place further down the island where we can settle. Mr. Fox—Duane Fox isn't painting now, because—What is it?" The last words were interjected on a note of fright.

"What—what did you say?" Stephen asked quickly. "What name did you say?

"His uncle, Duane Fox," she repeated, bewildered and frightened. "Why? Do you know him?"

He had recovered himself. "Yes, I knew someone of that name once," he said somewhat breathlessly. "It was many years ago, but it must be the same. I'm sorry to have frightened you, my dear. He —this man, Duane Fox, is your Laurence's uncle?"

"The uncle who's done everything for him. He adores him. Larry didn't have much of a chance, you see; his people were dead, and he'd hardly known this stepbrother of his mother when Duane sent for him—and—well, his whole life changed."

She talked on and Stephen listened, or seemed to listen, and it was with an abstracted manner that he left her when they reached the hospital, merely reminding her that she was to call for him there at half-past twelve.

Becky went off on her shopping round alone; her list included little gifts for her father and mother, for the four brothers, for Sophy and Anya. It was fun.

When he came down from the hospital to the car she looked at him sharply. He looked very tired, but he smiled at her affectionately. He was not keeping his late office hours today; he was to have four operations tomorrow morning and wanted to go home for a rest.

"And you're not coming into town with Gibbs and me tonight", Becky stated firmly.

"Oh yes; I must. They're bringing this Spuyten Duyvil case into town, and I've got to see her again. I operate at seven tomorrow."

"Then you'll stay in town tonight?"

"Oh yes. And you, unfortunately, won't!" Stephen said with a whimsical smile. "You'll be rushing past Albany and Buffalo..... Becky?"

The last word was said with a change of tone. Becky knew he was going to say something ...... something.... Her heart closed on a little spasm of fear.

"Becky," he repeated, "are you to see Laurence Moulton again?"

"Oh—" Her expression turned to one of consternation. "Oh, I was to have seen him! she exclaimed. "I forgot. I thought I would be going out alone earlier, and I said I'd stop at the studio for a minute, just to say good-by! He'll have been waiting—it's almost four now!"

"How hard would it be for you to—" Stephen interrupted himself and fell silent. After a while he began again.

"Becky, if I asked you, could you do something for me?"

Color rushed to her face; she faced him squarely. "Do you think there's anything I couldn't do?" she asked.

Entire Backfield of Western Chosen on All-Star Team For Intercollegiate Loop

One of the Best Backfields That Has Performed in College Loop for Years

TWO FROM QUEENS

Pathouski, Snap and Conlin, Inside, Rate High With the Experts

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)—Years may pass before so good a Canadian college football backfield is brought together as that which carried the mail this year for the University of Western Ontario in a season without a defeat.

The ball-carrying brigade of Western's Wild Horses drew four of the five spots in the backfield of the 1939 intercollegiate senior all-stars, picked by fourteen writers and coaches in the college towns and announced last night by The Canadian Press. Alex Hamilton, McGill's great punter and punt-receiver, was chosen flying wing.

Here is the team:

Flying wing—Alex Hamilton, McGill.
Half—Joe Krol, Western.
Half—Harry Szumlinski, Western.
Half (secondary defence) — Clem Faust, Western.
Quarterback—Alf Hurley, Western.
Snap—Nick Pathouski, Queen's.
Inside—Jerry Conlin, Queen's.
Inside—Chuck McLean, Toronto.
Middle—Murray Telford, McGill.
Middle—Howie Bertram, McGill.
Outside—Roy Kent, Western.
Outside—Claude Moore, Western.

All Given Place.

Inclusion of Kent and Moore, the pass-catching and blocking ends, meant that almost everyone who had a ball-handling part in the terrific attack of Western's starting team was in the lineup. Lyn Thompson, the kicking ace, was the nearest of Western's other backfielders to selection with ballots from four voters.

Four of Western's six representatives will be graduated next spring and it's doubtful whether Coach Bill Storen will get anyone to fill their places adequately right away. But in Krol and Szumlinski, almost unanimous choices in their first year as senior college players, he has the beginning of another great example of wide-open football.

Unanimous Choices.

Krol and Szumlinski, on whom Storen is counting in his plans for 1940 and '41, were named on thirteen ballots each. The vote was "weighted" so that equal voting strength prevailed in all cities.

The strength of Western's line was surprising enough, but if Storen had had something like this all-star front wall to protect the start of his plays the Mustang backs might never have been pulled up.

Pathouski was almost as accurate at snapping as George Willis used to be for Western, and a cracking good secondary defender and pass-stopper as well. Conlin, a leaning tower of a man, was a charging blocker and shock-absorber beside the squat Pathouski. If McLean, a former Queen's player, had been with the tri-color instead of Toronto, the centre of the line would have been like a battering-ram.

A young man with growing power in the turf world in United States is Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, ABOVE, 27-year-old president of the Maryland Jockey club's Pimlico track at Baltimore, and recently elected president of the organization that runs New York's Belmont Park, one of the continent's leading plants for "improvement of the breed." His best-known efforts are in the promotion of the Pimlico Special, that brings together the leading horses of the year every Nov. 1.

HERSHEY BEARS BEAT RAMBLERS

Loss Marks Eighth Straight Time Team Has Gone Without Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

Lester Patrick will be sending the Philadelphia Ramblers back to school if they don't start winning games in the International-American Hockey League.

On their showing so far this season the Ramblers players must have played hookey from the preseason training school Patrick holds each fall for candidates for teams in the New York Rangers' chain.

When Hershey Bears beat the Ramblers 6-4 last night it marked the eighth straight game in which the Philadelphia team has gone without a victory. Their record so far shows five losses and three draws.

Springfield Indians came out of a slump just in time to keep first place in the league's eastern division, beating Pittsburgh Hornets 2-0 for the first victory in five games. New Haven Eagles remained a point behind by winning 6-3 from Cleveland Bacons.

Ramblers took an early lead against the Bears but couldn't hold it. Harry Frost, with two goals, led the Hershey attack and Pat McCreavy, Clarence (Windy) Steele, Red Hamill and Jerry Shannon got the others. Lude Wareing, Lloyd Ailsby and Herb Foster tallied the Philadelphia counters, Wareing scoring twice.

Max Kaminsky, whose 10 assists made him the league's point scoring Norm Schultz tallied the other while Benny Grant served up white-wash goaling.

GOODYEARS WIN OVER CATARACTS BY 14 TO 2 COUNT

Niagara Falls Weakened by Injury to Jack Astle, Defenceman

O'FLAHERTY LEADS

Slim Winger Scores Two Goals and Assists in Five More

Toronto, Nov. 23 — (CP)—Beat the drums and warn the troops—Toronto Goodyears are full out once again and rolling along in the smooth style that won them the senior 'A'" title of the Ontario Hockey Association last season.

The mighty Goodyears, who haven't lost a league game since the season of 1937-38, turned on all their vaunted power over the big ice surface of Maple Leaf Gardens last night and whipped Niagara Falls Cataracts 14-2 for their fourth straight win this fall. Held to a 1-1 tie in the first period, the Goodies scored seven without a reply in the middle frame and added six more in the third to one by the Falls.

Cataracts Weakened

The Cataracts were weakened in the first period when hard-hitting Jack Astle, argumentative rearguard who is leading the league in penalties, was forced to retire with a back injury. Goodyears took advantage of misconduct penalties to steak Morrison and Horse Desson in the second period to run in counters on sustained power plays

The withering Toronto attack was led by Peanuts O'Flaherty, slim winger who has profited by the coaching of Eddie Powers, Sr., coach of Syracuse Stars of the International - American League last season who took over the Goodyear reins this winter.

O'Flaherty scored two goals and made plays for five more to take over the league scoring lead with 13 points. His seven points against the Falls totalled one more than he had snared in all three other games this season.

King Scores Three

Eddie King of Goodyears scored three times and earned an assist last night to take second place in the scoring race along with Johnny Inglis of Toronto, who made five points against the Cataracts on two goals and three assists. Another Goodyear performer to boost his average was young Paul Mundrick, who came here from Winnipeg. He shot three goals and made one assist.

The Toronto victory broke a three-cornered tie for first place in the standing and gave Goodyears undisputed possession of the top rung with eight points. St. Catharines and Port Colborne are tied for the second slot with two points less.

The Falls scored midway through the first period when Scotty Sterling counted on a pass from Morrison. Sammy Phillips whipped in the other Cataract counter with Ossie Greenwood assisting.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

EBBIE GOODFELLOW

Detroit Red Wings

Ebbie Goodfellow

One of the National League's better defencemen, both on defence and attack, is Ebbie Goodfellow, who bowls 'em over for Detroit Red Wings. He's one of the many big-time puck-chasers born in Ottawa, making his bow there 32 years ago. Played amateur in the capital before joining Detroit Olympics in the International League for the 1928-29 season. No sooner there than he led the league in scoring and the next season was up with the Falcons, as the Detroit team was then known. In those days Ebbie was a centre player, and in his second season in the N.H.L. (1930-31) he fell just three goals short of tying Howie Morenz for the scoring championship, after leading most of the way. Switched to a defence post six years ago, he is an outstanding example of a forward converted to that position. He's a rough-and-ready performer at the blue line, but acquires comparatively few penalties, his worst season being 1935-36, when he spent 69 minutes in sinners' row. Altogether he's watched 439 minutes of play from that point of vantage in his ten full seasons, meanwhile scoring 115 goals and assisting in 150 others, for a point total of 265. He weighs around 180. Married. Captain of the Red Wings for the second successive year.

Ambitious Belleville Youths Are Desired by Juvenile Hockey Loop

Hockey, in the truest amateur sense of the word, is to be provided the teen-age boys of Belleville and environs through the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association, which recently came into being as the result of several sport-minded and far-seeing Belleville citizens.

However, the success of such a venture can only be attained through the wholehearted co-operation of interested and eager boys and the desired assistance from the parents. Since the organization of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey League, President Frank Cunningham and his able body of assistants have obtained sufficient financial aid from various circles to assure each of the proposed four teams in the league adequate equipment in the matter of uniforms and hockey sticks leaving in the hands of the general public only the matter of support and moral encouragement to be afforded these ambitious boys of this city, who are desirous of playing clean competitive team sports.

All Must Register

Registration cards for the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association are now available to all boys in Belleville under 18 years of age. These registration cards can be procured from the office of Secretary Homer (Red) Townsend on Campbell St. and should be secured and properly filled out, before the end of the present month, and returned to the secretary in order that the league may commence operations immediately upon the opening of the Hume Arena.

At the termination of a regular league schedule and subsequent play-offs the best eleven players in the league will be chosen to represent Belleville in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association provincial playdowns, thus giving each player a goal at which to aim in the interests of the betterment of hockey in Belleville and to provide healthful recreation of the community's teen-aged boys.

At a recent meeting of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association, President Frank Cunningham stated that over thirty boys had already indicated their willingness and hopes to affiliate with the Association for the purpose of playing hockey. The league will commence operations as soon as the Hume Arena is available for skating.

N.H.L. Uniforms

Duplications of National League uniforms in team colorings will be used as standard uniforms, the four sets of uniforms being those identical as used by the Toronto Maple Leafs, sponsored by the Kinsmen Club, Black Hawks, representing the Kiwanis Club, the flashy American uniforms for the team sponsored by Reid's Dairy and the colorful Canadiens provided by Mr. Mac Robertson of the Belleville Creameries. At all games the teams will be referred to according to representative jerseys worn. All registrations must be in the hands of Secretary Homer "Red" Townsend before Dec. 5th next.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Practically to the day, it was instituted a half a century ago, the Ontario Hockey Association will celebrate its Golden Jubilee and fifty years of the promotion of amateur hockey over the week end. On Friday night at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, this gala and unique celebration will commence with a Golden Jubilee dinner, at which hockey notables from all parts of the Dominion will be present, while the annual meeting of the O. H. A. will follow on Saturday morning. A real sporting week end can be afforded the O. H. A. delegates and more especially those who have been fortunate enough to receive an invitation to the Golden Jubilee dinner. Commencing with the Friday night dinner, there's the annual meeting of the O. H. A. Saturday morning, the Ottawa at Argo football game in the afternoon and finally the New York American at Toronto Maple Leaf N. H. L. game Saturday night, which should round out as good a sports week end as one would desire, there being plenty of variation.

Strangely enough the Ontario Hockey Association, the oldest active hockey body in the world, came into being on Nov. 27th, 1890 in the old Queen's Hotel, Toronto, the exact site of the present Royal York Hotel. Only senior hockey was sponsored by the O. H. A. in those early days and Ottawa won the first championship, beating the old Toronto St. George's in a final match. In 1892, a junior series was added and in 1896 the intermediate series came into being. In 1898 John Ross Robertson became president and held office for seven years, until 1905. Actually it was during the late Mr. Robertson's regime the O. H. A. laid a solid foundation for the future to ultimately become the world's most powerful amateur hockey association. One of the most staunch supporters and followers of the O. H. A. is Past President Jim Sutherland of Kingston, while in Belleville today S. R. "Sandy" Burrows, well known sportsman, is a present executive member. The Hon. Arthur Stanley, was one of the founders, he being a son of the former Governor-General of Canada, whom we all remember as the donar of the now famous Stanley Cup, held annually by the world's champion professional hockey club.

For fifty years the Ontario Hockey Association has been in existence and has continuously operated a Senior series. No other sporting organization in Canada can even so much as come close to this unique record of providing sporting activities for the youth of the country. Perhaps the older folk of the community may recall the line-ups of the first two teams to play in the Senior O. H. A. finals in the season of 1890-91. Of course the winners were from Ottawa and the clubs lined up in the old seven-man style and played two periods of 30 minutes each. The Ottawa line-up was composed of Morell, goal; Kerr, point; Young, coverpoint; Ross Kirby, centre; Charlie Kirby and Smith wings, while the Toronto St. George's included—McVittie, goal, Henderson, point; Hargraft, coverpoint; Lucas, centre; Thomson and Pemberton, wings. There were no substitutes permitted in those days. When a player was injured, the opposition dropped one player to even matters, and them was the 'good old days', they'll tell you.

Do you remember when—Joe Louis fought his 11th professional boxing bout at Chicago five years ago tonight, defeating Charles Massera by a knockout in three rounds. The Brown Bomber—who won the world heavyweight championship from James J. Braddock June 22, 1937—collected $1,100 for the nine minutes. Ten months later he flattened Maxie Baer in four rounds and received $217,337.

Under the auspices of the Trenton Lions Club an inter-unit military boxing tournament will be held in the Capitol Theatre, Trenton, on Friday night. Eight boxers from the Royal Canadian Air Force will oppose eight leatherpushers from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, while a wrestling bout will also round out the complete card. Feelings usually run high between the various military units when it comes to sport activities, more especially boxing and each unit is anxious to uphold its tradition, so lovers of the manly art of self-defence can be assured of a good evening's entertainment. The proceeds will go to the Trenton Lion's Club Christmas basket fund.

New York Americans participated in no less than six National Hockey league games last season, in which the gross score ran into double figures. These included the highest-scoring game of the season, when Americans lost to Rangers 11-5. Americans being minus their star goaler, Robertson, for half of the battle. A 7-3 win over Canadiens, a 6-all draw with Detroit Red Wings, 7-3 defeats by Wings and Toronto Leafs, and a 9-6 beating by Boston Bruins were other high-scoring matches in which Americans took part.

The "Shoreless Bruins" didn't seem to be doing so well without the presence of their veteran dynamic Eddie Shore and the latest news tells us Art Ross is trying to dicker with Shore in an effort to have him return as a full-time player, Shore's contract only calls for home games. The Bruins might just as well face the music now as later on, because even "the shore is washed away with the sands of time". Eddie Shore can't go on forever, despite the fact he is one of the greatest forces and leaders in the grand old game of hockey.

SPORT SPICE—The R. C. A. "Gunners" moved into the leadership of the Van Horne Memorial after beating Smith's Falls 3-2 last night. . . . Young Walt Gerow scored a solo effort goal last nght as London beat the Detroit Pontiacs 6-2. . . . Walter Stanowski, the Leafs' promising defenceman, is to be shipped down the river to a minor league farm for conditioning. . . . Syl Apps says this controversy about his hockey prowess is becoming "very embarrassing". . . . Both the Toronto Argos and Montreal Westmounts will have to toss caution to the winds and play wide-open football if they expect to overcome the advantages gained last week by Ottawa and Sarnia respectively.

Ottawa Senators Hand Concordias First Defeat

OTTAWA ETC.

Montreal, Nov. 22—(CP)— Ottawa Senators handed Montreal Concordias their first defeat of the season last night, edging out the Quebec Senior Hockey League leaders 3-2 in a hard fought game. Montreal Royals and Verdun played a 1-1 draw in the nightcap.

Concordias couldn't overcome Trevor Higginbottom's great goaling and were beaten by the odd goal.

Stan Pratt, veteran Ottawa defenceman scored twice for the Senators while Jack Brunning got the other goal. Jean Armand and Guy Francoeur tallied the Concordia points.

Bombers Likely To Use Facilities Of Hamilton Club

Winnipeg, Nov. 23 (CP)—Manager Joe Ryan of Winnipeg Blue Bombers said last night that if weather here forces the western football champions to complete training in the east for the Dominion final Dec. 9 the club probably will accept the invitation to use facilities of the Hamilton Tiger Football Club.

Commenting on a Hamilton dispatch quoting Secretary J. D. Chilman of Tigers as offering Bombers use of the Hamilton Amateur Athletic Association grounds and quarters, Ryan said he had not had previous word of the invitation but that it was much appreciated.

"I have no doubt we will accept providing the weather here forces us to complete training in the east.

The weather was perfect here tonight as Bombers resumed drills suspended since they won the western title in Calgary last Saturday.

Ryan refused to comment on the Hamilton suggestion Bombers might play a practice game with Tigers.

Hunch Players Offered "Natural" In Thanksgiving

Bowie, Md., Nov. 23 (AP)—Bowie's $10,000 Bryan and O'Hara Handicap offered a "natural" to hunch players today—Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving disappointed from players in the $10,000 Rhode Island Handicap Oct. 11 when, backed down 2 to 1, the four-year-old son of Bud Lerner and Inchape Belle finished fourth. Today's spot gave the Corning horse a send-off name-players couldn't resist.

Challephen, the W. L. Brann stablemate of C¼halledon, was certain to get a good ride under Don Meade, leading jockey of the season with 249 winners.

Also nominated for the "hunch" fraternity was Manie O'Hara, H. Friedberg's lightly-weighted color-bearer in the O'Hara 'cap.

RUMANIA ACCEPTS BRITISH PLANES

London, Nov. 23—(CP)— Delivery of 36 British planes to Rumania has taken place, it was announced today.

"It is now possible to reveal that during the past few weeks 36 Blenheim bomber aircraft have been delivered by air from Great Britain to Rumania," an Air Ministry communique said. "All have arrived at Bucharest.

"About a month ago a senior Rumanian officer and 12 pilots arrived here to take delivery of their first consignment of Blenheims. Late in October a second batch of pilots arrived and flew a second consignment of 14 to Rumania. Ten days later the same pilots came back and flew home the last consignment. The Rumanian Air Force will form three squadrons of these Blenheims."

Britain last spring announced she had guaranteed Rumania against any infringement by Germany of her independence.

HON. C. D. HOWE

In an address before the 50th annual dinner of the University of Toronto Engineering Society, the Minister sketched in considerable detail the state of Canada's preparedness at the outbreak of war and accomplishments since.

Statements Made

"Statements are being made that Canada is unprepared; that those in authority do not realize that Canada is at war; that nothing is being done," he said.

"I can assure you that there are those at Ottawa who know that Canada is at war. These include members of the Government, top ranking civil servants and business and professional men who have been drafted from civil life on account of their peculiar fitness for some particular war effort. Lights burn in departmental offices throughout the night and any hour in the 24 is considered suitable for conferences and committee meetings."

No Honorary Colonels

To many who recalled the first Great War, Canada's present effort might produce a feeling of unreality, he said. There are no Honorary Colonels whipping up civilian enthusiasm. A university student desiring to join up is given a card stating he has presented himself for enlistment and is sent back to university. Skilled mechanics are told to return to their employment.

Those responsible were trying to progress in an orderly way. The very lack of frantic endeavor and confusion was the best evidence Canada was prepared for the transition from peace to war, under a program laid down long before war came.

"If that transition is being made without stress or strain apparent to the man on the street, surely a program must have been thought out in advance," Mr. Howe said.

Mobilization was begun "before the outbreak of war," a tax program was ready to lay before Parliament, economic strength had been analysed. The result was 65,000 men were quickly mobilized —"all that can usefully be employed at present"—and a full division has been completely equipped, except for certain mechanical equipment, "and is ready to go forward."

Mr. Howe reviewed the numerous war organizations set up, the War Supply Board, the Foreign Exchange Control Board, the Wartime Prices Board, Internal Security Board, the supplies of copper, zinc, lead, aluminum, nickel and gold available, the abundance of wheat, now a welcomed protection, the transportation facilities, vastly expanded since 1914.

Surplus Our Salvation

"The very surplus of transportation that has contributed to our railway problem in peace time will be our salvation in time of war, coupled with efficiency that intense competition has produced from our carriers," he said.

In place of nineteen independent managements in 1914, for instance, there was now the unified Canadian National System. "Just how fine is not realized by the average person because of the manner in which the operations have been confused with the financial debacle which led to their acquisition, and by the lack of traffic in the great depression," he said. Now Canada had two railways "unequalled in the world."

Regarding the Empire air training scheme, under which will be trained half of all the pilots required by the Allies, Mr. Howe said forty air fields are ready right now without further development, as a result of the Trans-Canada Airways System.

"I have no doubt that Canada was chosen for this effort largely because it has more well developed airdromes than any country in the British Empire," he observed.

Because of the changed nature of this war, fewer troops would be required. "While we cannot read the future, there is every indication that a much smaller number of men will be required than in the last war." He added that anyone taking an effective part in Canada's civil occupations need not feel that he is shirking.

CANADIAN FORCES GET NO BREAK SAYS M .HEPBURN

Hepburn. Claims. War Not Being Prosecuted in Canada the Way Canadians Want It

SUPPORTS MILLS

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 23—(CP) —Premier Mitchell Hepburn has declared a "truce" with the Dominion Government but hasn't surrendered the right to criticize the extent of Canada's war efforts.

Last night, at a banquet in honor of Warden Ashton Pinneo of Elgin county, the Ontario Premier declared he thought the war was not being "prosecuted the way that Canadians want it to be prosecuted." At the same time he promised to support Wilson H. Mills, Liberal Member of Parliament, in the next federal election.

"Just now there is a truce between the Dominion Government and myself," Mr. Hepburn said, "I don't know how long it will last, but I do know that I am going to support Wilson Mills in the next general election."

He said people in the United States are "beginning to laugh at Canada's war efforts."

Can't Hide Behind Eagle

"We can't hide behind the American Eagle and we certainly are not making the progress that we should if we are going to get away from the idea of hiding behind the Eagle," he asserted. "A modernly mechanized force of 2,000 men could lick the whole Canadian army today, gentlemen, and I don't mean anything disparaging to Canadian forces when I say that, because there are some of the finest boys in the world in the Canadian forces.

"But they are not getting a break and are not getting the training and equipment they must have. Why, some of them haven't been issued a change of underwear since they signed up.

People Beginning to Laugh

"I have talked with groups of prominent Americans this week and I learned from them that the people over there are beginning to laugh at Canada's war efforts. We should not have a condition like that."

Mr. Hepburn said he had confidence in the ability of the men in charge of war efforts and felt defects would be corrected. He told of Ontario's part in the efforts.

Premium-priced gasolines are good . . .
but why pay the premium?

When 1333 out of 1475 motorists, all users of premium-priced fuels, got the same, or better road performance with

NU-BLUE SUNOCO
The new miracle of gasoline chemistry

yet it sells at regular gas price

Within the last two months, 1475 users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was really Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to the premium-priced gasolines in road performance.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.*

"Urgent Fish" on Memoranda Means "Get Busy, Pronto"

London, Nov. 23—(CP)— Things happen fast at the Admiralty when the words "urgent fish" appear on a memorandum. It's just like saying "third alarm" to a fireman.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, coined the phrase himself. It was prompted by a letter from Ernest Bevin, General Secretary of the Transport and General Workers Union. The letter stressed difficulties of the fishing industry and suggested ways of maintaining supplies in wartime.

Mr. Churchill issued immediate instructions that plans should be drawn up in the Admiralty at once, heading his memorandum "urgent fish."

Following conferences with Mr. Bevin and ministers from various departments concerned a committee of investigation into fish supplies in war-time has been formed. It's known as the utmost fish committee.

And the expression is rapidly spreading into other government offices as a synonym for urgent.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost. 4 TEAMS ASSURED FOR CAGE LOOP

Two Belleville Teams and Two from R.C.A.F. to Form Loop

With four teams assured and a possible fifth in the offing, the annual Belleville Y.M.C.A. house basketball league was organized at the "Y" last evening when two teams from Belleville and two from the R. C. A. F. station signified willingness to compete in this annual pre-season cage loop.

Arthur L. Cole, veteran hoopster of this city, was named President and chairman of this year's house league at the "Y" with Owen Atkins secretary-treasurer. Speaking for the Y.M.C.A. J. E. Shortt, general secretary, stated the league had been annually conducted for the purpose of seasoning players prior to the opening of the Ontario Basketball Association campaign.

The "Y" teams will be headed by Captain Al Wickerson and Captain Owen Atkins, while the R.C.A.F. squads will be known as Flyers No. 1 and Flyers No. 2 teams. The two R.C.A.F. squads will use the Belleville Collegiate gymnasium as their home floor, while the "Y" squads will play at the Campbell St. Association building. The league schedule will open next Wednesday with a doubleheader.

"Gunners" Now Lead Van Horne Series

Kingston, Nov. 23 (Special) — Royal Canadian Artilelry fought to hold the lead in the George Vanhorne senior hockey series here last night in a fixture with Smith's Falls, while the easterners tried to avoid last place.

The soldiers stepped to the top of the standings by beating Smith's Falls 3 to 2. After a scoreless first session, the Army gained a goal lead in the second and had the better of the final frame. The work of the rival goaler featured.

R.C.A.: Goal, Lange; defense, Hanlon, Hagen; centre, Younger-Lewis; wings, Armeshaw, Mouson; subs, Stevens, Belwa, Livie, Clarke, Francis, Lemaire.

Napanee Lose

Kingston Tiremen scored a 3 to 2 win over Napanee in a Kingston Junior Hockey League game here. Chief of Police Watts' Napanee lads obtained a lead but the Kingston boys rallied in the second period for victory.

Napanee: Goal, Perr; defense, A. Moffat, P. Moffat; centre, Barrager; wings, Moore, Watts. Subs, Leary, Houle; Jacko Hayes, Metcalf, Orwell Raven.

Tiremen: Goal, Woods; defense, wings, Gray, Earl. Subs, Pearson, Jackson, Dickson, Reid, Harrison, Lay, Baker; centre, Bearance; Parks, Lowry, Albertson.

Referee: D. Dougall.

NAMED VICE-CHAMBERLAIN

Vatican City, Nov. 23 (CP-Havas) —Pope Pius today named Mgr. Tito Rocchi to be Vice-Chamberlain of the Holy Roman Church. Mgr. Rocchi, Titular Archbishop of Lacedaemonia, has been vicar to the Cardinal-Archpriest of St. John Lateran in Rome since 1930. The post of Papal Chamberlain, or Camerlengo, is still to be filled.

WAR BRIEFS

London, Nov. 23—(CP)—Ralph Richardson, British film star and a sub-lieutenant in the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, who has "crashed" in many screen aviation roles, was shaken up and bruised when his plane made a forced-landing in Hampshire yesterday, the Air Ministry said today.

Brussels, Nov. 23—(AP)—Twenty Belgians literally threw fits to escape service in the army, the government charged today as it held two nurses and a hospital attendant accused of collecting $30 to $150 from each man for instruction in simulating the symptoms of Epilepsy.

Franche-Conte, France, Nov. 23 —(AP)—A German warplane was shot down today by a French pursuit ship after it had circled over Franche-Conte. The plane fell in a field.

Pasajes, Spain, Nov. 23—(AP)—Sixteen crewmen of the French fishing boat Balyes II reported today their boat was sunk off the coast of France by gunfire of a German submarine. They said the commander ordered them off the boat, before sinking it, then notified a passing Spanish vessel which picked up the survivors and landed them here.

London, Nov. 23—(CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that this is not the time to consider offering to let other countries join the British Empire as part of the postwar reconstruction. The government, he told Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, "sees no advantage in considering the possibility suggested in the question unless and until it arises in political form."

Amsterdam, Nov. 23—(CP—Havas)—Six Germans who formerly were leaders of the German Communist party were arrested today after hiding in the homes of Netherlands Communists for a long period.

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 23—(CP—Reuters)— Alluding to the British Government's decision to seize German exports, Prime Minister Robert Menzies said today: "I entirely approve of His Majesty's Government's decision, which constitutes a moderate reply to evident acts of anarchy."

Rome, Nov. 23—(AP)— Premier Mussolini today summoned the Fascist Grand Council to meet Dec. 7 in the Palazzo Venezia.

There was no indication whether Italy's highest policy-forming body had been called to consider the international situation or internal problems.

There were 26,144 licensed pilots and 11,160 aircraft in the United States on July 1, a gain of more than 600 of the former and 1,400 of the latter in a year.

POLISH CABINET MEETS IN FRANCE

Capital Established at Angers and Symbolizes Continuation of State

Angers, France, Nov. 23—(CP — Havas)—Ministers of the Polish Government-in-Exile met here today for the first cabinet session at their new capital.

Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski in his first address to a cabine meeting on the little patch of territory symbolizing continuation of the existence of the Polish state, said he was firmly convinced that "Poland", in distress today, will emerge from th's catastrophe purified and strengthened."

"To this end we shall devote all our forces," he declared in calling upon the Ministers to stand for a moment's silence in homage to those who fell in defence of Poland.

EXPORTS OF CATTLE TO U.S.

Ottawa, Nov. 23—(CP)—Exports of heavy Canadian cattle to the United States from October 1 to November 11, totalled 26,314 head which represented 65.22 per cent of the fourth quarterly quota for this class of cattle, the Agriculture Department reported today.

POLICE COURT

Roy McVicar, transient, who was arrested in Belleville last night on a charge of intoxication, today appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in County Police Court here charged with intoxication and pleaded guilty.

"I am on my way to Kingston to join the army. Can't you give me a break, Sir?" pleaded McVicar, who was given fourteen days in jail after being convicted and in default of the payment of an assessed fine.

"You can join the army after you get out," suggested Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Four motorists who failed to answer to their names when called and who were charged with violations of the Highway Traffic Act, were all convicted as charged after Motorcycle Patrolman Harry Caldwell, Trenton, presented his testimony.

Bertrum Mitford, Toronto, was fined $10.00 and costs on a charge of careless driving. Bryden Asslestine, Shannonville, was assessed a similar amount after being apprehended using license plates on a motor car and which had been issued for another vehicle, while John Weston, Quebec, had his bail bond confiscated on a charge of driving at a rate of seventy miles per hour. George B. Chisholm, R.C.N., was the fourth motorist to fail to answer to his name, he being charged with speeding and fined $8.00 and costs.

Prices Unchanged In Produce Lines

Toronto, Nov. 23—Unchanged prices ruled for all lines on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Butter was nominal as most of the trade were attending the last day of the Ontario Creamerymen's Convention.

A firm undertone prevailed on the egg market, with demand continuing to improve. Current supplies were sufficient to fill the needs of buyers, and no cahange was reported in prices.

The butter market presented another uninteresting session. Trading was virtually at a standstill, with the result that prices quoted were practically nominal. There was no weakness evident, however, as it is expected that trading will be resumed when the convention has ended.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO JAIL AND FINED

Toronto, Nov. 23.—(CP)—Making her second court appearance this week, Beatrice Freebody, 25, was convicted of illegal possession of drugs in court today and was fined $200 or six months, and six months in jail. She had been acquitted on a similar charge on Monday when a young man pleaded guilty.

Plainclothesmen William Bolton and Fred Paveling were on their way home from the banquet of the Police Athletic Association last night when they saw the woman enter a house on Richmond Street west. They followed her to the third floor, where they were forced to kick in a door to enter a room. Five capsules of white powder were found in the mattress, police reported.

In court the accused woman pleaded guilty and asked Magistrate Prentice to send her to jail, so that she might be cured of the drug habit.

Hitlerism Worse Than Absolutism Of Kaiser Says Benes

London, Nov. 23 (CP) — Former President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia today said the "present-day Nazi dictatorship is comparably worse than the absolutism and militarism of the Kaiser."

At a banquet at Grosvenor House, he said Czecho-Slovakia has not been destroyed but "continues, lives and exists".

"The war is a new, great struggle for the same principles as in 1914 and must end in the crushing of Hitlerism," he declared.

Jan Masaryk, former Czecho-Slovak Minister in London said "what is going on makes of Europe a jungle, pure and simple."

"I have heard some English people say that Hitler is a genius," Masaryk added. "He is in a way, an evil genius with the abilit yto stir up the very worst tendencies of the Teutonic race."

3,000 CHILDREN REPATRIATED

London, Nov. 23—(CP)—The government informed the House of Lords today that 3,000 of 4,000 Basque refugee children brought to England during the Spanish war have been repatriated and half of the remainder are awaiting ships. The rest are remaining because they have no homes.

BRITISH DESTROYER

Destroyer Beached

The Admiralty announced the destroyer Gipsy was beached on the east coast Tuesday after striking a mine. Forty of her crew were missing and 21 injured. Built in 1936, she carries a normal complement of 146.

Destruction of a German air raider off the east coast was announced.

Villagers over a wide area heard the bark of anti-aircraft batteries and saw searchlights grope the skies while fighting planes went up to give chase. One German plane was shot down at sea and another driven off.

The British and French forces on the western front also reported success in the air, with destruction of eight German planes yesterday. The London Air Ministry said the Royal Air Force made successful flights over Stuttgart, Frankfort, Hamburg and Bremen.

Losses Due to Magnetic Mines

British naval writers have suggested that the sudden increase in ship losses is due to "magnetic mines," planted by the Germans at depths too great for minesweepers to detect but so devised that they rise when a sizeable vessel passes overhead.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in a broadcast last night:—

"You have been reading in your newspaper of this latest abomination of German savagery—the magnetic mine—secretly deposited in channels of the sea in order to blow up without warning neutral and British shipping alike. x x x All that skill and science can devise is devoted to meeting the new danger. We are confident our efforts will be successful.

Appealing to small investors to buy new National Savings Certificates, Sir John called the war "the most expensive ever fought," and set the British expense at £6,000,000 daily.

Prime Minister Chamberlain in a speech to Conservative members of Parliament said that Parliament, by its example, by keeping the public informed of the reasons behind the government's wartime measures, had aided in maintaining the unity of the Empire.

Ready for All Eventualities

The Allied forces are ready to cope with any eventuality, he said, and are certain of final victory.

It was announced that the King had approved the appointment of Major - General Bernard Cyril Freyberg, V.C., as commander of New Zealand's overseas forces.

The Dominion's first echelon for service under the Allied command is ready to leave New Zealand when transportation is available, said a statement by Prime Minister Michael Savage.

Meanwhile the Daily Telegraph said it was authoritatively informed that Great Britain is considering "energetic action" to defend Italy's "shipping and national dignity."

"Neutral reactions to Germany's campaign of murder by mines on the seaways and the reprisals of the Allies are swiftly becoming clear," the newspaper said. "The real issue was again impressed upon all maritime nations yesterday by the sinking of the Italian steamship Fiamona. There is to be no comment in the press until the government has taken its decision but we are authoritatively told to expect that energetic action will be taken for defence of Italy's shipping and national dignity.

"Japan also has been stirred by the heavy loss wantonly inflicted on her. It must be gall and wormwood to Hitlerism that the countries which had the honor of being wooed by the Fuehrer should resent his piracy.

"At the outset of the last war the United States was the most energetic champion of complete freedom of neutrals. The American people are not less intent upon maintaining their neutrality now. Nevertheless we read that little criticism of the blockade of German exports is to be heard and no more to be expected. Indiscriminate minelaying, it is recognized, compelled retaliation.

"Although some American importers may be annoyed by the complete stoppage of German goods, sympathy will not await those who wish to go on doing business with Hitlerism. In the Scandinavian countries it is recognized that though the reprisals, will restrict the work of their merchant marine we were bound to take action.

"We have to acknowledge that the earning power of the shipping of neutral countries may be diminished for a time by the loss of cargoes from Germany. The blockade thus far has been operated with a conspicuous lack of fiction and delay and protest. In its intensification, the same pains and desire to avoid hardships will be shown. Yet new difficulties may arise and protests be heard. The neutrals must ask themselves what is the alternative to the blockade. It is that Germany should continue her destruction of their seamen and their shipping as long as she has a submarine and a mine to put in the sea. Her declared objective is to frighten into uselessness all their ships which she cannot destroy.

Suicidal Policy.

"'Routes which touch England lead to death' is the brag of Berlin. It is, to be sure, a suicidal policy. A complete blockade of German exports would be obtained no less surely by paralysis of neutral shipping by measures of the allies. But reason has long since ceased to reign in Germany.

"Maritime nations are not thus to be scared. Japan has already given her answer. Frightfulness will not keep her ships out of British waters. Reprisals depriving Germany of her last resources will diminish the losses of the neutrals and hasten the day when peaceful shipping has again the freedom of the seas."

GERMAN PLANE

Parisians Seek Safety

Anti-aircraft guns turned back a German plane shortly after midnight while Parisians sought safety in air raid shelters. Alarms gave the city a five-minute margin of warning.

The plane was sighted at 12.12 a.m. (7.12 p.m. Wednesday, E. S. T.) It wheeled over the capital and then flew out of range of anti-aircraft guns There were no reports of bombs dropped. The all-clear signal came at 1 a.m.

One minute before the Paris alarm northwestern France was put on a state of alert. Several hours earlier two air raid warnings were sounded in northern France.

Three of Crew Killed

Three of the crew of the German plane which fell in Belgium were reported to have died in a flaming crash in Western Flanders while the pilot parachuted to safety.

The French also reported successes in naval warfare—destruction of two submarines within three days by the same torpedo boat.

Premier Daladier last night announced formation of an inner cabinet to intensify economic warfare against Germany in collaboration with Great Britain. The eleven members of the inner cabinet include the Ministers of Finance, Merchant Marine and Blockade.

Progress Discussed

Berlin, Nov. 23 — (AP)—Adolf Hitler discussed the progress of war today with the leaders of Germany's armed forces in a meeting at the chancellery. It was Hitler's annual fall reception of the heads of the three branches of the armed forces with their staffs.

Leaders at the chancellery were Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Chief of the Air Force; Colonel-General Walther Von Brauchitsch, Commander-in-Chief of the Army; Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, Commander-in-Chief of the Navy and Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of the Armed Forces High Command.

It was assumed the Polish campaign and the future campaign on the western front were the main topics.

The high command reported "unusually valuable reconnoitring results" from air excursions over France and the British Isles "despite strong pursuit plane and anti-aircraft defence."

Claim Five Victories

This morning's communique reported five French pursuit planes were shot down in border patrol combat yesterday but acknowledged no German losses.

(This morning's French communique reported destruction of six German fighting planes yesterday while London dispatches told of another shot down off the east coast of England last night.)

The German communique follows:

"Southwest of Pirmasens an enemy company attacked German vanguard posts. It was repulsed and suffered heavy losses. On Nov. 22 lively scouting activity by the German airforce over France and England achieved unusually valuable reconnoitring results despite strong pursuit plane and anti-aircraft defence.

"In the region around Sedan a French airplane was shot down. In waters around Shetland an English flying boat was set afire by German planes attacking low despite strong defence.

Forced Landing

"In various places minor air encounters occurred in connection with border patrol flights by numerous pursuit planes. Four French chasers were shot down in connection therewith. At Freiburg a German plane was compelled by French pursuit to make a forced landing.

"On Nov. 21 an air encounter ensued over French territory between nine German destroyer planes and seven French pursuit ships. The French pursuiters were routed and thereby our own reconnaissance planes were enabled to continue their scouting activity. Enemy planes flying over German territory remained in the immediate vicinity of the border."

CANADA SEARCHES

cial Air Service are scanning that province from the skies, and transport department engineers are flying over provinces with a similar purpose.

Completely Separated

With perhaps 10 training planes droning in swarms overhead at the same time, these training airports must necessarily be completely separate from large city airports the regular air transport companies use.

Such a consideration automatically bars existing big airports at main points on the Trans-Canada Air Lines network as Vancouver, Lethbridge, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Moncton. Some of the T.C.A. intermediate or emergency landing fields will be developed into full-fledged airports for the training scheme.

The day of the cow pasture airport is gone. Modern airports are planned and built as carefully and as scientifically as a tennis court or a golf green. The air training airports must be found sufficiently distant from heavy centres of population to avoid risk of accident or of noise nuisance. They must, on the other hand, be close enough to railways and highways to permit maintenance of transport of supplies and machinery.

Fields Must be Drained

The airport must be free of tall chimneys, power transmission towers and hills in the immediately vicinity. The level stretch of land must be carefully graded. A network of tile drains must be laid so that the surface will remain dry and firm after heavy rains or snow. The runways must withstand the shock of a pilot setting down a 10-ton bomber at 70 miles an hour and must give the pilot as little ground friction as possible when taking the machine off.

Revolving searchlight beacons must be installed, boundaries must be marked by colored lights and flood lights set up.

Transport department experts will be in charge of all this work. Construction will continue through the winter, so that as many of the airports as possible will be ready for operations in the spring.

ISSUE IS CLEAR

The Labor party wants assurances from the government that the industrial resources of the nation are being used to the best advantage in producing war supplies. There has been agitation before for secret sessions but the government opposed them. It is understood now, however, it will accede to the wish of Clement Attlee, opposition leader.

The speech from the throne said the war was being fought to preserve the birthright of liberty.

"Despite the efforts of my government to preserve peace, Germany, in violation of solemn undertakings, wantonly invaded Poland," the speech said.

Could Not Decline

"This new instance of German aggression and bad faith was a challenge which we could not have declined without dishonor to ourselves and without peril to the cause of freedom and the progress of mankind.

"We seek no material gain. Liberty and free institutions are our birthright which we, like our forefathers, are resolved to preserve."

The House of Commons was thanked for the "prompt and ungrudging" acceptance of heavy financial burdens which "has deeply impressed the world and demonstrated the unflinching determination of my people to make every sacrifice necessary for victory."

U. S. NAVY SIGHTS DRIFTING MINES

Conviction of Maritime Experts Mines Set Adrift to Hamper England

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 23—(AP)—A United States navy announcement that 39 drifting mines have been sighted in the North Sea in the last two days deepened the convictions of some maritime experts today that they had been set adrift in an attempt to make British waters a no-man's-area for all shipping.

Stormy weather often has ripped mines from their moorings, but seldom in such clusters as indicated by the incomplete reports broadcast by the navy's hydrographic office. Most of the reports came from the U.S.S. Trenton.

Treaties prescribe automatic devices to assure that a mine accidently set adrift will be rendered harmless within an hour, but those afloat in the North Sea have accounted for most of the 18 ships sunk or damaged in the last five days.

Tentative Conclusions

The latest development in the sea warfare suggested these tentative conclusions to naval men here:—

1. The recent heavy shipping losses are due to the numbers of the mines and their free drift rather than to the perfection of revolutionary new undersea weapons.
2. Virtually all the mines have been laid by submarines built for the purpose.
3. Setting them adrift has raised difficulties intended to tax British and French means of keeping open vital commerce lanes.
4. The Allied blockade and the German fight to create a counter blockade has not differed basically from the 1914-18 pattern.

GERMANY

Can Determine Construction

Great Britain has adequate means source said these mines were of the the illegally-sown mines which have destroyed close to 20 vessels, neutral as well as British, in the British sealanes since the weekend.

In Portsmouth naval base there is an elaborate laboratory which was shown to newspapermen about a fortnight ago. Here are brought all the varieties of German mines fished from the sea by Britain's vast fleet of minesweepers. The weapons are dissected, their explosives analysed, their detonating apparatus examined.

Sir John Simon's statement suggests that magnetic mines have thus been caught at sea and examined.

However, outside the Portsmouth Laboratory and the naval heads of the Allies it is doubtful whether anyone knows exactly what the magnetic mines are. Authorities in various countries have been quizzed on the subject and their reports are conflicting and confusing.

Some Say Mines Impractical

Authorities in London are quoted as saying magnetic mines were used in the last war—that Great Britain used them herself under certain circumstances. Reports from Washington quote United States authorities as saying such weapons are quite impractical.

Nevertheless speculation has been abundant since first reports of their use were made public and the consensus seems to be this:

The mines are sown at anchor below the level touched by the shallow hulls of the minesweeper but fairly close to the surface; the deeper steel hull of merchantmen and war vessels exerts a magnetic pull sufficient to set off the detonating apparatus which causes a violent blast close to the ship's hull.

Experts Doubt Possibility

Another suggestion is that the mines are placed at the seabottom and released by magnetic pull to rise swiftly against the drawing agent of the vessel's hull. Some experts have expressed doubt that this would be possible. The magnetic pull would not be sufficient to penetrate to sea-bottom, they say.

Equally dangerous, however, are floating mines, strewn by the enemy to float at random in the merchant shipping lanes, blasting any vessel which runs across them. Even in daylight such weapons are difficult to detect in the choppy waters of the North Sea, more so at night.

Reports that mines were dropped in the Thames by parachute suggests they were of the floating rather than magnetic variety. It is presumed that the mechanism necessary for magnetic mines could not be placed from the air. They could however, be set by submarines in the same manner as Germany sowed floating mines in the last war and appears to be doing again.

NO PROTEST MADE

German goods were shipped to foreign ports from Amsterdam and Rotterdam . The figure for shipments during October is not known.

Last night representatives of the big shipping companies met at The Hague to consider the situation. It was understood the mine menace to Dutch shipping and not the British export blockade was the main topic of discussion.

It was unanimously agreed, however, that Dutch ships must continue to ply the sea routes or else the Netherlands must accept economic suicide. The shipping companies will attempt to take every possible precaution before sending their vessels out.

Choice of New Routes Considered

Some consideration was given to choice of new routes, especially the possibility of a northern route to the Atlantic via the British control port of Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands. There were many objections to this on various grounds, however, and most of the shippers expressed their intention of continuing to use the English Channel, following British naval communiques to avoid danger zones as far as possible.

Thomas Kerr Pleads Guilty to Charges Of False Pretenses

"I'm asking the court to take this man out of circulation for some time and urge the maximum sentence under the Code," emphatically announced Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., after Thomas Kerr, Thurlow Township wood dealer, had pleaded guilty to several charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, in today's County Police Court held in Belleville before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C.

"The police have only presented three cases here today but there are at least a dozen others of a similar nature. This man goes about the countryside taking orders from private citizens for cord wood. He gets a deposit and then fails to return with the wood. He's had a long run for his money and I urge the maximum sentence of six months," stated Mr. Donnan after Kerr had shown outward emotion when pleading guilty. His Worship remanded Kerr in custody for one week while he "considered the matter".

The court charged that Kerr had been taking orders for cord wood as far south as Wellington and in Belleville as well as other parts of Hastings County.

FENDER DAMAGE RESULT OF CRASH

Fender damage resulted to an automobile driven by William Tebworth, 46 Geddes St., at the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets early last evening. Mr. Tebworth was about to enter Holway's service station when he was forced to suddenly apply the brakes of his car to avoid collision with an east bound automobile. Another motor car trailing Mr. Tebworth's car struck him from behind, resulting in considerable fender damage, P. C. Wright learned after investigation.

Two inebriates and fifteen transients shared the cell block at the police station last night, while otherwise an uneventful evening was spent.

POMERANIAN DOG SERIOUSLY INJURED

A small Pomeranian house dog, the property of J. F. Carter, 15 Brassey St., was seriously mangled and injured after being attacked by a large police dog yesterday. City dog-pound Inspector Thos. Thorne investigated the matter and found the small two-pound Pomeranian in such a serious condition, after having been attacked and bitten by the larger dog, that it is feared the smaller animal will die from the result of the wounds received. Mr. Carter informed Mr. Thorne that his dog had been given something to eat and while consuming the food had been attacked by the larger animal. The name of the owner of the police dog was not revealed by authorities but further investigations are in the hands of the police.

INVESTIGATION DEMANDED

Toronto, Nov. 23 (CP)—Immediate investigation by the War Prices Board into operations of large meat packing companies in Canada since the outbreak of war was demanded by York Council yesterday. The resolution was adopted after Reeve J. Cockburn of Georgia, its mover, charged that profiteering had been rampant in some commodities in Canada since the present war started.

HEPBURN DEFENDS 2-YEAR ELECTION PLAN AT BANQUET

Saving of Half Million Dollars a Year Will be Effected by Plan

REVENUES DOWN

St. Thomas, Nov. 23—(CP) — Premier Hepburn, speaking at a banquet honoring Warden Pinneo here last night, defended his stand on deferring municipal elections after 1940 and inauguration of a two-year term for elective offices, and in this connection spoke of newspaper criticising.

"Newspapers that operate printing offices might not like the two-year election plan because it would cut down on their revenue from printing voters lists. In Toronto, the two afternoon papers might also be opposed because it would mean loss of revenue in election advertising.

"If a person wants to get on a municipal slate in Toronto, he has to go to one of the two afternoon papers and make arrangements for their support," he charged. "He has to contract for so much advertising and a card of thanks when the campaign is over. I know what election advertising costs, because I have paid some bills myself."

Nothing Undemocratic is Claim

The Premier insisted there was nothing undemocratic about having an election every two years, particularly in these perilous times when all energies and resources should be directed toward carrying the war to a successful conclusion and also with so many people on relief and municipal and provincial loss of income tax revenue to the province.

The increased excise tax on liquors was affecting provincial revenues. Figures for October of this year proved that. They showed a 40 per cent falling off in revenue from this source as compared with October of 1939. In other departments of Dominion taxation, it meant reduced revenue for the province. "If the Dominion Government maintains a pay-as-you-go policy there is going to be a further reduction in revenue for the province," he said.

May Retire Subsidy

"We must economize or we cannot go on paying back to the municipalities the mill and one half subsidy that we have been paying. I think if we can save half a million dollars or more a year by holding municipal elections every two years instead of every year, we should. I don't care about the clamor of the newspapers. I've got used to that. I don't share the view of some that this will be a short war. I think it will be one of long duration."

73-Year-Old Lonsdale Woman Struck by Car

When an automobile driven by a relative struck 73-year-old Mrs. Beatrice McMechan near her Lonsdale home this morning, the elderly lady sustained a fractured hip, broken nose and multiple other bruises and lacerations. The injured woman was immediately rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where Dr. Harold Welsh attended.

According to eye witnesses, including the driver of the automobile, Charles H. Miller, a cousin of the injured woman residing at Corbyville, Mrs. McMechan was walking along the north side of the third concession of Tyendinaga Township while Mr. Miller was driving westerly. Apparently Mrs. McMechan did not see nor hear the motor car approaching from behind and stepped directly into the path of the vehicle as she was about to cross the road, it is believed.

Provincial Constable W. E. Smith investigated and stated the incident was purely accidental. The principal parties concerned were close relatives.

Food Strike Broken By Thanksgiving Meal

Folsom, Calif., Nov. 23 (AP)—A food strike at Folsom prison was broken this Thanksgiving Day by the prospect of a tempting holiday meal.

Only 11 men refused breakfast this morning, exclusive of 21 placed in solitary as leaders of the incident, which started Tuesday and involved 900 convicts.

A Thanksgiving Day meal, coupled with the hunger of the strikers and the isolation of nearly a score of ringleaders, broke the resistance of the strikers.

Door is Left Open For Negotiations

Alahabad, India, Nov. 23 (CP Reuters)—The working committee of the Congress party today adopted a resolution leaving the door open for negotiations with the Viceroy.

The resolution said the committee will continue to study all means of reaching an honorable agreement in its demands for immediate constitutional reforms. The Marquess of Linlithgow, the Viceroy, had promised consideration of the question at the conclusion of the war.

NEW COMMAND BASE BUILT 90 FEET BELOW OLD FORT

War Correspondents Shown Long Corridor and Four 'Rooms' Dug Out of Hard Moist Clay

TOUR FRENCH FRONT

With the French Army on the Western Front, Nov. 23 (CP)-Reuters)—Ninety feet beneath a solid old fort built many years before anyone thought about this war or even that of 1914, a proud old colonel today showed war correspondents a long corridor and four "rooms" dug out of the hard moist clay.

"In a few days' time this will be our new command base," he said.

The correspondents had slid and slipped down a steel shoot leading from an underground passage, built long ago of solid stone and brick, which was a sure refuge against cannon balls.

Go Deeper In This War.

In this war one has to go deeper.

The correspondents were smothered in mud of the consistency of thick soup. They were standing in deep puddles of water. In a few days the passage and rooms, with all the ground above them, will be snug and comfortable, still further protected by walls and ceilings of concrete and steel.

It is one more example of the ingenuity and enormous capacity of the work of the French army in the field. The correspondents were in the sector," somewhere between the Moselle and the Channel", where there is no patrol action, where the artillery has not fired. It is a sector where there has been no need for heroics as yet, but which has been on the alert for days at a time.

From one moment to another every officer and man is ready to pick up his rifle, to serve his gun. In the meantime, the correspondents were told, it is good to keep men busy up here. The lie of the land is totally different from that of Alsace and Lorraine, and accordingly the system of defence is of another order.

It is neither weaker nor stronger. But it is tremendously efficient and brilliantly thought out.

In these plains, where even the slightest rise gives one a clear view for miles, the cunningness with which the batteries and guns have been made steady, in positions invisible to the eye, is a tribute to the French army technique of 1939.

Field gun emplacements are htemselves connected by tunnels dug by men, and further connected to underground shelters that at no moment need gunners to show themselves on the surface, while the heavier artillery merges into a landscape which could not ordinarily hide a cat.

For these concrete defences still continue on the surface, but they are supplemented by innumerable and intricate lines of tank traps and trenches, each of them providing a new and unpleasant surprise for the attacking enemy. These are supplemented by forts built at one time or other through the centuries on one of Europe's traditional battlefields.

The old forts have not perhaps the same purpose as they once had. But because of the new work put in on them they fill their place in the general scheme of events.

"It just shows," said the high officer accompanying the party, "that there is continuity in French military genius, and that the positions of old still remain the ideal positions of today."

Instead of ball cannon there are anti-tank guns, instead of water moats there are tank traps—there lies about the only difference. And work goes on, as it is doing on all the huge front from the English channel to Switzerland.

Trenton Flyers to Send Boxing Team to Queens

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)—Confirmation was received from Trenton last night that the Fliers will send a boxing team to Kingston for a show with Queen's Intercollegiate team on Dec. 1.

Ray Mathers, Queen's welterweight boxer and one of the most pr[illegible]sing seen here in years is ready to trade punches with the best the Airmen can produce. McDonald, Queen's Intercollege champion, swings back into action in the lightweight class. Several other well known Queen's boxers will be on the program including Doug Chant, s[illegible]dy southpaw, Pete Perchison, middleweight, Scotty Wilson and Art Smith.

Abolish Grand Jury, Reduce Petit Jury, Council Advises

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 23—(CP)—Frontenac County Council today went on record of being in favor of the abolition of the Grand Jury from Canada's courts as well as recommending that the petit jury and the number of jurors summoned be reduced as communications to the council were discussed and voted upon.

A letter was received by the council from the clerk of the County of Ontario with a copy of the resolution passed by that County Council in favor of the abolition of the Grand Jury.

Chamberlain Will Broadcast on Sunday

London, N[illegible]. 23 (CP)—Premier Chamberlain will broadcast an address on the war at 9:15 p.m. (4:15 p.m. E.S.T.) on Sunday, it was announced officially here.

Contagious Disease Increases in Montreal

Montreal, Nov. 23—(CP) — An appeal for doctors to report all cases of contagious disease, increased about 66 per cent for the first ten months of the year in Montreal, was made today by Dr. Adelard Groulx, Director of the Department of Health here.

Urging entire co-operation with health authorities, Dr. Groulx told doctors that "patients do not always understand the importance of the regulation and we should go out of our way to educate the public on the matter."

WORKMAN KILLED AS HANGAR BURNS AT DES MOINES

Two Men Are Critically Injured in Municipal Airport Fire

19 PLANES BURNED

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 23.— (CP) One workman was killed and two injured critically today as flames destroyed the Des Moines Municipal Airport hangar destroying 19 airplanes valued at $70,000. Authorities fixed the total loss at $106,000.

KUHN ADMITS HE TOLD A LIE

Told Mrs. Camp He Was Divorced from Wife in 1934 Evidence Adduced

New York, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The proceedings in Fritz Kuhn's larceny trial were pointed sharply today toward the witness stand appearance of Mrs. Florence Camp, the one time "Golden Angel" of the Bundfuehrer's Transcontinental Correspondence but now considerably fallen from his grace.

"I thought Mrs. Camp was a very fine lady, but I found out she isn't", Kuhn said yesterday, after the prosecution had read into the records three of Kuhn's letters to her studded with protestations of undying love.

That renunciation of the divorcee capped a double recantation by the Bundfuehrer. An admission that he lied to Mrs. Camp in 1933 by telling her he had divorced his wife in 1934 (he's still married), and an admission that he lied when he testified, yesterday morning, that he never had told Mrs. Camp he was divorced.

May Call Mrs. Camp

The state has announced Mrs. Camp will be called, as a rebuttal witness against Kuhn, who is accused of stealing money from his German-American Bund.

The appearance of the letters obviously was the cause of Kuhn's turning against the woman he said he loved "with my whole soul and body." When Herman McCarthy, Assistant District Attorney, asked when Kuhn found out Mrs. Camp isn't a "very fine lady," the Bund leader replied:

"I found out right now."

He had lied he said, to shield Mrs. Camp, as well as himself.

German Airmen Wave at Schoolchildren While Bombing Islands

London, Nov. 23 (CP)—German airmen who raided the Shetland Islands Wednesday waved to school children in the streets of the town and then proceeded to machine gun aviators escaping from a British sea plane which the Germans bombed at its moorings, witnesses said today.

One of the six German machines swooped low, it was said, with its machine guns blazing. Bullets, cutting the water as the German craft approached passed right through the helpless seaplane.

Plane engines were heard again over the Shetlands early this morning, and searchlights were in action.

Air Missions Are Photographed

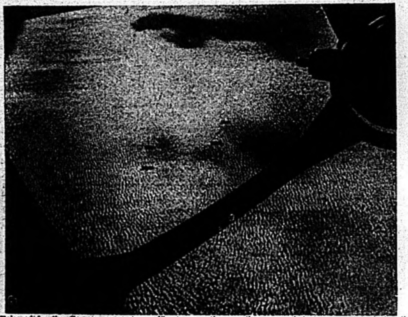
Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP)—Members of the Canadian, British, Australian and New Zealand air missions gathered together today on the steps of the parliament buildings to have group pictures taken.

The members of the mission have been conferring here for the past few weeks on the Empire air training scheme and an announcement on their deliberations is expected before long. Their posing for pictures was taken as an indication some or all of the visitors might be planning to leave for home shortly.

BRANTFORD CAMPAIGN IS SUCCESSFUL

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 23—(CP)—At the end of the second day of Brantford's Red Cross campaign, with an objective of $50,000, it was announced that subscriptions had reached $41,507.02. The first day's total was $13,236. The campaign closes tonight.

SHIPS APPEAR LIKE TOYS FROM BOMBING PLANE



Released by the German censor, this photograph was alleged to have been taken through the bomb bay of a Nazi bomber on a reconnaissance flight across the North Sea to England. A few ships may be seen, like toys on the smooth sea. From this picture you may get an idea of just how small a target a ship is for a bomber. In order to be reasonably certain of a hit, the German bombers must dive down on their target. It is during this diving manoeuvre that the anti-aircraft batteries get in much of their deadly work.

DUTCH LINER FALLS VICTIM OF GERMAN MINE

The masts and superstructure are all that may be seen of the Dutch liner Simon Bolivar as the liner sank in the North Sea, off the East coast of England after striking a floating German mine. Eighty-six persons lost their lives in the wanton sinking. This picture was taken shortly before the Simon Bolivar plunged to the bottom of the sea, and flashed to New York by radio and transmitted by Phonephoto.

STEPS ARE TAKEN TO KEEP PUBLIC BETTER INFORMED

Prime Minister Mackenzie King Anxious Public Should Have Latest Information on War Efforts

CENTRAL BUREAU

Ottawa, Nov. 23—(CP)—Steps to keep the public better informed on Canada's war effort are going forward following the statement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King at a Press Conference yesterday that he planned to take up with his Ministers suggestions put forward by Press Gallery correspondents.

The Prime Minister said he was anxious that the public should be kept thoroughly informed of the nation's war effort and intimated that the machinery now in operation would be enlarged.

This has given rise to unofficial reports in Ottawa that Walter S. Thompson, now head of the censorship board and at present resting in Florida from his heavy duties, would have charge of the publicity organization on his return.

Central Bureau Formed

Some weeks ago provision was made to have a central bureau for disseminating news on war efforts. It was connected with the Prime Minister's office and headed by Walter Turnbull, one of Mr. Mackenzie King's secretaries, and George Hambleton, experienced news correspondent. A press liaison officer was named in each department to co-operate with the central office.

The Prime Minister made it clear yesterday that the object was to supplement the news normally to the public through old established departmental practices in which the Minister and Deputy Minister were responsible for keeping the public informed of the department activities.

Cabinet Meets

The idea of a large centralized information bureau which would supersede direct communication between the news writers and the departmental heads was not favored Mr. Mackenzie King explained, although steps were being taken to increase the effectiveness of the existing bureau.

The cabinet is meeting today and Mr. Mackenzie King is expected to take up the public information problem then. He intimated that not only the press information but radio and motion picture means of giving the public a better idea of what Canada's war effort will be, are involved.

ALLIES WARRING ON HITLERISM

Col. Drew Believes Lesson of History Can be Applied After Hitler Falls

Toronto, Nov. 23—(CP)—Nothing will unite the enemy so strongly as the belief that the British and French hate the German people as a whole, Col. George A. Drew, Leader of the Conservative party in Ontario, today told a luncheon meeting of the Empire Club.

If the German people are given to understand clearly that the Allies are making war on Adolf Hitparte and his adherents only, the lington conveyed to the French in the early 19th Century that the British were at war with Bonaler and his adherents, just as Welchances for a quick and lasting peace will be increased, he said.

On this point, Col. Drew said he found himself in support of the views expressed by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier of France, and not their critics, who declare the war must be against the German people who put Hitler into power.

Because Wellington, after destroying Bonapartism and its supporters, assisted in the reconstruction of France, the two nations which had been enemies for centuries, have been friends since the fall of Napoleon, Col. Drew said.

The lesson of history can be supplied in the present case after the fall of Hitler and his satellites, Col. Drew declared.

CARDINAL NOT TO RESIGN

Vatican City, Nov. 23—(CP-Havas)—Foreign reports that Francisco Cardinal Vidal Y Barraquer, Archbishop of Tarragona, Spain, would resign as a result of differences with the Franco regime are without foundation, informed quarters here said tonight.

Spanish circles said recently that General Francisco Franco was determined on the removal of the cardinal, who refused to sign a pastoral letter in support of the Nationalist Movement during the civil war in Spain.

QUESTION TO DECIDE

London, Ont., Nov. 23—(CP)—Whether a person who is a "conscientious objector" may remain on the relief roll is a question which Welfare Administrator Frank McKay has posed for provincial authorities. One case of a recipient who declines to take the oath of allegiance is pending here.

Two weeks ago an aged Italian declared "no fight" when asked to take the oath, but he relented when its meaning was explained more fully to him.

7 German Planes Downed by British on Western Front

All British Pilots Return to Bases After Shooting Down Foe Bombers and Reconnaissance Machines

With the British Royal Air Force in France, Nov. 23—(AP)— Seven German bombing and reconnaissance planes were reported shot down today by British pursuit planes on the western front. Authorities said all the British pilots returned to their bases.

(Yesterday Air Force authorities reported British and French planes shot down seven German craft while anti-aircraft fire destroyed another. French losses then were given as two and the British as none.)

Paris, Nov. 23 (CP-Havas) — A German plane was shot down today during an air battle between German and British squadrons near Chalons-Sur-Marne, some 90 miles northeast of Paris.

It was the Germans' second loss of the day. Another plane was shot down by French aircraft, it was reported from Franche-Conte.

The three-man crew of the plane brought down near Chalons-Sur-Marne took to their parachutes. One was killed and another wounded. The third was uninjured.

Medical Students Now Being Asked to Donate Blood

Toronto, Nov. 23—(CP)—Canada's war effort took a unique turn today when the department of physiological hygiene at the University of Toronto announced that between 500 and 600 donors would be sought among the students for blood to be preserved and shipped to a British base hospital in France.

The announcement said only students in the first four years of the medical course would be asked to donate blood at first. They will be asked to give 250 cubic centimetres every two months.

If the blood shipped from here is found to stand transportation and storage successfully, the list of donors probably will be extended. The blood shipped will be used principally for treatment of shock without hemorrhage.

WOMAN TESTIFIES YOUTH SHOT HER

Tells Court Youth Fired When She Opened Door in Her Home

Montreal, Nov. 23. —(CP)— Mrs. Thomas Demick, arm in sling from a bullet found, testified in court today that 18-year-old Harold LeBlond had shot her with a rifle when she answered the door of her home here at two a.m. on Sept. 16.

Mrs. Demick, mother of the 15-year-old girl who testified yesterday that LeBlond had threatened to k[illegible] her family and himself unless s[illegible] married him, said it was a "bri[illegible] morning" and she saw LeBl[illegible] clearly.

As she turned quickly after saying, "Harold don't shoot," the youth fired and hit her in the right arm, the woman told the court.

Mrs. Sydney LeBlond of Mackayville, Que., mother of the accused testified Mrs. Demick once had told her at the Demick home that, "Harold wants to live here, and I want him to live here, and that's that. He's old enough to look after himself".

Trial of LeBlond charged with attempting to murder Mrs. Demick, is continuing.

Cards and dancing and social intercourse were indulged in until eleven o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Stapley were given seats of honor and Miss Marjorie Price read the following verses.

Dear Eleanor and Jim:

The neighbors declare it
The papers have said
That a youth and a maiden
Have lately been wed.

This evening your friends
Have all gathered here
The old and the young
To wish you good cheer.

We trust that your future
Will always be bright
Your pathway be joyous
Your troubles be light.

Yet God has not promised
Skies always blue
Flower strewn pathways
All our life through.

So if shadows should come
Just whistle and sing
It will make the clouds vanish
And much happiness bring.

Now Eleanor, don't start nagging,
be cranky or pout
It will spoil a good home quicker than all get out
Just be to your husband, a dear loving wife
And he will love you the rest of your life.

And Jim, you a good provider will make
To bring home the bacon and furnish the steak
You must praise your wife's efforts
When she does bake
And just be blind to any mistakes.

Now on this occasion
We have brought you tonight
These miscellaneous articles
All new and bright.

We hope you will like them,
And that useful they'll be,
Also serve to remind you of friends who agree
That you're very welcome Eleanor
In our community.

Please kindly unwrap them
And we will stand by
And watch with delight
As each piece you untie.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors, E. Oliver, Dorland Turnbull, Bert Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Stapley made suitable replies and "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung and then they untied the presents and lunch followed.

Fingers or Claws?

By HELEN FOLLETT

AREN'T YOUR teeth set on edge when you see finger-nails that have grown into long and horrid claws? Why do women fancy that that practice adds to the sum total of pulchritude and exquisite grooming? It doesn't.

The nails should be proportionate to the hands. Nail leaves should extend beyond the finger-tips, of course, but exaggerated length is ugly. If it must be a beauty indulgence, then for goodness sake use a light polish! Lovely corals are to be found on the counters. We're not in favor of the dark wine shades because they make nails look thick and heavy.

Short, blunt nails are improved if filed to a rounded point. Vivid shimmer is no help to them either. Extending the coloring over the eave is a desirable touch since it gives length.

Some of the pretties are using white which has one advantage; it doesn't start a color war with one's frock. Nice to have polish of several shades so the ensemble can be considered. In the long run one spends no more money, and it's fun to do a little matching up.

Don't overlook the need of friction to keep the nails in condition so they won't break. After removing the old polish, use a cuticle cream, rubbing it in with the palm of the hand. Remove it with soap and water before putting on the new glint which will not adhere to a lubricated surface.

MARY MARTIN . . . keeps well-groomed nails at proper length.

The Stars Say

For Friday, November 24

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

MODERATELY enterprising and propitious conditions obtain on this day, according to the lunar transits. While new matters and dealings with those of influence and prestige should thrive, there are indications of certain undermining forces, boring deep from within with implements of treachery and subtlety. Alertness to these, even in domestic or personal affairs, may avert financial loss.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a fairly progressive and propitious year, if they will develop new projects with soundness and practical programs. These may enlist the support and confidence of those able to assist or promote them liberally, vanquishing certain subtle and persistent undermining forces.

A child born on this day may have fine constructive ability and executive power, winning support from influential persons against the menace of subtle opposition.

Letter Tells of Resolve Of British People to Fight War to Finish

A vivid picture of conditions and of the stern resolve of the British people is contained in a letter received today by W. E. Tummon, ex-M.P., from a relative, Miss Mary Shirley, near his old home in England. Incidentally, Miss Shirley herself is typical of the manner in which people generally in the Old Country have tackled the war task. She has joined up as a full-time auxiliary nurse and travels sixteen miles morning and night to and from the hospital because the evacuees from the cities have left no place near the hospital where she could find quarters.

Extracts from Miss Shirley's very interesting letter follow:

"Now we come to the war—This has affected the lives of us to such a great extent that it is hard to know where to start.

"First, instead of being only three in the family we have eight friends from London, three families who have been evacuated from London and their homes to us. The husbands are still in town at their jobs.

"The next great change is the lights-out after dark. All towns are without any street lights, and we try to drive cars at night with about three inches of light only from the headlights, and no sidelights. There is only a visibility of about five feet—it makes motoring a case of luck. . . .

"We also have a very large airport near us—in fact it is only about five miles from the old home of the Tummons. It is said that at present it is the second largest airport in the world, so we get quite used to the sound of planes.

"The effect of the war on the people as a nation is remarkable. All are calm and, above all, not one voice is heard stating that we are not right in going to war. The feeling is that evil must not be allowed to go unchecked and that Hitler must be taught to respect law and order.

"We at the hospital had the chance of seeing our boys of the British Expeditionary Force pass through before they embarked for France. All were young and all were going in quite a bright and cheerful manner to do the job that was necessary. I think that is the feeling in England today, not the feeling of job and confidence that we entered the war in 1914, but perhaps a rather better feeling of right is might and that we must win. . .

"We on our hundred acres of land have been told by the government that we must till twenty-five acres, so we hope to be able to grow some of our food, but even then we depend upon our navy and our friends overseas to assure a sufficient food supply. . . ."

Marked Down

By HELEN D. OLDS

Peggy (Mrs. Paul Parker to her grocer) dashed down the hill to the station. Outwardly, she might look as usual, but inside she was entirely different from the happy-go-lucky Peggy she had been all her life. Why had it had to happen to her, anyway? But there, she wasn't going to think about . . . Paul and that girl. Not today!

The 8:40 was the earliest train she could make and even that hurried her, with two youngsters to get off to school and instructions to the day worker. Rita (Mrs. Ed Scanlon to the same grocer) who lived next door, had waited for her a while and then gone on the train. It was one of those days when they both felt they simply had to get away from the house and the children and everything. So they were going to town for a day's shopping.

"Well, I made it!" Peggy settled herself on the half of the train seat that Rita Scanlon had been saving for her.

Rita had a newspaper. She had had time to buy one at the River Dale station. Rita always would get to trains early. Peggy often missed them.

The news of the day held no interest for them. Rita flipped the paper open to the ads.

Peggy was wondering: Do I look the same, or is it written all over my face? Can folks read there that I cried into my pillow all night because Paul's been stepping out? Oh, if I could only be happy and secure—like Rita!

"Look, Peggy!" Rita pointed to a page ad. SALE OF MEN'S SHIRTS. MARKED BELOW COST.

They always enjoyed picking out shirts for their men: big blond Ed and slim dark Paul. But today Peggy's heart wasn't in it. She tried to pretend interest. "Umm, collar attached."

(I wonder if I said that just as usual?)

"Neckties" marked down. Rita read on.

"Paul needs ties."

(I mustn't let her guess I'm not the same happy wife she thinks me. She mustn't guess I know . . . that I heard what that gossipy Mrs. Traymore was saying when I came up to the bridge table yesterday. I'll never forget it. 'She has no idea that darling hubby's stepping out. Shh!)

It was hard for Peggy to keep a secret.

Everyone in River Dale marveled at their friendship. Tall, demure dark Rita, and small vivacious blond Peggy. No one dared criticize one before the other.

They lived in almost identical houses, both were paying off mortgages, both kept part-time help. They shared each other's patterns, recipes, fifty-trip tickets to town and—secrets. Now Peggy had a secret she couldn't share.

"There's Mrs. Traymore a couple of seats ahead," Rita said.

Peggy saw the hat with the giddy feather.

(They say every time Mrs. Traymore gets another evening gown, everyone knows Mr. T's been on a tear. But I don't want to be like that. I want all of Paul's love. Glad rags wouldn't make me happy.)

"Her hat's cute. Perhaps I'll get myself a hat today," Rita said.

Peggy glanced at Rita's serene face.

(She can sit there and smile and talk about marked-down shirts. She doesn't have to worry about Ed. Good old Ed, faithful as a dog. Her heart hasn't been yanked out and stepped on.

"Paul does need some shirts," Peggy said, because she had to say something.

(He doesn't deserve a wife who takes advantage of the sales. I ought to splurge and charge up a lot of duds to him. Like Mrs. T.)

"Beach sandals are marked down, too, Peggy."

"Let's get some. Yellow for you, blue for me."

(Marked down! Everything seems marked down. Even Paul's love has a marked-down tag on it now. Oh, Rita, Rita! How I envy you).

Maybe it was just Peggy's imagination, but it seemed as if Rita was in a hurry to get the shirt purchase over with, too. Did her cool voice tremble as she gave her address—"Mrs. Ed. Scanlon, 60 Rose Terrace. . .?"

Peggy strolled away. Her nerves certainly were shaky. Already she was imagining things. She must get away for a minute, get a grip on herself.

Two women over beyond the glass case looked familiar. One had a voice like Mrs. Traymore. Her words floated over to Peggy.

"Over there by the shirts . . . poor thing! I'm sure she knows. All the club members say so, too. He doesn't need to think . . ."

They were talking about her again! Peggy was too startled to move.

" . . . that people believe he goes to see that divorcee about selling her insurance!" That high, shrill laugh.

Peggy stood frozen. They had been talking about Ed Scanlon and not her Paul at all! It was Ed, not Paul who sold insurance. And to think she had been envying Rita all morning!

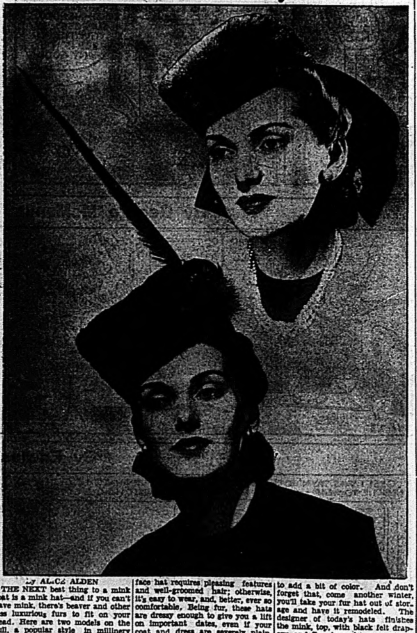
It was Rita whose heart had been yanked out, was being ground under foot.

Peggy darted back to the shirt counter and locked arms with Rita. "Come on, let's do the town right today. Lunch at Schrafft's, darling! Never mind the expense. We have plenty."

Rita gave her a slow tremulous smile. "We're surely entitled to some fun," she said. "And I'm sick of marked-down things!"

Down the aisle comes the bride wearing ivory moire of simple lines, with buttons on the snug-fitting bodice with its small tailored collar. At the back of the skirt with its long train is a huge bustle bow.

Overhead Luxury



By ALICE ALDEN

THE NEXT best thing to a mink coat is a mink hat—and if you can't have mink, there's beaver and other less luxurious furs to fit on your head. Here are two models on the cuff, a popular style in millinery whether it's the pelt or fabric variety. It's obvious that the off-the-face hat requires pleasing features and well-groomed hair; otherwise, it's easy to wear, and, better, ever so comfortable. Being fur, these hats are dressy enough to give you a lift on important dates, even if your coat and dress are severely plain, but either model will take a jeweled clip or a pink rose, should you wish to add a bit of color. And don't forget that, come another winter, you'll take your fur hat out of storage and have it remodeled. The designer of today's hats finishes the mink, top, with black felt drapery, and the sheared beaver with a long pheasant feather and brown suede back.

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

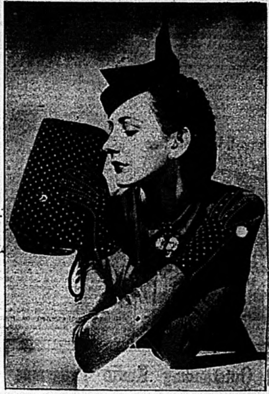
1 cake pan—cut 3 x 5—15 servings

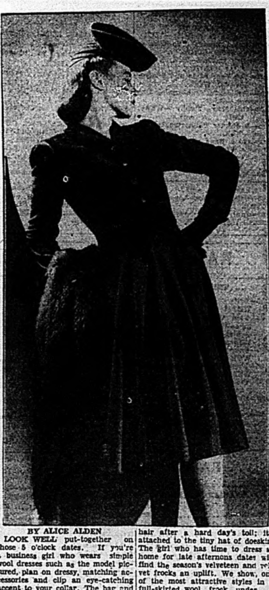
Butter	2 ozs.	Baking Powder	3½ tsp.
Sugar	2¾ ozs.	Salt	½ tsp.
Egg	1	Apples	15
Milk	1¼ cups	Cinnamon	1 tsp.
Flour	11¾ ozs.	Fruit Sugar	1 cup

METHOD:

Peel apples, cut in 1/6ths, and steam for 5 minutes, or until soft. Cream butter and sugar; add egg. Add milk and sifted dry ingredients alternately. Spread in pan. Place apples on top with cut side pressed into batter. Mix cinnamon and sugar and sprinkle over top. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. N.B.—Number of apples depends on size.

Some After-Work Styles





BY ALICE ALDEN

LOOK WELL put-together on those 5 o'clock dates. If you're a business girl who wears simple wool dresses such as the model pictured, plan on dressy, matching accessories and clip an eye-catching accent to your collar. The bag and gloves shown are in doeskin, hand cross-stitched to contrast. A wool snood catches the loose ends of the hair after a hard day's toil; it's attached to the tiny hat of doeskin. The girl who has time to dress at home for late afternoons dates will find the season's velveteen and velvet frocks an uplift. We show, one of the most attractive styles in a full-skirted wool frock under a jacket of velveteen with wool sleeves. Velveteen gloves, fur piece and impudent velvet hat go along.

Soft Soap

By JANE HARVEY

It was an early fall morning in the big city. Busses were pursuing their quiet pilgrimages past Mrs. Hannigan's boarding and rooming house. Mrs. Hannigan's bed of zinnias glowed with beauty in the morning sun. Karen, scrubbing the front steps, paused a moment to admire them.

Quite suddenly, the landlady's ample figure filled the doorway:

"Karen! Where's your soap?"

"But of course—in the water."

"Meltin' itself soft! Take it out. I never see such soap bills! A body'd think you eat it!"

"I am not that hungry—yet," flashed Karen, red staining her fair cheeks. "And if I leave it not in the water, I get me no suds."

"Take it out! I won't speak to you again" hissed Mrs. Hannigan.

"But that would be lovely," sighed the girl under her breath.

The landlady stepped back into the house to greet her guests with her warm motherly smile and Karen turned to her work. Obediently, she took the bar of yellow soap from the water and laid it on the step beside her. She wielded the scrubbing brush with a fine fervor which was not wholly inspired by a desire for cleanliness. Some of it was merely an outlet for her charged emotions. For Karen was in love and there was no one in America to whom she could confide her big secret.

He—the glorified hero of her dreams—was a roomer and boarder at Mrs. Hannigan's. He was as stalwart as a Norse god should be and a countryman of Karen's. Also, he was quite unaware of her existence except as the maid who cleaned his room and scrubbed the front steps.

On this bright morning she was finding life difficult and hard to endure. Great sighs welled up from her heart and spilled over her red lips. When she heard the guests pushing back their chairs in the dining room, se tipped back upon her heels and carefully brushed the hair from her forehead. Soon her hero would appear. He would pass her on the steps, throwing her a careless "Good morning!" This was the high moment of her day. Before she had secured the last wisp of yellow hair, the door opened and he stepped out. Karen rose quickly to her feet, drawing aside to let him pass. He took a single stride out and down, stepped on Karen's soap and skidded into her with violence. Karen, startled out of her shyness, caught him in a warm embrace and held him so until he could recover his dignity and his balance.

"Dod ding the girl!" he burst out, and added: "Can't you keep your soap in the water where it belongs?"

"I am so—so sorry. It is so too bad you have almost a fall! But Mrs. Hannigan she tell me always keep the soap out of the water. So I do and you have almost kill yourself."

Oscar Helversen—for such was h[illegible] the pleading of her anchusa-blue eyes with a steely glare.

"I have troubles enough without my neck yet!" he barked.

"You have troubles?" murmured Karen softly. "I am sorry for that, too."

He turned the full battery of his attention upon her and found her very easy to look at. He murmured something about catching a bus and went on his way.

When Oscar arrived at the boarding house that night, his nostrils were greeted with the odor of mutton. Oscar hated mutton. He decided on impulse to go out for dinner. On his way up to his room he met Karen. She was altogether lovely in a dark blue suit with white cuffs and collar. She wore a small hat and carried a suit case.

"Going out?" he asked.

"Way out," she sighed. "Mrs. Hannigan saw you slip this morning and tell me to go."

"But—where—"

"The W. Y. till I find work."

"But—seeing it was my fault—maybe we better go out to dinner somewhere and talk it over—"

"But I would love that!" cried Karen, her blue eyes shining.

Oscar took her suitcase from her and they went to a nearby cafe.

It was a delightful supper piled on trays and carried to a secluded table. They talked—but not about their troubles. Troubles were postponed or dissolved or chemically changed into soothing magic so that they no longer exosted for Karen and Oscar.

Other evenings followed: 'til Karen and Oscar decided that two can live as cheaply as one and much more happily.

It was several months after the ceremony when Oscar digging about in his wife's dresser drawer for a bit of court plaster, came upon a battered yellow substance with a disagreeable and familiar odor.

"Karen!" he called. "Kum haar."

Karen came.

Karen took the yellow thing tenderly in her hand and a beatific smile curved her lips.

"This is the piece of soap which I have not—for once—waste and which has sent you leaping into my arms, Oscar. Mrs. Hannigan tell me I must leave it out of the water and I did."

"Well, Karen, Mrs. Hannigan—for once—was right!"

"Yes—she was right! If I leave the soap in the water, I would get me a good suds. But I have leave it out of the water and I have get me a good husband. Which is much, much better—Oscar!"

AT THE BELLE

"Here I Am a Stranger!"

The novel read by millions, "Here I Am a Stranger", is brought to thrilling life to become the most dramatic picture of the day. It seems as though only once in every five years does such a great emotional picture come out of Hollywood. In 1929 it was "Madame X". In 1934 it was "Sorell and Son". And now it is this 20th Century-Fox drama which is now at the Belle Theatre. Richard Greene, the screen's popular young favorite, surpasses his performance in "Kentucky" in his first great starring role. He meets romance with lovely Brenda Joyce, Darryl F. Zanuck's sensational discovery fresh from her triumph in "The Rains Came". The film features Richard Dix in another dramatic conquest, at the head of a cast including Roland Young, Gladys George and others.

"Pack Up Your Troubles."

Starring Jane Withers and featuring the Ritz Brothers, this 20th Century-Fox picture is a veritable chaos of comedy. It hardly could help being so with such laughmakers topping the cast! Jane's the bravest Ma'amselle in all France, while the Ritzes are in the army of 1917. They are privates in a mule battalion and quickly make friends with Jane upon their arrival in France. At this point spies enter the scene to provide a counterpoint of thrills and excitement for the foursome's comedy and the film closes with one of the grandest punch lines ever heard in a movie theatre.

Lynn Bari, Joseph Schildkraut, Stanley Fields, Fritz Leiber and Lionel Royce are included in the cast. Executive Producer Sol. M. Wurtzel selected H. Bruce Humberstone to direct.

Included in the film which is the added laugh feature at the Belle Theatre is a new song written especially for Jane by Sidney Clare and Jule Styne—"Who'll Buy My Flowers". Jane also renders several inimitable impersonations.

"Conquering The Colorado."

"Conquering the Colorado," a refreshing traveltalk in technicolor will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"RHYTHM OF THE SADDLE"

Surrounded by a top flight cast of dramatic and comedy-favorites, Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette enact their newest singing western drama for Republic against a rodeo background, and the resultant film is the most thoroughly entertaining in which this crack pair has appeared. The film is titled "Rhythm of the Saddle" now showing at the Capitol.

Autry is a foreman for pretty Peggy Moran and seeks to protect her interests when rival ranchers attempt to wrest a rodeo franchise away from her Silver Saddle Ranch. There are hand-to-hand action thrills, rodeo stunts that have the audience gasping for breath, furious rides, and, naturally, several songs from the inimitable Gene and Smiley.

Interest and action never lags as the theme of "Rhythm of the Saddle", is thrillingly unfolded. George Sherman, who directed for Republic, has skillfully interwwoven his musical elements so that the speed of the story is not slackened. The well-mounted production is a credit to Associate Producer Harry Grey.

Peggy Moran, a brunette new to screendom, reveals definite promise and ability. She makes a charming foil for Gene, and many feminine movie fans in this town would gladly make sacrifices to win the smiles Gene bestows on his cinematic ranch boss.

Smiley Burnette is teamed with Pert Kelton for laughs in "Rhythm of the Saddle" and Smiley gets excellent help from Pert. Together they are unexcelled for drawing laughs from an audience.

The added attraction brings to the screen:

"Hero for a Day"

Picturing the dramatic rise and fall of a great sports figure, Universal's latest screen spectacle, "Hero For a Day", with Anita Louise, Dick Foran, Charley Grapewin, Berton Churchill and Emma Dunn.

Showing what happens to a valiant man when he permits himself to be drugged by glory and fame, the story is told in swift, sharply etched scenes. Described as a heart-warming narrative which turns the spotlight on the human element in athletic competition, "Hero For a Day", is credited with being an entirely new and different type of sports story. Harold Young directed the Ken Goldsmith production.

Mount Pleasant, Nov. 17, 1939.

Dear Eileen and Harry:

We, your friends and neighbors, have gathered at Mount Pleasant Hall tonight to extend to you both our very best wishes on the occasion of your marriage and we hope that you may enjoy many years of happy married life together.

Eileen, we have always found you a true friend and although you have been absent from our midst for a few years we have still been interested in you and we are delighted to have this opportunity of spending another social evening together. We assure you both of a hearty welcome whenever it is possible for you to visit here.

Harry, you are no stranger to us and we heartily congratulate you on your choice of a bride. As you travel life's pathway together always remember that there are joys to balance every care and that if you put your trust in your Heavenly Father, you will cheerfully share life's trials as you travel side by side.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a remembrance from us and may they convey to you our best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the community:

NELLIE SMITH
EILEEN MacMULLEN.

Mr. Bert Jeffs made the presentation of a nice assortment of useful and pretty gifts. Harry and Eileen both suitably replied thanking their friends for the gifts which later they unwrapped and read the names of the donors. At the close an appetizing lunch was served by a bevy of young people and all enjoyed a social half hour. The bride looked charming in her wedding gown and the groom was in khaki as he is in training at Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Joss, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Finkle, Chatterton, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Pyear.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cousin Artie stayed at my house all night last night on account of it starting to rain all of a sudden just when he was starting to go home against his will, and we were laying in bed waiting to go to sleep and Artie said, Hay Benny? and I said, What? and he said, Do you ever walk in your sleep?

No, do you? I said, and he said, No, but I'm always kind of scared I might begin some time.

That's a way I often feel, I said, and Artie said, Good night, supposing one of us just starts to begin tonight

O well if they do they'll proberly wake the other one up, and we'll both go back to sleep, I said, and Artie said, Only G roozlem suppose it's contagious and we both start walking in our sleep together, what then? Holey smokes, we're libel to be out in the middle of the street in our pidjammers before we know it, and we might even be arrested, he said.

Being a fierse idea to think of, and I said, Well I know, I'll tie my ankle to yours, and then we're bound to wake each other up no matter what happens.

And I reached out to the chair and got my necktie and tied our ankles together with it and we went to sleep, sleeping pretty good under the circumstances, and this morning after pop called us about 5 times we woke up and untyed ourselfs, and we were eating breakfist and ma said, For land sakes what is this, a yawning contest? I declare, Willyum, for the past 5 minutes these 2 boys have been yawning like a volcanic eruption, she said, and I said, Well gosh, ma, jimminy pop, I guess maybe we need more sleep.

The result being they wanted to know why, the result being they sent us back to bed for the rest of the morning, only not both to the same bed.

"SIMON BOLIVAR" SURVIVORS REST IN ENGLISH HOSPITAL

A scene in Bartholomew hospital, Harwich, showing injured passengers and members of the crew of the Netherlands passenger steamer Simon Bolivar, playing cards after their injuries had been treated. The steamer struck a mine in the North Sea and sank, 16 miles off Harwich. It is estimated that between 85 and 100 passengers lost their lives. About 300 were rescued. According to an announcement made by the British Admiralty, the liner struck a floating German mine.

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, Nov. 22 — (Special)—Latest rumors circulating indicate that A. A. Farrar has thrown his hat in Trenton's political ring and will ask voters to elect him to the Chief Magistrate's chair when election day comes round. Mr. Farrar's entry into the mayoralty race would enlarge the field to three positive candidates for the mayor's position. Mayor H. R. Cory has announced that he is in the field for re-election and O. G. Alyea recently told the Press that he would definitely oppose Mr. Cory the present mayor. All three candidates have refrained from making pre-nomination statements and there is little doubt of any definite comment until after Friday when candidates for mayor and council will go to the municipal office to submit their qualifications.

Roaring eastward at over 200 miles an hour two Fairy Battle bombers straffed floating targets at the R.C.A.F. bombing range at Weller's Point near Consecon. The first machine gunning practice was carried out last Wednesday following a month's lay-off. The big bombers from the Trenton Air Station left their base and roared south-westward to the practice range. There they dived, zoomed and repeated the operation time and time again, always hurling a volley of hot lead at their objectives in the water. The rat-tat-tat of the rapid firing machine guns could be heard a mile away and fishermen at the Point say that the ducks leave that section of the bay as soon as the planes start their straffing operations in the morning. Farther out in the Lake lies a huge floating target which is the object of the dive bombers whose war-time job it is to strike and cripple vulnerable points, namely open harbours and munition factories. The Air Force are using smoke bombs in practice, but they look real enough, when they send up a cloud of black smoke after hitting their goal. Officials at the Weller's Point bombing range are very strict since actual machine gun practice got underway and anyone within the vicinity of the range either on the land or on the water is warned to keep away from the danger zone before activities commence.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma started to look in the telephone book, saying to pop, Somebody told me about a shop that's practically giving away silk stockings to show their disapproval of Japan, and I'm going to look up the address. The trouble is, I've forgotten the name, she said.

I can see where that would make it more difficult, pop said, and ma said, Packing, it has something to do with packing, I know that much because as soon as Maud Hews told me I used my unfailing memory system and hooked up the name with the word packing. What does packing made you think of, Willym? she said.

It makes me think of ducking unobtrusively out of site, pop said, and ma said, Packing, packing, string, paper, carry. Carrie might be the first name, but Carrie what? she said.

Carry on, you're proberly nowhere near it, pop said, and ma said, Parcel, bundle, wrap. Rapp, I've heard of people named Rapp, I'll look under the Rapps, she said.

Look under the rugs, you're libel to find almost anything, pop said.

Rapp, here are the Rapps, Arthur, B. Lawrence, David, Dora, there's no hosiery shop under the Rapps, and no wonder, because the name is Post, I knew it would come to me, the system is unfailing, ma said, and pop said, Well what in the blazing mischiff has Post got to do with packing?

It has something to do with mailing, hasn't it? ma said. That was really the word, mailing, and thinking of packing naturelly reminded me, because you often mail what you pack, don't you? ma said, and pop said, By gollie, it's a great system if you can afford the time.

And he got in back of the sporting page with his cigar.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

THOMPSON, MIKEL NAMED IN MAYORALTY

32 Are Nominated For Council Seats; Duff Acclaimed

Mayor Bone, Retiring After 2 Years, Deplores Economic Condition of People, Many of Whom He Declares Are Paupers—States That Much Has Been Accomplished in Tax Reduction

ALD. THOMPSON BRIEF

Will Stand on His Record of Service in Council He Announces — Ex - Mayor Mikel Advocates Abolition of Senate, National Lottery and Selection of Legislators by Municipal Councils

With W. C. Mikel, master in chanciery, intimating at the municipal nominations for mayor, alderman, school trustees and public utilities commissionership, held in the City Hall Council Chambers today, that he would withdraw his name from the mayoralty lists, acclamation for the only other name presented, that of Alderman Glencoe E. Thompson, looms as a strong possibility.

Mayor Jamieson Bone, who has held the mayoral reins during the past two years did not offer his name.

Nominations for the office of Chief Magistrate took place between the hours of ten and eleven with nominees addressing the proverbial handful of city taxpayers that were in attendance, after nomination closed.

Chairman of the Parks Board, W. A. Woodley, acted as chairman for the mayoral nominations. He deplored the lack of enthusiasm on the part of taxpayers in municipal affairs as evidenced by the small atendance. He urged those present to "select men who will work the best in the interests of the city.

Much Accomplished Says Mayor Bone

Mayor Jamieson Bone, called by the chair to address the meeting told the gathering that due to his nomination for a seat in the Federal Government, he would have no time to devote to the affairs of the municipality.

"We have accomplished a great deal during the past two years we have sat in council," he said, "but there still remained a great many problems of evil that should be changed." He felt depressed, he said, that so many things were admittedly wrong, chief among them being the question of municipal taxation. "We have received briefs from organizations of all parts of the country urging that the system be changed."

"I am perhaps presuming," Mayor Bone said, "but both men who have been nominated are capable of looking after the job."

Deplores Condition of People

He deplored the present condition of the country. "During my visits to many parts of the province I am convinced that 75% of the people are paupers," he said, "and unless something is done to remedy the situation, they will remain that way. I don't intend to spend the next twenty-five years of my life, in a country that is doing nothing to better itself."

"After the war is out of the way," Mayor Bone said, "I am going to adopt a more strenuous attitude toward doing something to alleviate the present deplorable conditions that exist."

Mr. Mikel Advocates Senate Abolition

Ex-Mayor W. C. Mikel in his address to the taxpayers present said he agreed with the Mayor in his views regarding taxation being unbearable. He suggested that a national lottery, abolition of Senate "that costs the country $500,000 yearly and is not worth five cents"; the placing of high-salaried "stay-at-home" people on soldier's pay, and the selection of legislators by city and county councils, "thus eliminating the huge election costs" would be some of the methods by which the tax-burden could be lightened.

He further suggested that in future municipal nominations be held in the evening to give those taxpayers who can not attend in the daytime, a chance to attend the function.

Ald. Thompson Speaks Briefly

Alderman Glencoe Thompson was very brief in his remarks. He thanked those who placed his name in nomination. "Most people know my platform, after my five years in city council," he said, "and if they see fit to elect me, I will sincerely appreciate their support."

A resolution of appreciation of the efforts of Mayor Jamieson Bone "his good qualities, thrift and savings to the taxpayers while in office for the past two years was moved by J. A. Kerr and seconded by Ray Zufelt. The resolution received the unanimous endorsation of those present.

Alderman Thompson's nomination was moved and seconded by Aldermen A. McLean Haig and E. Ormonde Butler, while that of Mr. Mikel bore the names of J. Exley and P. G. Mills as mover and seconder respectively.

32 Named For Aldermen.

Thirty-two ratepayers of this city were nominated for the office of Aldermen for the ensuing year and many of that number qualified before the nomination closed before City Clerk J. Wilfrid Holmes ensuring an election for the thirteen aldermanic seats in the council. The election will be held on Dec. 4. There was only one nomination for Public Utilities Commissioner and Morley P. Duff was given an acclamation for that office when nominations closed. A large number were nominated for the position of school trustee, five of which are to be elected and it is expected there will be no election.

Nomination day passed off very quietly here and when the nominations closed there were only three persons in the council chamber, the City Clerk, one ratepayer and a news reporter. Besides an election for council, there will be two questions

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Keeping warm! Now that winter is about here, keeping warm is a major problem. If a house is tightly built, that is, has no cracks for the cold outside air to get in and the warm inside air to get out much is accomplished. But, in addition, means must be used to prevent the heat energy of the inside air and walls to flow outward through walls and roof. The best heat insulators are fluids. Air is one of the best, but to be effective it should be confined in very small pockets so it will not circulate. There are many insulating materials for buildings and everyone knows how effective fur and wool are for body warmth. These are good insulators because they contain innumerable cavities or dead air spaces.

Sinus Operations Cure Many Cases Of Blindness Says Medical Assoc.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 24 (AP)—Sinus operations, greatly feared by many sufferers from sinus trouble, are curing many cases of blindness.

The results of draining the sinuses far back in the head occur when there has been interference between them and the optic nerve due to infection, Dr. James B. Costen of St. Louis, Mo., told members of the Southern Medical Association at one of its closing sessions today.

In a series of thirteen cases studied, both sudden blindness and progressive blindness were found, with some patients reporting spots before their eyes, blurring, bleeding from the nose, tonsil infections, and headaches.

Drainage or flushing of the remote sinuses in the middle of the head brought about complete or partial improvement in ten of the thirteen cases, Dr. Costen said. The operations relieved both pressure on the optic nerve and infection of the sinuses.

Destruction of the optic nerve occurs very quickly in many interior sinus infections, Dr. Costen added, and in cases where the eye is involved the sinuses should be drained, and tonsils and bad teeth removed promptly.

WAR TO BE WAR UPON THE SEA, DREW PREDICTS

Type of War That Prevents Germany from Moving Will Destroy Hitler

WAR IMPLEMENTS

Col. Drew Sees Canada as Greatest Air Power in the World

Toronto, Nov. 24 (CP)—"The type of war which does not permit Germany to move is best suited to our purpose," Lt.-Col. George Drew declared last night. "We are fighting the kind of war that will destroy Hitler."

The Ontario Conservative leader addressed 800 officials and guests at York County banquet to its 78th Warden, Gordon Harris, Reeve of Weston.

Hitler, Col. Drew said, would have to show the German people a major land victory to hold them together through the winter. "This war," he predicted, "will be won on the sea."

He saw Canada as the future great air power of the world and predicted a combination of sea and air strength of Britain and Canada "which can preserve forever, that freedom and decency we're fighting for today."

Canada's Place in Air

The air is the place where Canada can make her greatest contribution, Col. Drew declared. He reiterated his proposal to put unemployment men to work building airports and learning the maintenance and duties of these airports. This, he said, should be done with an eye to the peace of the future, "when we will be in the air what Great Britain is on the sea."

It disgusted him, the speaker said, to hear people voicing disappointment at "this strange war and the lack of action." Such persons, he said, could be compared to the audience at a prize fight yell-

Germany Claims Three Aircraft Are Shot Down

Berlin, Nov. 24 —(AP)— The High Command today claimed German forces had brought down three Allied aircraft—two British and one French—and that German fliers had returned unharmed from "frequent air fights" with the enemy.

"In the west there was livelier scouting and artillery activity," the communique said.

"The air force continued reconnaissance activity over French territory. Frequent air fights ensued between enemy chasers and German pursuit planes protecting reconnaissance planes and the border region.

"One English plane was shot down over Verdun and one over Saarbruecken and one French plane was brought down by antiaircraft at Zweibrucken."

MORE LAUGHS WANTED

Chicago, Nov. 24—(AP)—Victor Moore, who soon will celebrate his 64th birthday anniversary and his 50th year in the theatre, believes that the people are more laugh-hungry now than they have ever been in his long career as a comedian.

"Specially the kids," he said in an interview. "They want to laugh and are not much concerned about what they are laughing at. But the older folks are pretty much the same way: a lot of them seem to be liking more kinds of humor."

Two Britons Seized By Nazis on Nov. 9th On Mission of Peace

Stevens and Best Acted with Knowledge of British Gov't. in Going to German - Netherlands Border to Receive "Peace Proposals"

RECEIVED INVITATION

London, Nov. 24 (CP)—The Daily Mail's diplomatic correspondent said today that the two Britons seized by the German Gestapo Nov. 9 acted with the knowledge of the British government in going to the German-Netherlands border to receive German "peace proposals."

In a similar statement, the Ministry of Information in a statement said, the proposal for peace negotiations "had come solely from the German side" and that "the British subjects concerned had done no more than convey proposals made from the German side of their authorities. . . ."

For some time, The Daily Mail writer said, Captain Richard Henry Stevens and Sigismund Payne Best had been in communication with highly placed Germans and on Nov. 9 they received an invitation to meet a German envoy at Venloo, on the border.

The correspondent said that at no time did they convey any British proposals to their German contacts. He said Stevens and Best were acting "merely as postmen" without power to commit the British government.

Two Agents Held by Germans on Charges Arising Out of Attempt on Hitler's Life in Munich Beer Hall — Were Kidnapped by Gestapo in Holland

HAVE 'CONFESSION'

Berlin, Nov. 24— (AP)—Captain Richard Henry Stevens, held as a British agent on charges of direct connection with an attempt on Adolf Hitler's life, was represented by German officials today as also a director of "pre-war sabotage" against German, Italian and Japanese shipping.

Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer, Beobachter, said Stevens, who has been identified by the Gestapo as Chief of British Intelligence for Western Europe, had "confessed" he used an emigrant German, Waldemar Poetzsch, in plots to wreck ships.

(Stevens and a companion were kidnapped by the Gestapo in the Netherlands November 8, and taken to Germany where they are held as prisoners. The British Ministry of Information last night said the men went to the Dutch frontier "to receive yet further German Peace proposals.)

Stevens was said to have told Gestapo questioners that the sabotage campaign was planned in a Secret Service office in London, on the ground floor of the "Broadway Building".

MONETARY AND DEFENCE SYSTEMS CLOSELY RELATED

This is Opinion of Premier Hepburn Given to Aylmer Audience

SYSTEM OUTWORN

Aylmer, Ont., Nov. 23 — (CP)—Monetary systems and defence systems, in the opinion of Premier Mitchel Hepburn, are closely related.

"It is a peculiar thing," the Ontario Premier said last night, "that the countries with the rubber money have the strong armies, while the countries with the rubber monfinancial positions have rubber armies."

In the totalitarian countries money is but a utility, Mr. Hepburn said. Before the war the democracies allowed millions of men to remain on public charity while Germany ended unemployment by putting men to work at war preparations, he asserted.

"While Germany was making herself a mighty military power, we sought to preserve a monetary system that is now outworn," he said. "While Germany shook off its burden of old war debts, today we enter a second war with our debts from the last war and interest pyramided."

CITY OF NANNING TAKEN BY JAPAN REPORT STATES

On Route Between Central Chinese Gov't's. Highway and Supply Links With French Indo-China

LAID BY KAI-SHEK

Tokyo, Nov. 24 (CP)—The occupation of Nanning, said the Domei dispatch, was completed at 2:10 p.m. (12:10 a.m., EST.)

Nanning lies about 80 miles north of the point on the South China coast where a landing in force was started on Nov. 15, and is on the route toward the Central Chinese Government's highway and railway supply links with French Indo-China and British Burma.

It is a city of about 68,000 population, a treaty port under an 1897 agreement between China and Great Britain.

Reports by way of Honk Kong had told of stiff Chinese resistance while Japanese planes loosed mixed cargoes of bombs and propaganda pamphlets on the city. Two days ago the Japanese were reported to have reached the South Bank of the Pearl or West River, 10 miles from Nanning.

Propaganda is an auxiliary weapon in Germany's sea warfare. The aim of the campaign is to isolate Great Britain, interrupt the movement of British trade along the sea-lanes, cause want and hardship among the British people and turn neutral trade away from the United Kingdom.

A part of the auxiliary propaganda is the Nazi claim to domination of the North Sea. It, like other propagandist efforts, is designed to discourage neutral ships from attempting to reach British ports.

This particular claim, however, lacks substantiation when the Germans fail to explain why the City of Flint, while under German control, hugged Norwegian territorial waters on its interrupted trip from Murmansk, Russia, towards a German port. Nor is the fact the German fishing fleets have been deprived of their North Sea catch consistent with German claims of mastery of these waters.

Germans must go short on their fish eating. Meantime British fish supplies are plentiful and British housewives are urged to take advantage of low prices.

The propaganda side of the sea campaign is carried on also by German agents in neutral countries who spread exaggerated stories and seek to persuade crews to refuse to sail.

BRITAIN CALLS ON SCIENTISTS AND FISHERMEN

Will Help to Cope With Germany's Mine Warfare Termed 'Extremely Grave Menace'

BRITISH SHIP SUNK

German Planes Fly Over Shetland Islands and One British Flying Boat Bombed

(By J F Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 24—(CP-Cable)—Britain turned to the scientist in his laboratory and the fisherman in overalls today in her fight to cope with Germany's mine warfare, which a naval authority termed an "extremely grave menace."

Officials said they had been unsuccessful in bringing one of Germany's magnetic mines to the surface for inspection and until they do they are seriously handicapped.

Meanwhile explosive experts and electrical experts, all sorts of scientists, are kept busy trying to find a counter-weapon for Germany's latest underwater menace.

More than two hundred German mines have been washed up on the coast of Yorkshire, North Eastern England, it was officially announced tonight. These will be examined for some clue to the new Nazi weapon.

Meanwhile, mines off England's east coast sank another British vessel today, the 8,886-ton Steamship Mangalore.

German planes flew over the Shetland Islands again, causing two air raid warnings, one of 90 minutes and the other of 42. These islands, off the north coast of Scotland, were bombed Wednesday when the only loss was a British flying boat which was fired by a bomb.

Netherlands Tanker Sunk.

In addition to the Mangalore, whose crew of 77 was saved, the sinking of the 5,133-ton Netherlands tanker Sliedrecht by a submarine a week ago was disclosed today when five survivors were landed at a northwest coast port. Twenty-six crewmen were missing.

(The Mangalore was the 83rd British vessel, naval and merchant, lost since the start of the war.)

The Press Association said Britain's order-in-council calling for the seizure of all German exports might be put into effect next Tuesday.

Trawlermen have intensified their efforts—the most dangerous job in the navy—of sweeping the sea lanes on which Britain depends for food.

May Find Counter-Weapon.

Naval authorities, while admitting the exceedingly great menace Adolf Hitler's "secret weapon" is proving to be, are convinced that a counter-weapon will be found. Experiments are being made with different sorts of sweeps, net and paravanes, but the chief handicap at the moment is the inability of experts to examine the mine.

Whether the mine is magnetic, one that explodes by the magnetic field produced by a ship passing over it, or acoustic, one which explodes by the sound of a ship's propellers, or a combination of both types, is not known and will not be known until one is lifted from the bottom of the sea and taken to pieces, naval authorities say.

German Attack on Netherlands Called Off 4 Hours Before Schedule

By PAUL RISLER
Havas Writer

Belgrade, Nov. 24—(CP Havas)—Adolf Hitler sent a telegram calling off a German attack on the Netherlands a scant four hours before it was scheduled to start Nov. 12, this correspondent learned today on good authority.

An absolutely reliable source confirmed to me the following story:—

Hitler decided early in the month to invade the Netherlands, choosing Sunday, Nov. 12, as the date. The Munich bomb exploded on Wednesday, Nov. 8.

On the morning of Nov. 9, arriving in Berlin from Munich, Hitler called together the five generals who form what Nazi officers call his private general staff.

Colonel-General Walther Von Reichenau called attention to reports that the visit of King Leopold of the Belgians to The Hague meant Belgium would aid the Netherlands should that country be attacked.

Hitler did not seem bothered by this, and instructed Von Reichenau to complete preparations for the offensive by the evening of Nov. 11.

The "private general staff" met again on the morning of Nov. 11. Again Von Reichenau emphasized new reports that Belgium would support the Netherlands. He said he was ready to obey orders but in case of a failure he would invite death at the head of his troops.

Then Colonel-General Walther von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the army, spoke for the first time. In the name of the assembled generals, he said he could not assume responsibility for the proposed operation.

Hitler maintained his previous orders but during the night—without consulting again with anyone—he sent a telegram withdrawing the order to attack, only four hours before the fixed time.

Reports Show Fine Work of French Navy in Disposing of German Underseas Craft

Paris, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Allies reported today continuing triumphs in aerial combat on the Western Front as the war turned skyward in a manner reminiscent of the dog-fights of the last war.

In contrast with the grim, waiting game on the ground, the French said that their aviators shot down 11 German aircraft in the past three days.

Dispatches from Royal Air Force headquarters in France said British fliers destroyed nine German planes in two days.

(Germany also reported an increase in aerial warfare but disputed the results. News Agency reports in Berlin said German fighters shot down five planes with one German loss in six separate encounters over northwestern France in the past two days.)

Holland-Amerika Liner Statendam Sails for New York

Rotterdam, the Netherlands, Nov. 24—(AP) — The Holland-Amerika Liner Statendam sailed for New York today with 1,200 passengers, including 175 Americans.

Officials of the line said the Statendam carried no German cargo.

Her sailing came with the resumption of restricted shipping 24 hours after Netherlands Lines suspended operations on the advice of the Government: The limited traffic still excludes calls at British ports in the mine-laden North Sea area.

The Netherlands Government announced at The Hague yesterday that it had protested to the British Government against is decision to seize German exports on neutral ships and the Belgian Government prepared a similar protest.

Boats to Use Port Of West Saint John

Halifax, Nov. 24 (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Steamships, in a circular mailed to importers and exporters, anounces its ships will not call at Halifax this winter but will use the port of West Saint John, N.B., "exclusively."

Passenger and freight ships of the line have called here in past years during the winter season, when the St. Lawrence River was closed to navigation. A 10-year agreement with the Canadian National Railways, providing for these callings, expired this year.

Charge of Wounding After Alleged Attack

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 24 (CP)—Alex Anderson, 20, was arrested today and a nominal charge of wounding was laid against him as a result of an alleged attack with an axe on his sister-in-law, Mrs. Grace Anderson, 19.

Mrs. Anderson is in a critical condition in the hospital, suffering from fractures of the skull and nose and with two fingers on the left hand broken.

According to the police, Mrs. Anderson was visiting at the home of her mother-in-law, where Anderson lives. She was holding her month-old baby on the chesterfield when he allegedly attacked her with an axe. Police say he can give no reason for the attack, which occurred after he had been cutting firewood.

Police said they do not believe the charge will be pressed.

Air Raid Alarms Sound in Shetlands

London, Nov. 24 (CP)—Air raid alarms were sounded twice today in the Shetland Islands, off the northeastern Scottish coast.

The first alarm lasted an hour and a half, the second 42 minutes. First reports did not indicate whether there had been an actual raid.

MOTIVE NOT DISCLOSED

London, Nov. 24 (CP)—Investigators failed today to discover any motive for the shotgun death of Sir William Reid, former Acting Governor of Assam Province, India, and Lady Reid.

The bodies were found yesterday near Sir William's rural home near Portsmouth, where the couple had lived almost wholly to themselves for the past 12 years. Both had died of shot gun wounds. They had been missing since going for a walk Tuesday. Sir William was 68 years old and Lady Reid was 61.

Northumberland Native, D. A. Hogg, Dies

Orangeville, Ont., Nov. 24—(CP)—D. A. Hogg, 73, well-known coal merchant, died suddenly at his home here yesterday.

Mr. Hogg was born in Baltimore, Northumberland County, Ont., and in 1900 came to Orangeville. For several years he managed the Canadian Pacific Railways restaurant here. In 1916, he entered the coal business. He was widely known in harness horse racing circles and had acted as judge and timer at many Ontario tracks. He was a member of First Avenue United Church. Surviving are his wife, two daughters and two sons

KILLED ON MOTORCYCLE

Brooklin, Ont., Nov. 24—(CP)—David M. Rae of Claremont was killed, when the motorcycle he was riding was in collision with a car allegedly driven by Ross Dinsey, Locust Hill, today. D. Connelly, a passenger on the motorcycle, received severe cuts and concussion, but Dr. W. Baldwin said his condition was not serious.

CHARGE OF ARSON LAID AGAINST TWEED FARMHAND

Rupert Stewart, Tweed, Says He Set Fire to Clarence Graham's Barn, Police Declare

OFFENCE IN 1938

Walking into the Belleville police station last evening, because his conscience had been bothering him, he said, 35-year-old Rupert Stewart, Tweed, confessed to setting fire to a barn owned by Clarence Graham of Thomasburg, on April 15th, 1938, Provincial Police revealed today.

The fire destroyed a large barn, chattels and 30 head of cattle, sheep and hogs along with five horses and the loss was estimated at well over $12,000.00. Following the fire in the spring of 1938 the cause of the blaze was thoroughly investigated by the Fire Marshal's Department of the Province of Ontario and said at the time to have been caused by grain thieves, who had carelessly tossed matches to ignite the blaze.

Stewart was questioned by the Provincial Police at the time, but denied any knowledge of the fire, despite the fact he was present and assisted in the fighting of the blaze. It was during the questioning by the O.P.P. in 1938, however, that Stewart admitted to a theft charge that had been puzzling police at that time. Stewart received a year in the reformatory after being convicted of the theft count, however.

Stewart has been employed by a farmer near Tweed for the past few months, but told Sergeant H. E. Thompson and Constable W. E. Smith yesterday that his conscience had been bothering him for some considerable time. On Wednesday last Stewart journeyed to Toronto and tried to enlist in the Canadian army, but was rejected as he was too short, his height being given at four feet nine inches.

Today Stewart was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded in custody and without bail on a charge of arson. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. revealed after reviewing the confession, that Provincial Constable W. E. Smith is said to have taken from the accused man.

"I had a grudge against Graham and one night I decided to set fire to his barn. I climbed into the loft and set the straw on fire and left. After I had walked a distance from the barn, I started to repent and stopped at a farmhouse and told them Graham's barn was on fire. After collecting two or tree more men, I went back to help fight the fire but by the time we got back the barn was a mass of flames and nothing could be done about it," Stewart said in his confession, police declared.

President Expresses Hope by Next Year There'll be no War

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 24—(AP) — President Roosevelt had hopes today the world would be rid of war by next spring but gave no indication he believed those hopes actually would be fulfilled.

In an informal talk at a Thanksgiving dinner at the Infantile Paralysis Foundation last night Mr. Roosevelt voiced the offhand hope that by next spring "there won't be any war."

"If it still is going on," he added, "he hoped to return next spring at least for a few days, to see how Warm Springs' family is getting on."

Mr. Roosevelt reminded the Foundation patients and their guests that when he left here last April he had said he would be back this fall "if we don't have a war."

"Well, we had a war," he went on. "We have a war today. Columns were written about what I meant and I meant just what I said.. We have a war, but I managed to get down here this fall."

"You know," he said, "I'm in favor of war, I'm very much in favor of war—the kind of war we've been conducting here at Warm Springs."

That kind of war, Mr. Roosevelt continued, is spreading all over the country. "It is a war," he said, "against the crippling of men and women and especially children."

OBITUARY

JAMES MONTGOMERY (Stirling)

Stirling, Nov. 24—(Special)—On Thursday there passed away in Stirling in his seventy-ninth year James Montgomery, life long resident of the district and widely known throughout the county. Death followed an illness of four weeks' duration.

Born in Rawdon Township, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Montgomery, he resided in Rawdon until twenty years ago when he moved to Stirling. In religion he was a staunch and faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Charlotte Duncan, two sons, Duncan Montgomery, Stirling, J. R. Montgomery of Windsor, Ontario, one daughter (Ada) Mrs. R. Bush, Sidney Township, one brother, Thomas Montgomery, Stirling, and three sisters, Mrs. Agnes Geary, Toronto, Mrs. Alma Jacoby, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. W. Seeley, Saginaw, Mich. There are also six grand-children.

The funeral will take place on Sunday with services conducted by Rev. W. H. V. Walker, two p.m. at the residence and two-thirty at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Interment will be made in Stirling cemetery.

POLICE COURT

"Drunk is described in the English dictionary as being in a state of intoxication, which in turn means saturated and given to excessive drinking, but I do not feel this young man was in that condition. He may have been drinking and feeling good, as the saying goes, but I cannot register a conviction against him at this time," stated Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., as he gave his definition of intoxication after which he dismissed a local young man from custody who had been arrested on a charge of "drunk driving" some weeks ago and appeared for trial today.

Roger Dafoy, Montreal, was sentenced to serve not less than three months nor more than six in the Ontario Reformatory after the accused had been convicted of taking a motor car without the owner's consent. A second charge of reckless driving brought a month's term to run concurrent with the former.

Dafoy and a lady companion had secured a ride with a Michigan motorist as hitch-hikers, but upon arrival in Belleville Dafoy took his benefactor's motor car as the owner was procuring a meal in a nearby restaurant. City police apprehended him.

Miss Cecile Lajotte, who was in company with Dafoy, appeared on a charge of being in the illegal possession of narcotics, contrary to the Dominion Narcotic Act. Crown Attorney B.C. Donnan, K.C., stated he would enter no evidence against the accused and the charge was dismissed.

"I am informed by the Narcotic squad that the pills found in this woman's possession are not considered narcotics, but merely used as a sleeping potion," revealed Mr. Donnan.

"Apparently they are not dope," added Magistrate Butler, K.C., as he dismissed the woman.

Floyd Woods, Belleville, appeared charged with breaking and entering the premises of John Shannon and stealing therefrom a sum of money. His case was enlarged until Dec. 1st at the request of his counsel, Jacob Goodman. Woods was held pending bail.

Dr. Welsh, M.P.P., Receives Letter On Moving of Thurlow Fish Hatchery

D.J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, Dept. of Ontario Gov't., Makes Reply to Protests of Local Member for East Hastings

QUESTION OF ECONOMY

The following letter from D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of the Department of Game and Fisheries for the Province of Ontario and addressed to Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P. for East Hastings, was presented to The Ontario-Intelligencer by Dr. Welsh at last night's annual meeting of the Thurlow Conservative Association.

The letter deals specifically with the moving of the Belleville Fish Hatchery to Glenora and was received in reply to a letter previously written to the Department protesting the closing of the local hatchery. The letter reads:

Game & Fisheries Department
Office of the Deputy Minister
Toronto 2.
October 17, 1939.

Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P.,
Roslin, Ontario.

Dear Dr. Welsh:

Following our conversation of a recent date, in which you vigorously protested the closing of the commercial fish hatchery at Belleville, I feel it advisable to point out to you in detail by letter some of the reasons why the Department's action in this respect can be undertaken without detrimental effect to the commercial fishing, or any distribution to inland lakes of game fish that may have been done from this point, and yet materially reduce the cost of operating this hatchery unnecessarily — a request that has been made of all branches of the Government during the present unfortunate period.

By a transfer of the equipment at present in the Belleville hatchery to Glenora, where we have a building in good state of repair and recent construction, the Department feels it will be in a position to hatch approximately the same amount of eggs as we are at present doing in these two hatcheries, and that this work can be carried on with one staff. The condition of docks, and other various equipment necessary to successfully carry on at the Belleville hatchery, necessitated a considerable expenditure on repairs. This can also profitably be avoided.

It so happens that in the near future the hatchery manager at Port Arthur will reach the period of superannuation, thereby giving us an opportunity to take care of the services of Mr. Manore, the present manager at Belleville, by transferring him to Port Arthur. The Department will also make every effort to take care of those that were temporarily employed over a considerable period at Belleville.

We can assure you that the waters of that section will not in any way be deprived of the distribution of the various classes of fish fry, that has been customary to place in same, by the closing of this hatchery. This work will be carried on as efficiently as in the past, and at a much less cost to the tax-paying public.

Yours very truly,
D. J. TAYLOR.

Letter to the Editor

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
City.

Dear Sir,—

At this time last year our present Aldermen were asking the support of the Electors, with no mention of remuneration, but in the middle of their term of office they decided that they wanted $5.00 a meeting for both committee and regular Council meetings, and further they wanted it from the first of the year and got it.

This should be decided by the people at election time but the people didn't have a chance. Now what have the citizens of Belleville received from this council in the way of service

Some properties have been sold for an amount, less than one year's taxes, one house was sold for $75.00, while the Relief office was offering to pay $10 per month for a family on relief, who cannot locate a house.

The reassessment has not produced the results expected, and I have not read of any tangible results from the audit of city's books. We already had an active auditor and a good one.

This council are asking the people to vote on a bylaw that isn't worth the paper it is written on, it is a poor policy to antagonize the provincial government. We cannot expect favorable consideration of local problems when we take that attitude.

I expect on nomination day, that we will have enough public spirited men offer themselves for office, who will state publicly that they will serve the city without remuneration.

Thanking you for your valued space,

Yours truly
E. D. Finkle,
267 Foster Ave.

'War on the Economic Front' Theme of Talk Heard by Study Club

The Belleville Lecture and Study Club inaugurated its 1939 series of lectures on Thursday evening in the Collegiate Library, when Dr. Wm. McIntosh of Queen's University addressed the club on the timely subject "War on the Economic Front."

Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, President of the Club was in the chair and welcomed new members to both the lectures and the study groups of the Club.

Professor McIntosh, head of the Department of Political Science at Queen's University and well known in Belleville, gave an address, which, while technical in nature, was expressed in a way to be clear to even the most casual student and of absorbing interest to all who are concerned about the problem of Canada's financing of a war.

Both in his introduction and conclusion, Dr. McIntosh made it clear that all modern war is an economic waste and that no people of reason would ever engage in a war, except for intangible ends. War on the economic front then becomes a question of methods and means, not of aims and objects.

Efforts of Entire Population Needed

A twentieth century war engages all the efforts of an entire population, and contradicts the popular slogan of "Business as usual." In fact, all the resources, equipment and man power of a country are nowadays diverted to war effort in a way unknown in the nineteenth century. To what degree this diversion can take place without sacrifice of the peace time requirements of a nation is a question which each country solves in a different way. In countries with great resources, unemployed men and equipment and a high standard of living, like Canada, this can be accomplished without too much suffering. The dislocation of peacetime industry, at the beginning and at the end of a war period was deemed inevitable, but not so apparent just now, since war on the economic front really began in 1937.

Must Be Paid For

Dr. McIntosh made it clear that wars have to be paid for, that the equipment and the munitions have to be provided for in the present and the distribution of the cost over the population, and its income is the question left to our decision.

Wars may be financed by taxation or by borrowing. Ideally taxation is the better way, but few governments have adequate tax systems to meet emergencies. As an example Dr. McIntosh cited Canada's pitifully inadequate tax machinery in 1914. Even after the imposition of the Income and War Profits Taxes in 1917, it was not until 1925 that these taxes were efficiently collected, due to the lack of trained personnel.

Evils of Inflationary Borrowing

Borrowing as the alternative to taxation was discussed. The evils of inflationary borrowing were pointed out, and this method condemned as being planless and unjust, placing the burden often upon the sections of the population least able to bear it.

Turning to another phase of War on the Economic Front, Dr. McIntosh contrasted the economic position of the belligerents in this war with that of 1914. The great contest would come in the ability to maintain supplies of steel and oil. Germany is greatly handicapped here and dependent on Sweden, Roumania and Russia. Our scarcity will be in skilled labour, due to the lack of training during the depression.

Foresees No Food Scarcities as in 1914

On the other hand, Dr. McIntosh did not vizualize the same food scarcity as in 1914 due to the fact that the great food producing countries of Europe are in this war neutral and to the fact that shipping is not subject to the same pressure. The possibility of a boom in Canadian food products was unexpected due to the fact that Britain through diplomatic necessity must buy in large quantities from the Scandinavian and Danubian countries. Rival purchase is an economic weapon, which coupled with blockade, and prevention of enemy credits and even enemy export, will do much to win the war.

The speaker pointed out the evils of a spurious prosperity based on a war time boom, and the difficulties of readjustment of over-stimulated industries—giving as an example the over production of Canadian wheat due to the last war.

In conclusion Dr. McIntosh returned to the warning that war is never an economic gain and that as on the opinion of ancient Scottish forbears, liberty is the one worth while thing for which a rational people may fight.

The many pertinent questions asked in the discussion period bore testimony to the interest and careful attention with which the large audience had listened to the address. (Contributed).

Commencement Exercises At Stirling High School

Stirling, Nov. 24 (Special)—An all time record for numbers in the history of the Stirling theatre was set up on Thursday evening, Nov. 23. The stage room was packed to capacity with eager students and the main auditorium was hardly sufficient to hold the large audience. Chairs were added to the already filled theatre seats and it was thought by many that a second performance would be well patronized by those who failed to gain entrance.

Mr. J. L. Good, B.A., principal of the school, welcomed those present on behalf of the student body and teaching staff and introduced Mr. Walter Wright, chairman of the Stirling Board of Education who briefly addressed the gathering on behalf of the board.

At the presentation ceremonies which followed each student responded to the call of Mr. Good and the presentation was made by Mr. Wright. At the conclusion of this part of the ceremony Mr. Richard Chard who set an unusual record by carrying off the first Carter scholarship for the County of Hastings, valued at $100.00; Toronto University Alumni scholarship, value $700; Hon. J. R. Cooke scholarship, value $50; and also the Alger Shield, displayed some of the knowledge stored within his mind in delivering the valedictory address. Mr. Chard is now furthering his academic training at Toronto University. The school, the district and the entire County of Hastings is proud of his fine work.

From the proceeds a liberal donation will be made to the Canadian Red Cross.

Cup donated by S. L. Lucas for academic standing and athletic proficiency, 1934-39—Ralph Richardson.

Hon. J. R. Cooke scholarship for Stirling high school (best eight papers in Upper School, value $50.00)—Richard Chard.

Toronto University Alumni Scholarship for general proficiency, value $700—Richard Chard.

First Carter Scholarship for the County of Hastings (best ten papers in Upper School including English, Geometry and Algebra), value $100—Richard Chard.

Musical and Dramatic Art.

A well balanced program which embodied gymnastics displays, drills, choruses and plays offered the largest audience ever to assemble in the Stirling Theatre a fine evening's entertainment. First of these was a display by a group of girls in rhythmic physical training. The rhythmettes climaxed a series of strenuous rehearsals with a faultless performance under the direction of Miss Doris Cooper. The group included E. West, D. West, M. Lanigan, M. Rose, M. Bush, E. Farrell, J. Campbell, S. Robson, D. Gay, M. Rogers, E. Tanner, J. Sallsbury, M. Seeley, M. Hick, D. Jandrew, K. Wright.

Courage of Mr. Green.

A one-act comedy entitled "The Courage of Mr. Green" gave opportunity for a display of dramatic ability for a carefully selected cast who acted their parts with a realism that merits mention. The cast was as follows: Mr. Smith gentleman burglar), Donald Scott; Mrs. Green, Marion Symons; Mr. Green, Morley Clarke; Minnie (the maid), Alison Vanderwater; Mr. Ramsay, Peter Simmons; prompter, Hazel Detlor; property manager, Russell West.

This very amusing comedy produced by permission of Samuel French (Canada) Limited, provided a touch of merriment which lasted throughout the entire program.

Boys' Gymnastic Display.

A fine display of gymnastic training was given by a boys' team under the direction of Mr. Mundy with the following students taking part: R. Vandervoort, J. Chard, R. Pyear, J. Walker, D. Pyear, R. Tanner, M. Richardson, D. Scott, B. McGee, D. Thompson, F. Donohue, E. Sine, D. Francis, C. Pidgeon, B. Jackman, D. McIntosh, D. Jandrew, C. Beckel, C. Baker, R. Walker.

The May Pole dance, under direction of Miss M. Walt was a display [illegible] which also delighted the audience. Girls taking part were B. Conley, B. Finkle, M. Vanderwater, A. Vanderwater, D. Mitts, M. Belshaw, D. Pidgeon, P. Pidgeon, J. Salisbury, M. Hick, H. Detlor, M. Symons.

"Plantation Days."

An outstanding feature of the evening was a musical presentation directed by Miss Workman, based on the life and music of Stephen Foster. The colorful setting was an old Kentucky home and a cast of native clad stars numbering over sixty took part including the massed chorus. Two outstanding performances in this production were those of Miss Marion Hick with her flawless tap dance and Donald Hulin's enactment of Miranda, the darkie servant. Other members of the cast proper were Joy Harding, Margaret Vanderwater, Helen Thain, Jack Walker; vocal sextette, B. Conley, J. Salisbury, M. Vanderwater, R. Tucker, D. Gay, D. West; chorus, D. Jandrew, E. Morgan, M. Ketcheson, M. Lanigan, D. Lunniss, M. Phillips, M. Rose, E. West, M. Rogers, A. Robson, S. Robson, K. Wright, E. Tanner, S. Ormiston, I. Hannah, M. Phillips, H. Brown, K. Bush, J. Dafoe, N. Sine, P. Vance, J. Barlow, H. Fitchett, L. Matthews, M. West, E. Cranston, C. Maybee, R. Dafoe, R. Thompson, E. Dafoe, M. Bateman, D. Barton, H. Bush, D. Scott, M. Clarke, D. McIntosh, F. Donohue, M. Richardson, R. Tanner, R. Vandervoort, C. Pidgeon, G. McKeown, R. Walker, B. Bastedo, D. Francis, D. Thompson, and R. Pyear.

GASTRIC PAIN EASED after 5 years agony

To suffer for 5 years from agonizing pain—and then to know relief, that is what Mr. M. Brown owes to Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. He says: "I dared not have a hot meal for fear of pains. Thanks to your remedy, I am now able to eat anything without pain or discomfort." Maclean Brand Stomach Powder contains four potent alkalies in proper balance to neutralize excess acid in the stomach. BRITAIN TO BUY STEEL FROM U. S.

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)— The British government is seeking to purchase for delivery in the near future, 200,000 tons of steel ingots and semi-finished steel in the United States market, financial sources in touch with the steel industry said today.

The dollar value of orders being placed or about to be placed was estimated at between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000. Some contracts were reported to have been closed this week.

The British government made inquiries for the same amount of steel just after the outbreak of war, based on last June's export quotations, but when leading steel companies raised export price quotations the official, (if not the prevailing) domestic level, the British offer was said to have been withdrawn from the United States market without explana[illegible]. Early this [illegible] was reported to have ordered $15,000,000 [illegible] delivery to be made over a 12-month period.

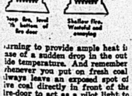
HEATING HINTS

by James Stewart

ONE mistake that a great many home owners make is in not putting enough coal on the fire. This is a false economy. A thin, skimpy fire not only burns up too fast, goes out more easily, and causes many unnecessary trips to the cellar, but it also wastes fuel.

For the most economical operation, always put on enough fuel to keep the fire-bed level with the bottom of the fire-door.

In mild weather you can leave a little heavier accumulation of ash on the grate. The fire will then burn very slowly, yet there will be sufficient fuel in the process of burning to provide ample heat in case of a sudden drop in the outside temperature. And remember whenever you put on fresh coal always leave an exposed spot of live coal directly in front of the fire-door to act as a pilot light to ignite the gases arising from the fresh coal. (5)



Keep fire, level with bottom of fire door
Shallow fire. Wasteful and annoying

TRIBULATIONS OF A TALL MAN

The other evening at a concert our short friend was bemoaning his shortness.

"If I had something of your six-foot-two this sort of thing wouldn't faze me," waving his hand eloquently towards the two amply-proportioned ladies directly in front of us. "And," he added, "they stick those funny doo-dad hats on their heads which make the blockade permanent."

So he sat and suffered in silence while we stretched our long neck and gave him a whispered running account of what was going on. In short, he might as well have been in Timbuctoo as far as seeing was concerned.

Looking back upon that occasion we must confess to a momentary sense of satisfaction at first because of our longness—but not for long. After the concert, walking down Front Street we were expanding on the detail of what our short friend had missed when—slap!—our hat was on the sidewalk. One of those numerous awnings hanging low along the street had gotten in its fell work. Ruefully we dusted off what we had regarded as a new chapeau and put the dusty remnant on our head.

Our short friend treated it as a great joke; while we protested that there should be a law against having awnings lower than seven feet above the walk. But he refused to see the seriousness of the situation and continued to chuckle all the way home.

Later on, when our temper had returned to normal, we reflected that our short friend was indicative of the vagaries of human nature. At the concert his shortness had seemed a handicap but afterwards it had proven a benefit in saving his hat from a fate similar to that of ours. So, we decided, it was best to be satisfied with whatever length nature has given us — for we can't change it anyway, as one of the Biblical prophets once sagely observed.

But we still think those awnings on Front Street should be hoisted and kept up another eight or ten inches.

SALVATION ARMY AT THE FRONT

In a town in France off so-called "Czecho-Slovakia Square" the first centre of the Salvation Army has been established for the British Tommies. This agency which is ever at work for the sake of humanity has provided facilities here for the comfort and entertainment of the troops. Reuters correspondent found in one of the two rooms about a score of soldiers drinking tea at tables for four, each with a bright clean tablecloth. In the other room half a dozen men, evidently from London were exchanging witticisms in front of a cosy fire, while others were reading and writing letters.

A S. A. officer from England is organizing the development of "Army" work in France and will use this centre as his base. Plans are being made for the extension of canteens throughout the British zone.

Three Englishwomen look after the cooking and other arrangements. One is the wife of the local S. A. adjutant, another is the wife of the gardener-caretaker of the British military cemetery and the third is her daughter.

How the centre satisfies the needs of the soldiers is evident from the fact that four or five hundred men use the place every day and most of them come to write letters home. Some nights they have a sing-song, they can listen to BBC broadcasts there, can talk, play draughts or dominoes or read. They regale themselves on bacon, eggs, potato chips, bread and butter with jam or marmalade, tea or cocoa. Two fried eggs and chip potatoes cost about six pence.

Every evening the S. A. officer conducts a brief religious service, of hymn, reading of the bible and prayer. On Sundays the army chaplain holds communion service at 8 a.m. and there is another service at 7.30 Sunday evening.

That Salvation Army sympathy for and understanding of men makes of this place a spot which is a home to them. "We are not out to ram religion down the men's throats," said the officer recently. Nothing is done to persuade the men to come to these services. Gambling is not permitted. While the Salvation Army officers do not smoke they are selling cigarettes to the men. There are forty beds for the use of soldiers in this centre.

It is not surprising that the men who go to fight for Britain's defence appreciate this wholesome service which the Salvation Army is offering.

THIS SEASON

Is this Indian Summer? It is late in the year and only a mere month from Christmas and yet the lovely days with moderate temperatures and chilly nights support the view that this is in fact the "soul" of the year as one writer has named Indian Summer. Canada has an autumn which is the admiration of the inhabitants and of tourists and other visitors but the year never seems complete without Indian Summer, that peculiar brief interlude between autumn and winter, which seems like a summary of all the attractions of autumn and in its austerity suggests that it is a sort of meditative lingering before winter sets in. If this is not Indian Summer, it closely resembles that season except for lack of haze.

WAR AIMS

Nazi aims before the outbreak of the war and the aims they still harbor are said by a Paris newspaper to be clearly shown in a paper believed official, sent to Nazis to instruct orators and organizers on what they should stress. The document which has been brought out of Germany shows the Nazis aim at re-establishment of the Reich's "linguistic and ethnical frontiers," the return of Alsace-Lorraine and annexation of parts of Holland, Belgium, Northern France, Yugoslavia and Rumania. It quotes the Polish campaign as a proof of the value of conquest in the wealth of coal, ore and some oil wells and hints at what can be secured from the northwest of Europe. These instructions also hint that without these conquests Germany could never face Russia alone. As might be expected Britain is singled out as always "tending to starve the German people" and there is pointed the need of assuring Germany's future by procuring as much arable land as necessary to face a permanent blockade from abroad.

This is doubtless an authentic document and it but confirms what has been clear to Britain and France and to the numerous neutral states that Germany is out to grab whatever she can get her hands on, regardless of the rights of other peoples. The Nazi Government which can order indiscriminate scattering of loose mines along the route taken by neutral shipping and send innocent men, women and children to their deaths, would find nothing more pleasant to their taste than to capture lands which have been permanently developed by the peoples mentioned above. Germany has no right in Holland, in Belgium, North France, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Britain or anywhere else except in Germany and not in those parts of the Reich which have been stolen from her neighbors over a period of years.

German war aims are understood. So Britain and France were wary when a co-called peace offer was made by the German Chancellor. They cannot trust him and will not put confidence in his word or reliance on the policies he furthers. That is the Allied war aim from the negative standpoint. From the constructive or positive standpoint the Allies aim at a peaceful society in Europe, made up of nations living in harmony and co-operation.

Futile Pin-Pricking

That indomitable old war-horse, David Lloyd George, still finds it impossible to refrain from efforts to attract public attention. Despite the fact that for years he has exercised no influence whatever in British politics, as an examination of the various election returns conclusively proves, the fiery little Welshman misses few opportunities of getting into the limelight.

His latest move is an open letter in which he attacks the British Government for its failure to attack Germany immediately after the violation of the Munich Accord in September last year. The gist of Mr. Lloyd George's argument is that Russia was bound at the time by her pact with France to go to the latter's aid if she went to war in defence of Czechoslovakia, and that Britain and France should have relied upon Russia's living up to her pledged word and have declared war at once, in which event, says Lloyd George, Hitler would have been compelled to make peace or else the Nazis' power would have been crushed like an eggshell.

This is characteristic of the former wartime Premier's fatal habit of sweeping generalization. His argument would be quite convincing but for two things: one is that it has been proved beyond any reasonable doubt that Britain was not ready to declare war in September last year; the other is that it has been proved equally conclusively that the Allies were very wise in doubting Russia's intention to stand by her pact with France. Her actions since war began have been sufficiently clear as to intent to convince even Lloyd George, but for the fact that the doughty old warrior is never open to conviction once he has started on his hobby-horse.

Mr. Lloyd George did Great Britain and the Empire invaluable service by his dynamic leadership in the war years. That only makes it the more regrettable that he can find nothing better to do just now than indulge in futile pin-pricking —(Montreal Star).

Want Tourists More Than Ever

Speaking to the American Automobile Association Convention in Washington, D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, assured the United States that American tourists coming to Canada would not be subjected to travel restrictions, to food rationing, or to any interference with their automobiles or legitimate belongings.

Odd though it may seem to many this assurance was necessary; there exists in the United States, a belief that Canada, under war conditions, is no place for travel.

For Canada, such a belief is bad. This country is going to need a great deal of United States exchange, and the tourist industry is one of three sources from which that exchange may be obtained. Hence its importance.

The Government would be well advised to increase its tourist advertising in the United States. There are those who disagree; people who say that with travel to Europe out, Americans, if they want to vacation at all have got to vacation here. The answer to that is that Americans do not have to vacation here; they can vacation at home, they can got to South America, and they can go to Mexico. Already, indeed, Mexico and South America are making a strong bid for tourists, are advertising far more than Canada advertises. Incidentally, little Bermuda has more tourist advertising in United States newspapers and periodicals than Canada has.

During the past four or five years Parliament has been voting something like $300,000 annually for tourist advertising. Seeing that the industry brings hundreds of millions of dollars into the country, the outlay is a good one. Instead of decreasing it, as some have urged, we should increase it. The result would not merely be good for business generally; it would help mightily in a vital war need.—Ottawa Journal.

Truck Terminals

Some day, perhaps, all surface haulage in the United States will be integrated. This would mean a tie-up between the railroads and over-the-road trucking, with all freight handled at central depots. Meanwhile the amazing independent growth of the trucking industry has given such vast terminal markets as New York City problems which must be solved.

Highway truckage is a development of only two decades, and until the National Motor Carrier Act was passed in 1935 it was completely chaotic. Twenty years ago the railroads were handling nearly 8,000,000 tons of freight at their Manhattan station. Today this rail tonnage is reduced by half; all the rest has gone to trucks. Two tons of freight are delivered by truck over the Boston Post Road to one brought in by rail from that direction. There are now 18,000 truck movements a day across the Hudson by ferry, bridge and tunnel. In this area alone trucks haul an estimated 15,000,000 tons of freight a year.

Trucks eighty feet long and weighing as much as ten tons now lumber over our highways, though they are not permitted in some States. In our busy downtown produce area their length is limited to thirty-five feet. But these are sizeable vehicles and they barge through crowded streets which were never meant for them. Fleets of heavy trucks operating to store doors add enormously to street congestion and increase delivery costs. This is as serious for the truckman as it is for the harassed citizen and the city authorities.

The Port Authority of New York, well aware that the situation is growing steadily worse, is prepared to consider the construction of self supporting union truck terminals at strategic points. For this purpose it might even devote space which the railroads will not require in the present Inland Freight Terminal. Truck terminals should reduce the need for store-door delivery, or if this were retained, would offer convenient stations for sorting inbound freight and consolidating outbound freight. The terminal-to-terminal rate would tend to drop. A light 'mosquito' fleet might well be organized to replace heavy truck deliveries within the city. Whatever system is adopted, the Port Authority urges the co-operation of all concerned toward making these terminals an actuality. Present confusion has reached a point where further delay will prove disastrous.—New York Times.

Toronto Man Escapes "Clink" in Germany

A prisoner in Germany when war broke out, Joseph Kehoe of Toronto, escaped from a Nazi 'clink", he told the Windsor Star yesterday. A maritime stoker and oiler, he passed through here today on his way to Toronto where, back in 1914, he joined the 15th. Battalion for overseas.

"I'd been in Germany about 18 months," he told The Star. "You know how it is .. I left a ship at Hamburg, and then lived around Hamburg and Bremen and Bremerhaven, relieving firemen and oilers on British and U.S. ships that came into port.

Talked Too Much

"Well, along came the war, and I'd been passing for a U.S. man up to then, but I guess I talked a little too much to the Germans then about what Canada would do. I talked a little about Ypres, and about the Hindenburg line. And they didn't like it.

"Anyway, next thing I knew I was picked up and rushed down to an old prison at Butzbach, not far from Hanau.

"That was September 2, before Canada came into the war. But the Germans didn't bother much about that at the time. They just figured that I was a British subject and so the 'can' was the right place for me.

"This clink was an old place. I don't think it was regularly used any more. But they had 150 British in it by the time I got there—and some Canadians, too. There was a fellow called Alfred Lafreniere, from Sherbrooke, I remember. He'd been making a living doing acrobatic dancing with a German girl. A strong, tough guy he was. They beat him up something terrible because he wouldn't come quietly.

"There was another fellow called Cole. He, too, was from some place in Quebec and talked better French than English. There was another fellow, too, whose name I forgot. He claimed that he was a Luxemburger, but the Germans said he'd been naturalised in Canada and so he was due for the clink.

Recurrent Malaria

"Well, I've been around a lot. Somewhere I picked up recurrent malaria. I get the shakes every so often. It lasts about two hours or maybe four, and then I get full of quinine and I'm all right again. So I got the shakes and the Germans put me into a little infirmary they had, with bars on it that were more like a thick wire than anything else.

"I'd kind of prepared a little when I knew war was coming. There was a fellow I knew, a cousin of Goebbels, the German propaganda minister, and he hated Goebbel's insides. He'd told me before that he'd like to blow a hole in his cousin's back. Well, when it looked like war he staked me with some money. Eighty marks it was. He told me, too, to put some hacksaw blades between the soles of my shoes in case I needed them. I did that.

Bought Extra Food

"So then I had these blades. I'd used some of the money in Butzbach buying smokes and extra food. But I had about 30 marks left, and I figured I could make my way along all right.

"I cut through the bars. How many? Oh, about five or six. They were just about as thick as my little finger, and pretty badly rusted. It wasn't a big hole, tho', and I knew that any place I can get my head through the rest of my body will follow."
